7. It makes boys, above all things, worshippers of a high ideal, and insensibly forces them into the path of manliness and duty.

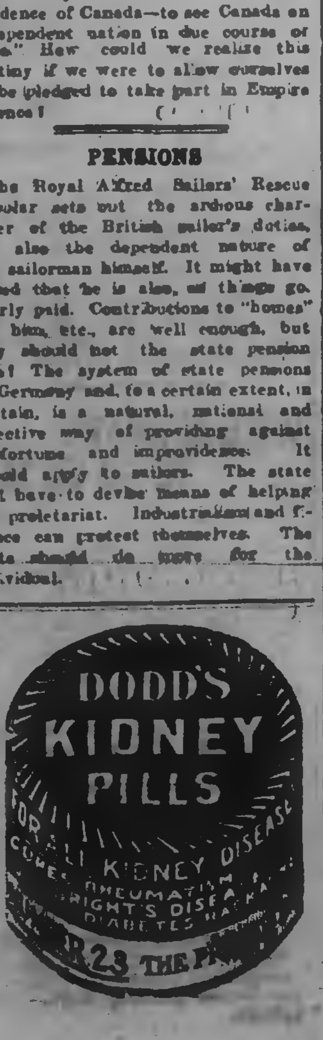
Why not begin it in Peterborough?

SIR WILFRID LAURIER ADVOCATES INDEPENDENCE

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's programme, as announced in Parliament some years ago:—"We have self-government; we have a constitution of our own; we have interests which are separate and distinct from those which we hold in common with the Empire of which we form a part, and our own energies must seek wider fields abroad. Perhaps the next step may be said to be complete independence!" "I hold out to my fellow-countrymen the idea of independence. If we are true to our record we will exhibit to the world the unique, the unprecedented example of a nation achieving its independence by slow degrees, and as naturally as the severing of the ripe fruit from the parent tree. I have again and again repeated that the goal of my aspiration is the independence of Canada—to see Canada an independent nation in due course of time." How could we realise this destiny if we were to allow ourselves to be pledged to take part in Empire defence?

PENSIONS

The Royal Alfred Sailors' Rescue circular sets out the arduous character of the British sailor's duties, and also the dependent nature of the sailorman himself. It might have added that he is also, as things go, poorly paid. Contributions to "homes" for him, etc., are well enough, but why should not the state pension him? The system of state pensions in Germany and, to a certain extent, in Britain, is a natural, rational and effective way of providing against misfortune and improvidence. It should apply to sailors. The state will have to devise means of helping the proletariat. Industrialism and finance can protect themselves. The state should do more for the individual.



EDITORIAL NOTES

Sir Wilfrid's forecast of independence will be found on another page. What do you think of it?

Some one says the Senate is not in need of reform. It is if its members take what they have not fairly earned.

Seventeen boy-burglars were arraigned in Montreal. Free trade in crime, like other forms of free trade in this unhappy world, is a little too much.

If Dr. Cook really cooked the accounts of his expedition he should be hanged. We have too many cheap skates of that variety here in Canada at present, as Artemus Ward would say.

La Canada attacks Mr. Willison, of the Toronto News, by name, in a two-column-wide page-length editorial, for his alleged duplicity in advocating an Imperial navy fleet-unit contribution for Canada in the News, and for advocating the reverse in the Times, as its Toronto correspondent.

"MR. SCHAFFNER:
1. How many carloads of wheat have been transported over the National Transcontinental railway from Winnipeg to Fort William or Port Arthur up to November 30, 1909?
MR. GRAHAM:
1. Ten car loads."—Hansard.

The Liberal parliamentary caucus at Ottawa, it is announced in Liberal papers, showed that one section of the party favoured "chipping in" for the maintenance of a big British navy, but, apparently, the majority was willing to accept the Government's plan of creating a little Canadian navy. The little colonials are on top just now in Canada.—Montreal Gazette.

The Globe, the Ottawa Free Press and a multitude of other free-trade (Sic) journals, refer to tariff reform, protection, &c., as "the Bubble burst," "A Sham Exposed," "Worse than Whiskey," "The Poor Made Poorer," "Where, whence and what," &c. Meanwhile they support the Laurier-Fielding tariff and bounty-paying outfit. Consistency seems to be a sort of dream amongst these journals, or is it all a plan to capture the unthinking vote? Surely not.

Hereditary legislators are the old-time Athenian oligarchy in modern garments. Heredity is no guarantee of common sense. Too often the reverse. But that a second chamber of the nation's ablest and not necessarily oldest men, is desirable is a certainty. A mere majority is not necessarily proof against foolishness. An upper house appointed as are our judges for their sanity and learning, and with a distinct understanding that the country will believe in them on the same terms is what would appear to be the best.

Anti-Local Option people, like others, argue wildly at times. It may be legitimate enough to argue that Local Option is not equal to the suppression of drunkenness, but it is not legitimate to argue that the man who opposes the known ravages and waste caused by whiskey is a fanatic and a fool. Is it inconsistent with the principles of individual liberty that the public should at least try to provide against the ravages of small-pox? Ravage and waste are ravage and waste no matter what they are caused by, whether whiskey, or sweetmeats, and attempts to lessen them are praiseworthy, although those attempts must be consistent with reason and common-sense. That is the issue, then. How to stop drunkenness, which even the liquor men do not for a moment defend, is the question with all reasonable men and women, and the issue should not be obscured. Who denies that 75 wrecks decorate the mourning list in Peterborough? Do you want this increased? Certainly not. No one wants it, whether liquor man or anti-liquor man. Does any one argue for its steady continuance? Does any reasonable man on either side demand that 75 men shall go every year to the garbage-heap? Certainly not. What's the matter, then? The answer appears to be that people want the privilege of drinking moderately while they are at the same time perfectly willing that drunkenness should be stopped. Does Local Option provide any sort of remedy? Regulation does not for regulation at its best we have in Peterborough now. Therefore it is not legitimately arguable that the present system of license and regulation provides the remedy. The 75 exist in spite of it, and if Local Option is no better then we shall have to wait until some measure that is effective, is devised. But to argue that things as they are, are satisfactory is not legitimate, for it is admitted, on all sides that this is not true.

The Conservative Club

A general meeting of the members of the Conservative Club is called by Mr. C. N. Brown, the president, for Wednesday evening next, at 8 o'clock. Business, general.

Rev. A. J. Vining, Baptist preacher, of London, has declined an invitation to Hamilton with an increase of $1,000.

London Presbytery claims to have sent anti-racing petitions to Mayor Beattie, M.P., who denies he received them.

THEATRICAL

"The Fox"

Mr. Daniel Ryan was excellent as Joe Laplante, the habitant, in "The Fox," which appeared at the Grand on Saturday for matinee and night performances. The story of the piece deals with the avowed immediate vengeance against a visitor to his cabin, who, the old French-Canadian (Laplante) believes to be the man who ran away with his daughter twenty years ago, and then cruelly deserted her. The stranger, however, proves to be the son of the old man's child, and the concluding curtain goes down on a touching scene, in which Mr. Ryan splendidly rose to the demands on him for finely pathetic and emotional acting.

Mr. Ryan's leading lady on his present tour is Miss Harriett Duke, a gifted and pleasing actress.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

HAS ACCEPTED GOOD POSITION IN THE WEST

Mr. M. J. Hutchinson, formerly of the Examiner, and late advertising manager of the Dry Goods Review, Toronto, has resigned that position and is leaving about the end of the year for Regina, where he will become advertising manager of the Daily Leader. The position in the west is said to be an excellent one.

W. A. BUCHANAN

One of the accessions to the Alberta Cabinet in the recent changes was Mr. W. A. Buchanan, a newspaper man well known and highly thought of in Ontario. Mr. Buchanan was called to the Cabinet without portfolio, but Premier Rutherford has publicly stated that he will be given an important department as soon as the Legislature meets and makes a readjustment possible.

Mr. Buchanan is a native of Peterborough County, though his father, Rev. Wm. Buchanan, being a Methodist minister, has had many different homes. W. A. Buchanan began newspaper work on the Peterborough Review at the age of sixteen, and later was employed on the Examiner of that city, from where he came to the Toronto Telegram. From this city he went to St. Thomas to take charge of the Journal, and in 1905 went to Lethbridge, Alta., where he is now the proprietor of a prosperous and splendid daily in a progressive city. Mr. Buchanan has a natural taste for politics, is an excellent all-round newspaper man and a good administrator. If he can keep his mind on politics, evidently the vocation he likes so well, he will be a real constructive influence in Alberta affairs.—Toronto Globe.

WARNING

Since its introduction into Canada the sales of Parisian Sage have been phenomenal. This success has led to many imitations similar in name. Look out for them; they are not the genuine. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. You can always get the genuine at Wm. Madill's, the druggist, Peterborough.

It is made to conform to Dr. Sangerbend's, of Paris, proven theory that dandruff, falling hair, baldness and scalp itch are caused by germs.

Parisian Sage kills these dandruff germs and removes all trace of dandruff in two weeks, or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp and prevents baldness.

And remember that baldness is caused by dandruff germs, those little hard working, persistent devils that day and night do nothing but dig into the roots of the hair and destroy its vitality.

Parisian Sage is a daintily perfumed hair dressing, not sticky or greasy, and any woman who desires luxuriant and bewitching hair can get it in two weeks by using it. 50 cents a large bottle.

Money Found

James Conmee says J. C. Hunter, of Duluth, Herman Finger, of Port Arthur, D. C. Cameron and J. T. McArthur, of Winnipeg, and Mr. Sturgess, of the Continental Loan Co., New York, are members of his Power Company.

Mr. Jos. Succee, who is well known in the farm implement trade, has again gone into the business for himself, and bought out the Frost & Wood agency at 370 Water street. WM. HAMILTON CO. DOING WELL

Satisfactory Reports at First Annual Meeting-Officers Elected

The first annual meeting of William Hamilton Company, Limited, was held in the office of the company, 479 Reid street, on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, at which there was a large representation of shareholders present. Mr. A. McFarlane, president, occupied the chair.

The report of the directors to the shareholders showed that the past year's business has been large and very profitable. A dividend of eight per cent. has been paid on the preferred stock, and a substantial balance carried to the credit of profit and loss account.

The shareholders were more than pleased with the report, and the feeling is general that the company has now entered upon an era of great prosperity. The total number of employees is now 115, and the company has now orders on hand for all the work that they can possibly get out for many months to come.

Mr. W. B. Morris, chartered accountant, read his report, and the following directors who constituted the board for last year, were unanimously re-elected: Messrs. A. McFarlane, Geo. G. Gladman, W. H. Collier, J. C. Smith, D. Spence, C. R. Cameron and L. A. Potvin.

At the close of the meeting, a meeting of the directors was held, at which Messrs. A. McFarlane, Geo. G. Gladman and W. H. Collier were re-elected president, vice-president and second vice-president, and Mr. L. A. Potvin secretary-treasurer.

GIVEN ONE WEEK TO RETURN COAT

Magistrate Ordered That Fowler's Coat Be Returned to Him by Chas. Delegne.

Chas. Deligne has one week in which to return the overcoat which Harold Fowler alleges was stolen from him. Magistrate Dumble decided on this course being pursued after he had heard the particulars of the affair at the police court this morning.

Mr. A. P. Poussette appeared for Deligne.

Fowler stated that while he was searching for his horses, which had run away, while he was on a trip to the back country, Deligne and a companion named Stanley Ellis, hailed him on the road and offered to help him in finding the team, if he would drive them to Peterborough. He consented, and after the animals had been found, all three came to the city. During the drive he loaned Deligne an overcoat. On arriving at a point near the Auburn mills he asked Deligne not to forget to give him back the coat, but when the corner of Hunter and George streets was reached Deligne and Ellis jumped off the rig and the former took the coat with him.

Deligne's story was that Fowler had given him the coat as part remuneration for his assistance in finding the runaway team.

The accused will have to remain in gaol till the coat is returned.

ACT RESPECTING FERTILIZERS

Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., asks some pertinent questions—a valued contributer to debates on farm affairs—report from Hansard:

Mr. Cowan. The hon. gentleman (Mr. Wilson) cannot cite a single case in which a private individual has been prosecuted to conviction, and he admits that in the absence of a fixed standard the Act is practically ineffective. The fact is that the Dominion Government is playing dog in the manger. This statute does not fix the standard and should the Provincial Government legislate along the same lines and a prosecution be entered under the Dominion statute, then the courts would say that the Federal Parliament having already exercised jurisdiction the Provincial Act is ultra vires. This proves beyond doubt that the fixing of a standard by Dominion statute is an absolute necessity.

Mr. Sexsmith. Does this item cover the expense of the analysis of the samples of food and of the fertilizers sent in for registration under the Act of last year?

Mr. Templeman. When samples are sent in for registration they have already been analysed by the manufacturers, but this will cover the expense of the samples sent in by the people to be analysed at the laboratory.

Mr. Sexsmith. What progress is being made in the registration under the Act of last year?

Mr. Templeman. Very good progress. I think most of the manufacturers are registered now and the Act will go into force by the first of the year.

Mr. Geo. Taylor. The minister told us that when these samples are analysed and found adulterated he hands the case over to the Department of Justice. It seems to me that that is the end of it. I would like to know any manufacturer who has been prosecuted in connection with these adulterated food stuffs that are bought in the grocery stores.

Mr. Templeman. When the chemist finishes his analysis and adulterations are found, the case is sent to the Department of Justice, as the hon. gentleman says.

Mr. Geo. Taylor. And that is apparently the end of it, because I have never heard of a case where the manufacturer or the seller of adulterated food has been prosecuted. It is time that the law should be put in force. It is all nonsense to hand the case over to the Department of Justice and let it remain hung up there when the proper course would be to institute these prosecutions at once, and stop the sale of these adulterated articles.

Puss In Splints.

While escaping from a fire in the borough district of London a few days ago, a cat broke its leg and as a result limped about painfully for a day or two. The porters in the borough market noted the animal's sufferings and decided to try and ease its sufferings. They made some splints out of two pieces of wood carefully filed, and then a little crowd assembled round the cat while the splints were put on with the aid of a piece of one of the men's handkerchiefs. The amateur surgeons worked with the utmost care and gentleness, and the crowd looked on breathlessly. When the splints were on the cat seemed to get much relief, and purred and licked its thanks and cosily nestled itself down for a sleep on a sack after a drop of milk.

Owners of World's Gold.

It is a somewhat curious fact that the English-speaking nations own nearly all the world's productive gold mines.

Thus England, with its Canadian, Australian and South African mines, is credited with 61 per cent. and the United States with 22, making an aggregate of 83 per cent., while all the rest of the world gets the remaining 17 per cent.

According to the statistics for 1907, the amount of gold mined in the whole world was 19,764,078 ounces valued at nearly $420,000,000, of which $346,800,000 worth was produced on soil held by two English-speaking nations. This is an enormous source of power.

At the request of a large number of business men and citizens generally Ald. W. G. Morrow has decided to stand for the mayoralty for 1910. He will announce his policy within the next few days, and it is understood that it will be of a progressive nature, and in keeping with the civic requirements of Peterborough at the present time. Ald. Morrow has had considerable experience in the Council, and has been chairman of the Manufacturers' and Finance Committees. As an aldermanic candidate he has polled large votes and will no doubt be well supported on Janaurry 3rd.

MUNICIPALITIES WOULD REPEAL LOCAL OPTION IF IT WERE NOT A SUCCESS

One of the Strong Points Made by Mr. Irwin, K. C., in Address at Grand Opera House--Appeals Had Failed to Carry-Large Audience Heard Toronto Speaker

The address of Mr. H. E. Irwin, K. C., of Toronto, at the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon was pronounced by the audience one of the best given here during the local option campaign. He is a speaker of much ability and marshalled his points in a most convincing manner. He went into the question very fully and took up many of the arguments being advanced by those opposed to the introduction of local option.

The chair was occupied by Mr. F. G. Hassard, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and the choir of Charlotte street church led the singing in a very effective manner. There was a large audience and there was hearty applause as point after point was brought out by Mr. Irwin.

Mr. Irwin made a good impression in his introductory remarks in which he pointed out that this was Canada's century and that it was possible for anyone to feel at home in every portion of the Dominion because the country was growing so rapidly that the sons and daughters of Canada were scattered and were scattering everywhere throughout its broad domains to assist in the building up of the nation.

Mr. Irwin said he liked local option for several reasons. In the first place it was a step in the natural law of progression. There were changes in every business and in the methods of doing business and the effort to abolish the bar was but a step in the onward march. Three hundred years ago there were no restrictions on the liquor business in England. Conditions were so bad then that signs somewhat like the following could be seen over the doors of the grog shops in London; "Drunk for a penny; dead drunk for two pence; straw furnished in the cellar." Since that time many regulations had been introduced for the regulation of the liquor business and and conditions had been much improved. As the years have gone by the regulations have become stricter and stricter. Then came the desire for prohibition. A man saw that prohibition was good for himself, and his wife saw that it was a good thing for her husband and herself. They decided that it would be a good thing for their family and in this way the movement spread. They saw that if it were good for the family it would be good for the community and hence it was desired to introduce local option. There was no reason, Mr. Irwin contended, why houses of public entertainment should have bars. It wasn't good logic to say that the barroom was necessary. It had been shown in many places that a good hotel could be maintained without the bar.

The speaker made capital of the point that local option had been a success in the municipalities where it had been introduced. If it were not a success why had it not been repealed? Last year there were ninety-seven municipalities in the Province of Ontario that had an opportunity to repeal the local option by-law they had passed if they desired to do so. It had been in force in these places for three years and the time had come when it could be repealed if the voters were in favor of such a move. Of the ninety-seven places only twenty-nine attempted to repeal the by-law and in not one place was the effort to go back to the license system successful. Two villages, which were not incorporated at the time the by-law was carried, but which were located in townships that had decided on local option, repealed the measure, having become incorporated in the meantime. In these two places the majority in favor of the license system was much reduced when the by-law was repealed as compared with the vote when local option carried in the townships of which they formed a part. Mr. Irwin said that local option had been a complete success in the village of Weston, where he resides. There was not even a whisper of repealing the measure. He believed that local option would be a good thing for Peterborough. At any rate it was worth a fair trial. The liquor interests all over the province, Mr. Irwin said, had combined to put local option into disrepute at Owen Sound, but they had not succeeded. The ratepayers refused to repeal the by-law when the opportunity came.

Mr. Irwin had a pamphlet that has been sent through the mails to residents of Peterborough. The author is given as Rev. W. A. Wasson. In the article prohibition is attacked. Mr. Irwin took up statement after statement in the pamphlet and showed to the satisfaction of the audience that they were not based on facts.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford pronounced the benediction.

TO START NEW YEAR WITH MEMBERSHIP OF THOUSAND

Is the Object of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society—Anniversary Entertainment at Grand Opera House on Jan. 10th, the Society's Tenth Anniversary.

The members of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society have a most commendable aim in view in their determination to start the new year with a membership of over one thousand. At a special meeting yesterday of the society ten members joined and special organized efforts to bring the total up to the four figures is being made. With the enthusiasm of the workers and the undeniable worthiness of the object there seems no doubt that the ambition will be fulfilled.

ANNIVERSARY CONCERT

The customary annual anniversary banquet will be dispensed with at the 10th yearly observance of the society's inauguration on January 10th, 1910. Instead of the banquet an attractive programme will be given in the Grand Opera House, which has been rented for the evening of the 10th. A committee of past presidents of the society has been holding frequent meetings in connection with the entertainment. Particulars concerning it will be announced later.

"THE TIME HAS COME WHEN NO PROTESTANT CAN BE BELIEVED ON OATH"

These words were used in all sincerity and seriousness by a well-known citizen of Peterborough to-day, in a prominent merchant's shop, in the usual way of conversation. The remark was especially directed to the Protestants of Peterborough. It is an indication of the effect of supposed public morals upon public opinion. The speaker cannot have meant all Protestants, or even a majority of them, but he felt himself justified in making the remark. The speaker was neither a rabid politician nor a young man in the hot impetuosity of youth. He is a "respectable and responsible" citizen in the estimation of his fellow-citizens. Is there any truth in the statement?

A gentleman, well-known in Peterborough, writing from an outside city to a friend here, says: "I see you are not a good citizen of Peterborough now unless you commit perjury, or are arrested for that seemingly popular offence."

ADDRESS TO LADY VOTERS

Will Be Given To-Morrow Afternoon at Murray Street Baptist Church.

An address to the lady voters of Peterborough will be given to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 at the Murray street Baptist church by Dr. Pidgeon. The meeting will be an open one and the ladies of the city, whether they are voters or not will be admitted.

Murray Street Notice

To-night—Building Committee at 8 o'clock.

Young People's Society at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Martin and Miss Prust, the latter, of India, will speak.

Wednesday—Mid-week prayer service.

Band Practice To-Night.

On account of the appearance of the Royal Welsh Ladies' choir to-morrow night the 57th Regimental band will practice to-night instead of to-morrow night.

IS AGAINST THE EIGHT HOUR DAY

Labor organizations are deeply incensed at the conduct of Mackenzie King in fighting so bitterly the eight-hour day on public works. And no wonder! If the Minister of Labor, who speaks for labor and even uses the union label on his publication, is opposed to the principle, the case is lost. Ought not the title of Mackenzie King to be changed to that of Minister of Capital.—Mail and Empire.

YOUNG MAN MUST STAND TRIAL

The young man who was charged with perjury in connection with the recent case of illegal selling of liquor and who received a hearing at the police court Saturday afternoon, was committed for trial by Magistrate Dumble, who decided that the evidence warranted this being done.

The accused was not represented by counsel.

FRIEND PAID HIS FINE OF $2

And Thomas Cleary Won't Have to Spend Christmas on the Hill

Some time ago Thomas Cleary, by special steps being taken by Magistrate Dumble, was given his release from the county jail, where he was serving one month for vagrancy. This was done so as to allow him to secure work with a farmer in Westwood. Saturday Thomas came to the city, forgot all about the promises he had made and proceeded to get drunk and he was picked up on the street at night by an officer and taken to a cell. This morning he pleaded guilty to the charge and a fine of $2 was imposed. On the advice of Chief Rossel it was ordered to be paid forthwith with the option of ten days in jail. Cleary didn't have the amount and on a further suggestion, his Worship made the board bill read thirty days; but fortunately for the prisoner, he had a friend who came forward with a two spot and it will not be necessary for him to do service on the wood pile.

OBITUARY

ALFRED GEORGE JOHNSTON.

Arthur George Johnson, fifth son of Mr. James Johnston, 110 Dublin street, died early this morning, after an illness and suffering of over eighteen years.

The deceased received the injuries from which he died in a railway accident which occurred on the C. P. R. siding, which at present runs to the Quaker Oats mill. He has been a patient sufferer all these years, he being only eighteen years of age at the time.

Medical skill could do nothing for him. He leaves to mourn his death four brothers, William J., ex-alderman; Joseph, Herbert, Ernest, and one sister, Mrs. Fred O. Alison, besides his father and mother, all residing in the city.

The funeral will be held from the family residence on Wednesday, at 3 o'clock p.m.

JAMES HENRY STEWART.

Death came suddenly on Saturday evening to Mr. James Henry Stewart, at his residence, 1st concession lot 4, Smith township. The deceased had been unwell for some time and on Saturday afternoon he drove to the city and consulted Dr. Cameron, who wanted him to go at once to the hospital. Mr. Stewart was unable to do so, and drove home again. Upon arrival there he took off his shoes and sat in a chair to await supper. Just as his wife announced everything ready the deceased died without any warning and without speaking. His death was a great shock to his relatives and friends and much sympathy is expressed for his wife and family. He was 44 years of age and is survived by his wife and two sons, Merton and Victor, both at home.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at one o'clock from the family residence to Emily cemetery.

BROOMS WILL BE HIGHER

Corn Broom $240 a Ton Now Instead of Former Price of $90

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 12.—Estimates on the visible supply of broom corn in the country, nearly all of which is controlled by two factories in this city, make it certain that the price of brooms will go up rapidly. Officers of the combination here say they would not be surprised to see housewives paying one dollar apiece for brooms next year.

The shortage in the supply of corn is so great that there is not enough to make two brooms for each family in the United States, it is figured. Factories here are paying $240 a ton for corn, while the normal price is [illegible].

PETERBOROUGH NOT THE PLACE

To-day's Globe states that the contract for supplying butter to the insane asylums at Hamilton, London, Orillia, Penetang, and to the Mercer Reformatory at Toronto, had been awarded to the Lambton Creamery, of Peterborough. The Review has been informed that this Company has its headquarters at Petrolia, and not at Peterborough.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. ENTERPRISING WELLAND

The Board of Trade of Welland, Ont., does more than talk. Like Welland itself it has devoted itself to business. It has forwarded to the press of Canada a really beautiful sample of folder most artistically done, and asks the simple favour of a comment. We gladly make it. Any town or city that has enterprise enough to get to work in this fashion is worth both comment and praise.

The folder has on one cover a beautiful view of the town of Welland by night, the evidence of her splendid electrical advantages being everywhere apparent.

The cost of electric h.p. is $15.00 (compare Peterborough at $20.00). Natural gas for heating and lighting purposes is cheap also. It would take too much space to do justice to this pamphet, but suffice it to say that two things are clear. One is that Welland depends on cheap electric power and good transportation facilities. Peterborough has the facilities, but what about the power? Our "glorious prospects" of a few years ago seem to have dwindled down to the proportions of a tallow dip. It is by no means a wonderful that there is widespread dissatisfaction and much unfavorable comment.

WHAT IT MEANS

(Winnipeg Telegram.)

Canada is either a part of the British empire or a dependency of Great Britain. If Canada is a dependency of Great Britain it is about time constitutional relations were readjusted. But if Canada is a part of the empire, Canada should certainly by now shoulder her proper share of responsibility for its defence. The idea of one crown, one empire and one navy, precludes dependency and suggests interdependence. Whereas separate navies would make for separation, and a separate navy which is not a navy at all implies dependence, if not upon Great Britain, upon some other country. If such a condition of affairs, if a policy which necessitates one or other of those results is satisfactory to the Canadian government it is deeply humiliating to Canadian natonal pride.

Taken in conjunction with Sir Wilfrid's open advocacy of independence it is quite apparent that his policy has but one excuse, viz.; that it accords with the aspirations of French Canada. This "independent" navy business works two ways. It may ultimately land us in financial ruin.

Leaving Peterborough he went to Montana and he resided there ever since.

AN EXPLANATION FROM MR. LASTER

He Thinks He Has Been Misunderstood in What He Said?

Note.—The communication following, and which appears over the signature of Mr. B. Laster, is offered for publication by him, independent of the wishes and objects of either side in the local option campaign, and without approval or endorsement by either party. The space occupied is paid for by Mr. Laster, and it is on these conditions that the communication appears.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—On reading Wednesday night's Examiner I see that some gentleman has taken exception to some offence that they found in my Monday's letter in that paper. So far as the abuse of the ministers of the city is concerned, let me tell you that I am finding fault only with ministers who, I claim, are abusing others. I am respecting every preacher or pastor who is preaching and educating the people to peace and and truth, and who are teaching the children to honor their fathers and mothers. But I have no word strong enough in condemning ministers who make an effort to bring hundreds of women and children together, and preach to them one side of the story. And let me tell you that I am not telling you a story, but I have already, proof right here in town, that the seed is already ripe that has been put into their heads. Have you ever thought of it? By condemning men who are taking a drink and although not drunkards, in the presence of their wives and children, they are disturbing the peace between man and wife, where before they never took notice of it. And the children have learned to call, without shame, their fathers, drunkards. Is this the way children should be taught against their fathers? How would you like for your children, whom you have raised, clothed and fed, and with whom you have spent sleepless nights at their cradles when sick to grow up, and for you to live and see that child, who should honor his father, call his father drunkard and robber? Is he a robber because he has a hotel and sells liquor? That is what I think they have been preaching all the time; instead of making happiness in the families that you are pretending to help, you are bringing more misery. How should a loving wife love her husband, when her minister tells her that the man who takes a drink is a brute and absolutely lost. It is the same way in regard to children against their parents. You are using the most strange language in the most drastic manner, not only to the hotel men, but to every one who sympathises with them. You are saying the men who vote for the open bar are guilty of the crime of the drunkard. I say "No." The preacher is condemning every man who has a right to live and use his franchise as he likes. And no preacher has any right to come and call our wives and children to their meetings, putting in their heads all kinds of misrepresentation, because they look to him as the servant of God. Have at any time those gentlemen who are complaining of my abusive letters, heard these preachers at their meetings using strong and hard language, which would be more suitable in a saloon than a place of prayer, and which is all against the hotel keepers and their supporters. Have they ever tried to protest against that? No. They were all clapping their hands when one or the other of the speakers would make a joke, and by this insult the hotelmen and their supporters in a way that would reach to the bottom of their hearts. Have those men any right to complain of abusive language? Surely not. And let me tell you so long as you continue in your misrepresentations to innocent people, I don't care who you are preacher or no preacher, you will get it back good and hard. If the papers won't accept my letters, I will find a way to let the people know. The best way would be for you to stop your hard words and you will not have any of mine. I have been informed that a committee, or some man who belongs to the Moral Reform Association, would like to have an interview with me. I am ready for any man or committee, and will discuss this matter, but not in private. I want it publicly, and I will not under any circumstances have any private transactions with them.

Yours truly,

B. LASTAR.

SPORTING NEWS

ANOTHER JAR TO THE PUBLIC CONFIDENCE IN PRO. SPORT

Without wishing to do any uncalled of knocking there is no doubt that the Jeffries-Johnson fight has fallen off to quite an extent since the secret conference on the signing of the articles led to the impression getting abroad that all was not right when the sporting writers were not allowed admittance. And according to McLaughlin, the sporting editor of the New York World, there is excellent reason for believing that the first ten rounds will be faked in spectacular fashion for the sake of making the pictures interesting and profitable.

This will be the first stage of Jeffries' redemption of the title for the white race. From then on however, the fight will be a fight, it is stated, and the best man will win.

That Jeffries is making a mark out of the public by even agreeing to taking a single round is quite apparent. He has been humored, praised and coaxed by the American people to come out of retirement and take the championship belt from the black title-holder. And Jeffries at the mere mention of the negro's name would fly into a fine rage and lash around like a frenzied sailor and make vows that he would "knock Johnson's block off," etc.

Then he dreamt three times, he says, that he would put away the champion in four rounds. Jeff gives a very realistic picture of the dream knockout, which he says has been the same on each occasion. He describes the cheering crowd at the ringside and puts on all the other realistic touches—but Jeff will have to double-cross the negro if he puts him away in the fourth round of the alleged ten round fake.

Ten rounds for the pictures they say, and yet the boilermaker has been declaring right along that he could hardly wait till the gong sounded, so anxious was he to go after his man hammer and tongs and "knock his block off," which saying has become pretty nearly as well known in connection with Jeff as "show me" of the man from Missouri.

And people believed Jeff had the four round vision and was just itching to knock out the nigger as soon as possible. And that's the way the public has been fooled, is being fooled and will be fooled and—one would almost be inclined to think from the enthusiasm and blind, sheep-like confidence displayed in professional sporting events—wants to be fooled.

THE INDIAN WON RACE ON FINISHING SPRINT

With Billy Sherring pounding strong forty or fifty feet behind him Tom Longboat sprinted over the mark the winner in the ten mile race between the two fleet performers at the Brock street rink on Saturday night. From the outset both men stepped along at a fast canter, running practically even all the way until the last lap and setting the pace alternately. In the final circuit Mints's Indian started to climb in hundred yard fashion and pulled away from Sherring at the finish with the latter also travelling at a very fast clip and chasing Longboat hotfoot right to the scratch.

The runners went faster than it was thought they would before the race and the official clocks showed the excellent time of 52.58. The track, however, may have been a little short, but the men ran 15 laps to the mile—the same as the walkers went—and while the course was not strictly measured it would come pretty close to the ten miles on the aggregate.

The fastest mile was the sixth, 5.01.

A good sized crowd witnessed the race.

The following table shows how the pair ran:

Mile.	Time mile.	Total.	Leader
1	5.07		Sherring
2	5.03	10 10	Longboat
3	5.05	15.15	Longboat
4	5.45	21.00	Sherring
5	5.30	26.30	Sherring
6	5.01	31.31	Sherring
7	5.14	36.45	Sherring
8	5.12	41.57	Longboat
9	5.30	47 27	Longboat
10	5.31	52.58	Longboat

RECORDS OF THE TWO HEAVYWEIGHTS

That the Public are Talking So Much About Johnson Has Fought Many More Battles Than the Former Title Holder—Both Have Remarkable Ring Careers.

Probably the two most talked of men in America to-day by the sporting and general public are Jack Johnson, the world's heavyweight pugilistic champion, and the man who has come out of a long retirement to endeavor to wrest the title from him, Jim Jeffries. At the present time the records of the two men will undoubtedly be received with great interest and for that reason the Review gives them below. The complete record of Jeffries is given and that of Johnson also with the exception of his performances during the past year. They have not been officially compiled yet for 1909.

While it is only an opinion Jeffries probably has the shortest record, or in other words, the least number battles to his credit, of any man who ever held the title. Johnson on the other hand, has been a particularly busy fighter, taking on two men on the same night in a few instances.

Both men have highly creditable ring careers as the following table will show:—

SPORTING NOTES

Edmonton will get Stanley Cup dates the third week in January.

Tommy and Harry Smith are out of the game, probably for all season. The former met with an accident recently and the latter is laid up with an attack of typhoid fever.

And now the junior champions of the O R F U have trimmed the winners of the same series of the Interprovincial organization. If this is kept up much longer people will be saying that the Interprovincial isn't such big pumpkins after all.

RUGBY

Thirty thousand people witnessed the game between Ottawa and Hamilton in New York on Saturday, in which the latter were victorious by 11—6 score. Many of the leading lights in the American college football world and a number of experts were in attendance and the general opinion was that the Canadian article of football was less dangerous to the players than that played in the United States. Neither team was in the best of shape and the injuries to the players in the 60 minutes were slight.

The team of St. Michael's College Toronto, won the junior championship of the Dominion by defeating the Alerts of Hamilton by 7 to 2 at Rosedale, on Saturday. Only a small crowd saw the game in which St. Michael's secured an early lead and lead all the way. The half-time score was 6—0.

STOMACH AGONY

Abolish the Cause, and Misery and Distress of Indigestion Will Vanish.

Can indigestion be cured? Hundreds of thousands of people who suffer from belching of gas; biliousness, sour stomach, fullness, nausea, shortness of breath, bad taste in the mouth, foul breath, nervousness and other distressing symptoms, are asking themselves that question daily.

And if these same doubting dyspeptics could only read the thousands of sincere letters from people who once suffered as badly as they do now, but who have been quickly and permanently cured by the use of Mi-o-na, the mighty dyspepsia remedy that cures by removing the cause, they would go to Wm. Madill this very day and get a large box of Mi-o-na tablets, and start themselves on the right road to health at once.

Thin or lean or scrawney people will find in Mi-o-na a maker of flesh and blood, because it causes the stomach to extract more nutritious matter from the food, which quickly enriches the blood.

SPLENDID PAPER ON FATHER MATTHEW, PATRIOT PRIEST AND APOSTLE

Given by Father Meagher at Meeting of St. Peter's Ladies' Literary Society—The Great Work Accomplished by Famous Irish Temperance Workers—He Lived for His People.

"Two suns," we are told, "do not shine in the one firmament," yet the same period of Irish history beheld side by side with Daniel O'Connell, at the zenith of his fame, his great countryman and contemporary, Father Matthew, the Apostle of Temperance.

In widely different characters, however, these two men won eminence and praise. One was a political leader, the other was a moral reformer. The one commanded the allegiance of a party in the state; the other received the homage of all. There is scarcely a country in the civilized world where the memory of Father Matthew is not revered. Wherever good men are laboring for the good of humanity, the story of his career is an incentive to brave endeavor, and how far his work has perished with or survived him is a question which excites solicitude.

In Father Matthew's time, as now, there was but one stain on the fair fame of Ireland. We were a grand old people,—noble, chivalrous, openhearted, pure as the snow, faithful to principle, loving our mother-land as only an Irish heart can love, clinging to truth, seeking after justice, even though the way thereto led up to Calvary and the Cross. But alas! there was one weak-point—we had one fault—we were a drunken people. We were a by-word among the nations. Irishmen and drunkards were synonymous terms. Father Matthew saw this, and his great heart was grieved, for the Irish priest ever loves his country only a little less than his God. He determined to do everything to wipe off the foul stain, to redeem his country from this reproach. How well he succeeded this little sketch will show. I feel that I owe you no apology for taking for my subject the life and work of Father Matthew, for I am addressing an Irish audience, I presume, and Father Matthew was an Irishman, was a Tipperary man, having been born in Thomastown Castle, about five miles west of the Castle of the Kings," on the tenth of October, 1790. Father Matthew had eight brothers and three sisters and of all these he was his mother's favorite child. But if he was tied to his mother's apron strings, he only used his influence with her to coax for materials of which to prepare feasts for his brothers and sisters. It was his delight to see them devour these delicacies. He liked these very much himself, but it gave him greater pleasure to see the others enjoying them. I mention all this to let you know what kind of a child Father Matthew was. It is an old saying that "The child is father to the man," and never was this truer than in the case of Father Matthew. The kindness and generosity shown in the little household of Rahtclovenm, his later home, reveals to a great extent the secrets of Father Matthew's extraordinary influence in after life, which he owed more to his kindly nature to intellectual superiority. A desire to afford pleasure to others was the great characteristic of his childhood, as it was the passion of his manhood.

One day the mother, looking at her nine boys as they sat at dinner, said, "I have nine boys and not one of them is to be a priest." The boys looked at George, for he was the eldest, but George only looked at his plate. The little Theobald jumped up, went across to his mother, and putting his arm around her neck, said to her, "Don't be uneasy, mother, I'll be a priest." And so the call came to Father Matthew. The Lady Elizabeth, daughter of the Earl of Llordaff, had learned to love the little Theobald when a child at Thomastown Castle, and this affection grew with the advancing years. When he was twelve years old she resolved to send him, at her own expense, to a school in Kilkenny. We are told he was not a particularly brilliant student, but he kept plodding away and succeeded, after four or five years, in passing into Maynooth College, but he didn't stay long there. There is a rule in most ecclesiastical colleges that one student must not enter another student's room. But the old habit was too much for Father Matthew, and so one day he invited four or five others to his room to share with him a little feast. But, alas, for their enjoyment of the good things—the authorities heard of it with the result that poor Theobald had to leave the college. One might be disposed to think that this severance of this connection with Maynooth was specially intended by Providence, for had he been ordained as a secular priest in Maynooth the world at large would, in all human probability, have never heard of the name of Father Matthew. When at school in Kilkenny he was much impressed by the edifying lives of the Capuchin Fathers who had lived there, and because they were the lowliest and least influential of the religious orders in Ireland at the time, he sought admission. was accepted, and on Easter Sunday, 1841, was ordained by Dr. Murray, Archbishop of Dublin.

Father Matthew's first appointment was to Kilkenny. The earnestness of his preaching and his zeal in the confessional made the little Friary famous, but Father Matthew did not remain here long. Shortly after his appointed he was changed to Cork. Cork became his adopted home. There he labored for twenty-five years before he began his work in the temperance cause. From Cork he set out to spread the movement throughout Ireland, England, Scotland and America, and to Cork he returned when his work was done. What did he do in Cork during those twenty-five years? He did what an Irish priest ever does—he lived for his people. Father Matthew had his work cut out for him from the start. The life of a priest in those days was anything but a bed of roses, but Father Matthew was no "drawing-room" soldier of the cross. Five o'clock in the morning saw him in the confessional, and there he often remained till eight or nine. After breakfast he was back again, and some days spent as many as fifteen hours at this trying work.

The first meeting of Father Matthew's Temperance Society was held in Father Matthew's own school room. Father Matthew was in the chair. Honest Billy Martin, the Quaker, was there, and a few more enthusiasts, but despite the magic of Father Matthew's cause, the attendance was small. I will just quote one passage from the inaugural address of Father Matthew: "If only one poor soul could be released from destruction by what we are now attempting, it would be giving glory to God and well worth all the trouble we could take." He then approached the table on which the books lay ready to receive the names of the pledged, saying in a loud voice: "Here goes in the name of God." From that moment Father Matthew became public property. In the love and reverence of the people for the character of the man was laid the foundation of his success in the temperance cause. No other man could have done the work; he did it because he was the right man to do it. The growth of the movement was little short of miraculous. In three months the number on the roll was 25,000. In five months it was 131,000, and before the Christmas of the same year it was 156,000. The tidings of the great moral reformation worked in Cork quickly spread, through the agency of the newspapers throughout Ireland and Great Britain. Father Matthew's speeches were copied into all the papers, and soon he was deluged with invitations to come and do for other places what he was doing so well for Cork. But they didn't wait for Father Matthew to come to them, they came to Father Matthew. The roads leading to Cork were black with pilgrims—all eyes turned to Cove street, and the little Friary to see Father Matthew—to take the pledge from him, to be touched by him, and blessed by him—this was sufficient reward for the longest and most painful journey. At all hours of the day and night—even to 10 or 11 o'clock at night—batches of ten, twenty or even thirty might be seen waiting to be enrolled. Some would be sober and penitent, others with a decided odor stronger than tea.

Limerick was the first field of his missionary labors. He came in the first week of December, 1839. Father Matthew preached there four days and when he left Limerick he had added 150,000 disciples to the temperance fold. From Limerick he went to Waterford. Here the same scenes of enthusiasm took place and 80,000 took the pledge. His temperance society had now grown to enormous dimensions and with the growth of the society the expenses also increased. To meet this expenditure Father Matthew decided to issue cards and medals to the members which were sold at a profit. It was afterwards said that Father Matthew must have made well by these cards and medals, but not one in twenty whose names were on the register ever bought them, and so far from making a profit by them, we shall see that Father Matthew went daily deeper and deeper into debt, in order to keep the good work going on. And this continued financial strain continued even until his death.

One would naturally imagine that the saloon-keepers of Ireland would hate Father Matthew as the devil hates holy-water, and yet we find that they were among his warmest friends. Many of them came forward and took the pledge, and their general feeling towards Father Matthew was well-voiced by Geo. Roe, the Dublin distiller. "No man has done me more injury than you, Father Matthew, but I forget all in the great good you have done my country." Everywhere thousands were added to the great army of the pledged. At one of these meetings a new recruit said to him, "Ah! Father, if you only knew what I am, tisn't after blessing me you'd be." And what are you then? "Father, I'm an Orangeman." "God bless you, my dear, I don't care if you're a Lemonman," good-humoredly replied Father Matthew.

There was another great Irishman alive at this time, a man who needs no introduction to an Irish audience—Daniel O'Connell. On Easter Monday, 1842, Father Matthew held a great temperance demonstration in Cork. Ten thousand people marched in the procession. Father Matthew rode in the Lord Mayor's carriage, and on his right sat the Liberator. At the corner of Lancaster Quay, O'Connell dismounted and, before the assembled multitude, knelt down to receive Father Matthew's blessing. Having, as he said, hoisted the temperance banner in almost every parish in Ireland, he determined like the Apostles of old to extend his mission across the seas. But it was not all sunshine with the Apostle of Temperance. Day by day the expenditure was increasing and day by day Father Matthew went deeper and deeper into debt. Money was necessary to keep the work going and money he had none. And to add to his anxiety his enemies began to circulate the calumny that he was enriching himself and his family by the sale of temperance medals. So many millions had taken the pledge, they said, and that meant a nice sum of money for Father Matthew. And all that time Father Matthew was plunging deeper and deeper into debt, not one in a hundred ever gave him anything for their medals. At last things became so bad that he was arrested in Dublin whilst administering the pledge. Then popular enthusiasms reached its highest pitch. From all parts of Ireland and Great Britain, from peer and peasant, from Protestant and Catholic, from Orangeman and Nationalist, subscriptions poured in upon him. Father Matthew's embarrassments were thus set at rest for a time but from this we may date the decline of his wonderful crusade. Unwilling to run the risk of renewed debt, he determined to curtail the expenses of the temperance bands, halls and other means of attracting the people to sobriety, and before long the terrible famine of '46 laid Ireland waste, and doing his best to save the starving people, Father Matthew had little time or energy to promote the temperance propaganda. The blight of the famine was upon Ireland and upon his work and Father Matthew never was the same again. In 1849, though suffering from a stroke of paralysis, he set out on a visit to America, and in spite of his shattered health he toiled in America as he had toiled at home and with a like result. He administered the pledge to a half million people, the Senate gave him a place within the president entertained him at a banquet, where he met the foremost men of the country. And then he turned his face to Ireland—to die. He awaited the coming of death like a man who has done his life work, and who pined for rest. And it came to him on the 8th of December, 1856, in the 66th year of his age, and the 42nd of his ministry, and 50,000 people marched in his funeral procession through the streets of Cork.

"Father Matthew" is but a name—but it is a name to conjure with in Ireland. They have built him a monument in Patrick street, in Cork, and in O'Donnel street in Dublin, but dearer far to him than marble and bronze is the knowledge that the cause for which he lived and labored and died, is steadily making towards the goal for which he worked—a sober Ireland.

And now, one last word. Was Father Matthew's great work, after all, a failure? It would seem at first sight as if it were so, for the people in Ireland to-day are trying to do the work he devoted his life to. If Father Matthew's great work in Ireland made Ireland sober, how is it we have a temperance question at all to-day? Father Matthew did not fail, and his performance of his work consists chiefly in this, that he educated the public mind on the question. Before his time, drunkenness was something to boast of and be proud of. Father Matthew changed all that. He put the drunkard in his proper place, and that is with the toad, the reptile and the swine. He proved to the people that drink was not necessary for them, that in fact it was nothing but an insidious poison, and the cause of nearly all the misery and crime of the country. There are hundreds of old men in Ireland who took the pledge from Father Matthew, and hold to it still. There are cities and towns in which the flag has never been hauled down, and where its adherents are as numerous as ever. To the movement of Father Matthew is owing, moreover, the public opinion in favor of temperance effort, that parliamentary vote in favor of temperance legislation which Ireland has so notably and so steadily exhibited. The pure-souled and great-hearted Father Matthew has not lived and labored in vain.

The above is a synopsis of one of the most entertaining and instructive lectures ever enjoyed by an appreciative audience at the Ladies' Literary of St. Peter's T.A.S., held last Friday evening. Rev. Father Meagher, of the Cathedral staff, was the speaker of the evening, and being but lately of the same land as the hero of temperance, was able to speak with almost the accuracy of an actual spectator of the various scenes and phases depicted.

Instrumental Duet—The Misses Doris Vocal Solo—Believe Me, Mr. H. Quinlan.
Quartette—Misses G. Sullivan, C. Delaire, K. Derocher, M. Hurley, G. Rudkins, E. McCabe.
Recitation—Miss Derocher.

The next paper will be read on January 7th. The subject will be "Opportunity." The essayist will be Miss Eva Tangney.

A general meeting of the members of the Conservative Club is called for Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Members are requested to attend, as business of importance will come up.

WHERE GRAIN ROUTE WILL GO AT LINDSAY

Lindsay, Dec. 11.—It looks now as though the Canadian Railway Company will for a certainty build their new grain route into town according to the first plans registered at the Lindsay registry office, viz., to enter Lindsay at the northern demarcation, and that the railway will cross the Scugog just north of Carew's mill, and continuing on its way southeasterly around the eastern part of the corporation, through the French village and then easterly to Peterborough.

It is also quite evident that the C.P.R. will build a switch line for shipping purposes down through Carew's mill yard, past Horn's mill and down the western side of the river, underneath the proposed new overhead government bridge on Wellington street, around the west side of Beel's carriage factory, past the town wharf, through Cohon's shop and through the yards of the Flavelle Milling Co., and then on through Pumpkin Hollow and across the river about Russell street.

At the request of Mayor Begg, Clerk Knowlson communicated recently with the Government Minister of Railways and Canals, acquainting them with the proposed intentions of the C.P.R. re passing underneath the new bridge on Wellington street, and also communicated with the C.P.R. officials, acquainting them with the intentions of the government in building a new overhead bridge at Wellington street. A letter has been received from the head engineer of the C.P.R. in acknowledgement stating that they would consider the matter at once.

The C. P. R., learning that Horn Bros., intended to erect a new wing to their factory on the east side, down to the river, waited on the firm and asked them to build in another direction as they intended coming down that side of the river.

WAGES MUST BE PAID TO COOK

Was Awarded $12.86 by Magistrate at Police Court-Napkins Found in Her Trunk Were Her Own

Lizzie Chase, a cook at the Palace Hotel, was awarded $12.86 at the Police Court this morning.

It appears that she was dismissed from her position on Friday night, but her employer secured a search warrant to have her trunk inspected, on the grounds that it contained articles taken by her from the hotel.

The trunk was brought to the Police Station this morning and some table napkins were found in it, but she claimed that they were her own.

The proprietor did not deny that the amount mentioned was due the woman and although given the opportunity to prefer a charge of theft, ddi not do so.

THEY DO NOT LIKE THE SLEET

Telegraph, Telephones and Power Companies are Apprehensive Walks are Slippery.

The telephone, telegraph and power companies are apprehensive as a result of the sleet storm to-day. The memory of the last storm is fresh in their minds and they fear that much damage will again be done if sleet continues to fall. Already the wires are coated and are commencing to sway towards the earth.

The walks and roads are very slippery and pedestrians have to 'tend to their knitting or they find themselves doing serpentine acts on the pavement.

DEPUTY MINISTER REPORTS ON HUDSON BAY RAILWAY

He Thinks Port Nelson is Superior to Fort Churchill as a Terminus for the Projected Line to the Bay—Estimates Cost at Nearly $9,000,000.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—"There is no room for doubt that Nelson is the much better harbor," says M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways, in a report on the Hudson Bay Railway project, which was tabled in the Commons yesterday. The two lines considered were to Fort Churchill and Port Nelson, from the Pas Mission. Comparing Port Nelson route with the other, he says:

"The line is also shorter by 67 miles, the country through which it runs better, and the possibility of local business altogether better than the Churchill route. There is also a probability that a fair proportion of the route is available for settlement, whereas on the Churchill route, there is no such probability beyond Split Lake, where the lines separate.

"The sea route will pass to the north of Ireland and the distance from Liverpool to Port Nelson is 3,200 miles, against 3,007 from Montreal to Liverpool.

"For all practical purposes the City of Winnipeg is as close to Fort William as the Pas is to Hudson Bay at Port Nelson, hence they may be compared as radiating points.

"Practically the whole of the Province of Manitoba and about 11,000 square miles of the southeasterly corner of Saskatchewan, is tributary to Winnipeg; the whole of the remaining area of Saskatchewan and Alberta belonging to the Pas. Other sources of traffic possible to the line besides grain, are: the exportation of cattle, the usual package freight to and from Europe, and possibility of developing a reasonably large import coal trade.

"It is apparent that under any circumstances grain may be placed at the Hudson Bay on board ship as cheaply as at Fort William, hence the saving possible in 5 cents per bushel, assuming that insurance and freight rates are equal at Montreal and Port Nelson."

He estimates the complete cost of the railway to Port Nelson at $8,981,800 with 80-pound rails.

E. N. Lewis (West Huron) introduced two bills, one increasing the penalties for assaults against the person, and for homicide by hunters who mistake human beings for deer; and the the other the Daylight Saving Bill, which was favorably reported on by a special committee last session, proposing to make the day during the summer months begin one hour earlier.

Lloyd Harris introduced a bill to amend the criminal code, making it a specific offence for anyone to use an automobile without the owner's consent.

H. H. Miller introduced a bill to amend the Interest Act. It seeks to give a person who has given a mortgage power to pay off a mortgage on a month's notice or payment of one month's interest. Mr. Miller's first bill dealing with this matter has been withdrawn. It was retroactive. This is not.

Mr. Edwards introduced a bill to amend the Canada Shipping Act, to do away with discrimination against Ontario vessel owners, who have to pay pilotage and wharfage dues which the owners of vessels in other provinces do not.

Dr. Sproule asked if the Government had anything definite to announce regarding legislation against combines, forecasted in the speech from the throne. The Premier said it was still under consideration.

The bill respecting the Ottawa Northern & Western Railway Co., the bill to incorporate the Pine Pass Railway Co., and the bill respecting the Phoenix Assurance Co., were given third readings.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed Major Currie that no representations had been made to the Imperial Government to have the terms of the Rush-Bagot convention modified.

Dr. Chisholm learned that some consideration had been given to the advisability of constructing airships in connection with military defence, and that the Government has decided to be guided by the action of the Imperial authorities. Sir Frederick Borden added that the Government did not consider that the time had arrived to spend money, but was quite willing to provide facilities for experimenting.

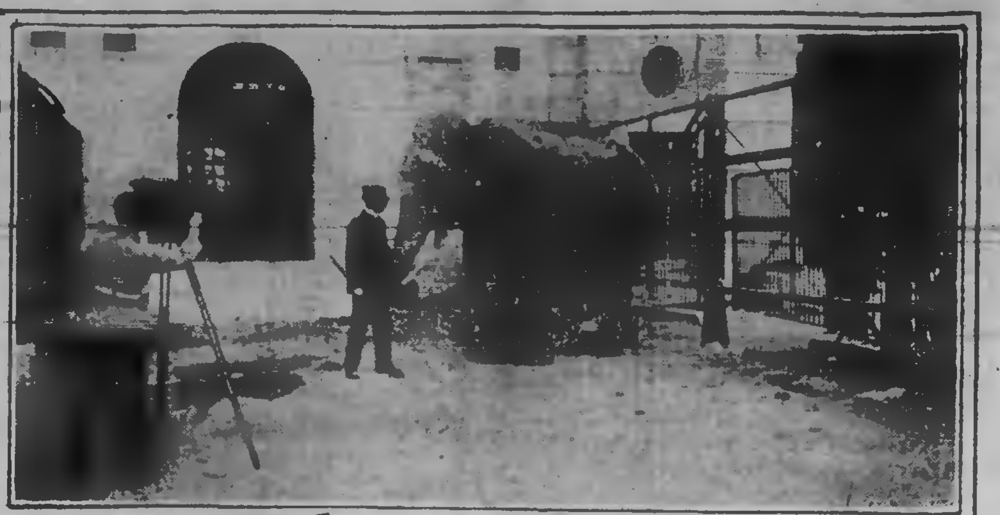
Mr. Boyer was informed by Mr. Fisher that the decennial census will not be taken till June, 1911.

Col. Worthington learned that $142,000 had been spent to date by the militia department for topographical work. Seventeen thousand square miles have been completely surveyed and mapped.

F. D. Monk was told that the grant of land to the Peace River Land Developing & Colonization Co. had been cancelled because the company failed to fulfill the terms of its agreement. It was not intended to give the land as a grant to another company.

A return tabled in Parliament yesterday by Hon. G. P. Graham, at the request of Mr. Crocket, gives the correspondence arising out of a complaint that sub-contractors on the N.T.R. in New Brunswick had been unable to pay for supplies bought from merchants and farmers.

The original contract for the section was given to the G.T.P. It sublet to the Toronto Construction Co., which in turn sublet to others. Mr. Crocket in a letter made the claim that the work was being done at a price forty per cent. below the figures of the original contract, and that the original contractors were morally, if not legally, responsible.



TAKING A MOVING PICTURE OF GUNDA, THE BIG MALE ELEPHANT AT THE BRONX ZOO.

New York, Dec. 14.—Thousands of school children in cities and towns within a radius of one hundred miles of this city who know of the six thousand animals in the Bronx Zoological Gardens only through hearsay or what they read in the metropolitan dailies will now have a chance to get intimately acquainted with them through the medium of an illustrated lecture which is being prepared by the officials of the park.

For the last three months moving picture men have been busy making photographs which will show the animals asleep, at play and in a variety of positions, the object being to get a complete photographic reproduction on canvas of animal life in all its phases.

Except when a travelling circus gives them the opportunity to see a few of the wild animals of America and Europe, the school children in the territory described have had to get their ideas of animal life from school books, stork books or the stereo typed stereopticon show.

These later exhibitions always portray the animals standing still, whereas the zoo pictures will show the animals in action. A competent lecturer will be sent on tour with the pictures and his descriptions will be sent on tour with the pictures and his descriptions will be worded so that every boy and girl will understand just what he is talking about. It is planned to have th electure entertaining as well as educational.

JUDGE CANNON'S REPORT SAYS THAT GRAFT COST MILLIONS

Finding of Commission in Montreal Investigation is Handed Down—The Administration Has Been Corrupted by Patronage.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Judge Cannon, who held the recent investigation into the civic administration of Montreal, during which some sensational charges against aldermen and civic employes were investigated, submitted his finding yesterday.

The report is a severe condemnation of a number of prominent civic administrators and includes direct charges of misuse of civic funds against some aldermen, Ald. Proulx being especially prominent. The judge turns down the application of the lawyers who took part in the investigation to have the city pay their fees. The conclusions are:

The administration of the city since 1902 has been saturated with corruption arising from patronage.

The majority of the aldermen administer affairs in such a manner as to favor the particular interests of their relatives and friends, to whom they distribute contracts and positions to the detriment of the general interest of the city and the taxpayers.

The City Council is to-day composed of groups and cliques struggling among themselves with such fierceness that they necessarily lose all sight of the higher interests of the community.

"As a result of such an administration," says the report, "the five-million-dollar revenue of the city of Montreal was spent as follows: twenty-five per cent. [illegible] and malversations of all kinds, and of the balance the larger part was used in works the permanence of which was ephemeral."

The division of the city into wards had a bad effect. Aldermen should be elected by the whole electorate to prevent ward politics.

The commissioner was pleased with the vote for the reduction of aldermen and the board of control, which he strongly supports.

The civil and criminal actions which might arise out of the evidence given must be taken by the council chosen at the forthcoming elections which will have to adopt the line of conduct to be followed.

As regards Chief of Police Campeau, the commissioner declares that he was a most willing tool in the hands of certain aldermen. This conduct of the chief, rendered possible the excesses and irregularities against which the presence of an inflexible officer would have prevailed. No evidence, however, was adduced to show that he was dishonest.

Justice Cannon's conclusions regarding the police department are: "In a general fashion it is necessary to conclude that all those who took part in the discontinuance of the 56 prosecutions for infraction of the license law were acting contrary to law, and committed so many cases of abuse and irregularity.

THE WESTERN CONSERVATIVES BACK BORDEN

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—R. L. Borden has received a telegram embodying the following resolution, passed by the British Columbia Conservative Association, at its convention at Kamloops, on Saturday: "This convention expresses its utmost confidence in R. L. Borden, our leader, in the Dominion Parliament, and pledges him its continued support. This convention favors any legislation having for its object the strengthening of the ties which bind the Mother Country and the colonies together, and believes that determined efforts should be taken to give large and practical aid to Imperial defence."

SUFFRAGETTE MANIFESTO TO THE PREMIER

London, Dec. 14.—A committee of suffragettes yesterday sent a manifesto to Premier Asquith that his offer to submit to the next Parliament an equal rights bill was wholly unsatisfactory owing to the fact that the Liberals had given this same promise at the last election and had repudiated it.

A number of anti-suffragettes have recently joined the ranks of the suffragettes under the guise of conversion to the cause and are divulging secrets to the authorities.

NEWSPAPER COPYRIGHT

St. Petersburg, Saturday, Nov. 27.—A bill has been introduced in the Upper House of Parliament, establishing an absolute copyright on news despatches and correspondence in the periodical press for eighteen hours after publication. The bill, the aim of which is the protection of newspaper correspondents, will, if enacted, prevent morning papers reprinting the despatches of afternoon papers and vice versa.

BIG JEWEL ROBBERY IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 14.—Diamonds and other jewelry valued at $300,000 were stolen from the apartments of Mrs. John William Jenkins, on the eighth floor of the Lorraine, Fifth avenue and 45th street, on Saturday afternoon.

Since Mrs. Jenkins and her husband went to live at the Lorraine July 1, her diamonds have been regarded as the most valuable collection of gems owned in the hotel. Except a diamond bracelet and two diamond rings, all of the fine jewels, including a brooch, which had been added to the collection by Mrs. Jenkins a few hours before the robbery, are missing.

The jewels were stolen from apartments between 3 and 5.30 p.m. Mrs. Jenkins was absent from the hotel between those hours and her companion, Miss Russell, also was away from the apartment part of the time.

One of the diamond necklaces that were stolen contains 18 large perfectly matched diamonds. It was this necklace in which Mrs. Jenkins took most pride.

SIMONSKI IS COMMITTED

Toronto, Dec. 14.—Charged with robbing the Bank of Nova Scotia at Rainy River, Ont., of $[illegible], assisted by four accomplices, Andreas, Slander, Maclaw and Winicki, Victor Simonski, a Pole, from whom a confession was extracted by a Polish detective in Buffalo, was committed for trial in the Police Court yesterday morning. The confession was secured from Simonski while serving a term at Buffalo as a vagrant.

In his confession he told how the five went to Rainy River, and at Winicki's suggestion, went in and robbed the bank. He declared that he took his share to his home in St. Paul, where, in his absence, it was stolen by Slander, who fled to St. Louis, Mo. There, when pursued by the police, he shot himself and one of the officers.

T. C. Robinette, K.C., is defending Simonski, who will be tried at the next Assizes.

LEOPOLD IS DYING

Ruler of Belgium Struggles Desperately for Life—Being Operated on To-day.

Brussels, Dec. 14.—Leopold II., King of the Belgians, to-day is making a desperate fight with death, and the odds are strongly against the aged monarch. As a last resort the surgeon's knife will be tried to-day. If the operation is successful, King Leopold may live. If it fails, the end is inevitable. All that will depend upon the King's strength and vitality, which are fast ebbing.

Rheumatism has already conquered the aged and wasted frame. Dropsy has developed and an obstruction of the intestines, which must be removed, has greatly aggravated the seriousness of his condition.

The general opinion is that the King will not survive the operation. Indeed, he may die at any moment. The monarch himself is rather optimistic and yesterday exclaimed to his physician, "Operate, and the sooner the better." But he added with a wan, wistful smile, "Perhaps, doctors, the long, long journey is at hand."

King Leopold is still as lucid of intellect as ever. This masterful mind, which conceived and carried out the gigantic Congo project and roused the whole world into bitter indictment and discussion, calmly directed what seems to be the final chapter in his spectacular career.

The picture was pathetic enough. Separated from his two oldest daughters by a tragic skein of events, with scandals of his own personal life whispered by every tongue, Leopold lay last night "in the Halms," a little pavilion of six rooms, close to the great empty Lacken Castle, surrounded by his faithful daughter, Princess Clementine, Crown Prince Albert and the royal household.

Princess Louise, whose creditors tried to prevent her from receiving her inheritance of the Queen's jewels, has offered a dramatic touch to the present situation by sending from Hungary an insistent appeal to her father to receive her, and it was rumored last night that the King had consented to see his banished daughter. Nothing has yet been heard from Princess Stephanie.

WAS FORCED TO MARRY CHAUFFEUR

The Atlanta Society Girl Says He Threatened to Kill Father.

Atlanta Ga., Dec. 14.—Two minutes after Mrs. Silvy Speer Thomas, the daughter of W. A. Speer, well known in financial circles, was granted a divorce from her [illegible] chauffeur, Russell J. Thomas, [illegible] Superior Court yesterday, a marriage license was issued to Marshall S. McKenzie and Miss Silvy Speer.

The divorce was secured on allegations that she was forced to marry the chauffeur because of his alleged threats of violence against her father unless she consented to elope with him.

After being married in Atlanta they left for Charlotte, N.C., where they were arrested as they registered at a prominent hotel. Mrs. Speer brought the bride back to Atlanta, but the young husband made so much trouble that the mother took her daughter to New York. Here the bride was kept hidden to evade a writ of habeas corpus sought by the husband. Finally they sailed for Europe.

Thomas asserted that if he could see his bride alone she would declare that she preferred him to her parents. This her parents refused to allow. They charged that she was drugged by Thomas the day of the wedding, and while in this condition was forced under threats to consent to a marriage.

Port Colborne, Dec. 14.—George Dayboll, a farmer residing in Wainfleet Township was driving his four sons to school yesterday morning when the rig was struck by a G.T.R. freight train at a crossing five miles west of here.

Dayboll received only slight injuries, and the other boys escaped without a scratch.

The horse was killed and the wagon completely demolished.

FOUND SHOT IN THE WOODS

Portage la Prairie, Dec. 14.—Mystery surrounds the death of Angus MacDonald, found shot in the woods north of Teulon on Wednesday. The body was brought here Saturday by Messrs Tooth and McKinnon, the latter an uncle.

On Wednesday Tooth and MacDonald started out, the former going north and the latter west. Tooth returned home that night, but MacDonald, failing to show up, a search party was organized. They found him clutching a rifle in his right hand, a shot having gone in at the left ear and the whole head being shattered. Tooth's theory is that MacDonald shot himself while insane, but this is physically impossible. Dr. Keele opened an inquest last night.

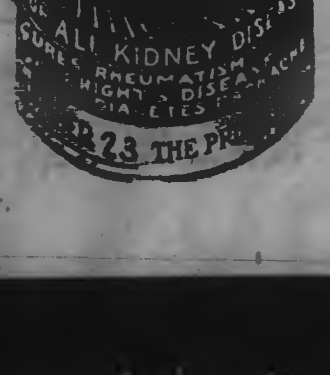
A BYWORD AND A REPROACH

Are the comments upon perjury in Peterborough, made by a well-known citizen living in the riding and by one not at present residing there, as reported in yesterday's Review, based on fact? The allegation is a terrible one. Formerly such an offence carried with it complete social ostracism. It was considered an offence so terrible as to blacken the prospects even of the innocent descendants of the guilty ones. The two gentlemen referred to know nothing of each other or of each other's feelings in that or any other direction. It was merely a co-incidence that the sad comment, by the one, an old and respected citizen, and the caustic allusion of the other, a young and successful man, brought up with respect for his word, should have tallied.

Can people get away with this sort of thing? Have we so little respect for ourselves that we can pretend to overlook it? Have we, in short, sunk to so low a level as to be a byword and a reproach, and yet not show that we feel it, and that it is too terrible to ignore. These remarks refer of course, to nothing sub judice.



EDITORIAL NOTES

A man in the U. S. beat his wife to death for saying that she was a suffragette.

Sir James Whitney has notified the Laurier government to keep its hands off Ontario's power legislation.

What excuse can there be for Sir Wilfrid's hanging on to two seats? If he can do it others may, and then what becomes of representative government?

"Wind we have conquered, but it seems that fog will be as great a hindrance to aerial navigation as it is to street, river and ocean traffic."—M. Paulhan, French Airator.

The House of Lords is largely founded on beer being made up either of brewers or stock-holders in breweries. They do not like the high license and tax-on-beer feature of the budget! Poor things.

The penny-dreadful correspondence of the Examiner from Ottawa deals with the utter demoralization of the Conservative party because it is said they are voting just as they please on various public questions. Isn't it awful?

Argentina has a good soil and plenty of it. It has cheap labour. It has attracted British capital. It is more than a serious rival of Canada. Canada cannot compete against Argentina at present prices. It is either a home-market or ruin for us. What do you think of it?

The farms in counties bordering on Lake Huron and Georgian Bay are being deserted by wholesale for the west. Prices have fallen thirty per cent, and will go down farther yet. So much for the "developing" mania of Sir Wilfrid & Co. Ontario farmers are burning the candle at both ends. However, the railway contractor thrives.

A plentiful supply of cash begets high prices. Borrowed foreign capital gives the appearance of prosperity. This deceives us with the idea that we are rich from our own savings. But oh! what a national high-time there'll be when we come to pay back and the money is spent. Tra-la! Such is the folly of self-deception.

Human life is not valued in Canada as high as it should be. An injured workman, as a rule, does not receive enough compensation for his injury; and the family of a workman killed by an accident never gets anything like the compensation that his services would be worth to his family. The Ontario Legislature could very well take this matter up at the next session.—Kingston Standard.

Sir James Whitney said with regard to Local Option that if the people of any community showed unmistakeably that is by a three-fifths vote that they wanted Local Option his government would see to it that the law was enforced. Any idea that "blind pigs" will make life in Peterborough unendurable may be given up. The city is too small for porkers without peepers to escape detection when the man behind the gun really intends to shoot. Under these circumstances heavy fines and long periods of labour in gaol assume a different aspect.

"We are in for rough weather now," he added. "We may be even in for a winter of storms that will rock the forest and break many a rotten tree, but when the weather clears you may depend upon it there will be something brought within reach of the people that will give a warmth and glow to their grey lives, something that will help dispel the hunger, despair, oppression and wrong which now chill so many of their hearts."

The scene ended in tumultuous cheers during which Mr. Lloyd-George broke down and wept, finishing the sentence quite inaudibly and sat down quite overcome.—Despatch.

London, Dec. 9.—All the election manifestos issued up to the present by the Liberal, Radical, Labor and Socialist parties have put the attack upon the Lords to the forefront, as have all the speeches from the Government side.

More significant still is the fact that the whole religious body of the country—Anglican, Nonconformist, and Catholic—appears to be against the Lords' pretensions. The archbishop of Canterbury's abstention from voting in the division of the House of Lords and the archbishop of York's frank denunciation of Lord Lansdowne's resolution undoubtedly had a great effect.

Following on the manifesto issued by the National Council of Free Churches, which declared that the action of the House of Lords "makes reforms supported by nonconformists impossible," the Church Times, the most influential and widely circulated church paper, the Christian World, and the organs of the Methodist, Baptist and Catholic sections, declare for the Commons in the struggle against the Lords.

SIDE-LIGHTS ON BRITISH BUDGET

London, Dec. 10.—Mr. Lloyd George returned to London to-day from a remarkable emotional campaign among his Welsh compatriots. He steps down from his Welsh pedestal to stand behind Premier Asquith for the moment at the great Albert Hall demonstration to-night. He wound up with a great demonstration at Carnavon yesterday, where he declared neither Ireland nor Wales would ever obtain their rights except by marching over the ruins of the House of Lords: "If we do not strike a blow now we are not worthy of our country."

His peroration was heartmoving to his Celtic fellow-countrymen. Speaking in Welsh he said that during the last few days he had been revisiting the scenes of his youth, and had been reminded how in boyhood he used to gather his windstripped branches of trees for fuel. He learned then that it was little use to go into the woods after a period of calm weather. It was best to go after a storm. "We are in for rough weather now," he added. "We may be even in for a winter of storms that will rock the forest and break many a rotten tree, but when the weather clears you may depend upon it there will be something brought within reach of the people that will give a warmth and glow to their grey lives, something that will help dispel the hunger, despair, oppression and wrong which now chill so many of their hearts."

The scene ended in tumultuous cheers during which time Mr. Lloyd-George broke down and wept, finishing the sentence maudlinly and sat down quite overcome.

But Mr. Lloyd-George is receiving blows as well as giving them. The noble lords who are appearing at public meetings all over the country are especially severe. Thus Lord Willoughby De Broke, a typical specimen of the hearty English peer to whom harrying political opponents is hardly less stimulating than hunting the fox, speaking at a great public meeting in Lincoln yesterday, put the case for the peers in characteristic fashion. He said: "The Ministers say this is not an ordinary Budget. It is war upon property with far-reaching political social results. (Cheers.) Then was it not something about which the people ought to be consulted? A more important reason why the people should consider the question before ratifying the Budget was because the Budget was saturated through and through with the poison of Socialism. (Cheers.) A great many people thought the peer was a very rich man (laughter) who lived in a perpetual atmosphere of liqueur, brandy, powdered footmen, tame pheasants (laughter), who every now and then put on a coronet and robe to vote against a Budget designed to take from him some of his ill-gotten gains. (Laughter.) That was the kind of picture presented from Radical platforms, but in the House of Lords, commerce, industry, law, learning, sport, the army and navy were thoroughly well represented, and at the time when the Chancellor of the Exchequer was creeping out of a Birmingham meeting on all fours (laughter) several of the much-despised were fighting the King's enemies in South Africa. (Cheers.) The people were beginning to see that all the rhetoric of Lord-George and the vulgarity of Churchill were not likely to fill empty stomachs or replenish bare cupboards."

This reference to Lord-George's open advocacy of the cause of the Boers when the Empire was fighting for its life on the battlefields of South Africa hits hard at a moment when the Empire seems approaching a bitter struggle for existence in conflict with a foe nearer hand.

Mr. Robert Blatchford, editor of the Clarion, and the foremost champion of Socialism in the press, has just returned from a tour of Germany, persuaded that the warnings of Messrs. McKenna, Asquith, Haldane, Grey, Rosebery, Balfour and others, about German warlike preparations, are more than justified. He declared the crisis imperilling the very existing of the Empire is close at hand, and to-day makes a startling appeal to the Daily Mail for permission to use its columns to awaken England to an infinitely greater peril than the Budget.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 13.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, receipts of live stock for last week were 3025 cattle, 1475 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs, 375 calves, supply this morning, 1600 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs, 225 calves. Prices for good to choice cattle advanced ¼c to ½c per pound since this day week on account of limited supply and higher prices in country. There was no change in lower grades, prices being firm with ample offerings. A few small lots of extra choice Ontario stall-fed steers and heifers were on sale for the Christmas market. A pair of steers sold at 6¾c per pound and a pair of heifers, weight 3655 pounds, at 6½c per lb. Owing to more seasonable winter weather, the near approach of the holiday season, and the impression that values for beef are tending higher, there was a good demand from butchers and an active trade was done. Choice steers sold at 5½c to 5¾c; good, at 5c to 5¼c; fair, at 4½c to 4¾c; medium, at 3¾c to 4c, and common, at 3c to 3½c per pound. The demand from packers for canners was fair, but supplies not so large as a week ago, and prices were steady, at 1½c to 1¾c for cows, and at 2¼c to 2¾c for bulls. Prices for lambs scored a further advance of ¼c to ½c per lb., owing to somewhat limited supply. Sales were made at 6¼c to 6¾c per lb. Sheep prices were firmly maintained, and demand was good, at 4¼c to 4½c per lb. The market for good to choice calves is strong. Supplies were small and sales at from $2.50 to $15 each. An easier feeling prevailed in the market for hogs and prices show a decline of 10c to 15c per cwt., on account of more liberal supplies. Sales of selected lots from west of Toronto were made at $8.65 and from east of Toronto, at $8.40 to $8.50, weighed off cars. At the Canadian Pacific live stock market receipts last week were 1150 cattle for export account, and 1850 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 2773 hogs and 300 calves. Offerings this morning were 900 cattle, 700 sheep and lambs, and 100 calves.

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterborough Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

LOCAL OPTION AT TWEED

The letter published below was received by the Review and was handed over to the Local Option Committee, who have arranged for its publication;—

Tweed, Ont., Dec. 6th, 1909.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—As a subscriber of your valuable paper, I see that the fight for local option is on in your good citizen. Now, as I am a ratepayer of Peterborough, and by your kind permission I would like to present a few sound facts to my fellow ratepayers of Peterborough in reference to how local option works here in Tweed. These facts that I will present no one can deny, as I am a disinterested party living here at present and can view both sides of the question without fear or favour from anyone.

Now I am happy to say that local option is a complete success here. All of the business men are more than satisfied with it, with the exception of two or three. Even these two or three say that they would be satisfied if they had local option in the adjoining townships, and why would they not be satisfied, as quite a few of the business men have told me that the money that used to go over the bar formerly for whiskey now goes to buy more groceries, boots and shoes and clothing and other necessities. Also some of those same business men told me that they were lukewarm towards the act. Some did not vote at all and others voted against the act. Now, these same men, at least quite a few of them, said that if they ever got the chance they would vote and fight for local option as they see the great good it has done the town in business and also in morals. They also say the Fall Fair was the best in the history of the town, and also the town treasurer says, the taxes are being paid more promptly than ever before. To show how well pleased the people are with the act, quoted a few of the leading business men met in the Temperance Hall last Friday night and presented one of the leading ministers of the gospel with a handsome purse in recognition of his services, as it was largely through his efforts that local option was carried here. I could go on and fill a whole page of your valuable paper telling all the good that local option has done for the people of Tweed, but I know your time and space will not permit.

Now in conclusion, I sincerely hope that every good, sensible man that has the good of the fair city of Peterborough at heart will do all he can to further this good cause.

I will not ask the ladies of Peterborough, for I know they will.

Yours, sincerely,

JOHN DUFF.

Late postmaster and general merchant of Indian River.

AN APPEAL TO METHODISTS FOR A DESERVING CASE

New York, Dec. 11.—Want darkens the life of the great-granddaughter of Chas. Wesley, "the Singer of Methodism," who, had he chosen the world, might have left a great estate to his posterity rather than the legacy of hymns of divine love for all mankind.

This woman is also the grandniece of John Wesley, who founded the Methodist Episcopal church. She is Mrs. Kate L. Wesley Gray, who, as she nears three score and ten, finds that, owing to her poor sight and her failing strength, she is no longer able to support herself by her work as an artist.

Efforts have been made by Mrs. Gray to obtain an annuity from the sale of the hymnbooks written by the Wesleys, but, owing to the expiration of copyrights, she is unable to get any income from that source. In that England, which in the eighteenth century was stirred by the songs and the discourses of the great evangelists of her race, Mrs. Gray has been unable to find the assistance she now so sorely needs. She therefore writes to those who dwell in a land where Methodism numbers in the hundreds of thousands of devoted followers, and where the old hymns stir Christians of every denomination.

IN DEEP TROUBLE

Mrs. Gray's letter is dated October 24, No. 74 Kenilworth avenue, Wimbledon Park, S.W., London, and, omitting matter which refers to the genealogy of the family, is as follows:

"In deep trouble and anxiety I have thought to write and lay before you my misfortunes. I should begin by telling you that I am the great-niece of John Wesley, and great-granddaughter of his brother Charles. My mother was the daughter of Samuel Wesley and granddaughter of Charles Wesley, the hymn-writer, and received an annuity from the proceeds of the sale of those hymns. When she died I was in a position to keep myself by my profession as an artist, but now, through the continued strain upon my eyes, I have contracted ulcers in the eye, which now occur so frequently that I am forced to lay aside my work for many months during the year.

"I have applied to the Wesleyan Society to grant me the annuity which my mother had, but it seems impossible for them to help me to get it, as you will see from the enclosed letter written to my daughter by the Rev. Nehemiah Curnock, who, I am sure, would help me to get it were it in his power to do so.

"I have thought that among the many rich Americans something might be done for me under these trying circumstances, for I know that there are many good and generous Americans, who love the memory of the good old preachers, John and Charles Wesley, and for their sakes would lend a helping hand to a descendant of theirs who could give good testimony of a hard working and useful life, which has extended up to present sixty-eighth year of my age. I am sure that there could be no better medium than through the columns of your valuable paper.

REASON FOR NEED.

"I must apologize for the length of this letter and for trespassing on your valuable time, but I feel sure that if you can see your way clear to helping me you will do so. I cannot conjecture any reason for the present Wesleyans withholding their help from me, unless it be that my mother's brother, the Rev. Dr. Charles Wesley, chaplain to the late Queen Victoria, was a churchman, as were also my mother and myself, and also John and Charles Wesley, although their methods differed from the church. Still, they were not dissenters, and if this is the reason it does not seem to me to be right."

Mrs. Gray encloses excerpts from Dr. Stephenson's "Memorials of the Wesleys" in which is the account of how Charles Wesley refused to accept the temporal advantages offered by becoming the heir of Garrett Wesley, of Ireland. Richard Cowley accepted the distinction, took the name of Wesley, was made Lord Mornington and became the grandfather of Arthur, Duke of Wellington.

John Wesley, commenting upon his brother's decision, said it was "a fair escape." Had the choice been otherwise, Mrs. Gray comments, Methodism would not have had its hymnologist nor the British nation a great military hero.

She encloses a letter from the Rev. Mr. Curnock explaining that, owing to the expiration of all copyrights the Wesleyan Society is unable to do anything for her.

MR. J. I. CLARK IN ENGLAND

The Toronto Daily Star has sent Mr. Joseph T. Clark to England to represent them during the British election campaign. Mr. Clark, through his many years' connection with the Daily Star, and formerly with Saturday Night, where he wrote over the signature of "Mack," is one of the most widely known and most popular newspaper writers in Canada. Using graceful English and keen powers of observation, and possessed of an original personality which gives distinctiveness to all he writes, Mr. Clark's daily cables and letters are sure to be eagerly read by everyone who is interested in the almost revolutionary campaign now going on in the Mother Land.

BEATS MOSQUITO WITH LANTERN

London, Dec. 12. — The Evening News says it learns that the Admiralty is about to give trials to a self-steering torpedo, which, if successful, will add enormously to the terrors of naval warfare. The invention resembles in most particulars the ordinary Whitehead torpedo, but in addition is fitted with a delicate mechanism which is put into action by a microphone.

When the torpedo is aimed at an enemy's warship the microphone picks up the noise of the propellers of the enemy's boat and deflects the rudder of the torpedo in such a manner that the torpedo makes a straight course for the target, hitting the warship about 100 feet in front of the propellers.

Accident to E. Oclaire, a Wood Chopper for Fuel and Cartage Company

Mr. E. Oclaire, an employe of the Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Company, had the misfortune to get two of his fingers caught under the wood chopper at the lower yards. WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Ills of Peterboro People

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help."

Booth's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Peterborough cures are the proof.

Mrs. R. Duncan, of 115 McDonnel street, Peterborough, Ont., says:—"Some thirteen months ago I suffered with a severe attack of La Grippe that had up until this spring left me in a weakened and miserable condition. The kidneys had been disordered through this, and became so inactive that doctors had pronounced Bright's disease and termed my case incurable. My back was very weak and the pains across the kidneys were most excruciating. I was unable to sleep through the night the desire to urinate was so frequent and irregular. The urine was highly colored and contained a quantity of whitish sediment. I became so discouraged through my years of suffering that I had no care for anything. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at Jury & McDermid's Pharmacy, and I tried them. The first box convinced me of their merits. I used three boxes of Booth's Kidney Pills and have been entirely cured. I am like a new person, well and strong, and can sleep through the night and awake refreshed and ready for the day."

WESTWOOD CHEESE FACTORY

The annual meeting of the patrons of Westwood Cheese Factory was held in the Town Hall, Westwood, Wednesday, Dec. 1st, 1909.

There was a large attendance. The speakers present were Messrs. Gillespie, Barr and Burgess, who gave interesting addresses on taking care of milk, cool curing, cow testing, etc.

The amount of milk delivered at the factory was 2,100,752 lbs., or a little over 700 Standards, from which was made 189,202 lbs. of cheese, being an average of 11.1 lbs. of milk per lb. of cheese.

The amount received from sales of cheese was $21,757.83, being an average of 11.49 per lb. The interest received on this sum was $154.42, and the value of the whey at 85c per Standard was $595.20, making a total value of the business of the season $22,467.45. The total value of the milk per standard was $32.09, and the value to the patrons after paying all expenses was $26.59.

The four patrons sending the greatest amount of milk were;

Fred Warner	91,769 lbs
J. C. Brackenridge	70,141
J. J. Brackenridge	55,091
Lewis Beavis	55,963

The average for each of the 70 patrons was a little over 10 Standards.

A meeting of the patrons of this factory will be held at Westwood on Saturday, Jan. 8, 1910, at 2 p.m., for the purpose of selling the whey for next season and transacting other business not finished at the annual meeting.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. James Stewart and family in the loss they have sustained by the death of Mr. Stewart, who died suddenly on Saturday evening December 11th.

The annual meeting of the East Emily cheese factory was held on Wednesday afternoon, November 24th. There was a good turnout of all the patrons and much benefit was derived from the addresses of two prominent speakers, Mr. G. H. Bard, assistant dairy commissioner, Ottawa, and Mr. J. Burgess, Woodstock, who is connected with the Dairy Commissioners' Department. The chair was occupied by Mr. Wm. Deyell, president of the factory.

Mr. Barr gave an excellent address on the cooling of milk over aerating. Mr. Burgess dealt with the work of the cow-testing department, showing how it was possible for a farmer to build up a heavy producing herd at small expense.

Messrs. Barr and Burgess were accompanied by Alderman Gillespie and Mr. R. A. Ward, who also delivered very helpful addresses, which gave the patrons new ideas along the dairy line.

The salesman, Mr. W. C. Switzer, and the secretary, Mr. J. C. Collins, both gave very satisfactory reports, showing that this had been one of the best seasons of the factory. Mr. Wm. Purdy, the prominent cheese-maker, has been engaged for another year.

FELL AND HAD ARM BROKEN

According to a Brockville dispatch A. W. Dearborn, of Peterborough, had his arm broken by falling on the sidewalk in Gananoque Sunday afternoon.

Useful as Well as Informing.

A newspaper which can be eaten after its information is absorbed, thus affording nourishment for the body as well as the mind, is being published in Paris, and is called The Regal. It is printed with an ink guaranteed non-poisonous, on thin sheets of dough.

Another freak newspaper, The Luminaria, is published in Madrid. The ink with which it is printed contains a small percentage of phosphorus, so that the letters are visible in the dark, and the reader does not need to make a light to enjoy its contents.

At two French seaside resorts newspapers, called Le Courier des Baigneurs and La Naide, are printed on waterproof paper, so that the subscriber can take his morning paper with him into the sea and read it while taking his bath.

In Paris a paper, Le Mouchoir, or the handkerchief, is printed on paper such as the so-called Japanese napkins are made of, and may become useful in case the reader has forgotten or lost his handkerchief or napkin.

The climax of utility is reached in Norway, where some of the newspapers use so tough a quality of paper that it can be cut into stripes and twisted into serviceable rope when all the news is read.

The Almanac.

The word "almanac" is derived from the Arabic "aland manah," which means to count and thus aptly applies to measurements of time. In ancient days almanacs were employed by the Alexandrian Greeks, but it is uncertain as to when they were actually introduced in Europe. In 1150 A.D. Solomon Jarchus issued an almanac in script, but the first printed one was brought to Vienna in 1457 by the great astronomer, Purbach. The most celebrated almanac maker was an adept in the so-called black art, Nostradamus, and since his time, somewhere toward the middle of the fifteenth century, almanacs with predictions have been in vogue, and their pictorial prophecies and weather lore have invariably appealed to a large number of people.

A Lesson in Grammar.

Hetty's uncle, who was a schoolteacher, says The Lutheran, met her on the street one beautiful May day and asked her if she was going out with the Maying party.

"No, I ain't going."

"Oh, my little dear," said her uncle, "you must not say 'I ain't going.' You must say 'I am not going'." And he proceeded to give her a little lesson in grammar. "You are not going. He is not going. We are not going. You are not going. They are not going. Now, can you say all that, Hetty?"

"Sure I can," she replied, making a courtesy. "There ain't nobody going."

Flowers as Food.

The old time epicurean was as enthusiastic over flowers and herbs as is the modern vegetarian over a cabbage. He mixed all kinds of buds, leaves and flowers with loving care and gave them all the common name of "sallets." Violets and cowslips he put into custards. Elder tops, burdock roots, broom buds and marshmallows he used for pickling. For concocting coloring syrups all manner of flowers were used. To-day a cooked flower is a curiosity.

MEDICAL HEALTH OFFICER GIVEN $800 FOR EXTRA WORK

In Connection With Smallpox Epidemic Last Summer—Board of Health Had Recommended That He be Paid $1,000.

Dr. MacPherson, M.H.O., gets $800 for work done last summer in connection with the smallpox outbreak. The settlement was made at a meeting of the Finance Committee yesterday afternoon, the matter having been referred to the committee with power to act. The Board of Health had recommended that Dr. MacPherson be paid $1,000. The Finance Committee referred the question to the council, and the council at the last meeting sent it back to the committee and gave them power to settle it.

By request, Dr. MacPherson was present at the meeting of the committee yesterday and explained the work he had done. It extended over 127 days. He treated 39 patients, and three others were left at home. The cases were scattered all over the city. Dr. Bell, Provincial Health Officer, was here and he gave certain instructions, and those instructions were carried out personally by him. The doctor then explained how much work there was in connection with each case, and how often he had to personally chase after every patient and the other members of the household. He also had to look after all the quarantined houses, and in some instances he had to cut wood for women whose help had been taken to the smallpox tent. He also assisted in the disinfection of several schools and the business college, and had a lot of work to do in rounding up suspects, some of whom were found to have smallpox.

Dr. MacPherson pointed out that he had done the work as economically as possible, and had tried to inconvenience the patients and their families as little as the law would permit.

The committee discussed the matter at some length. It was felt that the epidemic had been well looked after and effectively stamped out. It was finally decided to offer Dr. MacPherson $800. This sum was accepted, and a cheque for the amount was made out and handed over.

SPEAKS HOPEFULLY OF TRADE PROSPECTS IN CANADA

Mr. J. Carlton, of the Williams Novelty Co., Axminster, Eng., is in the city on business. Mr. Carlton spoke very hopefully in discussing Canadian commerce conditions and said he thought the somewhat general depression that has been prevalent for some months past would be relieved after the new year.

Mr. Carlton said that firms were beginning to give larger orders than they had for some time and travellers report a slow but sure increase in business which they say can be safely guaged as a steadily growing one.

LITTLE LAKE ICE NOT UP TO THE STANDARD FOR DOMESTIC PURPOSES

At the meeting of the Board of Health this morning the Medical Health Officer, Dr. McPherson, made a report regarding the ice supply for domestic use for the coming year. He was of the opinion that the ice from Little Lake was not of the best quality for domestic use and recommended that the ice dealers get their supply from some other source. The ice from Little Lake was all right for packing purposes, etc. The Medical Health Officer suggested that the dealers could have two qualities of ice and inform the public of the fact.

In connection with obtaining purer ice than that from Little Lake it is said that splendid ice can be secured in the river just below the waterworks dam.

Dr. McPherson also reported that there was only one case of scarlet fever in the city at the present time and that there was very little contagion of any kind. There is no diphtheria and no reported cases of typhoid. There are a few cases of measles and chickenpox.

At Meeting of Board of Trade To-Night.- Should Be Large Attendance

Much interest is being taken in the Board of Trade meeting to-night, and it is expected there will be a large attendance. The by-laws to be voted on by the ratepayers on January 3rd will be discussed with one exception. The local option by-law is to be left strictly alone, as it is felt that it is a subject out of the scope of the Board of Trade. The meeting is called for eight o'clock, and everybody with a vote should make it a point to attend.

A CASE WHERE DOGGIE WAS KEPT TO GUARD WOODPILE

It is not a very high compliment to the citizens living in the vicinity of Waterford streets when it is necessary that a watch dog be kept by one family to guard the woodpile, but that is the reason Mrs. Edward Smith gave for owning a dog when she represented her husband at the police court this morning.

Thomas Hodges complained that the animal was a vicious one and that it had bitten his son, Vincent, who was coasting on Waterford street on Friday evening. He did not think the children on that street were safe while the dog was allowed to run at large.

Mrs. Smith did not think the animal was vicious, although she admitted it had slightly injured the little boy. Her husband had secured the dog to keep watch on the woodpile, which was being pilfered by persons unknown.

The Magistrate ordered that the dog either be taken away from the city or shot, and the lady stated that she would see that the animal was returned to the owner, who lives in the country.

Wholesale Under Local Option

To the Editor of the Review:

Sir,—How would local option affect wholesale establishments?

CITIZEN,
Peterborough, Dec. 14, 1909.

Local option does not affect wholesaling establishments. Wholesaling is defined as selling in unbroken packages, i.e., in five-gallon casks or one dozen of bottles of not less than three half-pints each, not to be consumed on the premises.—Ed.

You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. TO-NIGHT'S DEBATE

The debate to-night at St. Andrew's upon the question of Canada's contribution to a naval service might well open with the settlement of the point as to whether Canada is ready now and at all times to unite with the other parts of a united British empire in the defence of that empire. If not what good is it to debate the question as proposed? Sir Wilfrid Laurier point-blank refused to endorse such a position as that suggested. He said at the conference that if the resolution to that end, about to be proposed, was put to the meeting he would have to vote against it. There is a strong party in Canada of anti-imperial feelings behind him. This question is not political for his position is not political. It is endorsed by some men regardless of party. They have made it a question of race. It is useless therefore to debate a question which is not an issue. The real issue is "Are we ready now and at all times to do what we can to defend a united British empire? If so, then, where the spirit is willing the flesh will not be weak.

BRAVO! MISS EDWARDS

At a recent meeting of the Collegiate Institute Literary Society Miss Margaret Edwards made a truly loyal, spirited and patriotic speech in which she pointed out the desirability of Canada's giving naval aid to the defence of the Empire. Hitherto our Canadian ideas have revolved about our own country's centre. But this is a question of world-politics. Are we equal to bearing our great part in the future of a real, united British Empire? If our women are bravely faithful to the "old cause" what matters that French Canada and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are against it? Bravo! Miss Edwards. You have set a glorious example.

Three men, Italians, were killed, and eighteen other persons were injured. A relief train was made up here and filled with doctors and appliances rushed to the scene.

THE BEST WORK OF A PEERLESS TRIO

Of Comic Opera Writers is "The Time, The Place and The Girl" —Presented by the Producer of "The Royal Chef"

Quite the best thing that indefatigable trio, Hough, Adams and Howard have done is the musical play, "The Time, The Place and The Girl," which will be offered at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday, Dec. 21st. This play must be placed in a class by itself, a story with music, fairly bubbling and sparkling with witty lines, a clever plot and many popular and catchy airs.

The scene is laid in a sanitarium in Virginia, where Johnny Hicks and his pal, Tom Cunningham, are forced to flee, having gotten into trouble the night before in a Boston gambling house, where Cunningham, while in an argument, struck one of the inmates on the head with a wine bottle. The police are getting after them. They manage to reach the sanitarium ahead of the police and before the officers can make any arrest the sanitarium is placed under quarantine for smallpox.

Tom Cunningham, a rich man's son, wants to marry Margaret Simpson, "The Girl" of the title, a farmer's daughter, who is also at the sanitarium with her father and brothers and others. After the smallpox quarantine is declared, the servants of the hotel and sanitarium desert and the guests are forced to look after their own wants. Cunningham being chosen dictator of the place, assigns a certain task to each of the guests. The fun grows fast and furious when Johnny Hicks, the slangy young gambler, is made head cook and Margaret Simpson, who has quarrelled with Cunningham, and rejected his suit, is ordered to do scrubbing. She refuses and meals are summarily cut off. The guests go on strike and refuse to work Cunningham breaks the strike by jerking off his coat and offering to meet them one at a time. Hicks falls in love with Molly Kelly, the head nurse.

Among some of the others in quarantine are Mrs. Talcott and her spoiled son and an Italian organ grinder. Throughout the entertainment the master hand of Ned Wayburn, the stage director, can plainly be seen, the arranging of choruses and the grouping of stage pictures. The "Dixie" number is a real surprise and is the creation of Arthur Evans. Altogether "The Time, The Place and The Girl" is one of the best, snappiest and wittiest productions that will be seen here this season.

The piece will be presented by H. H. Frazee, and that is a guarantee of its quality. Mr. Frazees presentation here of "The Royal Chef" will be remembered as one of the best productions of comic opera ever seen here.

SPORTING NEWS

CHAMPIONS OF THE CITY LEAGUE WILL DEFEND CUP

Lakefield will be represented in the Peterborough City Hockey League this season despite other reports to the contrary, and it is stated that the team will be just as fast, if not more so, than the seven which handed out the surprise package to the Strathconas in the final game last year and took back with them to the local option village the championship and the silver mug that goes with it. The president of the league has been notified of the intention to defend the title, and the team will be included in the schedule to be drawn up at a meeting to be held, probably the first part of next week. The players' certificates will likely be given out at this meeting, and then the big fight for signatures will begin. There will be five teams in the league.

The Chieftains will bear a lot of watching, as this team will be composed practically of the same players which won the championship of the Junior City League last year. Their work during the season earned for them much favorable comment, and they are sure to make good in senior company. Keene will send up a formidable seven, and with the Strathconas, T.A.S., and West Ends in the race again, the prospects for fast hockey are very bright.

The Auditorium rink will be available for practices, and it is understood that the management will offer good inducements to the different clubs if they will work out at this rink.

OPINION OF WALTER CAMP

Walter Camp, the Yale adviser, and recognized as the greatest authority on Rugby in America, was on hand at the Tiger-Ottawa game in New York, and lost nothing. He had studied up the rules expressly for the game and, unlike all other experts present, knew exactly what was going on.

He had seen the snap-back game in Hamilton some years ago, and was not impressed. He prefers the present style because it is more definite.

Like all American critics, he is hard to nail to specific cases. It is difficult to size up a style of play and compare it with another after all, particularly where the two hinge on antagonistic rules. The Canadian style is and has always been built around the rule absolutely forbidding interference; the American game has interference as the focus for just about all its plays.

WORE SPECTACLES.

Hence it it that Walter Camp, though fair, sees through the spectacles of the American game. His mind all through the contest kept working to figure out where under the Canadian rules he could smash holes in the line. He pointed out that under our rules he could use the scrimmage as a lever to smash holes for his backs to swing through. It never struck him that if such a thing were feasible that the thing to do would be to so correct the rule to make it illegal. But that is just an indication to the way the critics saw the game.

THREE-YARD RULE

There was one feature that he will likely recommend for adoption. To the catcher of a punt is given no protection at all unless he holds up his hand that he is to make a fair catch. Otherwise he may be charged. He can't be tackled, but repeated experiments have demonstrated that if a charger hurls himself at the catcher's knees, he can disarrange the equilibrium and often disable the catcher with a bad knee or two.

Mr. Camp likes the protection given our catchers and will likely report for its adoption.

TOO MUCH INACTION

Mr. Camp in common with about all the writers sees too much inaction on our lines. There were too many men doing nothing. With a play in progress not more than half a dozen are in action at any one time, whereas he would like to see everybody doing something.

TOO MANY CHANCES.

He was also unfavorably impressed with the needless chances of losing the ball taken by our men in passing. "Possession" is the war-cry of the American game, and the idea of handing the ball over to the other fellows is looked upon as folly. Hang on at all costs.

Mr. Camp found fault too with the method of holding the ball in running, remarking that held with the point to the arm and side meant a sure losing of it on being jarred.

LIKED OPEN WORK, BUT—

The punting and passing runs appealed to Mr. Camp as a spectacular feature, but he feared that the reason was because we do not go into the game as thoroughly as do the Americans. He remarked that the teams had not evidently developed their play to the greatest possible advantage, otherwise these open plays would be utterly impracticable. "Why," he remarked, "it would be suicidal to attempt that sort of thing over here. Your end runs do not materialize even now, and if they were attempted against American colleges they would be hurled back with losses every time."

DEFENCE IS POOR.

The defence work of the two teams Mr. Camp found to be poor, and found fault with the inability or, at any rate, the lack of actually mixing-in of all but a few of the total number of players. Offensively the same objection arises.

PUNT TOO SOON.

What appeals to Mr. Camp as the folly of follies was the return of points without making any great effort to run back. His idea would be to run back as far as possible and kick at full speed. It seemed to him to be a waste of ground as good as gained to simply match kick against kick without adding to the punt as much ground as could be earned in running back.

There was too much fumbling in taking punts and passes to make them at all safe from a hold-on standpoint, and according to the American theory this was suicidal.

HOW MEN ARE HURT.

"Why," said Mr. Camp, "your game will injure men just the same as ours if you develop it to the same degree. You can drive at the line just as hard and with just as fatal consequences as we do, and would do so if you studied the same application as we do. Your game has no fatalities because your players do not go into the working out of plays as scientifically and as thoroughly as our men have done. As a matter of fact the real danger as I see it, lies in the freedom given our men in charging a catcher, and I think your three-yard rule would do away with any danger there.

"Your tackling has the same dangers exactly as ours except that our men throw their opponents harder and there is more piling up.

"LITTLE TO LEARN."

"On the whole, I don't think you have much to teach us. Your punting and running and passing are spectacular, clever and nice to see, but they could not be successful against such highly trained and coached teams as we have. We have tried them and found them utterly impracticable as the standard of play. They are successful with you precisely because you spend neither time nor pains to develop off-setting defence work. What is a sport with you has become pretty near a business with our men."

WHAT IS HAPPENING AROUND LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

BASKETBALL

The way that the Business Boys trimmed the School Boys last night was a shame; they played all around them. Why the School boys couldn't begin to play basketball with them. For the Business boys Hanwell was the star and the School Boys didn't have any, at least they didn't show up in the game. It would be a shame to put the score to the public—so let it go.

REDS 18—BLUES 17

This was the best game of the season in the Boys' League. As soon as the referee's whistle sounded, it was go. The Reds scored the first goal, and the Blues next, and it was first one side then the other. It was like a see-saw—up and then down. Howsen played defence for the Reds, and he played it well, for there were but few that got on the other side of him. He no doubt won the game for the Reds. Bartlett played centre, and he made good for four field goals, and he played hard. The game was exciting every minute, and the spectators did everything but raise the roof.

For the Blues, Stratton, who is the smallest of his team, also captain, was so small that they couldn't seem to locate him; they knew he must be down near the basket some place, and all that came his way, was pretty sure of going in the basket. He played his game well, making three field goals and one free throw.

The teams were:—

Blues		Reds
	R. F.
Stratton		Howden
	L. F.
H. Lees		B. Lees
	C
R. Scott		Bartlett
	R. G.
D. Pearson		Howsen
	L. G.
Harold Hill		H. Mathews

Referee, H. A. McLaughlin; timer, Harper; scorer, Hol. Hill.

CIRCUS REHEARSAL

The boys who are to show the people and their folks what they do in the line of drills and apparatus work were at the gymnasium going through their work and they work together like clockworks.

The pyramids are O. K. and they have a remarkable series of poses that will more than please the people of Peterborough.

The gymnasium team were at the gym. Saturday night, and went through their movements with ease and without a mistake, and Mr. McLaughlin feels safe in putting on this circus because he is not afraid of his men doing anything but what will please the people.

Gymnastic dancing is something new here; we never had it before, but it is a remarkable sight and cleverly executed by three well known citizens of Peterborough.

Their ring master is a dandy and he makes his men act to suit the people, and he acts, too.

The so-called fun producers, or these inimitable manufacturers of hilarity are also there doing these foolish stunts, yet quite funny and almost comical.

There is a tumbling team up there, wild and weird display of sinuous somersaults, hand-to-hand stands, equilibristic performances, and a number of other daring feats and comic acts.

RUNNING

The Hamilton Herald says: — That Billy Sherring is fast rounding into form was shown at Peterborough on Saturday night, when he made Tom Longboat step ten miles faster than he ever did in his life to beat him 25 yards. It was a close race all the way, and Sherring shot to the front after covering 9 1-2 miles, but Longboat's final sprint was too much for him, and he lost out in the last lap. The pair will meet at London tomorrow night in a five-mile race, which promises to be another close one. The time made at Peterborough is said to have been 52.58, which is exceptionally fast.

SPORTING NOTES

The Patrick Brothers have been secured by Renfrew and each will receive $3,000 for the season's work.

Longboat and Sherring run in London to-night.

It's up to someone to start the junior city hockey league moving again. There is a sufficient number of teams willing to enter.

Billy Sherring and Tom Longboat found favor down in Peterborough on Saturday night when they met in a ten-mile race, in which Sherring, after setting the pace for nine and a half miles, lost out in a hard finish to the redskin, in time that was said to be better than 53. Sol Mintz stated this morning that Sherring ran a grand race, and is certainly showing his old form. The race was well attended, and the pair made a good showing. While in the old Otonabee town, which is Ben Simpson's home, the boys were the guests of George Graham and his son Chris, and they speak very highly of the treatment accorded them, the Grahams going out of their way to make their stay a pleasant one. The two runners meet in a five-mile engagement in London to-morrow evening.—Hamilton Spectator.

MYSTERIOUS MISTER T.

It is reported that the mysterious Mr. T., who has played such a prominent and successful part in the affairs of the commonwealth, will be brought to Peterborough to do some further good work.

Daniel Campbell, who had recently returned to London, was found drowned in the Thames.

ALARMING THE BRIDE

A clergyman, noticing the simple appearance of the couple he had just married, decided to give them a few words of advice.

He explained to the young man his duties as a husband, and then told the young lady how she should conduct herself, winding up with the old injunction that she must look to her husband for everything, and, forsaking father and mother, follow him wherever he went.

The bride appeared very much troubled at this and faltered out:

"Must I follow him to every place he goes?"

"Yes," said the clergyman, "you must follow him everywhere until death doth you part."

"Gracious!" cried the girl, "If I had known that before, I would never have married a postman."

BANK OF OTTAWA

THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL MEETING

The Thirty-fifth Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Bank of Ottawa was held on Wednesday, the 8th day of December, 1909, the President, Mr. David Maclaren, in the chair.

Report of the Directors

The Directors beg to submit to the Shareholders the Thirty-fifth Annual Report, showing the statement of Profit and Loss for the year, and the Balance Sheet to 30th ultimo:

Balance at credit of Profit and Loss Account on 30th November, 1908, was		$405,991.22
Net Profits for the year ended 30th November, 1909, after deducting expenses of management, and making necessary provision for interest due to depositors, unearned interest on current loans and for all bad and doubtful debts, and contingencies		421,065.49
		$827,056.71
Appropriated as follows:—

Dividend No. 71, 2½ per cent., paid 1st June, 1909	75,000.00
Dividend No. 72, 2½ per cent., paid 1st September, 1909	75,000.00
Dividend No. 73, 2½ per cent., paid 1st December, 1909	78,785.83
Applied in reduction of Bank Premises and Furniture	57,351.07
Transferred to Officers' Pension Fund	10,000.00
		371,136.90
Balance carried forward at credit of Profit and Loss Account		$455,919.81

Branches of the Bank have been opened since the last Annual Meeting, at Cochrane, Ont.; Fort William, Ont.; Edmonton, Alta.; Swift Current, Sask.; Vancouver, B.C.; Queen Street (Chaudiere), Ottawa, and Cartier Street, Ottawa, and sub-offices at Casselman, Ont., and Mountain, Ont., while it has been deemed advisable to close the sub-offices at Jaspar, Ont., and at the south end of Peterborough City, Ont.

The unsettled financial conditions alluded to last year were followed by a very large falling off in the volume of business and a consequent plethora of money, with a corresponding lowering of rates. During the last three or four months conditions have changed materially and there is every hope now of an increased business being done during the coming year.

A building for the use of the Bank is nearly completed at Cochrane, and premises have also been acquired at Vancouver; Regina; Cartier Street, Ottawa; Pembroke, and Broadview Avenue and Pape Avenue in Toronto, necessitating a very considerable outlay and a corresponding increase in the Bank Premises Account.

Acting under the authority given at the Annual Meeting in 1907, the Directors issued on 1st October last 5,000 shares of new Stock at a premium of 100 per cent.

The Directors have pleasure in testifying to the satisfactory manner in which the duties of the staff have been performed.

DAVID MACLAREN,
President.

PRACTISED THE LAYING ON OF HANDS

Lindsay Man Objected to Conduct of His Wife and did not Spare Her Male Friends

A resident of the East Ward, on returning home, was surprised to find a man being entertained by his better half. He strenuously objected to such proceedings, and immediately laid hands on the introder. He imparted to the man a momentum which was not impeded or relaxed until he had landed him on terra firma. He next proceeded to close off his wind pipe, and bumped his head up against bricks until the man imagined he perceived not only the stars, but the planet, Mars and Haley's comet. The badly battered individual beat a hasty retreat.

The irate husband then went into the house and drove his wife and child into the night, where they then sought shelter with relatives.

The following Saturday evening the husband was further provoked to find his erring wife out driving with another man. He rounded the coward up and gave him such a trouncing that it will be many moons before he will get over his experience.

The faithless wife, it is understood, has been forgiven by her husband several times since their marriage.—Lindsay Post.

MR. BLACKSTOCK IS ASHAMED

"Fully 600 were present. George Tate Blackstock, K.C., started the imperial ball rolling in a magnificent toast to the British Empire. 'When I see those at Ottawa haggling over the paltry contribution it is proposed this country should make to the empire's navy, I am ashamed. No portion of the empire has gained more from Great Britain than Canada. We have had 100 years of unbroken peace by virtue of her strength, and it is [illegible] for us to stint our support [illegible] mother country, when she real[illegible] it. Leadership in the empire [illegible] surely come to us, and we mu[illegible] our share of the empire's [illegible]bilities,' Mr. Blackstock concluded."

SAILOR MAY HAVE BEEN LINDSAY MAN

Lindsay, Dec. 13.—Among the crew of the ill-fated ferry Bessemer, which was lost on Lake Erie, was W. Wilson, of Conneaut, wheelsman. It has been reported that this sailor came from Lindsay, but his address was given at Conneaut for the reason that he has been living there for some years. Nothing definite could be obtained and it is hoped that the report will be only a rumor.

There is a young man of that name whose home in in this town and who has been a sailor on the lakes for years. Some winters he comes to Lindsay and some times he gets employment elsewhere. This is the sailor whom it is reported was lost with the ferry Bessemer.

The bodies of nine of the crew of thirty-two were found on Sunday by the state fisheries boat, the Commodore Perry. The men had been frozen to death and the bodies were stiffened to the seats of the boat. It is supposed the ferry turned turtle in the middle of Lake Erie and went down.

CHRISTMAS TOYS ARE INTERESTING

All Thats Needed to Cheer Childish Hearts on Display

The Christmas toy display of this year has many original ideas, which will greatly please the childish heart. From large firms in the old land come a variety of ideas in the old-fashioned "crackers." Many are worked out in the same designs and pretty colors of a quarter of a century ago, but with the modern touch, introducing the "airship cracker" for instance. The "North Pole" idea is also one of pleasing design and greatly admired by both young and old. The "aeroplane toy," modelled on the kite plan, is shown in all sizes and made in several varieties to please the growing boy. Many local establishments have exhibits of this article. Miniature engines to be run by steam, with all the detail apparatus of belts and wheels, tiny phonographs, up-to-date ideas in military and naval sets, together with tin ships, in all sizes and beautiful colored and equipped form the larger part of the newest and most admired of the Christmas toy.

100 Carloads of Grain Burned.

East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 14.—Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the warehouse of the Corno mills. About 100 carloads of grain were burned, the loss being over $100,000.

The Nebulae.

The discovery of the gaseous nature of the nebulae came about largely through the use of the spectroscope and spectrum analysis. Fraunhofer proved that the spectrum of an ignited gaseous body is "noncontinuous, with interrupting lines," and J. W. Draper demonstrated that the spectrum of an ignited solid is always continuous, with no "interrupting lines. In this way it was proved that many of the nebulae are gaseous, illustrating the process of development actually going on.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

"ROCK OF AGES"

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me."
Thoughtlessly the maiden sung,
Fell the words unconsciously
From her girlish, gleeful tongue;
Sung as sing the birds in June;
Fell the words like leaves sown
On the current of the tune—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

Felt her soul no need to hide—
Sweet the song as song could be
And she had no thought beside;
All the words unheedingly
Fell from lips untouched by care,
Dreaming not that each might be
On some other lips a prayer—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me—"
'Twas a woman sung them now,
Pleadingly and prayerfully;
Every word her heart did know;
Rose the song as storm-tossed bird
Beats with weary wing the air;
Every note with sorrow stirred,
Every syllable a prayer—
"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me—"
Lips grown aged sung the hymn
Trustingly and tenderly,
Voice grown weak and eyes grown dim—
"Let me hide myself in Thee."
Trembling through the voice and low,
Rose the sweet strain peacefully
As a river in its flow;
Sung as only they can sing,
Who life's thorny paths have pressed;
Sung as only they can sing
Who behold the promised rest.

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,"
Sung above a coffin-lid;
Underneath, all restfully
All life's cares and sorrows hid.
Never more, O storm-tossed soul,
Never more from wind or tide,
Never more from billow's roll
Wilt thou need thyself to hide!
Could the sightless, sunken eyes,
Closed beneath the soft grey hair,
Could the mute and stiffened lips,
Move again in pleading prayer,
Still, ay still the words would be,
"Let me hide myself in Thee."

Lester Patrick informs the Renfrew people he will probably bring two or three other good men besides his brother Frank, indicating Edmonton will not have much of a team left to send east, after the Stanley Cup if Patrick secures the fellows he is after. Hay Miller is one of the men Patrick is counted upon to bring east. He played with Edmonton in the Wanderer series last winter and Ottawa has been trying to get in touch with him all summer. It is not probable Whitcroft will go to Renfrew. He is a little on the old side, and could hardly step with the company he would meet in the east.

BE CHARMING AND JOLLY.

Do not get the foolish notion that you cannot have a good time unless you are dressed for it. Many a girl does herself out of a lot of pleasure because she stays at home rather than appear in clothes that do not meet with her approval.

It is natural to want to be well dressed; it is senseless to deem it the chief good in life. The girl who frets that her hats and gowns are not up to the mark, who stays at home from a party because she must wear a washed frock or who refuses a yachting invitation because her wardrobe will not meet her idea of a yachting costume is "pure silly."

Rise above your environments, even though that soul trying, two-year-old frock could not "cling" if it tried or the hat fairly screams "Home trimmed!" Go in for the fun that is the privilege of youth and forget that you are the worst dressed girl in the party.

Be sure that the girl of shabby clothes who by her merry ways and whole souled charm keeps all the men and boys around her will be envied in her heart by the girl whose clothes came straight from Paquin.

One of the most beautiful and popular women of the day, who is now exquisitely dressed on every occasion, had but two muslin party frocks to see her through her first Washington season. Many a girl would have posed as not caring for society rather than form such a contrast to the women around her, but this girl had more sense. "If people only like me for my clothes they will have to dislike me," she said. "I'm not going to cut myself out of a good time because I look as though I had come from the ark." It takes a lot of courage to forget one's shabbiness. Youth is peculiarly sensitive. When we get older it is easier to down externals, to realize that clothes not only do not "make the woman," but help her less than they are credited.

Don't let your pleasure be marred by your covering. As well say Duse or Ellen Terry could not act without the stage setting, that a diamond is naught but the cutting, that the bur is all there is to a chestnut. The girl who is jolly, agreeable and unhampered by her vanity or false pride will win out popularity despite clothes that are not quite right.

A letter was received from O'Connell & Gordon asking the reason for the delay in payment of Mrs. Lebar's account for $18.00 for destruction of furniture after an outbreak of smallpox. Mr. Lebar claims six dollars for rent.

THREE CRIMINAL CASES AND FOUR CIVIL ACTIONS

At December Sessions of the County Court — Judge's Charge to the Grand Jury—Petit Jury Dispensed With in First Action.

There is a rather heavy docket in the December session of the County Court which opened this afternoon, before Judge Huycke, there being three criminal and four civil cases to be disposed of. The three criminal charges are all based on the alleged offence of perjury.

The following members of the bar were in attendance at the court.—Messrs. R. E. Wood, county crown attorney; E. L. Goodwill, A. P. Poussette, K.C.; D. O'Connell, R. F. McWilliams, G. J. Sherry, G. W. Hatton.

In his address to the jury Judge Huycke referred in eulogistic terms to the splendid career on the bench of the late Judge Weller, and of the great loss to the bench and community by his death. He also spoke in a feeling manner of the late John Moloney, clerk of the court.

The Grand Jury is composed as follows: J. J. Bennett, foreman; D. Buchanan, G. H. Giroux, F. Dunlop, Jos. Greer, John Kerr, Oscar Matchett, W. J. Miller, Stewart Miller, Chas. McClellan, F. J. Squires and J. W. Miller.

His Honor was very pleased that there were only three criminal cases to be tried. All these were for the one alleged offence, perjury. The nature of the crime of perjury was explained to the jury. The judge stated that while in some cases the fact that perjury was committed did not result in injury to anyone, he did not wish to minimize the nature of the offence.

The empanelling of the jury to hear the action of O'Shea vs. Cottingham, in which the plaintiff sought to recover $1,000, was then proceeded with. Ten members of the jury were empanelled when it was agreed upon by counsel to have the jury dispensed with and the action will be heard by the judge. Counsel for plaintiff are Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, and for the defendant O'Connell and Gordon.

Mrs. Margaret O'Shea, the plaintiff, was the first witness.

Later—The Grand Jury brought in true bills against Victor Fowler, P. J. Carroll and Geo. Martin on perjury charges.

Edgar and Murty, that on account of the numerous cases of hydrophobia reported in the Province the City Council of Peterborough be asked to pass a by-law to prevent dogs running at large.

PERJURY CHARGE

G. N. Graham Committed for Trial at Police Court this Morning — Bail Was Granted.

On a charge that he swore falsely while giving evidence under oath, G. N. Graham was arrested this morning and appeared before Magistrate Dumble when court opened.

When the charge was read Mr. G. N. Gordon, acting for the accused, did not elect or plead, and after the evidence had been heard, the Magistrate committed the prisoner for trial.

Bail was granted.

P.C. Newhall was first called and told of the serving of drinks to Fowler, Maunder, Lawrence and the travellers on Sunday night, Nov. 21. His evidence was the same as given by him on a previous occasion. He was interrupted while narrating the particulars of the travellers being served, by the County Crown Attorney, who asked him to leave out the minor details as they were of no interest.

In the cross-examination Mr. Gordon wanted witness to produce his note book.

"I want to take a copy of it," said Mr. Gordon.

"No, you won't," put in the Crown Attorney.

The Magistrate was asked for a ruling and he decided against the copy being taken, on the ground that the witness had not referred to it during the present proceedings.

P.C. Newhall made a remark to the effect that he wouldn't trust Mr. Gordon very far.

"Well, I'd trust you just as far," was the quick retort.

When witness had concluded his evidence, he was asked by Mr. Gordon if he had not had some personal disagreement with Mr. Graham.

"What do you mean?" asked the witness.

"Are you on speaking terms with Mr. Graham?"

"As far as I am concerned, yes, but he is not; but I don't care whether he speaks to me or not; he's no use to me."

"Did you ever threaten to put Graham out of business?"

"No, I did not."

Chief Rozel was called to identify the depositions as given by the accused.

P.C. Newhall was next called.

The request from Rev. Father McColl for the Council to make a grant of $6 per month for the nine patients in the House of Providence who belong to the city. The aldermen feel that this matter should be handled by the Charity Board.

Aldermen Bradburn and Gillespie moved that the matter be referred to the Charity Board with instructions to look into the matter and whatever arrangements the Board makes with Father McColl that the City Treasurer be authorized to pay that sum, and that in future the Charity Board handle all of these cases.

Ald. Phelan, however, objected to this and thought that this bill of Father McColl's for $640, should be paid over by the Council and then let the Charity Board handle the future cases.

Ald. Bradburn's motion carried.

PASSED AWAY IN WESTERN TOWN

Death of Mr. Edward A. (Al) Jones While on a Visit to His Sister at Claresholm Alberta

The sad news of the death of Edward A. (Al.) Jones, who had been on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Alfred Thompson, in Claresholm, Southern Alberta, was received by relatives in this city this morning. The deceased had been ill in health for some time and had taken the trip a week ago last Saturday to the west in the hope that his condition would be improved, but yesterday he took a turn for the worse and passed away at 3.30 this morning.

The late Mr. Jones was well known here where he had lived the greater part of his life. For many years he was a valued member of the Volunteer Fire Brigade and had also been a member of the firm of Breeze and Jones. He possessed many estimable qualities and his death will be regretted by a large number of friends and acquaintances. He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Alfred Thompson, of Claresholm, S. Alberta, and Mrs. Fred Browne, of this city, and one son, Harry, of Los Angeles, Cal.

The funeral will take place in Claresholm.

We had "The Wolf," we've had "The Fox" and it wouldn't be at all surprising if "The Goose" were to visit us before the season's over.

A Million for a New Stomach

It is said that Mr. Rockefeller, one of the world's richest men, offered one million dollars to any physician who would make his stomach strong enough to digest an ordinary meal. With all his money, this multimillionaire is compelled to live on milk and crackers.

What a warning this is to men and women who are beginning to realize that "they have a stomach"!

Slight attacks of indigestion soon develop into acute attacks. The weakened stomach quickly becomes weaker under the continued strain of digesting unsuitable food. Chronic Dyspepsia makes a strict diet imperative, and life miserable.

Yet how unnecessary all this suffering is! "Fruit-a-tives" — that splendid stomach tonic—will give you what millionaires cannot buy, a clean, sweet, healthy stomach which will be capable of digesting any reasonable meal.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from concentrated and intensified fruit juice, acts directly on the stomach, increases the flow of the digestive juices and corrects the faults of digestion.

"Fruit-a-tives" or "Fruit Liver Tablets" is not only a positive and speedy cure for all these troubles. It also acts as a general tonic, building up and strengthening the entire system. Frequently those, who have been cured of Stomach and Bowel Troubles, write to the Company, stating that they are enjoying better health than ever before.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all druggists and dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c.—or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

HON. MR. FIELDING SAYS HE HAS $18,000,000 TO THE GOOD

Minister of Finance Presents His Thirteenth Budget and Credits it all to Liberal Rule—The Canadian Farmer Has Done Most of it, Says Foster.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—Hon. W. S. Fielding Minister of Finance, was in a cheerful mood yesterday when he presented his thirteenth budget in the Commons.

He said he had to record a season of prosperity, a country arisen from the temporary dark days of the financial crisis of a couple of years ago, and an overflowing treasury.

He estimated the revenue for the current year at 97 1-2 million, which, with an expenditure of $81,000,000 chargeable to income, will probably leave a surplus of 16 1-2 millions, for the fiscal year ending March 31 next.

Despite this increase in the revenue, however, there is an increase in the national debt of 17 3-4 millions. This added to the $46,000,000 added to the public debt last year means the enormous increase of indebtedness of Canada in two years of nearly $64,000,000.

The only announcement in Mr. Fielding's speech were a gold coinage and action against combines.

Dealing with the current fiscal year (1909-10) there had been a gratifying recovery of activities, abundant harvests and activity in labor, and lost ground had been recovered. The revenue up to Dec. 1, 1908, was $64,656,509, an increase over the previous corresponding period of over nine and a half millions. Assuming that the revenue for the remaining four months would be the same as last year, this would make the total year's revenue $94,634,687. But reasonably assuming some further increase, say $2,800,000, the revenue for 1909-10 would be approximately 97 1-2 millions better than the record of 1907-8. It was quite possible that they would come near the hundred million mark during the present year.

As to expenditure, he estimated that in 1909-10 the expenditure chargeable to income would not exceed 81 million dollars, a reduction of $2,000,000.

"And so as respects the finances of this year," he said, "the dominant note of the budget must be a large increase in revenue in the first place; in the second place, a very substantial reduction in expenditure."

Turning to the year 1910-11, Mr. Fielding said that he was hopeful they would be able to repeat the policy of keeping down the public debt. He hoped they would be able to provide for ordinary expenditures out of revenue, and for that portion of the capital and special expenditure, outside of the N.T.R. For that expenditure it would not be unreasonable that they should go on the money market.

In his peroration he said: "There never was a time when there was more interest in Canada throughout the world than there is to-day, or a greater willingness on the part of capitalists to invest in Canada. This is Canada's growing time. We have had growth in population, growth in wealth, growth in national unity, growth in national statue in the eyes of the world, growth in our sense of responsibility as citizens of a great empire.

Let us see to it, in the midst of our party strife, that at all times there rises above us the dominant note of a firm desire to do whatever is possible to promote the progress, prosperity and happiness of the Canadian people."

Hon. George E. Foster, the chief financial critic of the Opposition, made one of his most notable deliverances.

He raked the Finance Minister fore and aft for charging bounties to capital account, and thereby declaring a false surplus for last year, whereas there should have been a deficit of a million and a half admitted. He scornfully swept aside the claims of Mr. Fielding, that his prudence had set the country on his feet; rather was it the work of the hard-working farmers of Canada.

Mr. Foster criticized the Government for its wasteful expenditure of the resources of the country, the squandering of millions on such fearful and wonderful works as the Newmarket canal and wharves where there is no water. He rebuked Mr. Fielding for attempting to make out that the per capita customs tax was yesterday less than during the Conservative administration, when, if the bounties were added, the tax would be higher.

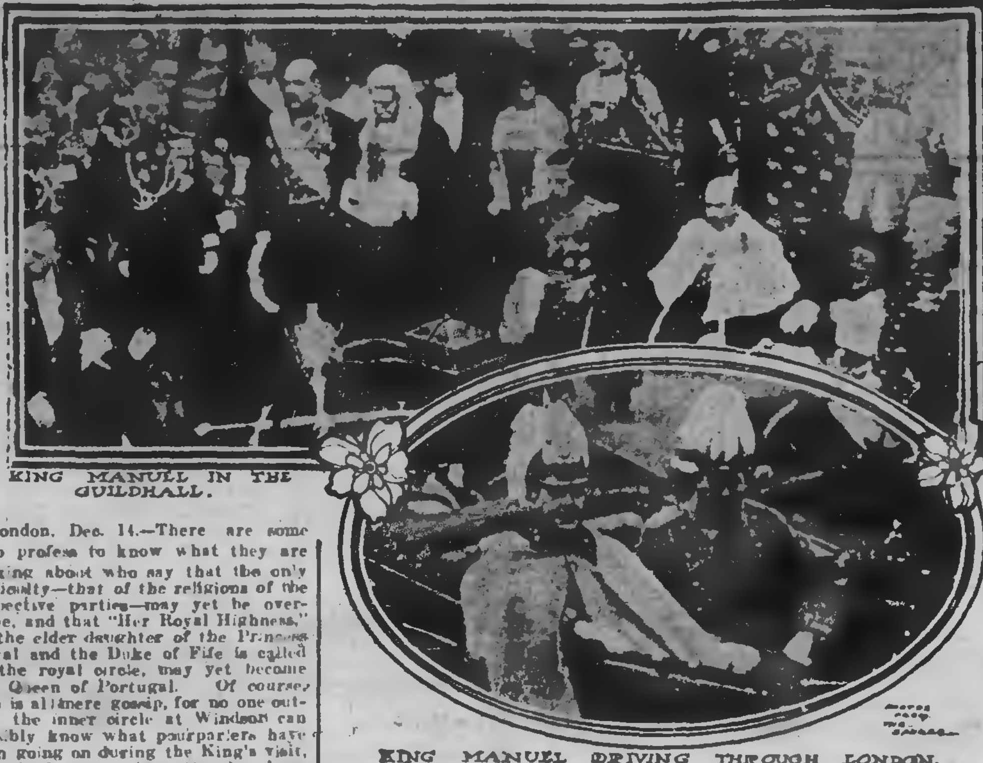
After pointing out that a number of colonies, including Canada, had extended a preference to Great Britain, and that in the present election in the Mother Country, one political party had adopted a tariff plank with the avowed intention of reciprocating the favors received, Mr. Foster declared that these things indicated a rapidity of movement in the direction of a revised fiscal policy for the Empire, which no one would have credited a few years ago. He would seriously advise the Minister of Finance not to enter into any entangling trade alliance just now. The colonies had everything to gain and nothing to lose by a policy of mutual preference. It was an easier matter to enter into trade arrangement than to abrogate one.

No one knew better than Mr. Fielding did a couple of years ago, that a period of financial depression was at hand. He should have launched upon his program of economy at least twelve months earlier, and having failed to do this, was forced to go to the markets of the world at an inopportune time. The result was a severe blow to Canada's credit, and during the past eighteen months loans had cost more than ever before. And now the Minister instead of promising to reduce the expenditure, was predicting a revenue of over $100,000,000 in 1910, and increased appropriations.

Mr. Fielding should follow the example of the Chancellor of the Imperial Exchequer, and save something out of the fat years to reduce the public debt, which was growing fast, and would be augmented by further borrowings. During the next few years, twenty-five million dollars would have to be borrowed to meet maturing loans, not to speak of what would be required for the N.T.R. and other public works.

H. H Miller of South Grey continued the debate and Dr. Sproule moved the adjournment. The debate will be continued on Thursday.

KING MANUEL OF PORTUGAL



KING MANUEL IN THE GUILDHALL.

KING MANUEL DRIVING THROUGH LONDON.

London, Dec. 14.—There are some who profess to know what they are talking about who say that the only difficulty—that of the religions of the respective parties—may yet be overcome, and that "Her Royal Highness," as the elder daughter of the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife is called in the royal circle, may yet become the Queen of Portugal. Of course, this is all mere gossip, for no one outside the inner circle at Windsor can possibly know what pourparlers have been going on during the King's visit, if, indeed, any such matter has been discussed at all by the two kings or their ministers.

In any case, I learn that the young King of Portugal has created a very fine impression in the English Court. The gossip from Windsor is that personally he is very much liked, and though he certainly came to England with a reputation for having what in less exalted stations would be called "airs" he has been a very charming royal guest at Windsor. They say that the fact is he has been a little overcome by the splendors that such occasions produce in England, and the Most Faithful Majesty of Portugal has in consequence not been too overwhelmingly majestic.

GAMBLER ADVISES SENATE TO STOP RACETRACK INFORMATION

Henry Brolaski, a Disgruntled Bookmaker, Whose, Place Was Stopped by the Government, Turns on His Fellows and Exposes Entire System.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The fruit of 21 years' experience on the "inside" of the racetrack gambling game was offered the judiciary committee of the United States Senate yesterday by Henry Brolaski of Monrovia, on the hearing of Senator Burkett's bill, designed to prohibit the transmission of race betting odds between the states over telegraph and telephone lines.

Brolaski, gambler by profession, appeared in support of the bill, mainly because the U. S. Government recently interfered in his operation of a racetrack in Mexico, near the boundary. His track was closed and now he desires to see similar treatment of other racing men.

The hearing, held under the auspices of the international reform bureau, brought together a large number of interested auditors, who roughly estimated that there were now in the United States between 60 and 70 pool-rooms, and that 50 of these were in New York City.

He calculated that there were in operation nearly 1,500 handbooks, which business he declared operates as the initiative of the unsophisticated to gamble on the horses. He said that in New York City there were at least 160,000 handbook and pool-room players.

"The play that is handled by the handbooks and pool-rooms," said Brolaski, "is usually from a class of people that can ill afford to lose, and their bets average from 50 cents up. The man of family will take a chance and lose his rent money; the clerk will take a chance and lose his board money; the girl will take a chance, and use money that she should expend on herself. It is the greed for money, and the gambling fever that becomes inoculated in their systems and is growing, growing, all the time."

BELGIUM KING IS ABLE TO SIGN A BILL

Brussels, Dec. 15.—King Leopold yesterday underwent a most serious operation and astounded the surgeons by the manner in which he withstood it. He remarkable recuperative powers manifested themselves directly he regain consciousness, and the optimistic spirit which he has shown throughout the course of his illness returned to him. The operation was for relief of an obstruction of the intestine. The crisis will probably last three days.

Last night the King was strong enough to sign the new military law, just passed by the Senate, and which once threatened to overturn the Cabinet. The measure involves the complete reversal of the system of recruiting the army. It provides for the service of one son in each family, instead of general recruitment by lot, but, more important, all are forbidden to hire substitutes. The bill fixes the peace strength at 45,000 and war strength at 200,000. King Leopold favors the law.

CAUSES INTEREST IN BANK CIRCLES

Montreal, Dec. 15. A good deal of interest is being manifested in banking circles over a rumor to the effect that the Baise D'Economie of Quebec, an institution very similar in the scope of its action and attributes to the Montreal City and District Savings Bank, is about to apply to the Dominion Parliament for permission to open branches in different parts of the province.

As these two banks have been given charter rights which the other banks do not possess it is held that the establishing of branches should not be permitted and in fact it is stated that the Canadian Bankers' Association will oppose it.

PROSECUTIONS IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Dec. 15.—The excitement over Justice Cannon's report is still at fever height. The question now discussed is, who will take the initial steps leading to the prosecution of the guilty parties? It is quite likely, however, that the matter will be left to the incoming council, and, failing the council, public-spirited citizens will step in.

Although the aldermen will say very little about their position, Ald. Proulx and others declare that they will never pay the costs levied upon them by Justice Cannon, adding that they will carry the matter to the Privy Council if necessary. It is generally believed that the Premier, Sir Lomer Gouin, will consider it to be his duty to take stern action.

TO REVISE THE HOUSE RULES

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday moved that a special committee of nine members be appointed to examine the rules of the House and to report on what changes might be adopted with the view of simplifying and accelerating business. The following are the committee: Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Hon. W. Pugsley, D. D. Mackenzie, R. L. Borden, W. S. Carvell, Hon. John Haggart, S. Barker and C. J. Doherty.

UNIONS TO FIGHT

Steel Trust on Open Shop Issue—Looks Like A Crisis

Pittsburg, Dec. 15.—War was formally declared upon the giant steel corporation by the leaders of organized labor throughout the United States and Canada at the close of a two days conference yesterday. The decision to battle against the corporation's policy of the "open shop" was reached last night after hours of debate.

The grievances of organized labor against the steel corporation as set forth in a resolution and forwarded last night to President Taft and the United States Senate and House of Representatives. The resolution deals principally with the low wages paid the men in the employ of the steel corporation, the hours of work and the general condition of oppression under which the corporation is alleged to hold its employes. It reads in part:

"A crisis in the affairs of labor has arisen. The gigantic trust, the United States Steel Corporation, is using its great wealth and power in an effort to rob the toilers of their right of American manhood and of the opportunity to resist its further encroachments. Grown rich by the consent of the people of our country, this corporation in its mad greed for still greater riches, sweeps aside, makes and unmakes laws, and is now engaged in an effort to destroy the only factor the organizations of its employes — standing between it and unlimited, unchecked and unbridled industrial, political, social and moral carnage."

The resolution then calls on organized labor throughout the country to organize thoroughly and completely all employes in the iron, steel and tinplate industry; suggests an assessment of ten cents per member from all union men, and recommends appointment of committees to see the President, Congress and governors, for the purpose of laying before them the "grievances from which labor suffers at the hands of the corporation."

Pontiac, Mich., Dec. 15. Bertha Leitsau, charged with shooting and killing S. J. Morley, a native of London, Ont., at Bloomfield Hills, a month ago, was yesterday acquitted.

A crowd cheered the verdict, which the jury rendered on the ground of "sufficient cause" for the shooting.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

IS NO TRUTH IN THE RUMOR

German Prince Calls Blatchford's War Rumor a Lie--Considerable Excitement.

London, Eng., Dec. 15.—A telegram appears in the London papers to-day from Prince Henry of Prussia, dealing with a series of articles written by the Socialist, Blatchford, which are being printed in London. In these articles Blatchford declares that Germany is making preparations for war on a large scale and is building a great navy, which can only be destined for use against England, and includes the statement that the officers of the German warships are in the habit of daily drinking the simple toast "Am tag"—meaning thereby a day attack on England.

Prince Henry's telegram characterizes the last statement as "a beastly lie from beginning to end," and adds: "We honor and respect our British naval brother officers, with whom we are proud of being on friendly terms."

War Secretary Haldane, addressing a political meeting at Tranent, Scotland, last night, said that he did not think Germany had the least intention of invading Great Britain. The German people, he believed, desired to live well with the British, but, he adds, "We shall keep our powder dry."

FOUR MEN ENTOMBED IN A MINE

Detroit, Dec. 15.—By a cave-in at the second level of a copper mine at Negaunee yesterday four miners were buried in a living tomb without any possible hope of rescue. Comrades of the entombed men are working frantically in relays, but thousands of tons of rock and earth cut the victims off from light and air. The knocking of the imprisoned men can be faintly distinguished, but as the supply of air gradually diminishes the sounds become weaker. The bodies may never be recovered.

EXCITEMENT OVER NEW JAPANESE LAW

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 15.—According to advices brought by the steamer Monteagle yesterday, factory owners of Japan, who employ 742,000 hands, of whom 392,000 are women and a big percentage of children, are excited over the factory law to be brought down this season of the Diet.

The law will provide against the employment of children under 12 years, but those above 10 now employed will be permitted to continue. Workers under sixteen and females may not be worked more than twelve hours a day, and must be given two days' rest each month. In days of ten hours, an hour's rest must be given.

Protests are being made by match and glass factory owners, whose employes number the most children, the Osaka glass factories having 1,250 children under twelve among 4,115 employes.

TWO ALDERMEN ARE NOT ENOUGH FOR EACH WARD

Belleville, Dec. 15.—A writ will be issued asking for an injunction against the City Council to prevent them from putting in force a bylaw making two aldermen for each ward the number to be elected under the ward system, to which system the people voted to return at the last election. Opponents of the bylaw say the number should be three and that the statute calling for two aldermen is faulty. The council has voted $25 towards the legal expenses of having the matter decided by a high court judge. It is expected that argument will be heard in Toronto on Thursday.

VULGAR AND SNOBBISH

One hundred and twenty of the richest men in Pittsburg arranged to give a banquet to Mr. Henry Phipps, the steel magnate, at the Duquesne Club. On learning that the dinner was to cost $100 a plate, Mr. Phipps informed the chairman that he would prefer to be entertained less ostentatiously and would like to see the surplus money go to starving homeless persons. Consequently the banquet will not be as expensive as at first intended. We cannot imagine anything better calculated to develop deep discontent among the masses than such a carnival of vulgar extravagance as was proposed by these millionaires.—Montreal Star.

This tendency of the ignorant rich to emphasize their in most cases ill-gotten gains is what determines the hard-working and often robbed poor to throw aside the mockery of law and appease their hunger, by force. Those who "steal" whether by pretended business methods or otherwise may rest assured that the long-suffering will not always endure to be the victims of practical greed. That there are but 30 million avowed adherents of churches in the U. S. shows how small the influence of the Church really is where it ought to be so great. Americans blame the churches themselves which they allege have become material and crafty in a materialistic and crafty age. But whether this is so or not the Montreal Star's well-merited and scathing sneer may be of some effect. The rich stock-jobbers and bounty-fed possessors of the land will right the wrong which they do Society amid the terrible vengeance of the people, if they do not seek their safety in at least a pretence of decency. $100.00 a plate while women and children starve near-by was too vulgar and ostentatious even to attract the attention it craved. The rebuke will serve a good purpose.

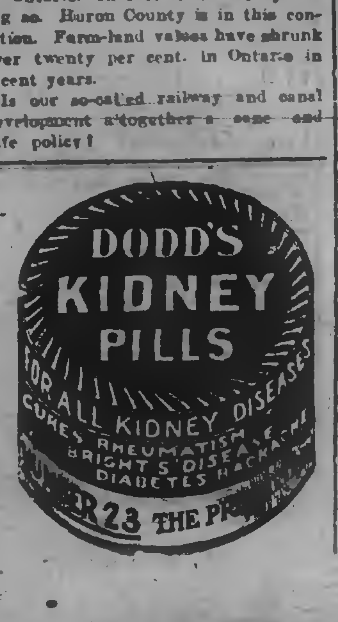
ABANDONED FARMS

Montreal Witness.

"Mr. Wilson, who is Secretary for Agriculture in President Taft's Cabinet, is seeking a practical plan for the reoccupation and cultivation of abandoned farms in the Eastern States. In a recent tour in New York State, where he investigated agricultural conditions, he was greatly impressed with the run-down state of many farms and the number abandoned by their owners. He is of the opinion that the fault is not in the soil but in the lack of people capable and willing to work it. He found that many really good farms have been abandoned, so far as profitable agricultural use is concerned, by the shifting and moving of the agricultural population into new regions, in which land is fresh and profitable to cultivate.

The same calamity will overtake us in Ontario. In fact it is already doing so. Huron County is in this condition. Farm-land values have shrunk over twenty per cent. in Ontario in recent years.

Is our so-called railway and canal development altogether a sane and safe policy?



GRAFT

Judge Cannon, who was told to discontinue his investigation into the municipal affairs of the city of Montreal, brought in judgment on the case as far as he had gone. He finds that Montreal has been losing one million dollars a year by graft.

Canada seems to be in a deplorable state. Lying and stealing seem to be paramount feature of Canadian life. The question at once arises: "How has all this come about?" The answer is that honest men do not look sharply enough after public interests, nor do they insist on punishment when crime is detected. It will come in time. It must come in time. The public, as a whole, or as individuals, can't exist by paying blackmail. Black-hand methods operate everywhere. It is time that we shook up our consciences and susceptibilities a little. It is all too easy-going. That's what is wrong.

WHY OUR DEPOSITS INCREASE

In his address at the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal Sir Edward Clouston referred to the unusually large increase in deposits. At the end of November, 1908, the deposits in our chartered banks within this country amounted to $626,236,083, whereas at the beginning of last November they amounted to $731,806,093. That is, in eleven months the deposits increased by $105,570,010.

The gain in the Bank of Montreal's deposits in the twelve months from the 30th of October, 1908, was $36,000,000. Part of that, Sir Edward Clouston explained, "is temporary pending large shipments in connection with special transactions, and part is the natural increase due to prosperous conditions in Canada. The largest portion, he said, is money brought into Canada from other sources. This year, it is believed, Canada has received from abroad as much new capital for investment as it did last year. Canadian quotations in the United Kingdom in 1909 have yielded probably not less than $175,000,000. Sir Edward Clouston regards it as quite possible that, if the apprehension expressed in many quarters as to the consequences of the new methods of British taxation are realized, deposits of British money in Canadian banks may be still further increased."—The Mail and Empire.

This apparent increase in prosperity is really a hoax. We have borrowed immense sums and then put them in the banks for the present. When we come to pay back there will be mourning and gnashing of teeth. In the meantime we live in a fools' paradise while the grafter and stock jobber grow rich.

OATHS AND PERJURY

(Toronto World.)

Among the acts passed by the British parliament during the session just prorogued which have received the royal assent is one amending the procedure connected with the administration of oaths. Objection to the practice of kissing the Book has long been made on sanitary and other grounds, and some years ago relief was given to all who expressed their preference for the Scottish form. The new act now prescribes that form, but in addition to the uplifted right hand requires the Bible to be held.

Criticism is offered that the repetition of the words of the oath by the witness entails a certain loss of time which is obviated by the English custom. But there can be no doubt regarding the greater solemnity attaching to the Scottish method, and it may perhaps tend to check the increase in the crime of perjury noted and commented upon from the bench and not confined to any one country. Whether this tendency is due to easier morals weakened religious sense or the prevalence of false conventional codes of honour, it should receive closer attention and severer treatment from the Judges in those cases where perjury has been manifestly committed.

EDITORIAL NOTES

La Presse finds the criticism of Judge Cannon after all levelled at the French race. Qu'est-ce, que c'est cette race la'?

It is said that a religious war may break out in France at any time. It is thought better to let Germany loose on France than that France should ruin the Church. "History repeats itself" and a study of history is for that reason instructive and profitable.

SAW TOO MUCH OF AMERICAN WOMEN

San Francisco, Dec. 15.—Chang Yiu Tang, the new Chinese Minister to the United States, and his wife saw too much of American women the evening they arrived from the decorous Orient.

Their eyes were so dazzled by the brilliant whiteness of the handsome shoulders of the women of San Francisco's most exclusive set, which were charmingly displayed at the December ball of the "Four and Twenty Patronesses," given at the Colonial ballroom of the St. Francis Hotel, that they hastily left the box which had been placed at their disposal. And as the diplomat and his wife hurried away they took with them three reluctant daughters, uttering the Chinese equivalent for "this is no place for a minister's daughter."

COST OF COTTON IS GOING UP

New York, Dec. 14.—Much excitement developed on the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday, when there was a sensational rise in cotton prices as a result of the publication of the Government crop report estimating a total production of cotton in the United States for the present season to be only 4,826,544,000 pounds, equivalent to 10,088,000 bales.

These returns were so far below the expectations of the trade that there was a stampede by the big short interests to cover outstanding contracts and prices advanced more than a dollar a bale to the highest quotation since the Sully boom five years ago. So rapid was the rise that there was danger of complete demoralization. The big bull pool headed by James A. Patten of Chicago scattered selling orders around the floor to check the advance. The members of the pool feared that a bull panic might result in failures which would cause a complete relapse of the speculative movement.

PRICES TAKE A JUMP.

Just before the report was announced the May option sold at 15.50c. A few seconds after the Government figures were known sales were made at 15.70c. Within less than a minute cotton had jumped a dollar a bale which is equivalent to $10,088,000, according to the Government figures. Meanwhile fluctuations began. May advanced to 15.75c., broke at 15.65c, then advanced to 15.85c., and finally closed at 15.68c. January, which sold up to 15.12c., closed at 15.05, and March, which touched 15.60c., finally closed at 15.42c.

If the Government figures published yesterday are correct the cotton crop of the south this year will be the lowest since 1905, when the total crop was 9,851,129 bales.

AFFECTING TRADE

The high price of cotton has caused all of the New England cotton mills to reduce the running time of their plants, which is caused a great deal of suffering among the mill operatives in that section of the country. A cable despatch from London received in Wall street yesterday announced that the weaving mills in the Bolton, Wigan and Leigh districts had announced short time working schedules owing to the prohibitive price of cotton. Many thousand mill hands will be affected by this change. A general rise in the price of cotton goods is expected, and the effect of Wall street speculation will therefore be felt in every home in the country.

CATARRH CURED

No Cure, No Pay, is a Most Generous Offer

To get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, has been a problem which was never solved until the discovery of Hyomei (High-o-me).

Hyomei is prepared from eucalyptus, the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

The inflamed condition will go, too, and the snuffing hawking and offensive breath and the discharge of mucous and crusts in the nose will cease.

Then why should any catarrh sufferer hesitate, when Wm. Madill has such faith in Hyomei that he offers to return your money if after a fair trial Hyomei does not cure catarrh.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents. Hyomei also cures asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip.

HARD KNOCKS FOR BAR

ORILLIA IS BETTER OFF UNDER LOCAL OPTION

Testimony of Leading Business Men and Others Given at a Public Meeting—Stories About Loss of Trade Denied—Business Has Improved.

Orillia, Dec. 13.—In the face of a heavy rain and driving sleet, between five hundred and six hundred electors assembled in the Opera House this evening, when the first meeting in the local option campaign was held. Mr. John C. Miller occupied the chair and more than a score of the town's prominent business and professional men and manufacturers were round him on the platform.

Mr. J. E. Dickson, principal of the Collegiate Institute, gave it as the result of forty years' observation that the bar had no justification for its existence.

Mr. D. J. McPhee, formerly agent of the Rama Indian Reservation, and now prominent in life insurance circles, made a splendid speech in favor of local option. He gave many facts that had come under his own observation, and quoted statistics from from Maine, where he had recently spent two months.

Mayor Vair, of Barrie, wholesale produce merchant, dispelled the idea that trade from their neighboring townships which formerly came to Orillia was now going to Barrie.

Mr. Hunter, also of Barrie, dealer in clothing and men's furnishings, corroborated Mayor Vair's statement, and gave instances showing that on the contrary farmers addicted to drink were now coming to Orillia in order to be away from temptation.

Mr. E. Long, president of the Long Manufacturing Co., Orillia, was an ardent supporter of local option, because it kept his men sober and better able to do a day's work. The difference between the bar system and under local option was most marked.

Mr. M. B. Tudhope was opposed to local option when the vote was last taken because he did not believe the law could be enforced. It had been well enforced, as some knew to their sorrow, and he was now prepared to give the measure his hearty support.

Mr. Herb. Caswell, interested in the lumber business told of what the bar and no bar did for young men.

Mr. Manning, a commercial traveller, whose home is in Owen Sound, spoke of the conditions there, and gave instances of the increase in business as a direct result of local option.

Mr. E. R. Eaton, of J. R. Eaton & Sons, sash and door manufacturers, said his firm trade in Orillia and surrounding country had totalled more in the last two years under no license than in the previous four years, and there had been no bad debts.

Other speakers were:—Ex-Mayor C. J. Miller, Councillors Frost and Church, ex-Deputy Reeve Cramp, Mr. D. J. Gibson, Mr. M. Peard, Mr. Jas. Brignall, and Mr. W. O. Black. The meeting was orderly and enthusiastic throughout and was a fair indication of the fact that public sentiment in Orillia is overwhelmingly in favor of local option.

EXPANSION OF QUAKER OATS PLANT REFERRED TO AT THE BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

The expansion of the plant of the Quaker Oats Company at Peterborough was referred to by Mr. W. H. Denham at the meeting of the Board of Trade last night. If the Peterborough Light and Power by-law were carried that company could issue bonds and secure capital as a result, thereby making it independent of the capital of the Quaker Oats Company. As a result the big cereal company will be in a position to expand their plant at Peterborough.

"This will mean steady employment for a larger number of men," said Mr Denham.

MAY STOP BRAKEMEN FROM RIDING ON TOP OF CARS

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The advisability of making an order against brakemen riding on top of freight cars will be discussed by representatives of the railways and the Railway Commission at the traffic sittings here next month. The present rule requires bridges to be 22 feet 6 inches above the rails, so that brakemen on cars may safely pass under. With 75 per cent. of cars equipped with air-brakes, the need of top hand-brakes is much minimised, and the commission thinks may be done away with altogether. With tower bridges, the cost of grade separation at level crossings will be materially reduced.

THE WESTERN WHEAT YIELD

The exportable wheat crop from Western Canada this year will total 95,000,000 bushels, according to official returns received at the Department of Trade and Commerce. The reports say that the crop is the most satisfactory ever harvested, it being uniform in character, while fewer cars than ever before have been rejected. In the three months ending November 30, receipts of grain at Fort William and Port Arthur totaled 56,479,211 bushels, as against 42,516,279 in the corresponding period of last year. Shipments via rail totaled 1,928,304, and by lake 45,718,680 bushels, as compared with 33,299,042 all told last year. Up to December 7, 68,447 cars of grain, containing 71,764,000 bushels, were inspected at Winnipeg. To the same date last year the quantity inspected was 58,511,100.

CONTRIBUTION TOWARDS ENGLAND'S NAVY PREFRABLE

A debate on the question as to whether Canada should make a contribution to the British navy or maintain an independent fleet, was held by the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church last evening. The decision was given to the affirmative, who argued that Canada should make a money contribution to assist the Motherland.

The affirmative was taken by Messrs. Wm. Langford, Jr., and H McCulloch, and the negative by Messrs. E. Wegg and E. Reid.

The affirmative advanced the argument that as Canada has so long enjoyed the benefits of protection from England free of cost, she should still continue to be part of the Empire, and not undertake to build a navy, which would mean but one thing, independence. England needs assistance at the present time, and the opportunity to come to the rescue was now afforded Canadians.

The attitude Germany was taking in the naval question was against the interests of England, and should the former gain the supremacy of the seas, a navy of her own would be of little use to Canada.

The negative argued that Canada would not show any disloyalty by building a fleet of her own. She needed it in case of attack, when it might be probable that England would be in trouble and unable to offer assistance. She also needed ships to protect her fisheries and commercial routes. Canada is a nation, and as such should have a right to help herself. She was in a position to do this just as well as other countries. Britain was not begging for Canada's assistance at the present time. What she did want was sympathy and co-operation, and the knowledge that she would have something to fall back on if necessary.

"OH, YOU KID," IN ANTHEM CAUSED TROUBLE IN CHURCH

Geneva, Ill., Dec. 14.—"Oh, you kid!" the stale ditty of the five-cent theatres and the vaudeville houses, was hashed into a sacred anthem here with disastrous results to a prayer meeting at one of the churches.

The pastor and the deacons are searching for the irreverent member of the choir who annexed the phrase to the hymn with a lead pencil. With much indignation they asserted that he is a fit subject for conversion—of a muscular kind.

The quotation made its fatal entrance into the prayer meeting during a solo that was rendered by a soprano during the hush which followed a solemn exhortation by the preacher. The pastor had preached a stirring little sermon and ten or twelve of the laymen had given their testimony. From the sober looks of several young men and women on the back benches it looked as if converts were soon to be gathered in, when the spell and spirit of the meeting were broken by the words of the frivolous song.

The pastor had closed his exordium and had announced the solo. The young woman lifted her voice in song. She put so much fervor into the music itself that she followed the words blindly and sang the anthem exactly as it had been revised with pencil by a practical joker.

"I love thy God," sang the soprano in swelling note.

"I love my God," the singer repeated, putting on the crescendo for a climax, "I love my God, but, oh, you kid!"

The choir and congregation went into hysterics, the prospective converts gasped and then guffawed, and before order could be restored the shocked and scandalized pastor dismissed the meeting without waiting for the benediction.

MINERS TO CARRY CANNED AIR

Following on the recent mine disasters, much attention is being given to doing things with to prevent similar disasters and to provide help and assistance in case of such taking place. The following from the January issue of the Technical World Magazine, Chicago, is of interest;—

Clarence Hall, expert in charge of the explosive section of the United States Geological Survey in Pittsburg, has just perfected an emergency breathing apparatus, which promises to be of great use to miners in the event of an explosion or the sudden closing up of a section of a mine by a fall of coal, thus shutting off the oxygen necessary to life. Mr. Hall's pocket air tank is so constructed that the miner can carry it in his pocket and when necessity calls adjust it to his face, release a stopcock, thereby starting the generation of sufficient oxygen to keep him alive for thirty minutes. The device, however, is not designed to be used by rescuers.

The invention consists of a rubber nose and mouth piece so made as to fit closely over the lower part of the face, a small tank three by three inches, and a lower tank five by three inches to contain sodium peroxide. A standard one-eighth-inch brass cock with ends cut off connects the two tanks, and when the emergency arises a brass needle valve is released allowing the water to drop into the sodium peroxide tank. The action of the water on the peroxide produces oxygen which rises to the mouth and nose of the miner through a sheet iron tube six inches by one inch, extending from the base of the rubber nose and mouth piece through the water tank and with the lower opening at the top of the sodium peroxide tank. The dimension of the different parts of the apparatus are such that with a full tank of water and a full tank of sodium peroxide, the needle valve being released, there will be generated two and two-tenths cubic feet of oxygen.

WHY DOES CANADA NOT DO SOMETHING?

Much as we all deplore the waste involved in war, it must be prepared for. All our good wishes and aspirations are regularly undone as fast as we make them. Great Britain is preparing with feverish haste for the conflict. There is no good in Canada's saying that it is hysteria. People who ought to know, even Blatchford, the philanthropist and socialist, are of one mind on that point. Why then is Canada permitted to lag? Australia and New Zealand have placed their orders. As Mr. Blatchford says, we are still "haggling," at Ottawa. Our patriotic societies should meet and force the Government's hand. Our conduct is positively mean. Had French Canada given the word it would have been done. But French Canada is able to balk all the rest of the Dominion. All honor to the West. It clamors for something to be done. Are we really worthy of our great heritage? Have we forgotten our old mother? She asked us to help her—AND WE REFUSED. That is how the matter stands at present.

A Win for the Local Optionists of Cobourg-A Decision of Interest

To-day's Globe says:—The Divisional Court dismissed, without calling upon respondents, with costs, in the cause to defendants, the appeal of plaintiff in the action of Wood v. Cobourg, from the order of Chief Justice Meredith on the 8th inst. The plaintiff applied for an injunction to restrain the town from publishing or submitting to the vote of the electors a proposed by-law pursuant to the provisions of section 141 of the Liquor License Act as amended. The trial Judge dismissed the application.

FOWL SUPPER AT KNOX CHURCH

A successful fowl supper was held at Knox church last night, over five hundred being in attendance. Supper was served from six to eight o'clock, and it was pronounced excellent by those who partook of it. Afterwards a programme was carried out, Rev. Mr. Keith acting as chairman. Several selections were given by the Charlotte St. orchestra and short speeches were made by Rev. Mr. Pogue and Rev. Mr. Webb. Mr. R. J. Winch gave a short address and also favored the audience with a recitation. A banjo selection by Mr. F. Clarke was warmly received, as also were Mr. Johns' recitations. Mr. Simpson, of Toronto, the architect of the new church, proved himself a ventriloquist of much ability, and his contribution to the programme was a rare treat.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

SPEAKING FROM HIS OWN PERSONAL EXPERIENCE

Rev. Dr. Pidgeon Showed that Local Option was Invariably a Success in Any Municipality in which he had Lived—An Earnest Speaker Who Has Made a Special Study of the Results of the By-law

Owing to an unfortunate misunderstanding of arrangements, Hon. Sembborn Wright was not able to speak at the Opera House at the local option meeting last night. He was detained at another town, but an excellent address was given on that subject of vital importance at the present time—local option—by Rev. Dr Pidgeon, of Vancouver.

About 600 persons were in the audience and the chair was occupied by Mr. Richard Lees. Rev. W. C, Riddiford offered prayer for the abolition of the curse of liquor. The singing was splendidly taken up by the audience, fine accompaniment being given by the opera House orchestra, which also played previous to the opening of the meeting.

In commencing his address, Dr. Pidgeon said his purpose in addressing the meeting was to give his own testimony of what he had seen and tested regarding local option as a means of lessening and at times eliminating it altogether. Local option was a movement that was sweeping over the Anglo Saxon world. It represented a great moral quickening.

Dr. Pidgeon spoke of the great strides the temperance movement and prohibition were making in the United States in spite of the opposition offered by the combined liquor forces. The reverend speaker's remarks along these lines were of a most interesting and comprehensive character and showed the "moral quickening' referred to was throbbing from the north to the south. In Canada, too, the ever increasing moral reform was also evident in a marked degree and was born out by the provisions of the Lord's Day Act, the greatest law of its kind in existence and supported by people of widely varying shades of opinion. Statistics were given to show the strength of the movement in the provinces of Canada and that movement had visited Peterborough.

The spirit of local option was the using of their franchises by the people to express their convictions on the liquor question.

In the speaker's home township of Maria and of the neighboring one of New Richmond, local option was in force and had proved highly successful. In Maria local option was law, before it was introduced into New Richmond and the superior moral tone of Maria township was then very evident in comparison to the moral tone of the sister townships of New Richmond. But it had carried in New Richmond and had been effectively in force there for seventeen years.

Using the expression of a well-known authority the speaker stated that "local option cut off the entire legal trade and seventy-five per cent of the illegal trade."

But his home township was not the only one in which Dr. Pigeon had had experience. His education in the local option movement as was shown by his convincing and clear-cut remarks and references was a wide one. In every place he had had experience it was wonderfully successful. The money that had been spent over the bar during the time the liquor license act was in force was turned to legitimate expenditure. Doctors, lawyers, ubsiness men, churches, readily testify to this. Speaking of the dodger that the liquor interests of Owen Sound had distributed, Dr. Pidgeon said that the supporters of local option could refute it and he asked his hearers to reserve their judgment until both sides of the case had been heard. In the municipalities where local option was carried the ratepayers could rest assured that law would be observed for there was a fine detective force in the province headed by Mr. Aylarst and established by Sir James Whitney and it was their special duty to see that local option was enforced to the letter in the communities where the law had been adopted.

When Mr. B. Laster entered and walked to the front of the house there was applause.

AWARDED $1,000 ASKED FOR IN ACTION WITH COSTS OF THE PROCEEDINGS ALSO

The first case in the December sessions of the County Court yesterday afternoon was the action of Mrs. Margaret O'Shea, propristress of the Commercial Hotel, against Samuel Cottingham, administrator of the estate of the late J. J. Cottingham, deceased, December, 1908. The defendant claimed that the sum of $1,000 claimed was simply the return of monies borrowed from deceased, J. J. Cottingham.

Mrs. O'Shea was called to give evidence at the opening of the action and was examined by her counsel, Mr. E. A. Peck. She testified to lending the sum of $1,000 to Cottingham. She knew him so well and trusted him to such an extent that no promissory note or other papers or securities were demanded. No receipt was given, deceased's word being accepted, the plaintiff claimed. The witness was cross-examined by Mr. J. W. Bennett, who acted on behalf of the defendant.

L. T. Ardiel, of Toronto, formerly teller of the local branch of the Dominion Bank, testified that on December 14th, 1908, Mrs. O'Shea drew $1,020.05 from the savings department of the bank. Mr. Walter Burritt, savings teller of the Bank of Montreal produced a deposit slip to show deposit on December 14th in the savings department of the bank of $1,020 by the late J. J. Cottingham.

Mr. Samuel Bennett, of North Monaghan, testified that the deceased had asked him to see Mrs. O'Shea and endeavor to get her to let him (Cottingham) have $1,000. Mr. Bennett arranged for Mrs. O'Shea to meet Cottingham at his farm to discuss the matter. The witness saw Cottingham later in town and said he had obtained the money from Mrs. O'Shea. He was going to put the money into the Crown Hotel, and said he would pay back Mrs. O'Shea, with the first money he made out of the business.

Arthur Clydesdale, Archie Campbell and T. Butler Yeates were called by the defence to give evidence on various points

Samuel Cottingham, administrator of the estate of the late J. J. Cottingham, and the defendant in the action, testified that Mrs. O'Shea had told him she would let the matter drop. But he inferred that Mrs. O'Shea had decided to put in a claim against the estate for $1,000 when it had been advertised that the creditors should put in their claims. On cross-examination Mr. Peck asked the witness if he was not of the opinion that Mrs. O'Shea had feared she would not be able to establish her claim, and that that had accounted for her hesitancy in presenting it. Mr. Cottingham stated he didn't think so.

Dr. T. Johnston testified that Mrs. O'Shea had told him she had given the deceased $1,000.

His Honor gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff for $1,000 with interest and costs. E. A. Peck and F. E. Kerr for plaintiff, and J. W. Bennett and F. J. Goodwill for defendant.

THE ROYAL WELSH LADIES' CHOIR

Fine Concert at Conservatory Music Hall--Most Enjoyable Programme

The many words of praise that have been given the Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir in the columns of the daily papers in the cities in which the choir have appeared, have certainly been well deserved. It was regrettable that owing to the multiplicity of attractions last evening, that there was not a larger audience at the Conservatory Music Hall, but those who were present thoroughly enjoyed each number on the programme. Madam Hughes-Thomas has wonderful control over the voices of the ladies and their singing was a revelation as to the possibilities of a ladies' choir. The precision of their attack was fine and the parts balanced beautifully.

It is not often that one has the opportunity of hearing really fine contralto voices but there were three contralto soloists last evening who particularly delighted their audience. The solos by Miss Alice M. Lewis, who sung "The Enchantress," by Halton, and those by Miss Nanci Langdon were very enjoyable. Miss Langdon's encore, "My Ain Folk," was sung with such expression and smoothness that the audience applauded heartily. The ladies looked very picturesque during the first part of the programme in their quaint Welsh costumes. They wore a short skirt of black with a bodice of red or green; over these were a kerchief crossed over the breast and a white frilled apron. The long red cloaks and stove-pipe hats tied on with red ribbons under the chin gave a dash of color to the scene.

The duetts and part songs were very well given, one of the most popular numbers being the "Miserere," from "Il Trovatore," in which the solos were taken by Miss Marianne Squire and Miss Nanci Langdon.

The ladies have on the whole had a successful tour and if they decide to visit Canada again they will doubtless be greeted with crowded houses at every appearance.

MANY LADIES AT MASS MEETING

At Murray street Baptist church yesterday afternoon Dr. Pidgeon, of Vancouver, addressed a mass meeting for ladies in the interests of the local option movement. Nearly three hundred were in attendance. The speaker during his remarks, referred to the important part the ladies could take in the movement, and appealed to them to take advantage of the opportunities before them.

Rev. J. B Webb occupied the chair.

REAR CAR LEFT TRACK WHEN TRAIN WAS CROSSING TRESTLE

And Took Other Cars With it—Disaster on the Southern Railway Near Greensboro, N. C. — Many Reported Killed.

Special to the Review.

Greensboro, N.C., Dec. 15.—Hurled from a trestle when a truck jumped the track train No. 11, of the Southern Railway, was wrecked to-day near Brown Summit, fifteen miles from here. Many persons are reported to have been killed, the estimate ranging from fourteen to twenty-five. Nine are known to have been badly injured.

A relief train was rushed from here immediately on receipt of the news. No. 11 was a southbound local passenger train running from Richmond to Charlotte. It was speeding across a high trestle at Reedy Fork in an attempt to regain lost time when the last car jumped the track and toppled into the chasm taking with it the next coach and overturning other cars.

PERJURY CHARGE WAS DISMISSED

"Not Guilty" the Verdict in Connection With Charge Against George W. Martin—Case Grew Out of Evidence of "Indian Lister" at Police Court ---Another Charge.

The entire session of the county court before His Honor Judge Huycke this morning was taken up with the trial of perjury charges against John Martin, who was indicted on two counts of perjury. At the police court proceedings against Martin, a blacklisted man, which took place at the city police court on April 30th, when Martin gave evidence that he had no liquor and was not drunk on the 28th and 29th as alleged by the Crown that that he had. The case went to the jury at 1 o'clock.

Mr. W. A. Henderson, of Toronto, appeared for Martin and Mr. R. E. Wood, county crown attorney, conducted the prosecution.

County Crown Attorney Wood in his opening address to the jury said that George Martin, a blacklisted man, was found drunk in his shop on April 29th. In connection with his denial under oath of his having been drunk on the 29th the first charge against Martin was proceeded with.

The first witness called was Police Magistrate Dumble, before whom Martin was tried on the original charge out of which the perjury charges developed. He identified the papers against Martin and the deposition in which Martin denied having got liquor or having been drunk on the 28th or 29th. To Mr. Henderson Mr. Dumble said the charge against Martin was that he had been drunk on the 28th of April.

P. C. Meharry served a summons on the prisoner on the 29th for being drunk on the 28th at night on the 29th in a local moving picture house and as he was drunk and on the blacklist the officer arrested him.

The officer swore contrary to the magistrate that the prisoner had been tried for being drunk on the 29th. He couldn't say whether or not another information had been laid against the prisoner.

P. C. Meagher was at the police station when P. C. Meharry brought the prisoner in on the night he was arrested and testified at the trial the following morning that Martin was drunk. During the night Martin had told the constable that he was not drunk but that he was sick and had rheumatism in the arm. The prisoner asked for a doctor.

P. C. McGinty, the next witness, was such a long time in coming, that His Honor, thinking of the old-time song, asked the Crown attorney if "McGinty was at the bottom of the sea." The officer was down down when his name was called. He remembered Meharry bringing the prisoner into the police station. "It's a pretty hard thing to say," said the constable, in answer to a query from Crown Attorney Wood as to whether Martin was drunk or not. He just saw him being brought in at the door as he (the officer) was going out.

Mr. Henderson—"He may have been sick?"

"He may have been."

The prisoner testified that he had taken sick at the Crystal Theatre on the night of the 29th and was arrested by P. C. Meharry after he came out on the street. He had no liquor on the 28th or 29th. He was on the blacklist and couldn't get it. He was not found guilty for being drunk on the 28th, but was convicted on the charge of the 29th.

Mr. Dixon Nicholls was working at the Crystal last April and remembered Martin coming and he appeared sick. He sat in the back seat and closed his eyes.

Mrs. Martin, the wife of the prisoner, said the accused was subject to bilious attacks. He had had several since his arrest.

Mr. Henderson contended that the record of the trial for the charge of the 28th had not been submitted in due form to the court. Mr. Wood argued that it had and the judge said he would explain the matter to the jury.

Mr. Henderson in summing up said that it was a significant fact that no evidence had been submitted that the smell of liquor was detected from the prisoner's breath the night of his arrest. Was it not reasonable that Meharry had thought the prisoner was drunk and arrested him for it. Later on in the night the man needed a doctor.

Crown Attorney Wood held that the facts of the case as given clearly established a conviction. If the prisoner had been sober wouldn't he have acted in a rational manner and convinced the officer that he was sick.

His Honor said the jury was privileged to bring in a verdict on either or both counts of the indictment against the prisoner. The court explained the law's interpretation of perjury. It was not a matter of importance whether or not the evidence given by the prisoner at his trial at the police court was material or not, the question was had the prisoner done so dishonestly and corruptly and with the intent to improperly influence the court.

NOT GUILTY

As soon as the judge took the bench at 2.50 the jury returned with the verdict which was announced by Foreman Miles as "not guilty."

Martin was at once arraigned on another charge of perjury. The alleged offence is said to have been committed in July.

KETCHEL IS A TORONTO BOY

Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion, is a Parkdale boy. At least Joe Lynd, son of Dr. Adam Lynd, and Jim Ward, son of Controller Ward, say he is. According to them, he was born out in Parkdale, and lived on Gwynne avenue, in the first house north of Queen street. He was a grandson of T. A. Thompson, a yard foreman of the Grand Trunk, who was a member of the old Parkdale Council. The boy went to Queen Victoria school, and left here about six years ago for Grand Rapids, Michigan.

He came back about four years ago and visited Jim Ward and Pete Allen, the first-baseman of the Park Nine. He told them then that he was doing some fighting around Detroit, Port Huron and Sarnia.

"I am satisfied that this Thompson boy is the same boy, because his mother's maiden name was Ketchel, and all the photographs I have seen of Ketchel resemble greatly the Thompson boy," said Lynd to-day. "Ward and I saw the Ketchel-Johnson fight pictures, and though Ketchel was drawn fine with his training, we were satisfied that the boxer was none other than our schoolmate."

Ketchel, or Thompson, has a sister in Toronto now.

LINDSAY WILL NOT HAVE TEAM

In Intermediate O.H.A.-Could not Secure Permits

The first meeting of the new executive of the Ontario Hockey Association was held last night at Toronto. The arranging of the clubs into groups in the three series was the important business of the session.

Applications for change of residence permits for two players in Belleville and Lindsay were refused, and the tone of the executive is evidently to discourage such expectations.

This means that Randall and Leo. Cotey cannot play with Lindsay this year and as a result no intermediate team was entered. Lindsay has entered a team in the junior series and are grouped with Peterborough, Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Lindsay. R. M. Glover is convener.—Lindsay Post.

RUGBY

JACK McDONLAD MANAGER.

Jack McDonald will likely manage the Varsity football team next season. At least, that is the opinion of most of the university students.

He is certainly a good man for the position, having had considerable experience in Rugby affairs. He played played on the team last year and also went through one game this season. He had the bad the misfortune to dislocate his elbow, however, which prevented him from finishing out the schedule. He is 6 feet 1 inch in height is 21 years old, and has played on both Ottawa and Lindsay teams.

The position of captain for next year will likely go to Hugh Gall. He is 5 feet 11 inches in height, and is 21 years old. He has played on the Varsity team for three years, and learned the game with Parkdale Collegiate.

MR. LASTER WRITES IN PEACEFUL MOOD

He Thinks That Mutual Work Would Benefit More Than Local Option

Note.—The communication following, and which appears over the signature of Mr. B. Laster, is offered for publication by him, independent of the wishes and objects of either side in the local option campaign, and without approval or endorsement by either party. The space occupied is paid for by Mr. Laster, and it is on these conditions that the communication appears.

To the Editor of the Review.

In connection with the local option campaign, the Rev. Mr. Potter announced last Sunday at the meeting that they would have a speaker from Georgia to answer any questions that would be put to him. In the face of this I have tried to arrange, through a responsible man, with Mr. Potter, to prevent any further mistakes, that I would be willing to pay half the expense of the opera house, and that we should have a joint meeting, and discuss on the open platform, the best way to prevent drunkenness in Peterborough. The answer was that they would not do it, and would not let me ask any questions verbally. They then announced in the evening papers that if any one wanted to ask any questions they should bring them to some place on Simcoe street before six o'clock in the evening. Now, that is the funniest way of getting out of it that I have ever seen or heard tell of. They expect the opposition to ask any questions three hours before the speaker speaks. How could anybody know what the speaker will speak on unless he is a mind reader; and then he would at least have to see him to read his mind. And as I am no mind reader, I said I could not do it. Questions in a discussion of this kind mostly depend on what the speaker is dealing with. But unfortunately before the meeting started, they announced that the Hon Seaforth Wright was not there, and they would not be able to answer any questions. Now, was he born at all? If you cannot stand any respectable questions, what kind of leaders are you? Now, naturally, the citizens of Peterborough would know best what was for the good of Peterborough without getting speakers from thousands of miles from here, who do not know, and some of them never heard of Peterborough before, to tell you what would be good for Peterborough, and to answer any questions that might be laid before them. Surely you are making a laughing stock out of your whole campaign. Just think of it, five men, and sometimes ten men, sitting on the platform, who are certainly credited with some sense, and then could not answer a few simple questions. I guess they knew they could not answer any straight questions, and that is the way they are trying to get out of it. Surely it is time to stop that kind of fooling, and blindfolding the people in that way.

Now, I notice at the second meeting that both speakers began to lose their confidence in passing local option here, so they are encouraging you, and telling you, that even if you don't win this time you will surely win in three years from now. Now, let me tell you in all sincerity, and without any hard feelings against any one, that it is a pity that so much money should be spent in such a campaign, where there is no foundation. No matter how good your intentions might be, you are certainly wrong in trying local option here. Why not be reasonable, and let us get together and work together without any difference of religion or nationality? None of the citizens like to see drunkards, nor misery through drunkenness. It does not make any difference if it is a negro who is trying to do right and succeeds in it for the benefit of humanity; why should we not take the same example, especially here in the case of drunkenness in Peterborough? Why should we take example from towns where, through drunkenness, they were not sure with their lives nor property? We have here an example that has been experimented, and which has succeeded here in Peterborough, where one noble priest, by hard work, certainly succeeded in saving by peaceful means drunkards. Men that we all know, who were on the verge of ruin and destruction, and were saved and made respectable men. And men who are not only not taking any liquor themselves, but are not bringing any home to tempt their wives and children. (Those children for whose sake you are appealing to the people to save). Surely this is work to be considered. They have not only saved one or two men, but from a population of 4,000, where there is 1,500 men, they have been able to bring under control and moralize 1,000 men. Why should not the other seventeen clergymen of all the other churches that we have here in the city, where each one's congregation would not average over 800 people, and out of that about 300 men, if they were to try half as hard as the former minister has done, would succeed much better by going the same way, than by trying to bring local option here, and through this means taking any honest means of making a living for about 250 persons, who are employed by them, and where there are about 250 wives and children depending entirely upon them. Now some of you are prejudiced and will say, "Oh, they are special, and we do not care what they have done." Let me tell you whoever thinks this way is wrong. We are all neighbors, and it does not matter in what way people worship their Lord, so long as they believe in the Supreme Being, they are certainly good men; and we certainly should not be prejudiced against each other on account of opinion. Now, I appeal to all of you, in all sincerity. Think of it, without any hard feelings, and look at both sides, and you will find it is worth considering. That it is better that we should all work together for the benefit of our city. And united we will succeed; but divided we will only bring more dissatisfaction, and no benefit to anyone.

Yours truly,

B. LASTAR.

P.S.—My questions last night, in typewritten form, although they were not able to answer them, were as follows:—

1. Will you agree with me, that by passing local option, there will still be an opening for those men who want to get liquor, and to have it in their homes, in bottles or parcels?

2. If you could find a way, that would not only prevent men from going to the bar, but also to keep them from taking it to their homes, would you do it?

3. Do you think that seventeen ministers and clergymen would not be able to do, and have the influence over the members of their congregations, that amount to about 800 each, and out of that about 300 men, what one clergyman has succeeded in doing, out of a population of 4,000, including 1,500 men in ten years? (Not only to prevent men from going to the open bar, but to prevent them from taking intoxicating liquors to their homes, and tempting their wives and children with it.

4. Do you think that at the present time under the license law, that we are in such a state that our streets are hideous and lives and property in danger, as you say it was before local option came into force in Owen Sound?

5. Are we, at the present time under the license law, inferior to Owen Sound, since they have local option, there? Or, are we inferior to any other town or state in the dominion of Canada, where they have local option?

6. Do you think, under the present law, that we have gone behind financially or in population, more than any other town in the Dominion of Canada where they have local option?

I might say that they are welcome to answer these questions at any time, through the press, or any other way they may see fit.

THE PASSING OF THE WOOD-BUCKER

Knights of the Saw-Horse are Small in Number and Difficult to Find

It looks as if the knight of the saw-horse is down and out. The day of bucking wood by the cord or cutting so much for a good square meal is well on to midnight, and it will not be long before the trade will be dead and buried. The fact that most of the wood dealers have installed machines for cutting wood into any size desired by the customer, has brought about this state of affairs.

A gentleman residing in the south end of the city, who had purchased a load of wood on the market this morning, was heard making inquiries for the purpose of securing a man to use the saw and axe on the pile. He stated that although he had visited all the principal street corners of the city he was unable to secure the help which he wanted.

Young Man at Toronto Charged With Serious Offence Against Barnardo Home Girl.

Special to Review

Toronto, Dec. 15.—Charged with seducing a fifteen year old Barnardo girl, Amy Kingston at the Union station while on her way to Peterborough, Leo Farnom, a station night watchman was arrested and tried before Magistrate Denison this morning. Trial will resume December 21st. The Crown alleged during the trial that seduction of friendless girls by red cap messengers at the station was a common occurrence. The station superintendent was instructed to rid the station of such employees or the Crown would do it for him. Fellow employees of the accused tried to aid their comrade by swearing improper allegations against the girl.

THE DAIRYMEN WILL CONVENE AT BELLEVILLE

One of the most important conventions of the year is that of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, which meets at Belleville, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, January 5th, 6th and 7th, 1910.

It is important, because it is a gathering in the interests of one of the greatest, if not the greatest, industry of the Dominion. It is, also, most important because of its territorial extent. The term, Eastern Ontario having for its western boundary Yonge street, Toronto, and extending eastward to the end of the province. Last, but not least, it is important because of the splendid work being done by the Association in improving the condition of the dairy interests generally, the good results of which are yearly in evidence by the marked improvement in the quality of Canadian cheese and butter.

In this good educative work the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association is backed up by the Department of Agriculture, in which great branch of the country's service an able staff of specialists are doing magnificent work.

The approaching convention promises to be the very best in the history of the Association. The Executive are leaving no stone unturned to make the coming gathering a most interesting and beneficial one. The very best talent has been secured and everything points to a grand meeting. The several sessions will be held in the Opera House, in this city, and Belleville people are looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the opportunity of meeting and greeting the representatives of the country's great backbone of strength.

The object of the convention is to give to the Dairymen of Eastern Ontario, the results of the practical experience of those who have made a close study of the production of milk and its manufacture into cheese and butter. It will be noticed by the programme, that the addresses to be delivered are on practical subjects and by practical men, the discussion of which will be helpful to those who attend.

After each address there will be a general discussion of the subject, and every person present is invited to take advantage of the opportunity to give or ask for information.

The executive express the hope that the attendance will be large. Special travelling concessions have been granted by the railways, full particulars of which will be found in the programme.

All who can should make a point of attending the great convention at Belleville on January 5th, 6th and 7th, 1910.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The Hull Council last night decided to send four men, City Engineer Farley, A. Berthiaume, ex-Ald. M. Burns and Ald. Caron, chairman of the Waterworks Committee, to Toronto and Peterborough, to examine pumps and report at the next meeting of the council. By the waterworks appropriation two new pumps are to be installed in the Hull pump house.

There were six tenders received for the new pumps, but only three were placed before the council for consideration by the Waterworks Committee. These were: Canada Foundry, Toronto, $18,0000; John Inglis, Toronto, $17,350; Wm. Hamilton, Peterborough, $14,5000. The pumps offered by the last named firm were strongly endorsed by City Engineer Farley, A. Berthiaume, Ald. Caron, chairman of the Waterworks Committee, and ex-Ald. M. Burns. One pump manufactured by this company has been in constant use at Peterborough for 16 years.

It was decided that before awarding the contract the above-named delegation should visit places where the different pumps may be seen working, then the council will know the merits of each.

THIS BURGLAR WAS NOT AT ALL BAD

Woman Shamed Him Into Returning Money and Jewels

St. Louis, Dec. 14.—By a simple earnest appeal to a burglar as she sat up in bed in the semi-gloom created by a night lamp, Mrs. Beulah Coleman, of Ferguson, reached his better nature and caused him, with lowered head and slinking steps, to return the money and jewellery he had taken, and to depart silently.

"You're a burglar, aren't you?" she asked.

"I'm not going to take you to task for that. My husband is an invalid and I am trying to support this little family. I know you need the money or you wouldn't be here, but I probably need it more than you. You see, these children are dependent upon me, a woman. You are a man. It is for you to decide who needs the money most."

The thief had not answered, but his drooping head told that the appeal had reached his heart.

He tossed her husband's pocketbook to the foot of the bed, slid the jewellery out of his pockets to the dresser near at hand and disappeared.

ABOUT TURKEYS FOR CHRISTMAS

Reported Shortage of Poultry Everywhere—Many Farmers Have Given up Turkey Raising

According to reports from dealers in poultry there is a shortage of poultry everywhere. It is said that the supplies of the British reared birds, owing to the weather conditions in the early part of the season, will fall far short of the demand, and the people at home are now making inquiries as to what Canada can do for them.

If one may judge from the short supply and the prices paid in Toronto for Thanksgiving Day, Ontario will have very few or none to spare for other markets than her own.

In Eastern Ontario turkey raising is still carried on successfully, and the farmers there derive a good revenue from their birds, but in Western Ontario the great majority of farmers have given up the turkey as a business proposition. For this several reasons are given, none of which seem to be practically convincing, though some are rather amusing. For instance, one man gave it up because, he says, after he had raised a nice flock they wandered off, and "he guesses his neighbors ate them," a bad reflection that, on the neighbors. In the majority of cases the story is, "they never have any luck now with them." In these cases the real fact is that they are too well off to take the little trouble necessary to carry the young birds through the first stage of their existence. Luck is not a factor in handling any kind of live stock. Knowledge of the requirements of an animal and the ability to apply that knowledge are the requirements for its successful production.

Turkeys, under farm conditions, are really but little more trouble to raise than any other class of poultry, and after they have passed the critical stage of chickenhood are hardier than most. Not only so, but given the run of the orchard, they will just keep themselves on the insects to be obtained there.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

ON NOTHING A YEAR.

Did it never occur to you that you would like to do some violence to these women who write to the magazines and tell how to look "natty and well dressed on $69.71 a year?"

They give you such an uncomfortable, guilty feeling when you begin to cast up accounts to find out how much your own clothes have cost.

These frugal dames, mind you, always insist that they are extremely "natty and well dressed." Then they put down the cost of one suit, four waists, a frock and an umbrella.

Shoes and gloves are supposed evidently to last forever.

Veils and ruchings simply aren't figured in, and a new hand bag or an occasional pair of rubbers or a couple of wash belts are extravagances which any careful person ought to avoid.

Then a shirt waist is to cost $1. That means the material, but beside that there are hours of work to embroider it.

The business woman hasn't time for the work. She hasn't time to bargain hunt and to make over, and she does need new neckwear just once in awhile.

Wouldn't you like to see an honest and accurate statement of what it really costs some modestly but properly dressed business woman to clothe herself for a year? Wouldn't it be refreshing?

There is no doubt that there would be some little discrepancy between her figures and the $69.71 of the "natty and well dressed persons," but it would be a comfort to some of the people who can't make it on $69.71.

Ownership of the Pole.

The territorial sovereignty of the pole, the British Law Journal points out, belongs presumably to the United States. But what lawyers would call a "preliminary objection" goes to the root of the matter. Can there, asks the Law Journal, be any question of territorial sovereignty if the only territory is an open polar sea? "Cook sank his cylinder with the stars and stripes in it on an ice floe, and Peary seems to have planted his flag on the same precarious and shifting foundation, and the sea, it has long been settled, cannot become the exclusive property of any nation."

WANT CHILDREN KEPT OFF THE STAGE AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—The Children's Aid Society is getting after the managements of the local theatres who have been holding amateur nights and are employing children under the age of 10 years of age on the stage.

On Saturday Constable Cook made the rounds of the city and issued the final warning to the Sparks street, Rideau street and the Albert street theatres and moving picture houses.

It has been recently brought to the notice of the Children's Aid Society that a little tot, probably six years of age, has been during the last few weeks, singing from the stage in a number of the five cent theatres. On inquiring, Constable Cook discovered that it has become an almost constant practice for children under age take part on amateur nights in nearly all the houses.

No more warnings will be given, but prosecutions will be the next step. Every theatre in Ottawa, with one exception, was given a warning on Saturday, and if the little girl in the case above mentioned is found on the stage again, no matter in what theatre, an action will be immediately taken, according to Constable Cook.

"The practice has to stop," said Constable Cook. "It was bad some time ago, but it is very much worse now. No child under the age of ten years can sing, or take part in any selection on the stage of any public theatre. There are exceptions, though, for school concerts, and things of that nature."

The last warning has been given to the theatres, and the next step, if the matter does not stop, will be prosecution.

C. P. R. SECTIONMAN KILLED ON TRACK NEAR BURKETON

Mr. Herbert Hoohey, a sectionman at Burketon, met with a sad and sudden death yesterday morning, when he was instantly killed by being struck down and run over by the Tweed local.

It appears that the accident happened about 8.45 o'clock, about which time the Tweed local is due. Hoohey was working about the east switch in the Burketon yards, when the train came whizzing in. It is not known just how the accident happened, but it is thought that Hoohey, who had his cap pulled down tight over his ears, did not hear the train coming, or that he had heard the whistle and miscalculated the distance, and failed to step out of the way quickly enough.

In the meantime the whistle announced that it was drawing near the station. According to the rules the whistle must be blown when a mile away from the station, but as a general rule if sectionmen are employed on the track the engineer does not have the whistle blown to let them know that the train is coming, because they are always supposed to be on the lookout for all trains. The sectionmen are working all along the tracks and the whistle is not blown to warn them that a train is near them.

It is altogether likely that Hoohey did not hear the whistle of the train at the mile post because the wind was blowing hard in the opposite direction.

Hoohey is well known to the railway men and was regarded as a popular employee. He was married last spring, and is about twenty-five years of age.

The badly bruised and mutilated body was picked up and taken to the station, but life was extinct.

BOARD OF TRADE FAVORS TWO BY-LAWS AND CONDEMNS ONE

Approves Thirty-year Agreement With Light and Power Company and Isolation Hospital By-Law But Sees no Merit in Return to the Ward System--Point Emphasized That L. and P. Co. By-law Does Not Prevent City From Going into Domestic Lighting Business.

Moved by Mr. T. F. Matthews, seconded by Mr. A. P. Poussette, that after hearing the arguments in connection with the Light & Power Company's by-law, it is the opinion of this meeting that as the interests of the city are safeguarded in the preparation of the bill by the council, this board approves of the conditions of the by-law and recommends it to the ratepayers as a a measure that should be passed.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. J. Coyle Brown and seconded by Mr. W. H. Denham, "that the Board of Trade approves the Isolation Hospital by-law."—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Robt. Fair and seconded by Mr. John Riddell, "that in the opinion of this meeting it would be unwise to return to the ward system of electing aldermen and that the by-law be not approved."—Carried.

Resolutions supporting the Peterborough Light and Power Co. by-law and the Isolation hospital by-law were passed at a meeting of the Board of Trade last night. They were carried unanimously after the two measures had been discussed at considerable length. The by-law to return to the ward system of electing aldermen was also on the programme but it did not find favor and a resolution was passed expressing disapproval of giving up the present system. The meeting was well attended and the chair was occupied by the president, Mr. G. A. Gillespie. The major portion of the discussion centered around the Light and Power Company by-law, which provides for entering into an agreement with the company to give them the right to carry on their business on the streets of Peterborough for a period of thirty years. It is not an exclusive franchise and in return for the concession granted them the company agrees to grant the city several things that will be of benefit to the municipality. One of the points in the by-law over which there was considerable discussion at the meeting was whether the city would have the privilege of going into the business of domestic electric lighting if the by-law were carried. Ald. Hicks showed clearly that in this connection the city would be in the same position after the by-law was passed as it is at the present time. This was clearly stipulated in the by-law, clause five of which states "that the company agrees to allow the city to use their poles if the city wishes to do its own street lighting after the present contract expires, and also to use the company's poles to carry fire alarm or other such wires."

A synopsis of the by-law was published in the Review last Saturday and a pamphlet containing the clauses of the agreement was distributed at the meeting last night. Ratepayers should secure one of these and acquaint themselves with the provisions in order that they may vote intelligently.

The Light and Power Company by-law was taken up after the minutes of the last meeting had been read by Secretary Quartermaine and the object of the meeting had been explained by the chairman.

Mr. Larmonth, who was first called upon, said the by-law in question was one to grant the Peterborough Light and Power Company a thirty year franchise for poles and wires of the streets of Peterborough. The question was first brought up last May and had been under discussion most of the summer. The company did not demand an exclusive franchise. Other companies had the right to come in. The city's interests were well protected in the agreement and Mr. Larmonth considered the passing of the by-law would be a good thing for the city as well as the company. The company wished to make an issue of thirty year bonds and could not do so unless they had the thirty year franchise. Owing to the increased demand for light and power the company had to increase its accommodation next year. The number of waterwheels would have to be increased and plans were being laid with that end in view.

Mr. A. P. Poussette referred to the fairness of the request of the Light and Power Company. He had given the by-law considerable consideration and was of the opinion that while the passing of the by-law would benefit the company, the city's interests were well guarded in the agreement. Mr. Poussette took up several clauses of the by-law and pointed out where the by-law would benefit the city. A franchise for thirty years might look big but it was not going to be an exclusive franchise and the company agreed to do several things that would be of benefit to the citizens of Peterborough. He thought the by-law should be passed. The Peterborough Light and Power Company was doing good work in developing power and assisting in the expansion of the city.

MR. DENHAM'S VIEWS

Mr. W. H. Denham said he wished to point out the standing of the Quaker Oats Co. in regard to the by-law. The Quaker Oats Company were behind the Peterborough Light and Power Company and the Quaker Oats Company had a large capital. The company were using this capital in the development of their own business—that of manufacturing cereals. The rule with the Quaker Oats Co. was that every auxiliary company must stand on its own feet. This was true in connection with the Peterborough Light and Power Company. In order that the Light and Power Co. might carry itself it was necessary that it should be able to issue bonds. To issue bonds it was necessary to have a thirty year franchise. Capital was needed for the development of the Light and Power Company on account of the growth of the city and this capital would be secured by issuing bonds. Mr. Denham considered the request of the Light and Power Company a very fair one as a perusal of the proposed agreement would show. He hoped to see the by-law carried. A good many citizens made it a rule to vote against all by-laws, whether they were good or bad. This was regrettable. He hoped to see those citizens who considered the by-law a good thing assist in carrying it.

Mr. T. F. Matthews said he approved of the action of the council in submitting the by-laws. He intended to support the Light and Power Company by-law, as he considered it would be a good thing for Peterborough to pass it.

Mr. Matthews moved that the Board of Trade pass a resolution in endorsation of the by-law.

It was seconded by Mr. Poussette.

Mr. J. Coyle Brown asked for information on a point and was given it.

Mr. W. S. Dodds said he wanted to hear the opinions of any aldermen who were present on the by-law. The ratepayers were entitled to their opinion.

ALD. HICKS.

Ald. Hicks said the Light and Power Company had asked for one principal concession—the right to use the streets of Peterborough for their business for thirty years. In considering the question the council took up the matter of electric light rates. Ald. Hicks considered the rates charged in Peterborough for electric light as reasonable, compared with the rates in other places under similar conditions. There was nothing to be gained by defeating the by-law. On the contrary, if it were carried the company agrees to a five per cent. discount on the present rate. Conditions would also be improved, as the company would be placed in a better position. The speaker drew attention to several clauses of the by-law, in which the rights of the city were protected. At the present time there did not appear to be any definite agreement as to what the rights of the Peterborough Light and Power Company were on the streets of the city. In this connection the city did not just know where it was at. The passing of the by-law would settle this matter for all time to come. Ald Hicks, on the whole, considered the by-law a good measure, and was going to support it.

ALD. DUFFUS.

Ald. Duffus was of much the same opinion as Ald. Hicks. He had spent a good deal of time in arriving at the agreement embodied in the by-law, and it was the best the city could secure. He had tried to get the company to agree to a thirty-five per cent discount, but thirty per cent. was the best that could be obtained. The council had gone into the matter fully and Ald. Duffus considered the by-law was a fair bargain. He was of the opinion that Peterborough, on account of location in regard to water power, should have cheaper light than any other city in the province. Compared with other cities and towns, the rates here were reasonable.

MAYOR RUSH.

Mayor Rush said the council had gone into the by-law fully and he thought it would be a mistake on the part of the citizens if it were not carried.

Mr. George E. Elliott thought the point should be emphasised that the passing of the by-law did not prevent the city from going into the lighting business as a municipal enterprise. An impression to this effect was abroad, and many people were opposed to the by-law on that account. They should be set right on that point.

Ald. Duffus said the point taken by Mr. Elliott was well taken.

Ald. Hicks said he did not believe it would be good policy to put any part of the by-law in the motion. It might be confusing.

Mr. Larmonth drew attention to clause 13, which states that:

"The company agrees to allow the rates for light and power to be adjusted every five years by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, and also agrees that the rates mentioned in the by-law shall not be increased during the thirty years."

The resolution moved by Mr. Matthews and seconded by Mr. Poussette, was carried unanimously, and the meeting proceeded to discuss the Isolation Hospital by-law, which provides for raising the sum of $19,000 for building and equipping an isolation hospital for Peterborough. The council has the right to spend $15,000 for this purpose without consulting the ratepayers.

WANT ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

Mr. Matthews said he believed the Isolation Hospital by-law should be passed. He believed the council had been remiss in their duty in this connection for the past five years.

J. Coyle Brown was in favor of the by-law.

Mr Denham approved of the by-law and was going to support it.

Mr. F. D. Kerr was of the opinion that the by-law should be passed. The hospital was needed. A friend of his had gone to a hospital with a sprained shoulder and had stayed there with diphtheria. This was hardly what one went to a hospital for.

Mr. Larmonth expressed his hearty approval of the by-law. It should have been built sooner.

Mr. Poussette favored the building of the hospital, and also spoke in favor of a house of refuge for the city.

THE WARD SYSTEM.

After passing a resolution favoring the Isolation Hospital by-law, the by-law to return to the ward system was taken up.

Mr. W. A. Austin asked how long was it since Peterborough gave up the ward system.

"About four years," someone said.

Mr. Jos. Downing asked how many representatives the fourth ward had since the city gave up the ward system. He did not think there had been any.

Mr. Gillespie asked Mr. Downing if the ward had been neglected.

Mr. Downing was not prepared to say that. "If we have a representative we can go to him when we want anything," he said.

"Go to any other alderman," Mr. Gillespie said.

"We don't know them so well," Mr. Downing said.

Mr. Robert Fair came out strongly in favor of the general system of electing aldermen. He believed it was the best method and pointed out that the city had grown more rapidly under the general vote than under the ward system. It was just a little over a year since Peterborough had got special legislation to give the two-year term a trial. It would look bad to give it up without a fair test.

Mr. John Riddell said the ward system was nearly a thing of the past all over the province. The townships had given it up and the majority of towns and cities had discarded it. The ward system had cost Montreal a million dollars on account of graft creeping into it. He was not in favor of the by-law.

A resolution condemning the return to the ward system was passed and the meeting adjourned.

Lindsay Man Sent up for Trial on Perjury Charge—A Night Session

"In nine-tenths of the cases proven convictions are made on the evidence of police officers," said Magistrate Dumble.

"Yes, and in nine-tenths of the frame-ups convictions are made on the evidence of police officers," said Mr. G. N. Gordon.

Mr. Gordon was also very outspoken in referring to the character of the cases of perjury the chief was sending to the jury.

"The chief ought to be ashamed of himself to send such lame, broken-back cases to a jury."

"I have heard counsel for the defence talk like that before," was Crown Attorney Wood's rejoinder.

"I might ask the crown prosecutor how many cases he has succeeded in successfully prosecuting since he was been in office," came from Mr. Gordon in return.

Chief Roszel took a hand in the debate when the counsel for the defence intimated that a renovation of the police force would be in the best interests of the town, and accused Mr. Gordon of "blowing," to which the latter vehemently responded by stating he intended to carry the prosecution of the police officers right through to a finish.

The climax referred to above was reached in the case of Mr. John T. Maunder, of Lindsay, which was tried at a session of the police court last night, in which the accused was committed for trial. The accused was arrested on the charge of perjury yesterday afternoon, as the result of his evidence in a charge against a hotel of the city.

Mr. Gordon, who appeared for the accused, said that on the specific grounds on which the charge was laid it had not been substantiated. He insisted that the magistrate should not send the case to a jury on the evidence submitted, and said that the testimony of the police officers should be examined with the greatest scrutiny, which led to the magistrate making the remark quoted at the opening of this account.

Bail was furnished for $500 by Messrs. James Leahy and G. N. Graham.

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC PREMIERS DISCUSSING IMPORTANT MATTERS

Leader of Quebec Government Suggests That an Amendment be Made to the British North America Act —Uniform Compensation Act.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—It was an important interprovincial love-feast which took place at the Parliament Building yesterday, on the occasion of the luncheon given by Sir James Whitney and his colleagues to Sir Lomer Gouin, Prime Minister of Quebec, and two of his supporters in the Legislature of the sister province.

The gathering was a distinguished one, and included, in addition to practically all the members of the Ontario administration, many members of the Legislature, as well as municipal, judicial and educational men.

Sir James Whitney, in rising to propose the toast to the Province of Quebec and its Prime Minister, declared that it was a welcome task to pay back to some small extent the welcome that the head of the Province of Ontario received at the hands of the Premier and "our brethren" of the sister Province of Quebec.

"We find to-day all the provinces marching side by side in peace and contentment, proud of our liberties, determined to stand by them, and insist on them, proud of our British institutions and ready to assume any of the burdens which we may be called upon to undertake as the result of our allegiance to the British crown.

"No person, outside of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," declared Sir James, in conclusion, "was given at the tercentenary as warm a reception as that extended to me by our distinguished guest of to-day."

Sir James then paid a graceful and sympathetic tribute to the colleague of Sir Lomer Gouin, who accompanied him, Hon. L. A. Taschereau and John Finnie, M.P.P.

Hon. Dr. Reaume, speaking in French, added his appreciation to that of the Premier of the "chaleureuse reception" given the Ontario representatives at Quebec. Referring to "cet interest cordial qui existe entre Angleterre et la France," he said, "Nous, du Canada, peuvent poser l'example de la confederation des differents provinces inclus d'un Empire."

Sir James Whitney then proposed the health of the distinguished guests, electrifying his hearers by dropping easily and gracefully into the language of "La Belle France."

Sir Lomer Gouin, on rising to respond, was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering, and the enthusiasm was not diminished when the orchestra broke into the familiar strains of "O Canada."

He said: "Mr. Chairman, your honor and gentlemen: In order that I might be able to assure you, even in a very feeble way, how deeply we feel the kind and generous reception you, our Ontario fellow-citizens have given us, it would be necessary for me to speak in my own language; for it is my very great regret that, as I imperfectly speak your fine English language, you might not realise the significance which all this means to us of Quebec.

Sir Lomer referred to his first meeting Sir James in Ottawa in 1896, to the first inter-provincial conference and the fact that the calling of another had been entrusted to Sir James and himself. Because this had been delayed it was not to be thought that they had renounced their trust. "In a new country like this," he said, "we must rise to the requirements of the day and the need of the times.

"Turning to the administration of justice, don't you think we might have a treaty or law of extradition such as Canada has with other countries. An agreement might be reached by the representatives of all the provinces that the British North America Act be amended. This might be easily settled by an inter-provincial conference.

"We should have some means of enforcing judgments delivered in one province in the other province. We think the time has come that we should be able to devise some court, whose decisions should be binding for all the courts of our provinces of Canada. If you go to England you will find a practical system, by which any judgment registered in the clerk's office has the same force anywhere in the United Kingdom.

"A new system of legislation, introduced first in British Columbia, dealing with merchants, who have assigned, reducing their stock to the detriment of their creditors, we think should be adopted."

Dealing with provincial taxation of extra provincial territory, he said: "We should not be subjected to double taxation as regards Canada."

Sir Lomer spoke strongly on the rights of the provinces to incorporate companies to do business beyond their bounds. Section 92 of the B.N.A. act should be amended, if possible.

Another question for a conference was that of incorporation at Ottawa of companies to do business within the limits of a single province. Quebec, he said, had protested against this every time. "The time has come," he continued, "when we should settle finally and equitably the question of jurisdiction."

All the provinces, he held, should have a uniform act dealing with labor compensation for accidents.

"Gentlemen," he exclaimed, "we are all working for the upbuilding of a great nation. Matters of interest to all the provinces of the Dominion should be made the subject of the conference."

Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Minister of Public Works and Labor in Sir Lomer Gouin's Cabinet, seconded his leader's thanks and felicitations. The relations of the provinces, he said, should rest on the broad basis of respect, and not on necessity.

Dr. Finnie, M.P.P. for St. James, Montreal, also spoke briefly. "We are all brothers, all Canadians, from the Pacific to the Atlantic," he said. "Let us stand for the old flag. I hope the answer from Ottawa will be, 'Do it, and do it quickly'."

STEAMER ON ROCKS

Little Current, Ont., Dec. 16.—The new steel steamer Wissahickon of the Anchor Line, ran on the Outer Duck Islands, Lake Huron, Sunday night, at 11.15, in an eastern gale and blinding snow storm. The lower decks and stern are submerged and all supplies cut off from the crew, who have had no food since Sunday night.

Heavy seas prevented them crossing from the Ducks to Manitoulin Island, 12 miles, until yesterday, when two fishermen, who reached the island where the steamer is in a small gasoline launch, brought off the first mate, J. H. Cassey, and Engineer John Ersken.

Tugs are being sent out from the Soo for the rest of the crew, 32 men in all.

All are safe on the island, but have suffered severely in the extreme weather without food.

Cassey and Ersken had to walk eight miles through snow and water to Fernie, the nearest telephone on the Manitoulin Island.

The vessel was only two years old, and will be a total wreck.

Killed In Wreck.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—Mrs. Agnes Parker, 761 West King street, received word yesterday that her son Hugh, who was on one of the Grand Trunk trains running out of Chicago, was injured in a wreck and had since died. The body will be taken to Gravenhurst for interment.

PREMIER DISAPPROVES OF HAVING AN ENVOY TO THE UNITED STATES

E. N. Lewis' Resolution That a Canadian be Attached to the British Embassy at Washington is Negatived by the Premier.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in the House of Commons yesterday, stated that there was no necessity for a Canadian attache to the British embassy at Washington.

E. N. Lewis had proposed a resolution to petition the Imperial Government for the appointment of a Canadian attache, as seven-tenths of the British business there concerned Canada.

"Our relations with the United States," said Sir Wilfrid, "have been of late years, on the whole, very friendly, and present treaties have removed all possible cause of contention. At one time I would have been strongly inclined to vote for the resolution now proposed, but Ambassador Bryce has taken especial pains to give attention to Canadian affairs. As soon as he took office he came to Ottawa and tried to familiarize himself with Canadian questions. In conducting negotiations affecting Canada at Washington, he has taken no steps without consulting the Canadian authorities; and if there is any fault to be found, the blame must be Canada's.

"While some good might arise from our having a representative to advise with the British ambassador at Washington, still his presence might also give rise to complications. I would suggest that it would be the part of wisdom to withdraw the resolution."

Mr. Lewis complied.

Col. Worthington asked concerning the Ross rifle, Mark I., if "in view of its defects and the fact that it was widely considered unsafe for use," the Government shouldn't send them to the scrap pile.

The Minister of Militia replied that the slight defect had been remedied, and any impresison as to insecurity was largely due to the persistent efforts of the inquirer to discredit the rifle. To do as proposed would be wasteful and ridiculous.

F. D. Monk asked that the reply as reflecting upon Col. Worthington be expunged, and Sir Fred. Borden said that, if so, the question should also be expunged. The Speaker will decide.

Mr. Monk, in moving for an order of the House for a copy of the petition of rights and pleas offered in defence in the case of the North Atlantic Trading Co. v. The King, in the Exchequer Court, introduced a discussion in the Commons yesterday on the question of the operations of the North Atlantic Trading Co.

The contract with this company had expired and a final payment of over $36,000 had been made to the company, but a fiat had been issued by the Department of Justice allowing the company to take action for an amount exceeding $70,000 for damages incurred through the cancellation. This was strange in view of the fact that Hon. Frank Oliver had said that the Department of Justice had advised him that he had a perfect legal right to cancellation.

Hon. A. B Aylesworth said it was a question of law upon the language and provisions of a contract as to which different men might have different opinions.

R. L. Borden recalled that Mr Oliver's reason for cancellation that the company had not been sending certain nationalities of immigrants as agreed—had not been borne out. Mr Aylesworth's readiness to grant the fiat indicated a tender regard for the company.

SUIT FOR LARGE SUM AT TORONTO

Toronto, Dec. 16.—A suit involving $100,000, in which three Americans are named as co-defendants, was started in the non-jury Assizes yesterday. The Colonial Development Syndicate of London, Eng., is suing James Mitchell of Boston, his father and his brother, J. A. Mitchell of New York. In March, 1906, defendant is said to have received $100,000 from Rose, Van Cutsem & Co., English brokers, to purchase Cobalt mining rights. Afterwards, the brokerage firm assigned to the plaintiffs.

Mitchell is charged with refusing to give up the purchases and an order is asked that he transfer his claims to plaintiff and pay costs of action.

He claims on the other hand that he turned over what claims he secured for the brokers, and adds that he got a few on his own account. He also claims that plaintiffs owe him money for profits and expenses. The evidence of the Mitchells was taken in the U. S. by a commission, the father and brother admit holding claims for W. S. Mitchell.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Chile has decided to construct two Dreadnoughts within three years.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley has returned to Ottawa from a secret mission to Washington.

Maude Fealey, the young actress, has been married to James Durkin, actor, at St. Paul, Minn.

Sir George Reid has been appointed High Commissioner in England of the Commonwealth of Australia.

Rev. W. Shearer of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Toronto, has withdrawn his resignation, at the request of the congregation.

M. Wilson of Conneaut, Ohio, one of the unfortunate sailors who went down in the ferry Bessemer, was a son of William Wilson of Lindsay.

Passengers on the Oceanic, which reached New York yesterday, included Sir Alex. Lacoste, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and Mayor Trotter of Ottawa.

At the New York Maritime Exchange yesterday fears were expressed for the safety of the British tramp steamer Strathclyde, now 25 days overdue from Barrow, Eng.

Fire, starting in the Convent of the Sisters of Montfort, at Ste. Agathe, Que., spread to several houses in the village. The loss to the convent is $25,000. The occupants escaped in their night attire.

Eugene Guerin, a butcher, aged 24, Tuesday evening killed a calf and was proceeding to skin it, when the knife slipping, cut him in the abdomen, severing a main artery. He bled to death. Two doctors were unable to help him.

REDMOND SAYS IRELAND NOW HAS ITS OPPORTUNITY

In Speech at Dublin, Nationalist Declares That if Ireland Supports the Liberals in the Coming Election She Will be Able to Trample on Act of Union.

London, Dec. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—John Redmond, speaking at the National demonstration at Dublin yesterday, when the convention decided to support the Liberal campaign, said that for the first time in a century they had the greatest opportunity ever offered them to tear up and trample under foot the Act of Union.

Reginald McKenna, addressing a meeting in the south end, referring to the contribution of New Zealand and Australia of two Dreadnoughts, mentioned that as only one of the great efforts of empire consolidation undertaken by the present Government. It would be a lasting memorial to the fame of the Liberal Government.

Sir J. Swinburne, one of the most prominent supporters of the Liberals in the north of England, has severed his connection with the party on account of the budget.

Though with some regret, the Liberals have decided to have all their meetings for men only. Order, they hold, is essential, and in the present condition of affairs no assurance of this can be had where women are present.

Mr. Charles Geake has prepared a set of colored posters which are in practically every constituency in Great Britain. He has contrived to concentrate an attack on the House of Lords in all of them. There is the Liberal Dreadnought with all its searchlights full on. There is the Liberal motor car with Mr. Asquith at the wheel, a pretty child by his side, a happy old lady and workman and a middle-class man behind—each representing what the Government claims to have done for different members of the community. And there is an airship, at which two dukes are looking and wondering whether it is possible to steal the air as well as the land. Another poster shows a peer consulting his constituents — a vacuous-looking youth in a coronet admiring himself in a pier glass. Still another shows a noble duke doing himself well on the higher rents that taxed food will bring in as a result of tariff reform.

Mr. Stephen Gwynn, M.P., editor of The Irish Press Agency, in the course of a letter says: "When the Liberal party pledged itself in 1905 not to introduce a Home Rule Bill it forfeited the confidence of the Irish people. We cannot proceed on the assumption that to put the Liberals in power will mean the accomplishment of that object which our party has striven after for thirty years. Home Rule is for Ireland the one thing that matters. . . Let it be made plain, not inferentially, but explicitly, that the return of the Liberal party to power means the introduction of a Home Rule Bill. . . and you will have no workers in all this land so keen as the Irish."

TORONTO VISITED BY A BAD FIRE

Toronto, Dec. 16.—Damage, approximately $150,000, was done to the premises occupied by White & Co., wholesale fruit dealers, and McWilliams and Everist at Church and Front street yesterday morning by a fire which, having broken out and apparently been quenched at midnight, after $90,000 damages had been done, re-appeared at 3 o'clock and after breaking out throughout the White building spread to that occupied by McWilliams and Everist.

The damage is estimated at $137,000, and is made up as follows: White & Co., stock $45,000, building, $25,000; McWilliams and Everest, stock $25,000, building $20,000; Club Coffee Co., stock $8,000, machinery $3,000; Read Holliday & Sons, Ltd., stock $8,000, machinery $2,000; Queen's Own Buglers, $400. Other firms $5,000

BORE THE CRIME OF ANOTHER MAN

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 16.—Two years ago two foremen of the British Columbia Electric Railway, Maynard and Sharman, were charged with having padded pay rolls with names of dead men and stealing thousands of dollars. Both left the city, but Maynard first made a statement accusing James Milne, superintendent of the B. C. Electric Co., of having largely benefited from the crooked work, and of having passed the pay-rolls knowing them to have been doctored. Milne, who has large property interests, was arrested and pleaded guilty to one charge, on which he was sentenced to 18 months. He has served the sentence and returned to business in the city.

Yesterday Maynard, who was re-arrested here Tuesday night, made a confession exonerating Milne from all guilt, and Milne now says he accepted part of the blame because he was careless under his very heavy work and because he wished to protect Maynard's wife and family.

GERMAN MEAT PRICES GO UP

Dresden, Dec. 16.—Discussing the increased price of meat, in the second chamber yesterday, Herr Koch, a radical member, said that dear meat meant dear everything else, in the way of food. He demanded that the embargo on American and Danish cattle be raised.

Replying, Count Von Vitzt-Hum D. Ekstadt, the Premier, denied that the cost of beeves and sheep on the hoof was higher and said that if the dressed meat had increased in price, the fact was due to the close combination maintained among the butchers. To admit American meat more freely would be to throw away the last trump card held by Germany in its trade relations.

TO HAVE SHELTERS AT FLAG STATIONS

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—The Railway Commission has sent out a draft order requiring all railway companies to construct at all points known as "flag stations," shelters or waiting-rooms for passengers or freight, the same to be done within six months.

At points where shipments of grain amount to 50,000 bushels a year, temporary agents shall be provided in the shipping season. The proposed order will be argued here next month.

HUSBAND NOT THE MURDERER

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 16.—A chemical analysis last night of blood stains found on clothing owned by J. C. Hunter, husband of the last of three victims of the triple murder here, practically eliminates Hunter from suspicion of guilt, according to the city bacteriologist. He says the stains are not recent, and could not have been made at the time of the murder.

TORONTO'S HORSE SHOW NEXT YEAR

Toronto, Dec. 16.—After a cessation of one year, the Canadian Horse Show, the pioneer of the horse shows in Canada, will be revived with great lustre during the first week in May next.

The cavalry regiments of Toronto will combine with the Canadian Horse Show Association and the event will be not only a horse show, but a military horse show. The military events will be of an interesting and spectacular character and some of them will be open to all cavalry regiments in America. The principal military event will be for the teams of three officers over a course of jumps similar to those used at the International Horse Show in London this year.

The event will take place in the armories from May 3 to May 7, and will be under the direction of a joint executive committee composed of representatives of the Toronto Garrison and Canadian Horse Show Association.

MORGAN BUYING TELEGRAPH STOCK

Toledo, O., Dec. 16.—Announcement was made here yesterday that J. P. Morgan & Co. have purchased a majority of the stock of the U. S. Long Distance and Cuyahoga Telephone Companies, and it is expected that the independent plants of Columbus and Dayton, Ohio, the Long Distance Co. of Indianapolis and the Toledo Home Telephone Co. will also be acquired.

The control of the six companies is said to represent a cash outlay of $3,000,000.

Carpenter Drops Dead.

Fernie, B.C., Dec. 16.—Because the frame building occupied as a temporary postoffice, was contrary to the building bylaws, the civic authorities have torn it down.

IN SUICIDING, KILLS FRIEND

Passiac, N.J., Dec. 16.—Hilda Reinhold was apparently so preoccupied with her own sorrows that, in committing suicide Tuesday night she thoughtlessly killed her friend, Fanny Kemisuk, who was quite content with life as she found it. Both girls were hotel servants and shared a bedroom. Hilda came home Tuesday night weeping, after talking suicide. Both were found dead yesterday, with the gas jet wide open.

Brampton Produce Market.

Brampton, Dec. 16.—Brampton produce market was opened yesterday on the old market square, at John and Chapel streets. There was a large crowd of farmers and produce sold at good prices to a large number of buyers from Toronto. The old fire hall was used for a market building, but was found to be too small.

MAN DIES IN LONELY CABIN

Toronto, Dec. 16.—The body of the late Edward P. Leadley, who died in his lonely cabin near Sullivan Lake, Alberta, on Nov. 30, arrived in Toronto yesterday, and the funeral will take place from the undertaking rooms of A. W. Miles, on Friday. He was the son of John H. Leadley, 886 College street.

TWO THEATRICAL PEOPLE MARRIED

Toronto, Dec. 16.—A quiet theatrical wedding was solemnized yesterday at the office of Rev. W. B. Creighton, D.D., editor of The Christian Guardian, when he married Miss Phyllis Gordon Robinson of New York to Jas. Hill of Paterson, N.J. Both are members of the Lew Fields attraction playing at the Royal Alexandra.

WALL STREET SPECULATION

Speculation in stocks has been likened to setting fire to a forest to drive up the game to the shooter. It is just as wasteful and cruel. It involves the most frightful sacrifice on the part of the wage-earners, for the money must be made out of somebody, and it is out of them that it is made. Stocks are driven down in price by the bears. The average public loses by the shrinkage and proceeds to sell. When rockbottom is struck the speculator buys. Up go the stocks. The public recovers a little and begins to buy again. Then the old humbug is reenacted. The public loss is paid to the speculator or capitalist. There is no such thing as "loss," properly speaking. What the public loses is the financier's gain. This is the modern system of financial robbery, the modern system of making large fortunes. Just think what the artificial rise or corner in wheat meant to the poor in Chicago! Is it any wonder that socialism is increasing?

THE BUDGET

Mr. Fielding says that he will have surplus of $18,000,000. If that sum represented the earnings of Canada or Canadian industry, it might be something to stare at and commend, but it is the amount paid by Canada to the contractors. Protection is satisfied when the tariff protects the industrial employer, so that he can compete with foreign manufacturers without lowering the cost of production. The chief cost of production lies in the wages of the wage-earners. Raw material is the same price, generally speaking, everywhere. Only in exceptional circumstances, as in the case of pulpwood, should it be protected, because it does not need it. A surplus, therefore, should not be larger than is required to carry on necessary public works. To borrow immense sums and to exact large surpluses in taxes, means placing a double burden on the people. Much of our revenue is due to taxes on material brought in for public works, and, therefore, it is large. It might be made larger in the same way. Bank deposits, if, as in the case of this year's increase, where they are made up of imported foreign capital, are no criterion of prosperity. Altogether we cannot see that Canada's finances, with the immense increase in the public debt, can be said to be in a satisfactory condition. The vast proportion of Canadian earnings is gobbled up in repayment of interest and sinking-fund.

Why, also, should any part of the surplus go to bounties? Millions are consumed in this way. There is protection and protection, but the sort of protection administered by the Laurier Government is altogether out of reason.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The trade of Canada, export and import, has not increased in bulk in the last two years. The money must be borrowed that Mr. Fielding is blowing about.

American journals are applauding the tendency of some Canadian journals to throw off British tutelage. "Canada can't grow without doing so," say the journal. There has sprung up a very strong admiration for some French journals in the breasts of some of our friends across the border.

The estimated surplus for next year according to Mr. Fielding is $18,000,000. During the past year it was less than 2 millions. Why does Mr. Fielding not reduce some of the duties and cease paying bounties? Such a reduction would mean a surplus to the general taxpayer. But we must keep up the taxes for new loans for the benefit of the great contractors and financiers so it seems.

"The Government's naval policy, it is now announced, will not be brought down till after the Christmas holidays. The purpose of the delay is not very plain, though the cause may be guessed. The expenditures the ministers have been educating their followers to approve and understand have been on the line of local advantage rather than national duty."

To make a start on a navy Sir Thomas (Shaughnessy) emphatically supports the proposal that Canada ask England to draw up a plan to build two Dreadnoughts at Canada's expense, to be lent to England, on a 99 years' lease for a dollar yearly. As for the cry that Canada must control the expenditure of her money, he asks what control Canada has over £20,000 of public money sent to the San Francisco fire?"

22 CHILDREN IN 27 YEARS

Skowhegan, Maine.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickey, of Canaan, announce the birth of a daughter, their twenty second child in twenty-seven years.

Mrs. Dickey was married when fourteen years of age and Mr. Dickey was only a few years her senior.

Of the twenty-two children, not one has ever suffered from a serious illness.

Here is health and strength and bodily vigor personified. The parents are well—therefore there have been no weak, puny, peevish children.

The health of the child depends much on the health of the parents. Thus, there is the necessity of expectant mothers especially paying great attention to their general health.

During these trying times, a "Fruit-a-tives" tablet before meals and at bedtime will regulate the bowels and kidneys, keep the stomach sweet, sharpen the appetite, assist digestion, strengthen the vital organs and invigorate the entire system.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers—50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. — or direct from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WATERING HORSES.

What a Well Known Veterinarian Has to Say on the Subject.

Where the water is brought to the horse in a bucket the vessel should be a large one, so that the horse is certain to get enough, and if there is any doubt it should be refilled, says Dr. W. R. Gilbert, a well known veterinary writer. Horses that are allowed a free supply or that are worked at frequent intervals drink relatively less than those receiving water at long intervals or that get an irregular supply. When the chance is provided they make up for the deprivation often with disastrous results that tend to give water a bad name with unthinking men as a cause of disease.

Unless quite used to a free supply the quantity of water should be limited or withheld for a time when horses are excessively heated; also when first stabled after doing a hard day's work in particularly cold weather. It must, however, be understood that there is a vast difference as regards danger between a drink of water that has been exposed for some time and raised to the temperature of the atmosphere and one of water freely drawn from a deep well or cistern.

With regard to the time of watering, the necessity of giving it before the grain should be obvious when the small size of the horse's stomach is borne in mind and the process of digestion considered. Water given on a comparatively empty stomach does not remain in the organs, but is almost immediately conveyed to the large intestines. If it is withheld till after feeding it is almost physically impossible for both food and water to be retained in the stomach together, and a portion at least of the food is carried by water into the intestines undigested, where it, besides a loss of nutriment to the animal, is a source of irritation.

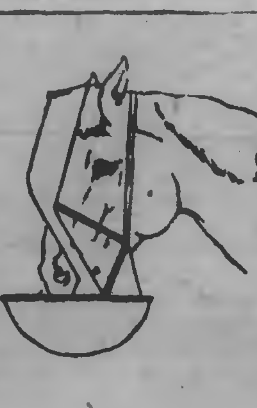
Of all the common faults, and there are many in the alimentation of horses, that of giving water after a full meal of grain is the worst. This, unlike hay, has to undergo gastric digestion in the stomach, where its nitrogenous elements have to be dealt with, not in the intestines, and if grain is washed with water from the stomach before the albuminoids are dissolved out and digested they are lost.

The excess of cold water afterward causes vascular congestion and violent muscular contractions, lowers the temperature and by interfering with digestion tends to disorders of a dangerous character, and, as we have seen, even a big drink of water of moderate temperature is full of peril.

Always allay thirst before the grain is given, and if any water is allowed after it should be merely a mouthful until the lapse of an hour or two has given time for gastric digestion.

A Fountain Feed Bag.

The nose bag shown in the illustration is of recent invention and is designed to overcome the trouble most horses have in trying to eat their noonday meal from the old style feed bag. The feed supply is contained in a reservoir which is secured to the bridle and is suspended between the animal's eyes. The feed flows down of its own weight into a saucer-like receptacle which is held under the animal's mouth. The feed is always in reach, and there is no loss by spilling.



RESERVOIR FOR THE FEED.

Sacrificing Good Horses.

Many thin horses are leaving the country now. They have done a hard season's work putting in oats and corn and are being cashed in to save feed. Some of these horses are not worth fattening, but scattered among the offerings coming to market are many good animals which are virtually sacrificed by going off the farm in thin condition. Thin horses have been bought under dealers' eyes in the horse market, given two months' feeding and sold for double the money to the same men who let them slip past their hands, says the Breeder's Gazette.

"Public notice is hereby made and proclaimed in open court at the December sittings of the Sessions of the Peace for the County of Peterborough, that application will be made to His Honor, the Judge of the County Court, the Sheriff and Warden of the said county, and the Division Court inspector to alter or rescind former resolution or resolutions or orders appointing the number, limits and extent of every division in the said county at present existing and to appoint and fix by resolution or order, the number, limits and extent of every division of the said court in the said county, on, from and after such date as may be named in any resolution or order by them made for such alteration or recission."

NATIONAL BI-LINGUAL EDUCATION FROM PRIMARY SCHOOLS TO UNIVERSITY

The Claim of the French-Canadians—What Le Moniteur Says the Coming Congress Will Demand—A Gloomy Future For Canada.

Le Moniteur says:—

"We French-Canadians of Ontario have at heart a work which to us is very dear; this is the Educational Congress of French-Canadians of Ontario. THE PRINCIPAL AIM OF THIS CONGRESS IS TO OBTAIN SCHOOLS WHERE THE FRENCH LANGUAGE AND RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION SHALL OCCUPY A PLACE OF HONOR. FOR THE EXECUTION OF THIS DESIGN IT IS NECESSARY FOR US TO HAVE PRIMARY BI-LINGUAL SCHOOLS, SECONDARY BI-LINGUAL SCHOOLS, NATIONAL BI-LINGUAL SCHOOLS, AND AS CROWN TO THE WHOLE, A BI-LINGUAL UNIVERSITY."

• • • • • •

"The difference is that in Quebec there is a French course and an English course under the superintendent, while in Ontario all the personnel of the Minister is English. Why should we not also have a French personnel?

"What we want is French; French for the primary school, French for the secondary school, French for the normal school. Behold our ambition, and it is a legitimate one, based on the treaties and on common sense.

"We are in number about 230,000 French-Canadians in Ontario. Prescott, Russell, Glengarry, Stormont, Essex, Nipissing are almost French counties, we form, then, a considerable portion of the population of Ontario. Is it not just that our language should be respected, above all, in our schools? And is it not just that it should be taught at least on the same footing as English?

"It is to solve this problem that the patriots have originated the idea of holding a congress, the appeal has not been in vain, from all corners of the province an enthusiastic response has come, and the sessions will soon be held in Ottawa.

"Let us hope that this reunion of all which our race counts most distinguished in Ontario will remain a true safeguard for our race in this part of the Dominion."

• • • • • •

"What is painful, irritating and above all things unjust, is that at the very moment when they demand of us our contribution of blood and money for ENGLAND, WHOM WE LOOK UPON ALMOST WITH THE EYES OF FOREIGNERS, they refuse to us the recognition of our right to French schools, and to our adequate share of patronage.

"Let us be patriots, French-Canadians of Ontario, and prove our patriotism in encouraging and sustaining the Congress of Education of the French-Canadians of Ontario."—From the Sentinel.

THE DISAPPEARANCE OF FOUR ALDERMEN CAUSED A LITTLE UNEASINESS

They Were Not on Hand When Council Wanted to Start Business—Turned up in Time, However—Some More Accounts Passed—City Threatened With Suit if Bill For $70 is Not Paid.

"The mystery of the council chamber, or where did the four aldermen go?" would be a fitting title for part of the proceedings at the meeting of the city council last night. After the meeting of the Board of Works in the committee room the majority of the aldermen and the mayor went upstairs to the council chamber for the session of the council. When all was ready to start business it was found that there was no quorum. Four of the aldermen had disappeared. Five minutes passed and they came not. City Treasurer Adams was sent down below to look for them, and a few minutes later he came aloft and reported that there was no sign of the missing men.

"Was there a scheme on foot to break up the council meeting?" was asked in whispers.

The uneasiness was becoming marked when Ald. McIntyre came in, soon followed by Aldermen Duncan, Metheral and Bradburn. Those present were: Mayor Rush and Aldermen Phelan, Morgan, Hicks, Duffus, Bradburn, Gillespie, McIntyre and Metheral.

The Board of Health sent in Dr. Young's bill for $400, and it was referred to the Finance Committee.

Dumble and Johnston, acting for Thos. Mitchell, notified the council that unless a settlement was made for damage done their client's farm by the smallpox and scarlet fever tents being placed on it, they would take action against the city. The bill is for $70. It was referred to the Legal Committee.

W. S. Clark applied for the position of janitor of the new public library.—Referred to Property Committee. C. L. Cunningham's application for the same position was treated likewise.

The Peterborough Canoe Company wrote in connection with their new siding, which is being put in by the C.P.R., King street, is affected, and the consent of the city will be necessary. On motion of Ald. Hicks and Duffus it was decided to leave the matter with the chairman of the Board of Works with power to act.

It was decided to offer Mrs. Connor Murphy twenty-five dollars in settlement for an accident she had at Cricket Place.

Ald. Bradburn was appointed to act as chairman of the Finance Committee for the balance of the term on account of the resignation of Ald. Morrow.

Ald. Bradburn presented the report of the Finance Committee. It included the following accounts:

Geo. Hutchinson & Sons	$ 7 85
The Garden Printery	16 50
F. P. McNulty	10 00

The report was adopted.

Ald. Morgan reported for the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Ald. Morgan moved and Ald. Duncan seconded the adoption of the report.

Ald. Duffus presented the following report from the Legal Committee:

Your Legal Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the offer of O'Connell & Gordon to receive $135 in the case of Torpey against the City of Peterborough be accepted, and that for the purpose of making such settlement a cheque for $135 be issued to the city solicitor.

2. That no action be taken on the application of C. Griffin for the return of a fine paid by him in the police court, as it is one with which the council has no authority to deal.

The report was adopted.

ARCHITECT'S FEES.

Ald. Bradburn brought up the question of the amount to be paid to the architects on the new public library. The by-law provided that they get $300 or $150 each. That cheque had been paid but he felt that the Property Committee had intended that each should get $300. He therefore moved that another cheque for $300 made out jointly, be issued to the architects. Ald. Duncan seconded the motion.

A by-law was passed in connection with the transfer of a part of the gore owned by the city near the intersection of Downey and Edinburgh streets to Mr. Tamblin's. Mr. Tamblin gives in return the privilege for a water course on the rear of his property.

Just as the council was about to adjourn Ald. Phelan moved that the return to the ward system by-law which had received two hearings, be rescinded and not submitted to the people. The aldermen, however, would not wait, and before the chairman of the Board of Works had finished speaking only two aldermen and the mayor were left, so the meeting came to an end.

TRIBUTE TO MAYOR RUSH

A graceful tribute was paid his Worship Mayor Rush by the City Council last night. Mr. Rush is retiring from municipal politics at the close of the present year and the aldermen took advantage of the last meeting of the Council to refer to the courteous and able manner in which his Worship has presided over the Council for the past two years. Ald. Phelan read the following motion, Ald. Hicks being in the chair:—That, as his Worship Mayor Rush has expressed his intention of retiring from the position of mayor at the end of this year, we desire to place on record the fact that the relations between the other members of the Council and his Worship have been of a most pleasant character and that we regret that they will soon come to an end. We also wish to express our appreciation of the very courteous manner in which he has presided at the meetings of the Council during the past two years and guided the affairs of the municipality during that time.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Gillespie, who spoke briefly in accord with the resolution which was carried by a standing vote.

Mr. Rush made a feeling reply. He was much touched, he said, by the kind sentiments expressed by the members of the Council. He had tried to do his best while in the Mayor's chair and he was grateful to the aldermen for their assistance. "I will never forget your kindness" Mr. Rush said in closing.

ENDOCARDITIS.

Forms and Dangers of This Affection of the Heart.

By "endocarditis" is meant an inflammation of the endocardium or membrane lining the cavities of the heart. It is caused by the presence of poisonous material, usually of living germs, in the blood and is therefore most often associated with or a consequence of some general disease, such as rheumatism, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria or pneumonia.

There are the usual two forms found in most diseases, acute and chronic, the last following upon the first, and there are also the more important divisions into simple and malignant endocarditis.

In the simple kind the lining membrane of the heart presents numerous points of inflammation—little red areas with a tuft or ball of fibrin, or clotted blood, in the centre. These inflamed spots are not large, and the clots attached to them are also small in the simple form. But in malignant endocarditis the area inflamed is much more extensive, and the clots are larger, sometimes almost filling the cavity of the heart. In some cases of malignant endocarditis, then called ulcerative endocarditis, the inflammation is so acute as to cause ulceration of the affected parts.

The dangers of endocarditis are twofold—danger to the heart itself and danger to the brain or lungs or one of the other organs of the body. The danger to the heart is from injury to one of the valves. This almost always happens except in the mildest form of endocarditis, because the inflammation most often affects the edges of the valves. Even when the disease subsides without giving any sign of valvular injury at first, this often appears later through a fibrous thickening or scarlike contraction of the part originally inflamed. This interferes with the complete closure of the valve, and the result is a heart permanently crippled by valvular disease.

The danger to the brain or other organs is from detachment of the little blood clot from the inflamed spot and its carriage into the general circulation, where it plugs one of the smaller arteries. If this happens in the brain it gives rise to symptoms of apoplexy.

The first principle of treatment is absolute rest in bed, and this inaction must be insisted upon long after the patient feels well and is well, and for the rest of life anything that may cause heart strain must be carefully avoided.

TRUE BILLS RETURNED

CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

James Kelly Gets His Horse Back --All Parties Pay Costs

The following case has been settled out of court by Kelly getting back the horse and all parties paying their costs:—

In December, 1908, James Kelly gave to one Cavanagh, livery stable keeper, a horse to keep for him. Cavanagh afterwards sold out to George O'Neill, who took possession, including the horse. O'Neill claiming $60.25 for keep, sold the horse by auction to satisfy the account; defendant, Haggart, being the auctioneer, plaintiff further claims that he tendered defendant, O'Neill, sufficient sum for charges, which was refused. The horse was sold to Mervin for $162, and same amount was not paid over to plaintiff. Plaintiff also alleges that the horse was not sold for the best price.

SOME CHANGES WERE NECESSARY

In Connection With Arrangement for Taking Vote on Jan. 3rd

Some changes were made in the arrangements for taking the vote at the meeting of the City Council last night. D. H. Burritt notified the council that he would not be able to act as deputy returning officer at poll No. 5, and Felix Brownscombe was appointed to the position. J. P. Bryson and Albert Throop gave notice that they would not be able to act as poll clerks, and A. K. Duncan and Albert Dorm were appointed to take their places.

Word was received from John James that his shop would not be available for a polling booth—No. 5—and Wm. McCall's show was selected.

Ald. McIntyre moved that the amount paid for the polling booths for the day be raised from four to five dollars, on account of the longer hours. Ald. Metheral seconded the motion.

Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Duffus moved in amendment that the amount be left at four dollars, and the amendment carried.

Sent a Cheque

The Fire Department is in receipt of a cheque and a letter from the Higgins Hardware Company. The letter bears good wishes to the firemen, and the cheque will be used in connection with the Christmas tree at the fire hall next Wednesday evening.

WHO STARTED THIS BLAZE?

Fire Chief Says Premises Occupied by Robt. De Barnardo Were Set on Fire--An Early Morning Call

Fire broke out early this morning about 2.30 o'clock, in the north store of the Brooks Block, at the corner of Sherbrooke and George streets, and which was occupied by Robert Di Barnardo, a boot and shoe dealer. The blaze was promptly handled by the fire department, and the loss will be small, there being only a small number of boots damaged.

Nightwatchman Fisher sent in the alarm.

The origin of the fire is of such a nature that the fire chief has reported the matter to the police. He stated this morning that he had little doubt but that it was set on fire. There is evidence that a blaze started in several parts of the premises, but the one that caused the most damage was under the shelf where the stock of boots was displayed. Only a short time has elapsed since Di Barnardo was burnt out, and on other occasions his place of business was visited by fire.

WAS PLAYED OVER 450 TIMES IN CHICAGO

"The Time, The Place and The Girl" Has Had Long Runs in Big Cities—Splendid Company Coming Here

Chicago's most successful musical play, "The Time, the Place and the Girl," will be the offering at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday, December 21st. The production given here will be exactly the same as given 400 times in Chicago. The cast is a large one, and is headed by that unctuous comedian, Geo. Ebner, who in the character of "Happy Johnny Hicks," the gambler, is said to have the best part he has ever portrayed. The chorus is said to be pretty and vivacious and good singers as well as dancers.

"The Time, the Place and the Girl" is undoubtedly one of the greatest successes of the season and the local management is fortunate in securing it for its patrons.

DEFENDANT CLAIMED THAT HORSE DIDN'T SUIT HIM

A civil case in which the non-payment of $145 on a horse was the cause of the action begun at the session of the County Court this morning. William H. Ruse and W. T. Carruthers were the plaintiffs and Harry Mitchell the defendant. Mr. E. L. Goodwill appeared for plaintiffs and Mr. R. F. McWilliams for defendant.

Mr. Ruse was the first witness. He saw the defendant, Mitchell, in August of the present year, and had heard that he wished to buy the horse which plaintiffs had in their possession. He told of Mitchell bargaining for the horse, which was in the keeping of Mr. Nathan Bell, of North Monaghan from whom they were getting the animal and he was holding it for them till the first of September per agreement.

The City Music Co., in which the plaintiffs are in partnership, had sold a piano to Mr. Bell and the horse had been given as part payment on the piano. Mr. Ruse told Mr. Mitchell that he valued the horse at $175, owing to his understanding of the value of the horse by reason of the company's contract with Bell. Witness stated Mitchell said he would see the horse for himself to size it up.

Mr. W. T. Carruthers, Mr. Ruse's partner, told of communicating with Mr. Mitchell by 'phone concerning the horse. He also told Mitchell the horse was for sale at $175, which price Mitchell thought was rather high, as the horse was blind in one eye. Mr. Carruthers said the horse was blind in one eye, but advised Mitchell to see it for himself before making the purchase. Mr. Mitchell had said he would like his brother George to see the horse before it was bought, as his brother was a better judge of horseflesh than he was. The witness told Mitchell that the horse would weigh about 1100 pounds in first-class condition. Both the defendant and his brother George, in company with the witness, called at Bell's and saw the horse. Later Harry Mitchell examined the horse at Bell's farm and $145 was agreed upon between Carruthers and Mitchell as the price at which the horse should be sold to Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell said he would give a cheque the following morning for the amount. The horse was not in as good condition as it would probably have been by September 1st, hence the price reduction.

Mr. Goodwill examined the witness very closely and his evidence was given in great detail. Later Mitchell said the horse was too small to suit his purposes, but said he would settle for it, according to the witness. The purchaser apparently rued his bargain, but the witness said the deal had been effected and insisted that the payment should be made.

Mr. McWilliams cross-questioned the witness in detail.

Wm. J. Stillman, of Smith, testified that he saw Mitchell at the waterworks dam the day after he bought the horse and Mitchell wanted to trade the horse for a big one he had.

Mr. John Haggart, auctioneer, the first witness for the defence, saw the horse and thought it would be worth about eighty dollars.

At three o'clock the case had not gone to the jury.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and t is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

WAS IT A WAKE?

Ald. McIntyre said last night at the meeting of the City Council that there was no use in talking of an Industrial Commissioner, as Peterborough had nothing to offer to industries looking for a location. A short time ago he stated that the "electric policy" of the city, as it was called, was dead. Ald. McIntyre is chairman of the committee in charge of the power question. He spoke of the death of the policy as if it were an occasion of bitter disappointment to him. No doubt it was. His two statements are worthy of careful consideration. We begin 1910 with neither policy nor inducements. A nice prospect, surely! Whose fault is it that we are in this dilemma? What effect will it have upon the city's future? Is Peterborough on the wane? It certainly ought not to be in any form of decline. Its natural advantages remain—to a certain extent. It is not too late to show that we are alive to our almost lost opportunities. The big citizens' meeting of a month ago seems to have been intended as a wake.

SO IT WILL

"Mr. Reginald McKenna (member of British Cabinet) addressing a meeting in Southend, referring to the contribution of New Zealand and Australia of two Dreadnoughts, mentioned that as only one of the great efforts at Empire consolidation under dertaken by the present Government. It would be a lasting memorial to the fame of the Liberal Government."—Cable dispatch.

And why has the Laurier Government not answered this call of the "mither of her bairns." Why? We venture to predict that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's fame will rest upon these memorable words "If you press this resolution (for unity of empire) I shall have to vote against it."

WEDDING BELLS

GRIFFIN—KENNEDY

A very pleasant event took place last night at the home of Mrs. Edward Kennedy, Robinson street, Ashburnham, when her daughter, Rebecca, became the wife of Mr. Hector Cecil Griffin, of Cannington.

The bride was charmingly attired in a beautiful white silk gown, and Miss Mary Mania, of the city, acted as bridesmaid. The groom was supported by Mr. Arthur Juby, a brother of the bride.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. C. Riddiford, of the Park St. Baptist church, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

After a short honeymoon to Cannington and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Hector Griffin will reside in Robinson street.

Among those present were Rev. W. C. and Mrs. Riddiford, Mrs. Edward Kennedy, mother of the bride; Arthur and James Juby, brothers; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Pollock and Master Harold, Miss Mary Mania, Viola Dopee, Bert Martin, A. Morrison, John Juby, Clara Garside, Velma Murduff, Mr. and Mrs. Reasor, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Murduff, Harry Murduff, Geo. Murduff, Mr. and Mrs. John Lloyd, Jessie Juby and others.

DRAIN—EDWARDS

The marriage took place at the George St. parsonage yesterday afternoon of Miss Christena May Edwards, of Douro, to Mr. David Henry Drain, of the same township. The couple were unattended and the ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson.

WHETUNG—HOWARD

Arthur Whetung, son of Mr. Dan Whetung, of Chemong, was united in marriage yesterday to Miss Bella Howard, of Hiawatha. The ceremony took place at 2.30 o'clock at the George street parsonage and was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson.

Fire Chief Howard wants the public to know that there is a man on duty to answer the telephone at the fire hall night and day. Very often a telephone can be reached more quickly than a fire alarm box, when there is a fire. In a case of that kind use the telephone instead of the alarm box.

THE ACT WAS NOT ALLOWED BY MANAGER

Montreal, Dec. 15.—Mademoiselle Eugenie Fougere, the French music hall actress, who was announced to appear at Bennett's as headliner during this week, made her first and last appearance at that theatre yesterday afternoon. Although such acts as she presented might be quite acceptable in the music halls of London and Paris, they certainly should have no place in the bill of any Montreal theatre, and Manager Driscoll very properly informed her at the close of her turn that he would not permit her to appear on the stage of his theatre again.

In only one item did Mlle. Fougere show any sign of having got into touch with her audience, and that was in her imitation of Harry Lauder. Her first turn as a Parisian of 1909, though bordering on the vulgar, gave no indication of what was to follow. After a change of costume she endeavored to mimic Madame Steinheil, who has but recently emerged from the ordeal of a prolonged trial of murder, which was the sensation of Paris. If Madame Steinheil ever behaved herself in the manner indicated by Mlle. Fougere yesterday afternoon, it seems incredible that sympathy, even in Paris, could ever have been aroused on her behalf to the extent to which it was. Nor can it be said that Mlle. Fougere was less vulgar in either her Apache dance or her appearance as a Spanish flower girl.

Contrary to what logically might be expected the Fougere songs were not on suggestive lines. What offended chiefly was the style of costuming as well as the excessive display of lingerie.

After he stated that the act would not appear again in the theatre, Manager Driscoll said that while the performance might be received without objection in many theatres, he had an especially large clientele of ladies and was determined to have no act to offend anyone. "I had a talk with Mlle. Fougere in the morning and she promised me to sing no suggestive song or do anything that would offend a matinee audience."

THE MEMBERSHIP TO REACH ONE THOUSAND

It is expected that the membership of St. Peter's T.A.S. will reach one thousand after the meeting on Sunday. The officers of the society are working hard in this direction, and one of them stated to-day that there was no doubt but that the thousand mark would be reached at the next meeting.

A CRYING SHAME AND BLOT ON 20TH CENTURY CIVILIZATION

To Keep the Old and Infirm in Gaol with Common Criminals is the Outspoken Opinion of Judge Huycke ---The Presentment of the Grand Jury at the County Court Sessions.

The following presentment was made this morning by the Grand Jury at the sessions of the County Court before His Honor Judge Huycke;—

To His Honour Edward C. S. Huycke,
Judge of the County Court of the County of Peterborough, and of the General Sessions of the Peace for the said County.

May it please Your Honour,—We, the Grand Jury for the General Session of the Peace of the County of Peterborough, have pleasure in congratulating Your Honour upon your appointment to the Bench. While we heartily agree with the remarks which you have made in reference to the late revered and honoured Judge of the County, whose death even at a ripe age, has been generally deplored by all who have known him, and whose administration of justice in this county was always marked by eminent judicial ability; nevertheless we feel assured that in your succession to his duties we shall find in you in no less degree the attributes which distinguished him.

In accordance with your instructions we have passed upon the different indictments which were brought before us, and we trust our duties with that respect have been performed to your satisfaction. We have also examined the County Gaol and different institutions receiving Government aid, and have pleasure in being able to report that they are all conducted with due regard to economy and efficiency. We must say, however, that in our opinion, the county should adopt a modern system of heating the Court House and offices connected with it—the appearance of stoves in different parts of the building have a decided antiquated appearance, and not in keeping with so wealthy a County as this.

We cannot but deplore the appearance in the gaol of different persons whose only crime, if such it may be called, is that of poverty. The county possesses a House of Refuge for its indigent poor, but the city has made no provision for such persons. This is a standing reproach to this wealthy community, and its representatives cannot be too strongly urged to take a step either in the direction of themselves providing for this class of persons or making some arrangement with the County for their being provided for at the county building.

We cannot conclude this presentment without referring in terms of affectionate regard to the late John Moloney, whose urbanity during his long term of office was unfailing. He was an official who had a just appreciation of the responsibilities of his office and was unceasing in fulfilling his duties to the best of his ability. We welcome as his successor Mr. George J. Sherry, a gentleman who having practised at the Bar for many years, is fully competent to perform all the duties of his office, and who, we are assured, will be a worthy incumbent of the offices to which he has been appointed.

We have the honour to be,
Your obedient servants,
For the Grand Jury.
J. J. BENNETT,
Foreman.

Grand Jury Room,
Court House, Peterborough.
Dec. 15th, 1909.

His Honor, in replying, thanked the Jury heartily and sincerely for the very kind references they had made to himself, and speaking of his residence in the city, said he had been most cordially received by the citizens generally. He was sure that Mr. Sherry also appreciated the remarks made concerning him. The Judge congratulated the jury for the prompt manner in which they had transacted the business they had to perform. They were to be commended on the intelligent and careful manner in which they had made the presentment. He agreed with them in the matter of the inferior way the court house buildings were heated.

In speaking of that subject which is so regularly dealt with by Grand Juries, the confinement of old people in the gaol, whose only offence is their poverty, and helplessness, the Judge said it was a crying shame and a blot on the civilization of the 20th century to keep them with common criminals.

MARRYING OF TITLES.

Mrs. Post Gives Reasons For Unhappy Marriages.

Mrs. Emily Post, author of "The Title Market" and other novels dealing with Society people, asserted in an interview that American girls must regard marriage as Europeans do before they can be happy as the wives of titled personages. She said:

"Of course not all marriages of American girls to foreign titles prove unhappy, but when they are not it only proves that one of our countrywomen has successfully curbed her natural tendencies—has attained the European manner of regarding matrimony. It is hard, but it can be done, and it has been done.

"But the effort, I think, can best be likened to the effort that is necessary in speaking a foreign tongue when you are sick and tired. The American girl who marries a foreigner must learn to put her thoughts into his language as well as her words.

"Many of the unhappy international marriages are the fault of the girl's mother. The American mother's place is to see that her daughter is not marrying a good-for-nothing creature, devoid of even the social position that she fancies she is attaining. American mothers are blinded by the gallantry with which the European man treats them. They fancy that the superficial chivalry displayed toward them is the quality upon which to found a happy future for the daughter. They are unused to attention and understudy courtesies. In America everything is the American girl. Our men do not have time to be gallant to our mothers.

"Then the American mothers are at fault, too, in the training they give their daughters. If a girl were brought up properly she would not submit to selling herself for a title. But the society girl of America is educated only to be an ornament and is taught that the most desirable attainment is social position. When she goes abroad she falls an easier victim to the title mania than does her mother.

"The European man's God is his family. The woman upon whom he has bestowed his title must be treated with respect in public at least. One of the vilest little titled men of France always treated his wife with the utmost deference in public. Maybe he scratched her eyes out when they were alone, but in society his behavior was the acme of courtesy. In America, you see, a man treats his wife as well or as badly as he loves her. His love regulates his attentions. In Europe there are years and years of tradition respecting what is due the lady of the castle.

"The European man, speaking generally, does not care for the woman of the stage. He prefers women in his own social sphere. In most cases the wife entertains unknowingly the object of her husband's attentions. It may be more degrading, but it is at least less crude."

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Women afraid of being struck by lightning should lie, if possible, on a brass or iron bed, the head of which has a projection for supporting curtains. Such a bedstead forms the most complete lightning protector that can be devised, says an eminent electrician.

Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, is only fourteen years old, but she is said to be familiar with public questions, about which she can talk intelligently. She goes to the Friends' school in Washington and is described as a very intelligent young woman.

Ines Bower is the name of a twelve-year-old girl of Los Angeles who is preaching sermons in the west. She was "converted at five" and has been delivering sermons to adults for nearly four years. These are described as "clear, logical and as convincing as many a minister of mature age can deliver."

Mrs. George Keppel, who has had much notoriety because of the friendship for her of King Edward, has won that monarch's displeasure, it seems, as the list of persons whom he will be pleased to meet, which he edits himself, does not contain that lady's name, much to the surprise of society people in London.

Miss Nellie G. Robinson of Cincinnati and two women of Columbus, O., all three attorneys, are conferring for the purpose of organizing an Ohio woman's bar association. The association will be formed in Columbus in September. Women attorneys at Springfield, Toledo, Cleveland and Sandusky will be eligible and no doubt will join.

Miss Belle Kinney of Nashville, Tenn., the designer of the monument to the women of the "lost cause," is only twenty-two years old, and her work has been much commended. The central figure is the goddess of fame, and at her right is the reclining figure representing the sacrificing southern women of the war. Miss Kinney was awarded the contract for twenty Igorrotte figures at the Field museum.

Coverlets de Luxe.

The newest thing in coverlets de luxe is a combination of esprit net with flounces and incrustations of cluny lace interrun with a broad chine ribbon to form a center. Less costly, but equally charming in their way, are the hemstitched and hand embroidered "spreads" of plain white linen, some of them supplemented with insertions, motifs and edgings of cluny lace, others a mass of delicate white embroidery. Then there are the printed cotton spreads, with Indian, flower or conventional designs in fresh, bright colorings, which always add to the cheerful appearance of a room.

Believing in the so-called Osler theory, William Argebright, a tinner, 59 years old, drank carbolic acid and died at Laporte, Ind.

T.A.S. Decided to Enter Junior and Senior City Leagues and Church League

At a well attended meeting of those interested in the athletic section of the T.A.S., it was definitely decided to enter a team in both the Senior and Junior Hockey League. Admission will also be applied for in the Senior Church Hockey League.

There is considerable material available for both senior and junior league teams, which, with capable officers at the helm, should make a creditable showing this season. Messrs. J. Deannard and W. O'Brien were appointed to arrange for the rink and other matters.

SPORTING NOTES

Capt. Bruce Stuart, of the Ottawa hockey team, is reported to have unearthed a bird of a goal minder. His name is Pigeon.

Chuck Tyner, of Toronto, may succeed Marks as manager of the Brantford professionals.

BASKET BALL AT THE Y. M. C. A.

George street Methodist church has, without a doubt, the best team in the City League.

They lined up with the Collegiate boys last night, the lightest team in the league, but by no means the slowest. When the referee's whistle blew the little fellows hung right on to them, and got away from them, too, for H. Wallace scored the first goal of the game, and then the George st. team started, and slowly but surely they began to score. The first half ended 14—10 in favor of George st.

H. Lees was taken out and D. Pearson put in his place, but it was feared Pearson was too light.

The second half started and the Collegiate again scored first point, but Cressman was by this time getting his eye on the basket and scored four baskets in the last half.

As for the Collegiate, they all played a good game, and deserve credit. They are the lightest team in the league and they played an excellent game. Laing was all over the floor, Wallace had his eye on the basket, and Matthews played a great defence game. This is his first year at basketball, and three years from now he will have anything in this part of Canada beaten to death as a defence man, as he stops anything and everything. Nothing gets by him, and there are few who care to attempt it.

The line-up—

Collegiate.		George St.
Wallace	Right Forward.	Miller
Laing	Left Forward.	Cressman
Bartlett	Centre.	Downing
Matthews	Right Guard.	McCarrell
H. Lees	Left Guard	Best

Referee—McLaughlin.

THE NEW YEAR WELL STARTED

"The Conservative Club" as its new name is now, had a general meeting of its members last night to hear the report as to re-renting the old quarters. This was decided on and some decorating is to be done. There was a large and enthusiastic attendance of representative members. Mr. C. N. Brown, president; Mr. W. E. Murphy, vice-president, and Mr. Geo. Benton, jr., secretary. The club's executive officers look forward to a "great" year. But everybody must lend a hand.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

AIRSHIP LITIGATION IN UNITED STATES COURT

Wilbur and Orville Wright are on One Side and the Herring-Curtiss Company o the Other—Unique Case in History of the World.

For the first time in the history of the world's jurisprudence airships were the subject of a court's attention when this afternoon Judge John R. Hazel, sitting in U. S. Circuit Court, heard arguments in a motion made by the Wright Brothers' Company against the Herring-Curtiss Company for an injunction to prevent the defendants from making or in any way doing business with aeroplanes of the kind they have been making and using and which are claimed by the plaintiffs to be infringements of their patents.

The plaintiffs were represented by H. A. Toulmin, a patent attorney of Springfield, O., who had with him Gen. Edmund Wetmore of Bath, N. Y., as counsel and C. W. Parker of New York. The defendants were represented by Emerson R. Newell of New York and Clifford E. Dunn of New York, with Monroe Wheeler, president of the defendant company, as counsel.

SAY WRIGHTS INFRINGED

Previously to the argument of the motion a reporter asked the defendants, who are A. M. Herring and Glenn H. Curtiss, and the Wright Brothers, Orville and Wilbur, to say something regarding the suit and their future plans.

"The Wrights were started in the flying machine experiments because of what I did with my glider in 1896," said Mr. Herring. He showed a photograph of the machine to which he referred and added;

"It was my success with that glider that stimulated the Wrights to enter the experimental field."

WHAT THE WRIGHTS SAY

"What are your plans for the future?" was asked.

"To make flying machines and sell them," said Mr. Herring while Mr. Curtiss smiled approval. "Let me tell you this, also," continued Mr. Herring. "Inside of two years the present Wright machines will be obsolete. We have experiments now well advanced that will put that class of machine out of business and there will be nothing left of this dispute but its memory."

"We are going right ahead with the business of making and selling flying machines," said Wilbur Wright. He declined to make any comment on the lawsuit.

REVIEWED SOME HISTORY

In opening his arguments Mr. Toulmin reviewed the history of the efforts of mankind to imitate the flight of birds, telling of one Simon, who in A.D. 67 adjusted wings to his body and tried to fly, and of a Benedictine monk who in England, in the sixteenth century, made similar efforts. He declared it remained for the Wright Bros. to solve the problem when, on Dec. 17, 1903, at their camp in North Carolina, they electrified the world by making an actual flight for the first time in the world's history.

Congress recognized the merit of their performance and achievement," said Mr. Toulmin, who read from the record the action taken by Congress on that occasion. "The Smithsonian Institute, the Congress of the United States, the State of Ohio and the city of Dayton awarded the Wright Bros. medals."

CLAIMS SECRETARY FILCHED

Mr. Toulmin went into an extended explanation of the aeroplane of the Wright Brothers, using models and diagrams to show Judge Hazel how the aeroplanes are operated in all kinds of wind currents, and telling of the various devices they employed to overcome air currents. It is the claim of the plaintiffs that the Herring-Curtiss machine infringes the Wrights' patents by using devices similar to those used by the Wrights for overcoming air currents. Mr. Toulmin made charges that the public had been awaiting for some time, that the Wright Brothers' secret was "filched" from them by Mr. Herring, who, they charge, visited the Wrights' camp in North Carolina in 1902 and was there for three weeks watching their experiments in the interest of some scientific society.

"After the successful flight of the Wrights in 1903," said Mr. Toulmin, "Mr. Herring, as editor of a scientific journal, wrote an article in which he paid full credit to the Wrights and their discovery, awarding them all the honor their success achieved. After that Lieut. Selfridge, who was later killed in an aeroplane accident, wrote to the Wright brothers asking for information as to how their machine was constructed, and they courteously replied, giving him all the desired information in the interests of the aeronautic society with which he was connected.

WHAT DEFENCE WILL BE.

"It was shortly afterwards that the Wrights noticed an article in the newspapers announcing an intended flight by Mr. Curtiss in a machine, a picture of which was published, and which was practically a copy of their own patented machine. They wrote to Mr. Curtiss warning him and got a reply in which he disclaimed responsibility for what the newspapers might publish. Nevertheless the flight was made and it was shortly afterwards that the suit was started."

It is understood to be one of the strongest claims of the defence that they have done nothing more than do what they assert the Wrights themselves did, namely, develop experiments made half a century ago by Chanute, who is aptly called "the father of aeronautics." They say the Wrights advanced Chanute's theories along one line and they along another, and that both are developments of Chanute's plans and nothing more. They will show that they have made flights without the rudder, for which so much is claimed by the Wrights, and that the rudder is not an essential to their machine.—Buffalo News.

IN TOY SHOP

Away from the crowds in the turbulent street where Youth and its fancies have flown,
'Tis only a step to a Fairyland sweet where Childhood comes into its own;
'Tis only a step to a wonderful land of Tinsel and One-Penny schemes,
Where a boat lies at anchor and tugs as her strand to sail from the Harbor of Dreams.
Her cargo is placed and her voyagers on, and the wind and the weather are prime,
Her canvas is raised and her anchor is drawn to a chanty or nursery rhyme—
She starts and she trembles — she luffs! And, heigh-O! o'er a handpainted ocean we reel,
With love on the decks and above and below and a gingerbread man at the wheel.

His sailors are mariners if you please—a sea-going tribe made of bisque,
Whose course lies over unchartered seas with many a dangerous risk,
Past reefs and shallows and unknown lands with castles of painted blocks,
Through "Popcorn Narrows" and shallow stands by Peppermint Candy Rocks;
And O, the chances we take—and risk! but never a fear we feel
With the captain bold and his crew of bisque and the gingerbread man at the wheel.

To Pixy Port and to Fable Strand and the Coast of the Fairy Queen,
And straightway to the wondrous land of Jack and the Giant Bean;
To Treasure Isle and the Jungle's heart and fairy enchanted nooks
And spots that mariners never chart except in the story books.
Around the world and across and back with never a calm or gale,
And never a change in the captain's tack or sag in the whitened sail;
Then up in the wind like a flying dove, as the weather-wise captain deems,
And home again with our load of love in the Pleasanter Port of Dreams.

• • • •

A happy welcome from faces sweet, then off on the seaway high
To the happiest ports where a man may touch—the fairest a man may know—
And pity the fellow whose greed is such that he hasn't the time to go!

THE VIEW OF DR. GRENFELL

Thinks Dr. Cook's Mind is Affected and That He is Suffering From Delusion.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 15.—Dr. W. T. Grenfell, the Labrador missionary, who spent some hours here to-day on his way to Newfoundland from the United States, with his bride, made a statement relative to the Cook-Peary polar controversy. He said:—

"I am very well acquainted with both Commander Peary and Dr. Cook," said he. "I confess that at first I, like many others, believed Dr. Cook had reached the Pole, but I am now, like you and everyone else, in view of the overwhelming evidence of his duplicity, persuaded otherwise."

Dr. Grenfell said that he was well acquainted with those in touch with Dr. Parker and others who accompanied Dr. Cook in his ascent of Mount McKinley, and who now state that Cook never reached the summit as stated by him, and he was reluctantly compelled to believe that Dr. Cook was wrong there also. Dr. Grenfell said that he had met both Cook and Peary in Labrador, the former on two occasions. "Frank Sayre, my private secretary, acted as Peary's secretary, accompanying him from Battle Harbor. He prepared for the commander much of the evidence of the latter's discovery of the Pole."

Asked if he believed that Peary had reached the Pole, Dr. Grenfell replied: "I have no doubt whatever that Peary reached the Pole. I think that Dr. Cook's mind is affected and I incline to the view that he himself thoroughly believes that he was at the Pole."

DUNKLE LOSES BUSINESS

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 11.—George H. Dunkle, the New York insurance broker, who, by his own admissions, brought Dr. Frederick Cook and Captain August Wedel Loose together for the purpose of faking polar observations, and thus impeached his own integrity, will do no more business with the Traveller's Insurance Company of this city.

Vice-President John B. Lunger, of the company, said to-day that when he learned of the Loose and Dunkle story, he called up the Traveller's branch office in New York city and gave orders that there be no further transactions with Dunkle. The latter was never on the salary list, but from time to time brought in a risk.

Fourteen Die In Wreck

Greensboro, N.C., Dec. 15.—Local passenger train No. 11 on the Southern Railway was wrecked at Reedy Fork trestle, ten miles north of here, early yesterday. Eleven bodies have been removed from the wreckage.

The derailment was caused by a broken rail. The day coaches and Pullman were thrown from the trestle into the creek, 20 feet below.

George J. Gould, the millionaire, and his son Jay, were on the train.

Jim Hill In B. C.

Winnipeg, Dec. 16.—That James J. Hill intends immediately to prosecute the building of the Vancouver, Victoria and Eastern Railway, connecting with Kootenay by a shore line is shown by the calling for tenders to-day by the Great Northern Railway for the construction of two sections of the line.

SPRINGING A NEW ONE

With a wild look in his eyes, the man with the green satchel rushed ahead of the excited mob.

"Discovered!" he shouted for the twentieth time. "Discovered! It is all over now."

"Bet he's a burglar," said one.

"Looks more like a counterfeiter," announced another.

"Assassin!" whispered the third.

And then they caught him.

"Where did you escape from?"

"Nowhere."

"What were you locked up for?"

"Nothing."

"Then what in thunderation is discovered?"

"The north pole, gentlemen, the north pole; and if you allow me to open this satchel you will discover the greatest bargain in double action, automatic, self-revolving collar buttons that——"

But ten determined men picked him up and dropped him into the nearest ash barrel.

DANGEROUS DANDRUFF

Will Make Canada a Baldheaded Nation if Not Checked

M. Pasteur, the great French Physician of Paris, once said; "I believe we shall one day rid the world of all diseases caused by germs."

Dandruff is caused by germs, a fact accepted by all physicians.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks or money back.

Wm. Madill guarantees it. It will stop itching scalp, falling hair and make the hair grow thick and abundant.

It puts life and lustre into the hair and prevents it from turning gray.

It is the hair dressing par excellence, daintily perfumed and free from grease stickness. It is the favorite with women of taste and culture who know the social value of fascinating hair.

A large bottle costs only 50 cents at leading druggists everywhere, and in Peterborough by Wm. Madill. The girl with the auburn hair is on every package.

To save her dog, Delia Krug, 11 years old, plunged under the ice of a mill pond near Denver, Colo., and was rescued with difficulty by a dozen men.

Another $50,000 Shortage.

New York, Dec. 15.—The Atlanta office of the Phoenix Fire Insurance Co. of Brooklyn, is short approximately $50,000, and has been since Jan. 1, 1907. Ex-President Sheldon, now under indictment for larceny, was aware of the shortage, but had not reported it until recently.

Furniture News.

To give the desired "old" look to a new finish has been found for furniture. This is nothing more or less than rubbed off edges. In heavy fumed oak the rungs and arms of chairs, the corners of sideboards, all little protuberances that would naturally have met the most wear in real antique furniture, have been treated—possibly with sandpaper—so that the lighter ground wood shows through irregularly. Inlay is a feature of much of the new furniture. Stripes of satin wood in mahogany, fanciful designs in colored wood, mother of pearl, etc., and even that imitation of inlay gained by painting or stenciling some glaring flowers or vines on the surface, in the manner of bedroom sets of old, are seen on some of the handsomest pieces for use in every part of the house—drawing room, dining room bedroom, boudoir.

383 GEORGE STREET.

AND THE FIREWORKS THEY WERE LOVELY

Some Warm Talk at Closing Session of Board of Works on Account of a Bill for Removing Portion of Old Smith Street Bridge—Agreed to Pay it at Last.

The Board of Works has furnished a good deal of the fireworks of the city council during the year, and the closing session was marked last night by a pyrotecnic display that made the aldermen ranged around the board sit up and take notice. It was like a bunch of Victoria Day "crackers" on the rampage while it lasted. Ald. Phelan was in the chair, and there were present Ald. Bradburn, Duncan, Gillespie and Mayor Rush. Everything was going as smoothly as a Wright Bros airship till a bill was presented for $89.85, for work done by E. and F. Conroy's men in removing a portion of the old Smith street bridge. Ald. Phelan said he had ordered the work on the recommendation of the engineer.

"Why didn't you call a meeting of the Board of Works?" Ald. Duncan asked.

"It was emergency work, and had to be done at once," Ald. Phelan replied.

"You could have called a meeting all right if you had wanted to," Ald. Duncan countered.

The engineer explained that the portion of the bridge removed was dangerous to the contractors' men and had to be taken down before they could proceed with the work. Mr. Martin had superintended the work, Conroy's men being employed.

"Why employ Conroy's men?" Ald. Duncan asked. "There are plenty of ratepayers walking around the streets who would have been glad to have the work."

Ald. Duncan contended that the bridge could have been removed on the ice in the winter at less expense.

"It was emergency work," Ald. Phelan said.

"You have run the Board of Works on your own hook," Ald. Duncan retorted.

Ald. Phelan said Ald. Duncan was harping on the same old string, and then a sizzling argument took place. There were charges of "making a failure of the Board of Works," "Why you were left at home," "Interference of religious bodies in municipal politics," and some more things of similar ilk.

The two aldermen were just getting their stride, and running without wraps, as it were, when some one suggested that the "North Pole talk be cut out, and the controversy ended. The Board got down to business again.

Ald. Bradburn was of the opinion that the chairman should have called a meeting when the question of removing the bridge came up, but in view of the report of the engineer he thought the bill should be paid. Ald. Morgan threatened to take a hand in the discussion, having come in the meantime, but it was decided that there had been enough argument.

Ald. Gillespie moved and Ald. Bradburn seconded that the account be paid, and the motion carried. Ald. Duncan had suggested that the account not be paid.

Mr. Downer, of Downer's Corners, drew the attention of the Board to a bad crossing on Otonabee street, on account of the removal of three planks. The city Engineer will look into the matter.

Ald. Duffus referred to a drain being blocked on Auburn street, causing the water to flood in the spring. The engineer will also look into this matter.

THE SECOND CHARGE PROVED DISASTROUS TO THE PRISONER

George Martin Acquitted of Perjury in Morning and Found Guilty of the Same Offence in the Afternoon--Evidence of the Police in Direct Contradiction to That of the Prisoner---Sentence Deferred.

Facing two juries on the same day on the charge of perjury, being acquitted on the first charge, but convicted on the second, is the somewhat unique and by no means desirable record made at the session of the county court yesterday by George Martin. As noted in the local press of last evening the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty" on the charge with which Martin was confronted at the opening of the court yesterday morning and immediately after this charge had been disposed of the following jury was empanelled to try the prisoner on the second indictment;—Joseph Moher, John Colins, G. H. Hunter, Fred A. Boyce, John Connelly, Thos. Forsythe, William A. Fife, Bert Allen, Samuel R. Dancey, Thomas Cooper, Thomas Flynn, David Law.

The perjury with which Martin was charged in the second case was committed in the Police Court before Police Magistrate Dumble on the 9th of July and there were two counts in the information laid against Martin on both of which the grand jury brought in a true bill. On the date referred to Martin was a witness in the case against George William Watt, who, it was alleged, supplied liquor to Martin, a blacklisted man. Martin swore on that occasion that Watt had given him no liquor on the 6th of July, as charged, and also said under oath that he was not drunk on the 6th and had drunk no intoxicating liquor except what he got from a prisoner in the police cells. Martin was arrested on the 6th and was found guilty of being drunk while on the blacklist and was serving a thirty days' sentence at the county jail in default of the payment of a fine of $20 and costs, when he was summonsed to give evidence in the Watt case.

Chief Roszel suspected Watts of having supplied Martin with the liquor with which he got drunk on the 6th and on account of that brought him down from the jail to testify against the accused. As the chief stated in his evidence, he though Martin could supply the required link in the chain of evidence against Watt, but the witness did not do so, stating that Watt did not supply him with liquor, which statement constituted one count of the indictment, and also that he was not drunk on the 6th, which statement constituted the second count.

County Crown Attorney Wood was the prosecutor, and Mr. W. A. Henderson, of Toronto, defended Martin.

CONCLUSIVE POLICE EVIDENCE.

Galley two the second charge

The first witness called by the prosecution was Police Magistrate Dumble. He said Watt was brought before him on April 9th on the charge of giving liquor to Martin, who was blacklisted. The Magistrate read over the deposition of Martin taken at the trial of Watts in which the accused stated he did not drink any liquor on the 6th of July, except what he had obtained in a police cell and further stated he was not drunk, at the time he was arrested. No liquor, either, he stated, was supplied him by Watt.

Chief Roszel remembered going into Martin's shop early in July. He got word that the prisoner was drunk and he and P. C. Newhall started out for the shop, the latter reaching there first. The chief said that Martin was on the blacklist at the time of his visit to the prisoner's shop. The witness and P. C. Newhall took the prisoner to the police station. Martin was drunk when he was arrested and the chief smelled the liquor off him, very strongly. A flask of whiskey was found in the shop.

The chief admitted that the charge against Watt of supplying Martin with liquor had been unsuccessful but he believed that Watt had supplied Martin with liquor in spite of the denial of the both of them and in spite of the fact that the magistrate did not register a conviction against Watt. As it was, the chief stated, he thought he had established a pretty strong chain of circumstantial evidence although he did not succeed in convincing the magistrate that a case had been made out against Watt.

According to P. C. Newhall, who followed the chief into the witness box, Martin was hopelessly drunk when he called at the accused's shop to arrest him. He was lying on the floor in the back of the shop sleeping soundly. The officer shook him to wake him up and he was so drunk that he sank to his knees again and had to be propped up against the wall. Martin smelled very strongly of liquor The policeman found two flasks of whiskey in the shop, one under a bundle of papers on which the prisoner's head rested as he slept, and the other nearby.

The only witness for the defence was the prisoner himself. He denied having been drunk on April 6th, the afternoon of which day he was arrested. He contradicted the Chief and P. C. Newhall in the evidence they had given. Martin said he had nothing to drink on July 6th, except a drink he had obtained from another prisoner in the cell in which he was locked up shortly after he had been arrested. He was simply having a nap in his store during the heat of the day. On the 9th of July the prisoner testified in Watt's case in which the latter was accused of having given him drink while he was blacklisted. Martin said at the time he was serving thirty days for a conviction on the charge of drunkenness. He was not told by the authorities that he need not give evidence unless he wanted to, as he was under sentence.

This was the point introduced by Mr. Henderson in his examination of the prisoner and Mr. Wood objected to the testimony being given to the jury and said it was not evidence, as the protection implied did not apply to defendants in certain charges under the Liquor License Act.

COUNSEL'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Henderson spoke of the good character of the prisoner as adduced in the evidence of the first trial at which the jurors had been in attendance as spectators. Nothing had been charged against Martin during his five years' residence in Peterborough until after he had been placed on the blacklist. He urged that Martin had been watched very closely by the police and intimated that the vigilance on the part of the police amounted almost to a persecution. The whole matter narrowed down to two points;—"Was Martin drunk on the 6th?" and "did he wilfully swear falsely to deceive the court?"

Mr. Wood in his summing up on behalf of the Crown took exception to the first of these points and said all that had to be found on the grounds to be considered in that special connection was "had the prisoner been drinking liquor on the 6th of July?" Although he denied drinking, both police officers swore that they had smelled it off his breath very strongly. Their evidence on other points was most incriminating and what object could they have in manufacturing such a story for the purpose of convicting a blacklisted man? Although Watt had not been convicted of supplying liquor to Martin—Martin having denied it—it was the opinion of the chief of police and himself that by false swearing the prisoner had defeated the ends of justice.

THE ONLY ALTERNATIVE.

His Honor said that Martin had given evidence that he had not been drinking and against this was the evidence of Chief Roszel and P. C. Newhall. The question was, whether the officers had committed perjury or whether the prisoner had.

THE VERDICT.

After a deliberation of about three quarters of an hour or so the jury returned.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked the clerk of the court.

"We have," was the reply of the foreman, John Connolly.

"Is it guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty."

Sentence was not pronounced by the judge, but will be given at the conclusion of the cases now before the court. The prisoner will be held in custody in the meantime.

The above charge was the only one tried yesterday as it occupied the attention of the court from the opening of the session in the morning at ten o'clock to the adjournment in the evening.

TURN DOWN REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

At the special meeting of the City Council last night the recommendation of the committee appointed to go into the matter that T. B. McGrath be made assessor at a salary of $600 per year, and W. H. Thompson assistant assessor at $300 per year was turned down. It was somewhat of a surprise all round as the general opinion was that the report of the committee would be adopted. The report of the Special Committee was read by Ald. McIntyre, the chairman, who moved that it be adopted. Ald. Duffus seconded the motion.

Ald. Bradburn said: "To-night is not the proper time to make the appointment. I have no objection to the men selected by the committee, but I believe the matter is one for the new Council to consider. The new council will be competent to deal with the question. Even if all the vacancies are filled with new men four or five of the present council will be on hand. Peterborough wants an industrial commissioner, and there is nothing on the statutes giving the city power to appoint one. The appointment of an assessment commissioner and of an industrial commissioner should be taken up together by the new Council." Ald. Bradburn moved in amendment that the matter be left to the council of 1910.

Ald. Duncan seconded the motion, and in doing so again expressed the opinion that it was a subject for the new Council.

Ald. McIntyre said Peterborough was not ready for an industrial commissioner. The city was not in a position to offer anything to industries that might consider coming here. There was no reason why the assessors should not be appointed.

Ald. Gillespie said Ald. Bradburn had taken a good stand. He would like to see the appointment made, as he considered Mr. McGrath and Mr. Thompson good men, but he had taken the stand ever since the question came up that it was a matter for the new council.

Ald. Morgan agreed with Ald. McIntyre regarding the industrial commission. It would take $3,000 to $5,000 a year to keep the industrial commissioner going. If power could be had for $15 per horse power it would keep a commissioner busy keeping industries out of Peterborough. He had supported the recommendation of the committee, and did so in good faith. He was not looking for votes then, he said, and he was not looking for them now. He had found, however, that there was a general feeling among the citizens to wait in this matter, and he changed his mind and intended supporting Ald. Bradburn.

Ald. Metheral said he was of the same opinion as he was at the last meeting of the Council; he thought the matter of appointing the assessors was a question for the new council.

Ald. Duffus asked what the appointment of the assessors had to do with an industrial commissioner.

Ald. Gillespie said he understood that on account of the council's not having power to appoint an industrial commissioner, the assessment commissioner acted as industrial commissioner in many places. He mentioned Toronto and Hamilton in this connection.

Ald. Bradburn's amendment carried, Aldermen Metheral, Gillespie, Bradburn, Morgan and Duncan voting for it. Aldermen Hicks, Phelan, Duffus and McIntyre voted nay.

"I hope to see Mr. McGrath get the position next year," Mayor Rush said.

KING EDWARD STREET TAKEN OVER BY CITY

Eighteen of the Twenty Feet Reserved by Mr. Dumble Goes to City at End of Twenty Years

King Edward street was taken over by the City Council last night, but the terms are slightly different from those proposed when the question first came up. Mr. D. W. Dumble, who is giving the land for the street, wished to retain twenty feet on the south side, but he gave an undertaking that it would never be built upon, but on the contrary that it would be kept as a park with grass and trees upon it. With the twenty feet reserved, the street proper would only be forty-six feet in width. This was not satisfactory to a number of the aldermen, and at the meeting of the Board of Works last night a slight change was made and the matter was settled to the satisfaction of all. Mr. Dumble was present at the meeting, and after some discussion agreed to the proposition that, at the end of twenty years, eighteen feet of the twenty feet reserved, should become the property of the city out and out. Mr. Dumble was willing that the whole twenty feet should go to the city at the end of twenty years, but the aldermen were of the opinion that the eighteen feet would be enough. The property on the south side of the street belongs to ex-Mayor Best. As a result of the strip of property reserved by Mr. Dumble, Mr. Best will not be able to make use of the street. The recommendation of the Board of Works was adopted by the council, and a by-law was passed taking over the street.

Mr. Dumble outlined his position to the Board of Works. He said he was making a gift of the street to the city, and as he wished to have the plan registered, he saw no reason why it should not be accepted. He was giving an undertaking that the strip reserved would never be built upon, and considered the arrangement a very fair one.

Ald. Duncan said he understood that there was a by-law which prevented the city taking over a street unless it were fifty feet wide.

The city clerk said that a resolution had been passed by the council several years ago against the city taking over a street less than sixty-six feet wide.

Ald. Bradburn proposed to Mr. Dumble that at the end of a period of fifteen or twenty years the strip of land reserved pass into the hands of the city.

Mr. Dumble said the land he was reserving would be maintained as a small park. "It looks as if you were looking a gift horse in the mouth," he said.

Ald. Bradburn saw no reason why twenty feet should be reserved when two feet would serve the purpose just as well.

"I'm not asking any favors," Mr. Dumble said.
twenty years from now," he said.

After some discussion Ald. Bradburn proposed the agreement referred to above, and Mr. Dumble consented to it.

"It won't make any difference to me
All the members of the Board were agreeable and the question was settled.

JUSTICE, NOT CHIVALRY, IS WHAT WORKING GIRLS WANT FROM THE MEN

Miss Rose Schneiderman.

OPTIMISMS OF A GIRL STRIKE PICKET AND ORGANIZER.

Mr. M. J. Quinlan, formerly of the staff of the Dominion Bank, Brampton, has been transferred to London.

We don't expect chivalry from the men—we ask equality.

Work doesn't harm a girl, it only strengthens her.

Each of us has ten fingers to sell, and we want the highest price.

We don't get enough to live on nor quite little enough to starve to death on.

Every girl dreams of a happy marriage, which inspires her to keep on struggling.

We can't afford divorce on the east side. We have more serious problems in life.

Its poor economy to waste the girlhood of the race and expect them to be the mothers of our future men.

There are 250,000 girls on the east side who are fighting for a better race, happier homes, healthier children.

"Every working girl of the 250,000 or more on the great east side has ten fingers to sell, and she owes it to the future race to get the highest market price."

This is the tabloid philosophy of the solution of the labor problem from a feminine viewpoint, according to Miss Rose Schneiderman, of No. 57 Second avenue, who is a union organizer, active worker, and frequently a picket on the battle line in the strike that is now in progress among the 40,000 shirtwaist employees.

"The girl of the present is the mother of the future race," Miss Schneiderman declared to-day to a reporter for the Evening Telegram. We want that race to be fine and strong and healthy, with high ideals. In the past laws have failed us, and now we propose to be a law unto ourselves.

"I tell you that it is poor economy to waste the girlhood of our young women in keeping them in factories for long hours at pay that is wholly inadequate. How can we expect them to be mothers for our future men?

STRIKES NOT BEST REMEDY.

"Striking isn't always the best remedy for such conditions. It's a serious thing to be cut off from employment, especially without an organisation behind you. But with co-operation we don't have to wait for the law to come to our rescue. We can pry ourselves out of the unwholesome conditions that now exist and gradually reach a finer plane of living, where nobler ideals may be given an opportunity to develop.

The average time a girl works in a factory is ten years. Is it any wonder that a decade at ten or twelve hours a day, with poor food and poor sanitary conditions, shatters health and nerves?

"If it wasn't for the dream that every girl has of getting out of this state by marriage, I don't know what would become of many of them. The pitiful thing about that is so many wives come back to the same factory where they worked as girls, now to help support a husband and two or three children. They marry young down here to escape industrial slavery, but frequently their lot becomes harder than before.

"Unlike the wealthy, we can't afford divorces. We have more serious troubles. When I think," declared Miss Schneiderman, with flashing eyes, "what a great race the mass of humanity here might be if conditions did not bear them down, I am encouraged to fight harder than ever to win our battles.

"Charity doesn't eradicate the evils that afflict us. We must learn to help ourselves. The working woman must get the highest price for her labor. That can be done only by collective bargaining.

"We don't seek to escape work. It doesn't do any girl a bit of harm to labor in a factory, provided she gets adequate pay and hours. It makes a better wife of her to experience herself the working conditions with which her future husband has to contend. A girl's wage is so small as a rule that she has to live in a tiny room without air. Or if she lives at home, she shares a room with another. The family wage combined doesn't supply enough to live on properly, but not quite little enough to starve to death on.

TRAINING AS VOTERS.

"The girl who joins a union is permitted to vote at all the meetings. This is a preliminary training for the real voting that she will do later on. You will notice that all labor organisations are in favor of giving the woman the ballot.

"Girls work side by side with men and don't expect chivalry and don't get it. We're just human workers in the great hive of industry. We don't want any favors. We only want equality and justice.

"When our battles are all won I am confident that we shall have a better and a happier race, with healthier children. Men and women workers are brought into closer social relations through the medium of unionism, which is another thing in its favor. Among the unorganized it is rare to find any real companionship. In the majority of shops a girl is simply a piece of mechanism, worth so much to the employer.

"She is given a number and she may work beside another human being for weeks and never know the other's name. Let us awake to the fact that we are beings with souls as well as bodies. When the six o'clock whistle blows at evening, and these endless waves of humanity pour through the hundreds of streets on the east side, each person going to his or her poor home, where want grips and idealism is crushed, seemingly never again to rise, is it any wonder that the heart throbs anew with keen resolve to fight on, fight ever, to bring about the real brotherhood of man!"

MUST PAY FOR THE HORSE HE GOT FROM PLAINTIFFS

Judgment for the plaintiff was given by the jury in the case of W. H. Rose and W. T. Carruthers vs. Harry Mitchell. The case arose over the sale of a horse by the plaintiffs to the defendant last August. The defendant bought the horse, and next day found that it was not suitable for the work he had to do and he wished to return it. The plaintiff refused to accept it, claiming that Mitchell had inspected the animal before he bought it, and was satisfied.

The argument for the defence was that the sale was not binding until the horse was inspected the next day. Mitchell refused to pay for it on those grounds.

The horse was sold in November at auction by Mr. John Haggart, through an order from the court, and $101 was realized for it. This money, less the costs, amounting to $95, was paid into court.

The jury held that the defendant when he bought the horse, had committed himself to the sale and therefore should pay. Their verdict was for the plaintiffs for the full amount, viz., $145 and costs. Defendant Mitchell will therefore have to pay $50 and costs.

The case occupied the full day at the December sessions and was only concluded before the court adjourned last night. Messrs. E. L. Goodwill appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. R. F. McWilliams for the defendant.

GOING TO BE SQUABBLE OVER NORTHERN OUTLET OF CANAL

Orillia Newspaper Favors the Severn River Route—Barrie is Making a Fight for the Outlet on the Nottawasaga—Some of the Arguments.

The Orillia News-Letter says:—Mr. Haughton Lennox, M. P., is again stirring up the question of the northern outlet of the Trent Valley canal. He has brought up the subject in the House of Commons, and has suggested to the Barrie Town Council that a deputation should be sent to Ottawa to advocate the Nottawasaga route.

Much as it is to be deplored from the standpoint of the early completion of this useful public work, it is evident that we cannot escape an agitation over the northern outlet similar to that which caused so much delay at the southern end. The case for the alternative route at this end is even weaker and more hopeless than Port Hope's plea to be made the southern gateway. Nature has provided an outlet for the waters of lakes Simcoe and Couchiching, and for the canal, by way of the Severn River. The The Severn is a fine, broad stream, navigable, or easily made so, for boats of the craft to be used on the canal for its entire length, except for the three or four rapids where locks would be required in any case. The river has high, rocky banks, and steamers would be able to ply at full speed without doing damage to the sides. It enters the great lakes in the comparative shelter of Matchedash Bay, and within easy reach of the three great grain harbors of the future—Midland, Tiffin and Victoria Harbor. The canalizing of the river would open up one of the most picturesque and attractive summer resort sections in the country. It would also be possible, at comparatively slight cost, to give the whole Muskoka region the benefit of water communication with the outside world, by a short branch canal running through Morrison and Leg Lakes.

As against these natural advantages the case for the Nottawasaga route is absurdely weak. To begin with, it will be necessary either to have vessels locked over the height of land dividing Lake Simcoe from the Georgian Bay, or to make a monstrously deep cutting through the hill. For the former purpose, there is, we understand, none too much water available. A large amount of excavating would be necessary. While this is through sand, that very fact would necessitate either the lining of the banks with stone, or a considerable annual expense for upkeep. Vessels would have to reduce their speed to not more than four miles an hour in running through these long sand-cuttings. Rock excavation comes higher in the first place but is more satisfactory in the end. Nottawasaga river also runs through sand for a considerable part of its length, and is not to be compared with the Severn in any regard. Judging from appearances, it has not more than a third, and certainly not more than half the flow of water. It empties out on the most exposed and dangerous shore on the Georgian Bay —with shallow water and shifting sand stretching far out from the shore. The adoption of the route would involve the building of a town and harbor at the mouth of the river. Collingwood harbor is not adapted to handling the grain trade on a large scale, and never will be, no matter how much money may be spent on it. Besides, the barges engaged in the canal trade would often find the run across the open bay from the Nottawasaga to that place both difficult and dangerous. This exposure to the open lake was one of the chief arguments against the adoption of Port Hope for the southern harbor.

The one excuse for proposing the Nottawasaga route is that the canal will afford much needed drainage to a large tract of land in that vicinity. But this is a merely local consideration which should not be given weight, as against the primary objects for which the work is being undertaken. The case in favor of the Severn route is so strong that it seems almost waste of energy to urge it. But with the Newmarket Canal as an object lesson, it does not do to despise the force of political influence. We should have preferred to have the whole question of the northern outlet of the canal settled on its merits from an an engineering and commercial standpoint. As we have said before, it appears to us that the people of Barrie are making a mistake in forcing an issue on the Nottawasaga route. If they had not, at the last moment, thrown this bone of contention into the arena, we should probably, by this time, have had the northern end of the canal pretty well completed, if not open to the bay.

BOYS' CABINET OF Y. M. C. A. TO HOLD TWO DAYS' CAMPAIGN

At the regular meeting of the Cabinet of the Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon, it was unanimously decided, after having secured the approval of the Board of Directors to carry on a two days' campaign, between Christmas and New Year, for the purpose of raising $250 in cash for redecorating and refurnishing the boys' rooms on the second floor of the Association building. The boys will solicit the aid of their numerous friends in the city, but it is understood that no one who is now a subscriber to the funds of the Association will be asked to help the boys in this campaign, unless it be some of the boys' own personal friends. The boys are alive to the work of the Association, and realize the necessity of having their department so attractive that every boy in the city between the ages of 12 and 17 will desire to be a member and participate in the activities of the department. At the present time the boys have a good library and well-equipped reading room, as far as magazines and papers are concerned, but their game-room is not as attractive as it should be.

Several of the boys are taking a training class for teaching the Bible, and after the New Year several classes will be organised, to be taught by the older boys, and any boy who is a member of the department, and is not a member of some Bible study club, will wake up some day to discover that he is out of it, so far as the activities of the Association are concerned.

The boys are most enthusiastic over their campaign, and are already making detailed plans in connection with it. They have no doubt that their success in this particular undertaking is already secured, and it will be a surprise if they do not far exceed the amount they intend to raise.

Ernest Weaver Given a Hearing This Morning—Is Charged With Securing Liquor for Indian

Ernest Weaver was given a hearing at the police court this morning, but Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment till to-morrow morning. The Indian, Robert Tobbicco, to whom Weaver is charged with having given liquor on Saturday, September 26, 1908, was present and gave evidence.

It will be remembered that some time ago Weaver came to the city and gave himself up to the authorities, but the case has been unable to be proceeded with owing to the absence of Tobbico.

Mr. A. P. Poussette, K.C., appeared for Weaver.

He was first called this morning and told of his movements during the day, and of giving Weaver the money with which to buy a flask of whiskey.

Weaver, next called, stated that Tobbico and he came from Hiawatha to the city with two loads of straw for Wellington Cow.

Both were paid after the straw was unloaded, Tobbico receiving $1.00 and himself $3.00. He was given $1.00 by Tobbico and asked to purchase a pair of socks. They parted company shortly after and that was the last he saw of the Indian. He purchased a flask of whiskey for himself and his father for the return trip.

Wellington Cow remembered the Saturday mentioned. Both the Indian and Weaver became drunk, but he couldn't say anything about the former having bought any liquor for Tobicco.

John Weaver, father of the prisoner, said he took his son from a barroom on the above mentioned Saturday afternoon. He was intoxicated and had to be assisted into the waggon. He then had a flask of whiskey in his inside pocket. Tobbico was in another waggon and was drunk.

When he (witness) returned from getting some parcels both Tobbico and the flask from his son's pocket had disappeared.

Robert Tobbico, recalled, denied having taken the whiskey from Weaver's pocket.

Mr. Poussette's contention was that the Indian had met a number of his friends and had received the liquor on the way.

KING OF BELGIUM HAS PASSED AWAY

Aged Monarch's Plucky But Unavailing Fight Ended at 2.35 O'Clock This Morning — Was Apparently Making Satisfactory Progress to Recovery, But the End Came Unexpectedly.

Brussels, Friday, Dec. 17.— King Leopold died at 2.25 o'clock this morning. The collapse occurred suddenly, and at a moment when the doctors seemingly had had the greatest hopes for his recovery.

Throughout yesterday bulletins issued from the sick room indicated progressive improvements. The bulletin posted at 6.30 p.m. gave the King's temperature, pulse and respiration as practically normal, and during the day the King had been able to take nourishment.

The public at large was satisfied that the King was on the road to recovery, but within the pavilion where the King lay there was a feeling of anxiety, chiefly because of Leopold's great age. After a restful day, the patient was able to sleep for a brief period early in the evening and the night passed quietly, until 2 o'clock, when alarming symptoms appeared. Suddenly the King turned and called to Dr. Thiriar: "J'etouffe, docteur, j'etouffe" (I am suffering).

Dr. Depage was summoned and the two physicians did everything possible to prolong life, but without avail. The end came quickly, and after a spell of weakness, peacefully. Prince Albert arrived at the deathbed about 25 minutes later. He was accompanied by Princess Clementine. Albert kissed the dead king and left the chamber weeping. Baron Goffinet, the King's secretary started immediately for Brussels to notify the members of the royal family.

It appears that the doctors were totally unprepared for such a fatal termination. It was a nun, acting as a nurse, who first noticed the heavy breathing of the King. She called Dr. Thirar to the bedside. Both Drs. Thirar and Depage resorted to injections or morphine, but these had no effect.

KING LEOPOLD. of BELGIUM

Shortly after the end had come the Ministers were notified, the first official to arrive in the death-chamber being the royal chaplain. The Ministers remained in the chamber for a considerable time, discussing the sudden death and matters of State in subdued tones.

NAVAL DEFENCE

Toronto News.

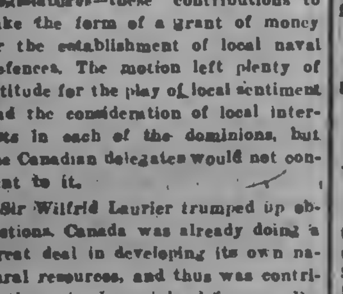
The Government has postponed the announcement of its naval programme, and the hope has been expressed that the delay indicates a determination on the part of the Administration to amend its policy in keeping with the needs of the situation. It is sincerely to be hoped that the Cabinet has decided to build at least one or two ships that will be of some value in the day of trouble. So far Sir Wilfrid Laurier's deeds have fallen far short of his words. He talks of the responsibilities of Canadians to the Empire, but when the situation has demanded prompt decision and adequate contributions, he has shown himself sadly wanting.

At the Colonial Conference of 1907, the Prime Minister and Mr. Brodeur urged that Canada's expenditure on fisheries' cruisers on the sea-coast and on the Great Lakes should be accounted to us for righteousness—that they should be regarded as contributions towards Imperial naval defence. A South African delegate objected that Cape Colony, Natal and other portions of the Empire would not think of off-setting their outlay on fisheries protection against their legitimate obligations for Imperial defence. Thus were the people of the Dominion made to appear mean-spirited in the presence of the delegates from the other Five Nations.

At the same Conference Dr. Smartt, of Cape Colony, moved a resolution declaring that the Younger Britains should make such contributions as should be determined by their local Legislatures—these contributions to take the form of a grant of money or the establishment of local naval defences. The motion left plenty of latitude for the play of local sentiment and the consideration of local interests in each of the dominions, but the Canadian delegates would not consent to it.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier trumped up objections. Canada was already doing a great deal in developing its own natural resources, and thus was contributing to Imperial defence. Dr. Smartt again replied that the other colonies also were undertaking great public works to open up their own territories. But these, like those of Canada, were reproductive, and should not deter them from sharing properly in their own defence. Sir Joseph Ward of New Zealand, and Mr. Deakin, of Australia, made it evident that, like Dr. Smart, they would favor the resolution, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier remarked, apparently somewhat testily, that he had said all he intended to say on the subject, and that he would vote against the resolution if it were pressed. Thus did the Canadian Prime Minister deliberately block a movement on the part of the other outlying British States to share in a reasonable scheme of defence.

When last winter it was proposed to hold an Imperial Defence Conference in London, Sir Wilfrid Laurier consented with evident reluctance that Sir Frederick Borden and Mr. Brodeur should attend. Finally we have the Government's proposal to put a few vessels on either coast of such a class as would prove of little value in time of war. In refusing the advice of the British Admiralty, the Prime Minister is true to his apparently life-long determination to do nothing, or only so much as he is forced to do towards strengthening the defensive forces of the Empire. But there is yet time for a change of heart and for the adoption of such a naval programme as will enable Canadians to look the citizens of the rest of the Empire in the face.



EDITORIAL NOTES

The T. A. S. celebrates its tenth anniversary on January 10th, in the Opera House. It has done a truly wonderful work.

Fielding fools the farmer, or thinks he does. An estimated surplus for next year of sixteen or eighteen millions! But look at the addition to the debt. Is there no "balm in Gilead?"

Wireless telephony depends upon the height of the speaker. It takes an additional foot of height for every mile of distance. And thus is Stentor outdone.

This is the season of the year when demure maids and crusty old bachelors blossom out into "family men" and women. Their popularity with their young relatives becomes almost excessive. And how they really do enjoy it!

"According to advices brought by the Monteagle to-day, factory owners of Japan, who employ 742,000 hands, of whom 392,000 are women and a big percentage children, are excited over factory laws to be brought down the session of the Diet, a draft of which, considered generally in 1906 and brought forward in 1902, but dropped, has been issued. The law will provide against employment of children under 12 years, but those above 10 now employed may be permitted to continue Workers under 16 and females may not be worked more than twelve hours a day, and must be given two days' rest each month. In days of ten hours an hour's rest must be given. Protests are being made by match and glass factory owners, whose employees number mostly children, the Osaka glass factories having 1,250 children under twelve among 4,115 employees."—Montreal Gazette.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

JOSS PAPER.

The Way This Popular Chinese Material Is Manufactured.

The principle districts in the Yangtse valley in China in which the manufacture of joss paper is carried on, Soashing, Ningpo, Hangtschau and Futschau, lie to the south of Shanghai. Young bamboo trunks are placed in ditches in layers with a covering of lime between them. The ditches are sometimes as large as thirty feet wide and ninety feet long. Water is poured over the mass and the contents allowed to remain until the trunks have rotted, which sometimes takes as long as three months.

After the limewater has been drawn off the mass is placed in a ditch provided with stirrers, where it is washed. The reduction to fibers takes place in mills drawn by buffaloes. After a second washing the material is ready for the mold of the papermaker. In China as well as in Japan the mold consists of fine bamboo sticks. For this reason the paper is always ribbed.

The product is squeezed in wedge presses, dried on a board and then covered with tin. The pulverised metal is strewn over the sheets and hammered between the sheets with hammers of soft wood. The chief difficulty lies in this hammering, and in spite of the thinness of the paper the Chinese attain a shining surface of tin. The paper is packed in bales of 5,000 or 8,200 sheets.

THE HARDY ANGORA.

Great Brush and Weed Eater and Costs Little to Keep.

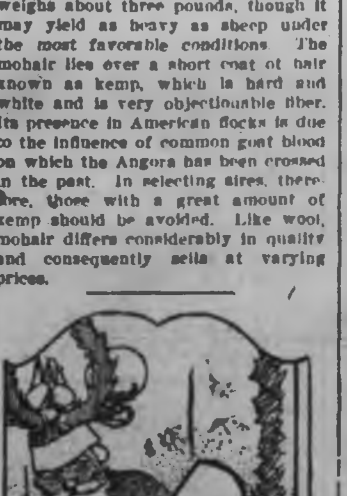
Every farmer who has brush and weeds should have a bunch of goats, as there is no vegetation which they will eat in preference to the leaves and twigs of all kinds of bushes, says a successful Iowa breeder of Angoras. A patch of brushwood which may be so dense that a man cannot get through it may soon be converted into an open wood lot if Angoras are kept on it for a season or two. They will often strip saplings to a height of five feet.

While the sheep is a natural grazer, the goat is a browser. Goats may be kept in pastures with sheep, cattle and horses and are in no way obnoxious to any of these animals. On the other hand, a few of them in a flock of sheep are a protection against dogs and wolves. They do well in practically any section of the corn belt and seem to be able to stand extreme heat as well as extreme cold. They are also less expensive to keep than sheep.

A CHAMPION ANGORA.

In commenting on the Angora goat in his book on "Types and Breeds of Farm Animals" Professor Plumb states that they range in weight from 60 to 100 pounds, although some are found that weigh considerably more, especially if fat. Their value as mutton producers is not regarded commercially as very important. The flesh of the fat young Angora makes excellent mutton. However, as a rule, nothing but mature stock finds its way to the market, as even the wethers are commonly shorn for several years before being fattened. The browsing of the Angora gives to the meat a gamey flavor, regarding the excellence of which there is a difference of opinion.

The fleece of the Angora goat is commonly known as mohair and is somewhat coarser than fine wool, but is longer and stronger. An average fleece weighs about three pounds, though it may yield as heavy as sheep under the most favorable conditions. The mohair lies over a short coat of hair known as kemp, which is hard and white and is very objectionable fiber. Its presence in American flocks is due to the influence of common goat blood on which the Angora has been crossed in the past. In selecting sires, therefore, those with a great amount of kemp should be avoided. Like wool, mohair differs considerably in quality and consequently sells at varying prices.



TRAINING A SHEEP DOG.

The First Essential Is to Teach Him to Love You.

If there is anything that a shepherd needs help about it is training a sheep dog, says Professor Arbuckle in the American Sheep Breeder.

You want your dog to come to you as a pup not over two months old, as you want him to know no other master than yourself. At two months he will learn his name and pick up simple lessons. It will be well for him to go where the sheep are, but you must not try to teach him to herd them, nor must you let a ewe with a lamb get close enough to make a pass at him. He must not be frightened with sheep.

The first lesson is to teach him to love you. This is easy, if you are gentle with him and will pet him frequently, for the collie loves a caress as much as he does his breakfast. Give him a short name and use it often. Speak it softly with the caress and harsh with a rebuke. Whenever you approach his yard or kennel call him to you by saying "Come." You may accompany this with his name or with a whistle, and you must be careful to give him the same whistle always. This is his next lesson. He will soon learn this, and soon you will have the most difficult lesson of all to give. This is to teach him to obey. When you say "Come" he must come to you, and he must know that he is compelled to come whether he desires to do so or not.

TWO-YEAR-OLD COLLIE SHEEP DOG.

Just here you and your pup will have your first battle, and if the victory is yours you are well on the way to successful training. If he refuses to come, go after him and bring him to you, caressing him for some time. Then try it over again. Never let him feel that he is having his way, but avoid making a clear issue with him yet, for he must know punishment first, and you must know what form of punishment will suit the individual dog best.

Some day, after you have taught him what "Come" means, he will deliberately run from you just to test you. Keep your patience now and be willing to take two or three hours off just here. It is worth it. Try as before to bring him by caressing, but he is likely to set his head on disobedience, so you must punish him.

Auto Dairymen.

There was a dairymen's convention recently that brought to Chicago milk producers from the five states immediately tributary to the great Elgin and Wisconsin creamery districts. Of those attending 112 were asked as to the use and value of the automobile to them.

Thirty-eight of them own automobiles and use them constantly in business. Eleven own more than one. They are used in marketing butter fats mainly, but seven used the power to operate separators, one to flush his dairy barn, another to operate his bottle washer.

The roads in the creamery district are better than the average country roads, and the automobile most used is a late type, with a tonneau that can be removed, leaving a flat platform for freight.

Contagious and Fatal.

Anthrax is a contagious and fatal disease. An animal so afflicted may, without having shown any sign of disease, drop down in the pasture and die in convulsions in a very short time, or an animal may be apparently well at night and be found dead in the morning. It stops feeding or ruminating a few hours before death. It is then taken with chills and fever, and if its temperature be taken it will be found to be exceedingly high. The treatment for anthrax is useless. The only thing to do is to prevent the balance of the herd from becoming affected. This is done by vaccinating them and injecting vaccine under the skin with a hypodermic syringe, the results of which are very good.—Dr. David Roberts.

Profit From Sows.

If there is a more profitable breeding animal on a farm than a good sow I have not found it, says a writer in the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago. She has not the habits or makeup to interest all stockmen. So long as the world cannot be fed without pork the sow and her product will be objects of interest to the farming world.

It is a sad commentary on the methods of swine growers that 50 per cent or more of pigs farrowed perish in infancy. It is not reasonable to suppose such a cutting down of the legitimate profits of the business is necessary. Like too many other losses in stock growing, it is largely preventable.

Alfalfa For Sheep.

Alfalfa and sheep go together just as naturally as ducks and water. Alfalfa as a feed has proved beyond doubt that it is far ahead of any other roughage for sheep. All over the west alfalfa is an indispensable factor in winter feeding, and so well do sheep thrive on it that eastern farmers are taking it up after waiting fifty years for the west to set the pace.

MOURNING ETIQUETTE.

Correct Observances When There Is a Death In the Family.

Under no conditions should observance of etiquette be omitted at the time of a death in the family of a friend, for persons in bereavement are particularly sensitive, and a slight indication of remembrance will prevent hurt feelings.

Immediately on hearing of the death one of two things may be done. If the acquaintance is a formal one it is sufficient to leave a visiting card at the door or to mail one so that it will be received without delay. Nothing need be written, although there are persons who make a point of putting the word "Condolences" above the name. In either case the card is put into a small envelope and addressed with the name of the husband and wife in the case of the bereaved woman being married or to the woman alone should she be a spinster.

If there are more than two women in the family, as two or three sisters, the envelope should have the address of "The Misses Smith," for example. The persons are not asked for, the card literally being left.

If the acquaintance is an informal one it is customary to write a note as soon as the bereavement is known. It is intended that sympathy and remembrance shall be conveyed, and it is not necessary that the communication shall be long. Such a note might read:

> My Dear Mrs. Smith—We are distressed to hear of the sad loss you are going through, and both Mr. Brown and myself wish so much we might lighten the burden that has fallen. Our associations with your sister (or brother or mother) were so pleasant that we feel a personal grief and realise something of what you are going through.
>
> Believe me, with deepest sympathy.
> MARY ELLEN BROWN.

If, with the publication of the death notice, there is a request that flowers shall not be sent the wish should be scrupulously observed, no matter how strongly one is tempted to disregard it. To send flowers to the living at such a time is a charming act and shows special thought. If they may also go for the funeral they should not be sent until the day set for the funeral. Any kind is considered suitable, and a visiting card must always go with them. Nothing should be written on the card.

As it is expected that such tokens shall be acknowledged later, the services of an intimate friend may be called into use at that time. Orders should be given that all flowers brought must be taken to one person, who opens them, saving the cards. These are kept together and given over later into the hands of her who is to acknowledge their receipt. Only by adopting this method can confusion be avoided.

Within a few weeks of the funeral those in bereavement must acknowledge all cards, flowers and notes. When one can afford to have an engraved form the replies are, of course, simplified. When they cannot it is permissible to take one's visiting card and write below the name, "Sincere thanks for the sympathetic thoughts."

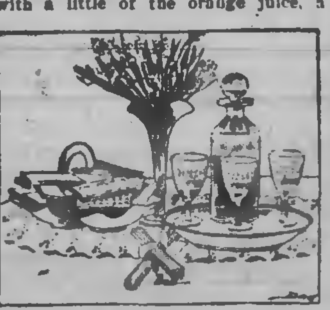
Grape Juice Cocktails.

Put into each glass three large sliced strawberries when in season or preserved when ripe fruit is not obtainable, a tablespoonful of orange pulp with a little of the orange juice, a teaspoonful of small pieces of bananas, peaches, cherries, white grapes and any other fruit that is at hand; sprinkle in a tablespoonful of sugar and fill the glass with grape juice.



GRAPE JUICE COCKTAILS.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

One-half cupful of black coffee containing a tablespoonful of lemon juice will often cure sick headache.

A glassful of lemonade without sugar in which one-fourth of a teaspoonful of soda is dissolved will often cure bilious headache.

Henna stain is said to be harmless. It will cause brown hair to take on slightly auburn tints. Make a strong brew of the dried leaves and apply both liquid and paste, washing the hair before the application and again afterward.

Stretching exercises of the throat and neck will reduce a double chin permanently. Hold the chin as far up as it will go and with your finger tips massage it with a downward motion. Pushing the lower jaw in and out is also good. Once or twice a week is often enough for such heroic treatment.

The girl with unequal hips, the commonest of afflictions, may cure them if the inequality be not too far advanced by a ten minute exercise daily. Bring the knee on the larger side up to the chest and lower it again, all the while standing as nearly erect as possible. Do this twenty or thirty times each day.

A physician says that he knows of many persons who have taken sea voyages and avoided the usual seasickness by eating freely of salt mackerel, dried salt fish or dried beef. One of the greatest human comforts to the voyager known as the thin blooded creature, always cold on a steamer, is to have flannel foot warmers, also a blanket kimono to put on over the night clothes at night, when cold is so noticeable. Those who are not seasick are often sick from the cold.

Should the eyes feel heavy they may often be freshened by bathing with weak salt water, either hot or cold. This can do no harm and by relieving strained conditions will frequently improve the luster. One woman says she has used a little orange juice in her eyes for years without injuring them. A few drops are inserted in the eye with a dropper. After the first smart the eyes are brighter and clearer. As this might be injurious to other women, though not harmful in itself, it should not be used without the advice of a physician.

Same Old Story.

In Russia they take it for granted that a woman can't keep a secret from her husband. If a woman is employed in the postal telegraph service there she is forbidden to marry outside that department, the theory being that she would tell her husband the contents of the telegrams.

STEAD'S SPOOK BUREAU

ENGLISH JOURNALIST TELLS OF AMAZING MESSAGE.

Dead Aviator Named Lefebvre Comes to Him and Tells Him to Warn M. Bolotoff Not to Use a Defective Motor—Relatives of Dead Man Are Incensed at Stead For Hurting Their Feelings.

A widespread sensation, not limited to spiritualistic circles, has been caused by the extraordinary story told to The Paris Matin by W. T. Stead, the well-known London journalist, in which he reports a conversation he held on Sept. 16 with the spirit of the French aviator, Lefebvre, who was killed recently in an aeroplane accident. The practical outcome of the spirit's communication was to prevent the Russian aviator, M. Bolotoff, to whom Mr. Stead conveyed Lefebvre's warning, from making an aeroplane ascent at Chalons with a motor which, according to the spirit, would fail to work at the critical moment.

The relatives of Lefebvre, through the mouthpiece of Lefebvre's former employer, the engineer, Lambert, are protesting against the publication of Mr. Stead's article as unfair to the memory of the late aviator and "the outrage by a tactless Englishman upon the feelings of mourners."

Altogether, the elements of a very pretty quarrel have been created by Mr. Stead's amazing tale, which is being discussed with equal passion by aviators, spiritualists and critics of manners.

Mr. Stead, it must be explained, founded some months ago at Torbray House, in the Strand, London, a kind of spiritualistic exchange presided over by a spirit named Julia, who is as eager as is Mr. Stead himself to bring living persons into communication with their departed friends and relatives and build a bridge across the borderland between this world and the next.

The members of this spirit exchange meet every morning at 10 o'clock, with "Julia" in the chair, but she is visible only to the mediums present.

Mr. Stead relates that on Sept. 15 last he had been asked by the Princess Wiasemsky to accompany her on a tour to Melon Le Grand, near Chalons, to witness the experiments which her son was going to make with an aeroplane on the following Monday. On Sept. 16, after receiving two brief communications from "Julia," the clairvoyant employed at the exchange said he heard another voice speaking. Mr. Stead enquired who it was, and the answer came:

"I have been dead for some time. Mr. name is Lefebvre."

Mr. Stead, who had been abroad at the time of the fatal accident to Lefebvre, did not recognise the name, which was equally unknown to all the others members of the circle.

Mr. Stead then enquired of the spirit whether it knew Bolotoff's aeroplane.

"Yes," was the reply, "and tell the young man not to be too rash. I do not think there will be an accident, but the motor should be carefully tested. Do not go up yourself. I shall be at Chalons with you, for I write on the subject through your interceding spirit."

In reply to Mr. Stead's questions he said he did not know Bolotoff, but had met him and gave his former profession as a mechanician. On the following day Lefebvre's spirit, with the assistance of "Julia," described to Mr. Stead the accident which had proved fatal to him. He experienced, he said, a sense of falling, but lost consciousness before reaching the ground. He felt no pain or physical discomfort, but it seemed to him that his spirit was projected outward. He had the sensation of rapid rotation, then something seemed to yield, and he found himself in the air looking down upon his own corpse and the smashed aeroplane lying on the ground below. It was not disagreeable. He was aware of the presence of a very powerful being, who calmed him and who desired to write by Stead's hand.

Mr. Stead telephoned the spirit's warning to Bolotoff, who promised to be cautious. The motor which Bolotoff was using was well tried. It was a four-cylinder Panhard, which seemed incapable of breaking down, he thought. But when he mounted in the machine the motor absolutely refused to work. The starting crank broke and the experiments had to be abandoned.

"The Matin" publishes a telegram from M. Colliex, at Chalons, who was Bolotoff's assistant during the abovementioned experiments, and he declares that not only did the crank refuse to work, but the magneto suddenly returned to its position of maximum advance, with the result that he narrowly escaped serious injury to his arm. He tested the apparatus and discovered that it could not have done this by itself. Lefebvre's family question the truth of Stead's story on the ground that a spirit would certainly have sent messages to relatives rather than to Bolotoff, whom he had hardly known; that in life Lefebvre was not a mere mechanician, but a qualified engineer; that he could not have said he spoke very little English, for he spoke none at all, and furthermore, Lefebvre being "incapable of fear," could not have lost consciousness at the beginning of his fall.

A Losing Business.

"He sold the mules to buy the automobile."

"Oh, yes."

"And it proved a losing business, for every day or two he has to hire the mules to pull the automobile out of the ditch."

Oak Trees.

Oak trees live 1,500 years, and the wood and bark of a single tree at times sell for as much as $3,000.

CONCERNING THE CAMEL.

Queer Looking Beast of Burden Stores Fat In Its Hump.

The camel eats readily all kinds of juicy plants, beans, peas and grains, but when such dainty food is not to be had he browses quite contentedly on dry, thorny shrubs and even swallows whole branches of acacia, whose thorns are sharp enough to pierce the sole of a strong boot. During the rainy season, when fresh, green vegetation is abundant, the camel drivers encourage their charges to eat as much as possible, and it is said that in order to increase their appetites common salt is dissolved in the drinking troughs. Under such treatment the camel rapidly accumulates fat, and the hump, which contains his reserve store, may increase to four or five times the dimensions it had during the hot season. When drought is prolonged and food is scarce the hump may almost disappear again.

The foot of the camel is two toed, but the toes are joined together by a large cushion covered with more or less callous skin. It is this cushion which enables the camel to walk steadily across loose and shifting sands where a horse's hoofs would sink deep at every step. The average speed of a baggage camel is about two and a half miles an hour, and its load varies from 300 to 800 pounds. A dromedary may travel at the rate of ten miles an hour, and this rate may be kept up for many days.—Golden Rule.

TINKLING COWBELLS.

Time Honored Musical Instrument Needs No Improvement.

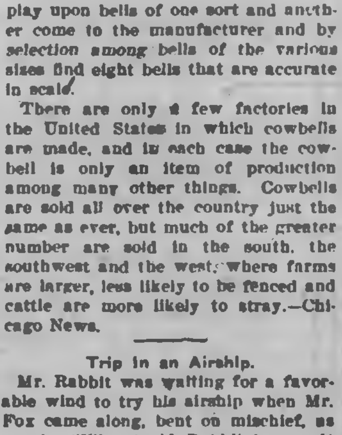
One of the comparatively few things that the hand of improvement has not touched is the cowbell, which is made now just as it was a hundred years ago. Cowbells are made some of copper and some of a composition metal, but most of them are made of iron and finished with a coating of bronze.

The cowbell is not cast. It is cut from a sheet of metal, which is folded into shape and riveted. The metal loop at the top through which the strap is passed is riveted into the bell. The bells are made of ten sizes, whose sounds range through an octave. Sometimes musical entertainers who play upon bells of one sort and another come to the manufacturer and by selection among bells of the various sizes find eight bells that are accurate in scale.

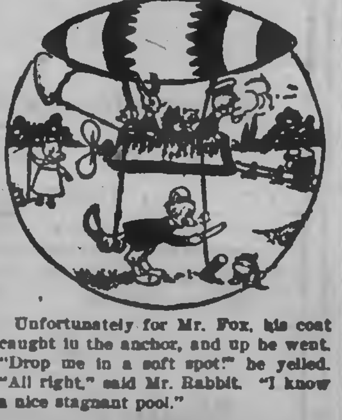
There are only a few factories in the United States in which cowbells are made, and in each case the cowbell is only an item of production among many other things. Cowbells are sold all over the country just the same as ever, but much of the greater number are sold in the south, the southwest and the west, where farms are larger, less likely to be fenced and cattle are more likely to stray.—Chicago News.

Trip In an Airship.

Mr. Rabbit was waiting for a favorable wind to try his airship when Mr. Fox came along, bent on mischief, as usual. "I'll cut old Rabbit loose. It will surprise him," he said.



Unfortunately for Mr. Fox, his coat caught in the anchor, and up he went. "Drop me in a soft spot!" he yelled. "All right," said Mr. Rabbit. "I know a nice stagnant pool."



"Is that soft enough?" said Mr. Rabbit as they sailed merrily away, leaving Mr. Fox in the horrid, muddy pool.

In Topsy Turvy China.

To the United States and European countries it is considered extremely rude for one person to ask another personal questions unless, indeed, the two are on terms of intimacy. But in China, where so many things seem topsy turvy, the reverse is the rule. When a Chinaman meets you casually on the road there is thought to be no more delicate way of indicating a polite and friendly interest in you than asking, for instance, how old you are. From this he may rapidly pass to queries as to whether or not you are married, how much you make a year, where you are going, what you are going for and even how much you paid for various articles of wearing apparel.

BREAKFAST.

It Should Be a Substantial Meal, Says a Physician.

It is customary to make the first meal of the day slightly the lightest and distinctly the plainest and simplest of the three. If there be any deficiency of the appetite breakfast is the meal at which this is most likely to show itself. But this lack of appetite is in nine cases out of ten clearly traceable to sleeping in an unventilated room or to late hours in foul air the night before or to insufficient exercise the preceding day and is no indication that the body really requires less food at this time. Perfectly healthy men who sleep with their windows open and go to bed at a reasonable hour will tell you that they enjoy their breakfast as well as any other meal of the day, and many even call it their best meal.

Another popular delusion in regard to the lightness and unimportance of the breakfast is that widespread subterfuge, the "continental breakfast," consisting of a cup of coffee and some fruit or a single roll. This is a very pretty breakfast as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far, and the sole basis for its adoption on the continent is that it is only intended as a temporary tide-over until the real breakfast of meat, eggs, fish, etc., which is taken at about 10 or 11 o'clock, like a very early luncheon. If you haven't got a good appetite for breakfast make it your business to go and get one instead of allowing yourself to be blinded in this morbid state of affairs and deciding that all you really need is a cup of coffee and a roll or an orange.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Woman's Home Companion.

WOMEN'S WOES

Peterborough Women are Finding Relief at Last

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John Wallace, of [illegible] Water street Peterborough, Ont., says:—

"I had suffered with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble for over two years, and could find nothing that would benefit my condition. My back was weak, and a dull, heavy pain settled across the small of it, extending into my sides and shoulders. I could not sleep at night as the kidney secretions were so frequent and irregular that I would have to leave my bed a number of times. I was dizzy and weak and would usually awake with a dull headache. Booth's Kidney Pills, procured at McDermid & Jury's Drug Store, cured me when all else failed. I am stronger, and feel better generally. I can conscientiously recommend Booth's Kidney Pills and would not be without a box in the house."

WANT BRAKEMEN LEFT ON THE TOP OF TRAIN

The decision of the Railway Commission to investigate the question as to whether brakemen shall be allowed to ride on the top of trains is causing a great deal of discussion in railway circles. A railway official stated this morning that it was absolutely necessary, both in shunting and while trains were running, that the brakemen should be on top of the cars for the purpose of signalling, and in order to use the hand brakes. The standard rules of the railways read as follows on this point: "All brakemen shall ride on top of trains at least one-half a mile before arriving at, and while passing stations and stopping places, descending or ascending grades, or at any point and time when extra precaution is necessary to insure safety."

Although air brakes have to a certain extent superseded the handbrakes, all freight trains are equipped with both systems, and consequently both must be worked. In the case of cars shunting in the yards, it is thought that it might be possible to stop the practice of riding on top of cars to a certain extent only, though this would be at the cost of great inconvenience, and would mean less efficient work. The officials claim that they do not wish their brakemen to take any more than necessary risks, but that it is essential for the safety of the train and others of the crew that the brakemen ride on top.

ROW ON IN MANITOBA

Special Despatch to the Globe.

Winnipeg, Dec. 16.—The protracted labors of the University Commission, which has been wrestling with the problem of higher education in Manitoba for nearly two years, is likely to be nullified by the failure of the members to arrive at anything resembling a unanimity of recommendations. There were seven members on the commission, and actually three reports have been submitted to the Government. One of these is signed by Mr. Justice Cameron and Mr. W. A. McIntyre, representative of Baptist opinion, another is signed by Rev. Dr. Wilson, Rev. J. L. Gordon and J. A. Machray, and still another is signed by Rev. Father Cherrier, representative of the Roman Catholic College, and J. A. M. Aikins, chairman of the commission, and representative of the Wesleyan interests.

The first two are unanimous in declaring for a State-owned and State-controlled university, which shall be free from all the trammels and denominationalism, and also declare for compulsory education. A very comprehensive scheme of university government has been worked out by one of them, covering all branches of university functions. The third report is reactionary, and stands for restricted powers and denominational control, endorsing the stand of denominational colleges, which are loath to relinquish any of the privileges which they have enjoyed so long. A long and bitter controversy, which will need very astute statesmanship to settle amicably, is in immediate prospect, and no one can tell where the results toba.

ASPHODEL MAN VICTIM OF ACCIDENT IN LUMBER CAMP

Norwood, Dec. 16.—While working in the woods in the vicinity of Ketcheson Lake, about seventy miles north of Lakefield, in the Cavendish Lumber Company's camp, Mr. David Lobb, third son of Mr. Wm. Lobb, of Asphodel, met with a [illegible] fatal accident about two o'clock last Thursday afternoon. A tree which he was felling, became lodged, and when released—as if often the case—fell in an opposite direction from that which was expected, striking him upon the back and shoulders and crushing him to the ground. Fortunately for him there was a slight depression in the ground where he was standing, and the rise on either side kept the weight of the tree off him, which was all that saved his life. Had it not been for this, no doubt, he would have been crushed to death instantly. He was released as speedily as possible and taken to the camp, where, as soon as he recovered consciousness, preparations were made for his removal to his home, where he could receive proper care and medical treatment.

His brother James, who was working with him in the same camp, started with him about four o'clock Thursday afternoon. It was a long, [illegible] drive with few stopping places or signs of habitation to break the monotony of the journey. The sleighing was good to Burleigh Falls, at which point the sleighs were exchanged for a wheeled vehicle. Lakefield was reached Friday morning where they took the train for Norwood, arriving here the same evening.

Dr. Ford, who is attending him, reports that his back and shoulder is badly bruised and scraped and considerably swollen, but thinks that there are no bones broken, and that the young man will soon be able to be around again.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and t is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

OBJECTS TO THE L. & P. BY-LAW

Metre-Rate too High--Metres Unreliable--View of Correspondent

To the Editor of the Review.
Peterborough, Ont.,
Dec. 16th, 1909.

Dear Sir,—Would you please give space to the following in your paper:

In reading the report of the Board of Trade meeting of Dec. 14th, I notice that the Board endorsed the by-law to give the Peterborough Light & Power Company a thirty-year franchise of the streets; I also notice what they are to give as a return. It is not sufficient, the prices are far too high for house lighting. They give eight lamps 16 candle power for $12.00 per year, or in other words, $1.50 per lamp per year; burn the lamps all the time if you wish; if you want 9 or more lamps you are compelled to use a meter. Now, do not use more than 8 lamps and burn them only 12 hours out of the 24, and your light bill for one month will be nearer $10.00 with the meter than $1.50 as it is under the flat rate and burning double the length of time. If the flat rate is a paying price for the Company, and I presume it is, then the meter rate is exorbitant, as the meters are useless and unreliable. If the Company can give 8 lamps at $1.50 per lamp per year, why not give the customer all the lamps he wants at $1.50 per year, and cut the meter out. I know a number who have meters and they are all dissatisfied and are all waiting for a chance to change. At the present time the other company cannot take on any more customers. The Board of Trade did not endorse the by-law to return to the ward system; they think our present system of electing aldermen is much better. Under our present system a hail fellow well acquainted around the city can easily get elected whether the ward he lives in is neglected or not. Under the ward system there is a better chance to leave him at home if he does not do his duty. Under the present system all are responsible for all parts of the city, and the result is: no one feels himself particularly responsible for neglect of any particular part of our city. I also noticed it stated that under our present system the city had greatly prospered. Does any same man mean to say that the prosperity of our town for the past four years was due to the system of electing aldermen? Why, our city could not have been held back under any system. Every town and village throughout the Dominion has prospered and the ward system prevails in many of them. Some of the places that have had our present system have returned to the wards, and several places besides our own city are going to vote on a return to the ward system at the forthcoming municipal elections; also another plea that was urged was that it would not look well so soon after getting special legislation for a two year term for a part of the aldermen. I would like to ask who applied for the legislation? Was it the electors? I think not. If the electors had been given a chance to vote whether we would apply for the legislation or not, it would have got such a pair of black eyes, the color would have been there yet. A good man can usually get elected every time he comes out, and one year is twelve months too long for a man that is of no use, or merely a tool in the hands of some manipulator. Why should it be fixed so that there is a possibility of a fluke holding down an alderman's seat in our ambitious city for two years?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space, I am,

A VOTER.

Merchant Objects

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The Retail Merchants' Association has just sent out a demand upon the people for contributions to the Christmas tree of the firemen and their twenty-six children. A little consideration would have shown how entirely unsuitable such a request is. If the firemen had met and given to the Christmas tree of some of the poor and unhappy little children of this city it would have been worth praising, but this plan is such as I and others hope never to hear of the like again. It may have been done in other places. But that does not make it look any better either there or here.

As the firemen are paid by the city for doing certain work, I think the people should not offer, and the firemen should not accept, gifts of any description. In a short time the police will expect a small donation, I suppose, for performing their duties. The firemen's duties are light in comparison to the ordinary workingman's, and as they are well paid for it they should feel grateful and thankful, instead of looking for contributions.

Yours truly,
MERCHANT.

SOCIAL WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

At Park St. Church—An Attractive Programme

The bon-bon social at the Park St. Baptist church last night was a great success. A large crowd was in attendance and the occasion was a delightful one in every respect. The pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford, presided in his usual happy manner, Mr. J. R. Stratton sending a telegraph stating he was detained in Ottawa, owing to the budget debate, and could, therefore, not be present to take the chair.

The programme, which was a most enjoyable one, was very cordially received by the audience. It was as follows:

Selection—Charlotte St. Orchestra.
Solo—Mr. Frank Pratt.
Banjo Selection—Mr. F. C. Clarke.
Solo—Miss Clara Kidd.
Selection—Orchestra.

CURLERS SELECTED THE SKIPS FOR TANKARD AND DISTRICT

The skips of the Curling Club held a meeting at the rink club rooms last night for the purpose of selecting the skips for the Ontario Tankard and District Cup games. The Tankard skips will be Messrs. George Giroux and J. H. Connal, with Mr. R. M. Waddell as substitute. The District Cup skips will be Messrs. H. F. Foote and J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

The rinks for the season are not yet made up but the officers are at work on this at the present time. Skips are requested to hand the names of the members of their rinks to Secretary Ferguson inside of a week.

Owing to the soft weather the ice at the rink is not yet in shape for curling, but it is expected that the enthusiasts will be able to get busy within a few days. The formal opening will take place on New Year's Day when the annual "President vs. Vice-President" match will take place.

SCHEDULE FOR THIS DISTRICTS

Belleville to Meet Local Team Here on January 14 in First Intermediate O.H.A. Game

At a meeting held in Trenton yesterday afternoon the schedule for the intermediate series of the O.H.A. of this district was drawn up. The first game will be played here on January 14th, when the local seven play Belleville.

The representatives present were Messrs. W. J. Metheral, Peterborough; "Pink" Haines, Trenton; Billy Allen, Belleville; and Rev. Mr. Armstrong, Convenor.

The schedule and referees appointed follows:

Jan. 14.—Belleville vs. Peterborough.
Jan. 17.—Peterborough vs. Trenton.
Jan. 21.—Peterborough vs. Belleville.
Jan. 25.—Belleville vs. Trenton.
Jan. 28.—Trenton vs. Peterborough.
Jan. 31.—Trenton vs. Belleville.

Referees—Dr. Gilbert, Sandy Burrows, Belleville; Geo. Lynch, Harry Morgan, Peterborough; Chas. Croft, Trenton.

HOCKEY

The Millbrook junior hockey club has been reorganized, to be known as "The Beavers." The following are the officers:—

Captain—H. Handley.
Manager—F. W. Burnham.
Secretary—Ross Edmunds.
Treasurer—A. Winslow.
Members—K. McBean, A. Winslow, D. Clark, D. Hetherington, R. Edmunds, W. Frank, G. Dawson and Norm. Mitchell.

The club's colors will be red, white and blue. They are open for games with clubs whose members are 17 years of age or under.

Deaths in London last year totalled 639, a decrease of 56.

Otto Bert has donated an additional $825,000 to London University for medical research.

"PACER" WALLACE IS HOME AGAIN

Has Had Many Ring Battles at the Coast, Winning Large Percentage of Them

"Kid" Wallace, who is known around Peterborough as "Pacer," has just returned to the city after spending two and a half years on the Pacific Coast. "Pacer" always was some scrapper, and he got into the game in earnest in the west. He was one of the principals in nearly a half hundred fights, boxing in the featherweight class. He had a good deal of success, too, only losing three fights during his ring career in the western country. He was the featherweight champion of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and appeared in the ring on numerous places in British Columbia and California. Among those he defeated were Tom Simpkins, a well known western feahterweight, and Clement, of Montreal. He lost to Crowe, another good man, in seven rounds, and won and lost in two fights with Harry Lombardy, of Chicago.

"Pacer" would like to get on some ring battles in Peterborough or in his part of the province, and is open to meet all comers at 120 pounds.

SPORTING NOTES

The Ottawa Rugby Club has asked Murty [illegible] to coach the Rough Riders next year.

Joe Kelly is talking of going behind the bat next season for the Maple Leafs.

Yussiff Mahmout, the wrestler, is suffering from a fractured rib.

Tom Phillips is out of the hockey game this season. He is living in Vancouver.

Mr. J. M. McLeod, physical director of the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A., is out with a proposal to form an International Basketball League.

Jack Flynn, last year with Toronto, may replace Abstein on the initial sack for Pittsburg next season.

The Tecumsehs, of Toronto, will build a club house and branch out into all kinds of amateur sport.

Bill Phyle has purchased a bowling alley in Toronto and will assume the management of it in a few days.

Renfrew's $15,000 hockey team will take a trip to New York and Pittsburg to play exhibition games.

Fred Doherty will play left wing for the Galt professional hockey team this season.

The rink at Trenton will not be completed for three weeks, but they expect to have it far enough advanced to allow the boys to practice about the middle of the week. It has a larger ice surface than any rink in the district, and will seat 2,500.

Charlie Croft, formerly cover-point for the Picton Pirates, is a resident of Trenton, and will play rover for the team there this winter.

Bedsford and Hickey, of last year's Picton team, are in Belleville, and will wear the red and white of the sleepy city this season.

There will be a meeting in the Oriental Hotel to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock for the purpose of drawing up a schedule for the junior series of this district. The teams entered are: Lindsay, Peterborough and Peterborough Collegiate Institute. R. M. Glover is convener.

City League managers are reminded of the meeting on Monday night in the Oriental Hotel parlors at eight o'clock. The schedule will be drawn up and all those interested are requested to be present.

NEW SCHEME FOR HOCKEY CLUBS

Rev. Mr. Armstrong of Trenton Proposes Eastern Section for Dissatisfied Teams

A proposition that is meeting with favor by the teams concerned is suggested by the Rev. Mr. Armstrong, of Trenton. Of late there has been complaint from the clubs along the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway from Whitby to Kingston, against there being placed in districts which do not allow satisfactory train connections being made and also that there is not enough games. Rev. Mr. Armstrong's scheme is to form an eastern section of the O.H.A. to be composed of the above mentioned clubs, both junior and intermediate and the winners play off with the western winners. This would do away with much of the dissatisfaction.

BASKETBALL AT THE Y.M.C.A.

GREENS, 24—WHITES, 16.

The first time the Greens and the Whites met, the Whites trimmed the Greens by one point, but last night the Greens turned the tables and won by an easy score of 24—16.

H. Wallace played a remarkable game and shot baskets from all angles of the floor. It was easy going for the Greens, as they outplayed the Whites to a finish.

Laing, the mainstay of the Whites had a hard game to play. He saw there wasn't much chance to win, but he played just as hard as if he were winning.

The spectators cheered for the Whites, but it wasn't a bit. What they wanted was points;

Line up:

Greens.—Phalen, r.f.; Hogan, l.f.; Wallace, c; Brown, r.g.; Harper, l.g.

Whites.—Hol. Hill, r.f.; Smith, l.f.; Laing, c; Thornton, r.g.; Mulhern, l.g.

Officials—Referee, H. A. McLaughlin. Timer—Lees. Scorer—Howden.

The junior boys meet to-night for practice, in a drill to be given at the exhibition, from 5 to 6 p.m. and tea at 6 p.m.

Look for the Y.M.C.A. Circus posters in the windows of the stores next week.

Talk about fun; well, if you want to enjoy yourself and have three good laughs, why break all engagements for the 31st and January 1st, and go up to the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium and see the Forget-me-not twins on the high bar.

Funny? Why they can make a horse laugh. Remember, and don't forget it.

LONDON APARTMENTS

Renting a Furnished Flat in the English Metropolis.

THE TRICKS OF THE AGENT.

At First Everything Is Pleasant, but After the Place Is Taken the Woes of the Tenant Begin With the Advent of the Inventory Man.

To the uninitiated American the rent of a furnished flat in London seems a very simple and remarkably inexpensive matter. Every one is extremely polite, and your path is made easy. But no sooner have you closed the door of your new quarters than you are beset by the bogy of "extras." While you are taking a contented glance at the new domicile, congratulating yourself on the bargain and thinking how much more a similar place would cost you in New York, your musings are interrupted by the arrival of the man with the inventory. His business is to make an inventory of every blessed thing your flat contains, from a four post bed to a kitchen spoon.

At first you are vastly amused over the listing of such apparently insignificant items as "a lincrusta Walton frieze," the number of tiles in the fireplace, the bolts on the windows, the locks on the doors, a description of the handles on the dressing chest and the number of screws therein, but when you have been dragged through every room, going over these—to us—absurd details, you plunge from rage to despair and finally collapse when your tormentor at last departs. For this entertainment you have paid from half a guinea (about $2.60) upward, according to the rent of your flat.

But the real power of the inventory is only felt when you take your departure. You may be morally certain that the only damage you have done has been to break one or two teacups, for which you are quite prepared to pay an extortionate sum without a murmur. You may be sure of this, but presently you will receive a bill all neatly written out and covering several pages of foolscap and entitled "Dilapidations."

You will find that in every room the walls have been "chipped," the enamel on the bathtub "slightly marred," a monogram on a napkin ring "scratched," several saucepans "damaged," a knife handle "bent," a number of plates "cracked," and so on. I am quoting from a list of "dilapidations" presented to friends of mine who had occupied a flat for two months, during which time, after strenuous cleaning efforts, they left the premises in much better condition than when they went in. The bill amounted to £1 18s. 9d., roughly about $9.68.

For the lease, which is here called "agreement," you have to pay from 10 shillings up to 8 guineas and more, according to rent. Then the government stamp affixed thereto, without which the document is not legal, costs you from half a crown (62 cents) to a guinea or more, again according to rent.

You may have taken your flat by "the month," but when your agreement is sent you find out it is for every four weeks! You will probably phone the agent calling his attention to the error, and he will inform you it is correct that way.

In renting an unfurnished flat, the shortest term for which is three years, you discover that the electric light fixtures are not included in the rental. Protest unavailing, you buy them yourself and pay for their installation. You must rent also your own gas cooking stove. You fancy the fenders for the fireplaces must have been overlooked, but not so; you must buy them yourself! As you have been so accustomed to a continuous supply of hot water, it never occurred to you to inquire into the subject. You find you can obtain it only by keeping a continuous fire in your kitchen range.

As the penetrating, clammy gray horror of an English winter draws on you begin to appreciate what it means to be minus steam heat. Your only defense are the coal fires, romantic in story, but totally inadequate to defy this marrow reaching, damp cold of London. Bathroom and halls remain at arctic temperature, for the grate fires do not radiate beyond a few feet, so you may sit close and burn or retire to a corner and freeze.

After having learned through painful experience the futility of struggle against English ways and methods it is amusing to watch the explosive American, who in hotel office, at railway station and on steamships holds forth as to the various things he will not submit to. He is usually listened to with a certain exasperating deference at which the British underling is a past master. But nothing is changed, and he has to submit, and the sooner the lesson is learned the more comfortable he will be.

The impenetrable stolidity of the average Briton is not to be disturbed, and the longer one remains in this country the more definitely one learns that the English people have a pretty substantial idea of commercialism and that you are paying for the lesson.—London Cor. New York American.

One Wish Unfulfilled.

HOCKEY

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE.

Madoc, Dec. 16.—A meeting was held at Marmora on Friday last, to re-organize the Trent Valley Hockey League, at which representatives of different clubs were present. Those from Madoc were: Messrs. S. B. VanKleeck, E. VanSomern and Roy Dale. The officers were appointed as follows:—

Hon President—J. W. Pearce, M.L.A., Marmora.
Hon. Vice-President—Col. J. R. Orr, Madoc.
Pres.—C. D. MacDonald, Madoc.
Sec.-Treas.—E. W. Gladney, Marmora.
Convener—Roy Dale, Madoc.
Executive Committee—Ed. Lattimer, Madoc, and H. Wiggins, Marmora.

A meeting of all the delegates is called to convene in Madoc on Friday evening in the parlors of the Moon House, when a schedule will be arranged. The Madoc club though losing some of their most promising players, still think they have the wherewith to win the championship of this league.

BOUND FOR THE ROCKS.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—The Edmonton Club notified the trustees to-day that their proposed Stanley Cup trip was off. They refused to come because the Ottawas had delayed the announcement of their dates. It is said that Cobalt may come in their stead. Galt will play January 5 and 7th, instead of 4th and 6th. Percy Lesueur turned out with the Ottawas for the first time to-night.

An officer of the Renfrew Club announced to-night that they would admit Ottawa to the National on certain terms, and it is likely that the Stanley Cup holders will desert the Canadian, which is bound to go to pieces.

RAIDING OTTAWA AGAIN.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Fred Taylor failed to show up at to-night's practice of the Ottawas and it is again said that he will be found with Renfrew. The officers say that Taylor has demanded an increase and believe that he is only bluffing. Renfrew undoubtedly are after the great cover point. "EXPECTING THE CHURCH;" NEW DUTY OF RELIGIOUS BODIES

"The Men Who Love Graft and Vice Have Learned a New Fear"—Looking to the Church—It is Expected to Do More.

When the world assumes an expectant attitude towards the Church, her burden of obligation can hardly be shirked, thinks an editorial writer in the Chicago Interior. A prominent Chicago attorney is quoted as saying: "At our club every day I hear politicians and business men talking of public corruption in the city, and over and over they keep asking, 'What are the churches going to do about it?' They're waiting for the churches to lead off.' The meaning of such speeches, as this writer sees it, is that "the world has come to expect of the Church leadership in the destruction of civic evils." Will the Church meet the expectation? he asks, and he goes on to observe:

"It is a terrific thing for the Church to be expected. Its duty is serious enough when it has to thrust itself on a world that doesn't want it. But when the world is wanting it, and waiting for it, then the responsibility ought to make the church quake.

"If it fails, then, it squanders opportunity, and trades an offered respect for an earned contempt. It not only disappoints God, but betrays humanity.

"Precise folks dispute the old proverb, 'The voice of the people is the voice of God.' But nobody can dispute this amendment: 'The expectation of the people is the voice of God.' An expectant world is a divine challenge.

"The Church's tasks multiply all the while and grow harder. Very recently nobody would have dreamed of looking to the Church for relief from oppressions of wicked public officials and thieving political rings. Its sphere was supposed to be on the opposite side of life from politics.

"But under push of moral indignations which precedent could not confine, the Church here and there, once and again, has been driven to try its mettle fighting greed and vice.

"And in such conflicts the Church has discovered to itself and to the world a new possibility. The men who love graft and vice have learned a new fear. Both the fear and the hope point to the Church.

"The reward of what little the Church has already done for civic and social reform is this—it is expected to do more."

The writer turns to consider some of the reasons why the world expects the Church to lead in the direct attack upon wrong-doing—why "men of the world have learned so soon to wait until the Church leads." Thus:

"The Church has something in it which lasts.

"The worst defeat of reform in the cities and towns has always been that the reforming determination oozes out so quickly. Civic societies are organized and go in for a while with mighty vim. But soon leaders and followers together are tired of the trouble; they quietly drop out and sink away. The organization goes to pieces, and the rascals come back. But the Church hasn't gone to pieces yet. It has outlasted every strain that has come on it. It sags sometimes, but it always recovers itself. If the Church once gets roused enough to set its sentinels out, the foe won't slip back into the old stronghold unobserved. The fighting army will never be quite depleted; a nucleus at least will always be under drill.

"The Church, when true to itself, is really for the whole people.

"The dread that gets on the nerves of everybody who takes active part against public evils, is the dread of some cheap and narrow selfishness using the overturn of old abuses as opportunity to establish new. Or where there is no deliberate plot of self-seeking, sheer lack of understanding is apt to serve only a part of the people rather than all.

"But the Church reaches up and down, near and far, through all conditions of people. It has a sense of sympathy and an instinct for justice at its heart. Better than any other force in the world, it can be trusted to hold the balances level between man and man. There is surer to be fair play, brotherhood, union of all classes, sincerity, true patriotism, where the Church is dominant. Tired of pretences and partialities, the politician feels new confidence when he follows the Church.

"The Church can present a solid front.

"That is a new revelation to the modern world. Men outside had been so used to quarrelling of Christians over theological matters that the divisions of the Church were their byword. Nobody suspected any force of combination inside Church lines. And the present world wants combination.

"But of late when the bugle blows for a moral issue, the modern Church in a trice quits its disputes and closes ranks. The world is amazed. But the world is immensely imprest. Solidarity is the one invaluable political asset. If the Church can show it, of course, the politicians will wait for its leadership.

"The Church has Jesus Christ.

"The world knows Jesus was brave—that He didn't fear the face of man. It wants that courage now, and it hopes to find it in Christ's followers. Jesus would stand for the right no matter what it cost. Amid the hesitations and fears and evasions of many who do not want righteousness enough to pay the price, the world realizes that free and fearless self-sacrifice equal to the emergency is going to be found only among such as Christ has touched with his spirit. Hence it waits for the Church."

Sacred Monkeys of Nikko Serve as Inspiration For Bric-a-brac.

All sorts of charming ideas and objects come from Japan nowadays, American skill and ingenuity adding to oriental appeal occidental use and application. The "Japanese sacred monkeys" from the famous Nikko temple of Iyeyasu offer a new and clever adaptation of Japanese wisdom and artistic excellence to American pleasure and employment.

The "wise monkeys" that for uncounted centuries have adorned that world renowned Nikko avenue of cedars, twenty miles in length, which leads to the river at the base of Nikko's sacred hill, during all these centuries have offered to the world a great message—"Hear, see and speak no evil." This message, as valuable and important today as when first evolved, now speaks to the American world with new and redoubled emphasis, the quaint picturesqueness of the three monkeys, respectively covering eyes, ears and mouth with their oddly human fingers, lending special vim to their impressive accents. The lotus leaf, emblem of peace and joy and happiness, also has been called into timely use.

HEAR SEE SPEAK NO EVIL

AN ARTISTIC AND "LUCKY" INKSTAND.

The "wise monkeys" that from candlesticks, match holders, incense burners and so on preach an effective silent sermon to the world at large have for originator Miss Louise Hirtsel of Chicago, already known for her artistic efforts; for sponsor, Milton A. Waldman, who first conceived the idea of using the "wise monkeys" for artistic and moral ends.

"Splendid! Just the sort of stimulating suggestion we all need!" cried Miss Hirtsel, all enthusiasm and delight, upon sharing her associate's inspection, and she immediately proceeded to elaborate the basic "wise monkeys" idea into the clever and cunning "O-Nik-Ko" simians that presently caused so many people to "think right."

The "wise monkeys" now are created in several arrangements and with several settings, but perhaps the prettiest and most popular article of all is the incense burner, or pen tray, which represents them as seated on a green and naturally curling lotus leaf, expressive tails arranged in most expressive manner, expressive heads and hands most effectively posed. Traced on the lotus leaf in front of the group runs their inseparable legend, "Hear, see and speak no evil." It is safe to say that many a man and woman, buying the group for reasons of quaintness and artistic or "lucky" attraction, will receive distinct mental and spiritual uplift from the warning thus cleverly conveyed.

The thought back of this legend is very old, almost as old as Christianity or Buddhism, and in Japan it also finds expression in connection with the "three little maids" who on many a fan and lantern and kakemono also press determined fingers to lips and ears and eyes. But the "wise monkeys" of the strange and lovely temple of Ieyeyasu are far older than the perennially and perpetually youthful maidens who prettily teach the same lesson, and they impress it with greater force and meaning.

"Until you have seen Nikko you cannot say Gikko," runs the Japanese proverb, "gikko" meaning beautiful. It might not unsuitably be parodied, "Until you have made the acquaintance of the 'wise monkeys' you have missed something of the gladness and wisdom that come with right seeing, right hearing, right speech."

Luxurious Silver Cleaning.

A young engineer who has lived much of his life on ships has adopted many of the conveniences of shipboard for use in the new home where he has taken his bride. Among them is silver cleaning by electricity.

A miniature motor, six inches long and four inches high, is used. It can be clamped to the kitchen table and put away when not needed. A wire is run from the motor to any convenient electric light fixture. It is supplied with a button on the switch.

To the shaft of the motor is attached a buffer wheel made of very soft leather. After the silver is washed free of dirt it is left rather damp. A little silver powder is put on the wheel, and the weekly silver is brightly burnished in a few minutes.

The leather is so soft it does not scratch. It is particularly good for repousse or embossed silver, as it gets into the cracks.

In any house lighted by electricity such a motor could be added for about $5. The cost of running it is slight and would be more than equaled by the time saved for the maids.

The Recamier Coiffure.

The fashionable hair arrangement, with its center parting and very wide sides and back, is called the Recamier.

The little curls dropping from the back and pinned to the hair are growing more in fashion each week.

Early Shearing Recommended.

In general I approve of early shearing, says a successful breeder. A flock that has had good shelter may well be shorn in March. After shearing carefully dip both ewes and lambs. In August the ewes may again be shorn if it is desired to get them to breed early. The cooling off that shearing brings often so invigorates the ewes [illegible] naturally in heat.

IS NO CHANGE IN THE MAYORALTY SITUATION

But Some Citizens are Positive That Ald. Morrow Will Have Opposition — Will Special Meeting of Council Have to be Called.

Ald. Morrow is the only man who has announced himself in the field so far. Is he going to have opposition?

"Ald. Morrow will have to put up a fight all right," a citizen remarked to the Review last night. "I know who his opponent will be but I'm not saying anything just yet; you will learn all about it in time."

Ald. Morrow is the only one of the two-year aldermen to resign from the council. No resignations have been received since Wednesday night. A fine point has now arisen. If any of the two-year men wish to run for the mayoralty they will have to resign from the council. If one of them does resign will it be necessary to call a special meeting of the council to accept his resignation?

WAS STRUCK BY A SLEIGH LAST NIGHT

Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., on coming down the hill on London street last night, was run into by boys coasting and thrown some distance, alighting in a ditch on his shoulder. He was severely shaken up, but being a man of good health, was able to continue on his way.

His shoulder and right arm are somewhat seriously bruised, and his narrow escape from serious injury should be a warning to boys coasting down hill to be constantly on the lookout for pedestrians.

During the hunting season in New England 31 lives were lost.

ENJOYABLE "EUCHRE"

Members of the B.A.C. and a number of invited guests spent a very enjoyable time in the Knights of Pythias hall last night. Progressive euchre was the principal amusement and there was a hard fight for both the principal and "booby" prizes. Refreshments were served during the evening, the catering being done by Hooper. Mr. E. B. MacRae won the head prize, and Mr. David Moore the low one. Two recitations by Mr. Moore added greatly to the evening's pleasure.

CROWN'S ACTION PROVED TO BE CAUSE OF WORDY BATTLE

In Which Mr. D. O'Connell, Counsel for Defence, Assailed Prosecution—Crown's Unexpected Bomb Started the Warfare — His Honor Granted an Adjournment.

County Crown Attorney Wood dropped a bomb into the camp of the defence at the County Court this morning, when he asked that Mr. G. N. Graham be arraigned on the charge of perjury. Mr. D. O'Connell, the counsel for Mr. Graham, was apparently entirely unprepared for such a move on the part of the prosecution, and immediately rose to his feet and objected strenuously against any such action. The true bill against the defendant mentioned above was only returned yesterday, whereas the bills against Fowler and Carroll were brought in on Tuesday, and for this reason the defence stated that they naturally thought that the charges against these would be considered first. Mr. O'Connell expressed indignation at what he characterized as the unfair action of the crown, and vehemently protested to the court against the prosecution being allowed to go on with the Graham case.

"I have twenty witnesses ready in the Carroll case," he said, "and have not even read over the depositions in the Graham case."

He said he did not see what reason the crown could have in taking the advantage it did.

The crown attorney stated that he had prepared to try "the worst offender first." His Honor admitted that the crown, with its semi-judicial authority, had the right of way.

That several witnesses for the defence had seen the crown, was the contention of the counsel for the defence, and he supposed the crown had taken an advantage by bringing in the Graham case first.

Mr. Wood became somewhat aroused over Mr. O'Connell's remarks, which he characterized as "wild statements" or something to that effect.

Mr. O'Connell was very anxious to know the reason for the prosecution taking up the Graham case first.

"He won't give any good reason for taking up the case first," said Mr. O'Connell.

"Well," replied Mr. Wood, "Graham is the principal offender."

"Why didn't you arrest him first?" responded Graham's counsel.

"All the charges arose out of the same case," stated Mr. Wood.

In commenting on this last statement Mr. O'Connell remarked that the only reason the crown had given had fallen to the ground, as the charges did not arise out of the same case. Carroll was charged for an alleged offence, said to have been committed on a Friday night, while Graham's alleged offence was held to have been committed later.

The dialogue between the two debaters was by no means of a most flattering character, and the court suggested that they refrain from giving utterance to such insinuating expressions.

"I'm not going to force you to go on with the case," said His Honor to Mr. O'Connell, "as I do not think it would be fair under the circumstances. I don't want to try Graham or anybody else unfairly. On the other hand I don't see that I may interfere with the semi-judicial authority of the Crown."

The judge then advised Mr. Wood and Mr. O'Connell to have a conference to see if some mutually satisfactory agreement could not be reached, but neither seemed anxious to hold the consultation, though Mr. Wood asked Mr. O'Connell what suggestion he had to make, and the latter had not any, obviously preferring to have the court rule on the matter.

"Well, gentlemen," said his Honor. "I do not know what to do about it, unless I adjourn the court to another date. Will you be ready to go on this afternoon?"

Mr. O'Connell didn't think so.

After due consideration the court thought that the only thing that could be done was to grant an adjournment till 2 o'clock this afternoon, and this was done.

CAME TO PETERBOROUGH WITH THE PETER ROBINSON PARTY

In the death of Julia Doherty, which occurred last night about 11 o'clock, Otonabee loses one of its oldest residents and Peterborough, one of its earliest settlers. The deceased was born in Ireland and when quite young came to this country with her parents, included along with a party of immigrants under the guidance of Peter Robinson. On arriving at Peterborough the Doherty family located on the spot which is now occupied by the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Co. They removed to Otonabee later. From there they removed to Ashburnham, residing on Mark st., for nearly 28 years. The late Miss Doherty was 87 years of age and was the last surviving member of her family. For some time past she had been living with her nephew, Mr. Patrick Doherty, and the funeral will take place from his residence, lot 20, in the 9th concession of Otonabee to-morrow morning at 8.30 o'clock, to the Sacred Heart Church and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

SIR WILFRID HAS DECIDED TO SIT FOR QUEBEC EAST

City of Ottawa is Now Vacant—Mr. Turriff Introduces Measures Regarding the Prairie Homestead Regulations—Budget Debate Adjourned.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced in the Commons yesterday that he had decided to continue to sit in Parliament for Quebec East, the constituency he has represented almost since his entry into public life. This means that Ottawa City is now vacant, in so far as the French-Canadian representation is concerned.

An official statement was read by Hon. L. P. Brodeur bearing on the wreck of the car ferry Bessemer No. II., and the loss of forty of her crew on Lake Erie. Mr. Brodeur stated that the vessel was not subject to inspection as it was a United States craft. Port Stanley, he said, was equipped with two splendid lights, which could be seen for many miles, and no complaints had reached the Department as to the inefficiency of the aids to navigation at that port. The statement quoted the president of the Lake Carriers' Association to the effect that all navigation on the lakes should close not later than December 1.

J. G. Turriff, East Assiniboia, introduced a bill to amend the act authorizing a bounty to volunteers who served in South Africa. The object of the bill is to enable either a veteran or his substitute who has been unfortunate enough to apply a warrant to land which is worthless, to get another half section. Mr. Turriff said that in a few cases veterans or their substitutes had secured land of no value. The bill was given a first reading.

Mr. Turriff also introduced a bill to enable second homesteaders who have paid their fee and one dollar an acre on quarter sections which are worthless, to get a credit of $160 on another quarter section.

Major Currie objected to the bill on the ground that as it would affect the revenue it should be preceded by a resolution. The Speaker was not prepared to give an immediate decision and Mr. Turriff agreed to its standing over.

Major Currie introduced a bill to amend the grain inspection act to prevent shortages in grain shipments.

Grain weighed into terminals at Fort William was often found to be short when it reached the lower lake ports. The bill would provide for the weighing of it both when taken in and taken out of terminal elevators.

Mr. Sinclair, Liberal member for Guysboro, who resumed the budget debate, entered into a general defence of the Government's policy and expenditure. Dealing with the I.C.R., he expressed the belief that the cultivation of business snap would go a long way in the direction of making the railway a success.

Touching on the naval question he declared that the followers of the Government to a man would stand firmly back of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in carrying out the terms of the joint resolution of last session. He doubted if the Opposition would present the same united front.

Mr. Sinclair said that Sir Charles Tupper, who at one time predicted that the Liberals could not rule Canada for six months, was now appealing to R. L. Borden to stand by the policy of the Government in respect to a Canadian navy.

Major Currie criticized the method of declaring a surplus by charging certain payments up to special accounts and so deceiving the public. He objected to the Finance Minister "taking unction to himself regarding the flotation of loans, when it was found that Australia got better terms than Canada."

The adjournment of the debate was moved by Malcolm Schell of South Oxford, and several bills were given a second reading.

The House then adjourned until Jan. 12.

MAY DELAY THE WINNIPEG FAIR

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—Private information goes to show that the Selkirk Centennial International Fair, planned to be held here in 1912, will be put off one year, largely to meet the personal wishes of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who would like to see the fair combined with the official opening of the National Transcontinental Railway from ocean to ocean.

Also, the national road and the G.T.P. would by that time be in a position to get a share of the advantage accruing from the heavy traffic in connection with the fair.

The same source suggests that this great spectacular fair in Winnipeg would be followed by an early general election, in which Sir Wilfrid, for the last time, would lead his party.

FUNERAL DRAPES BECAME IGNITED

Winnipeg, Dec. 18.—At Ett, Manitoba, a candle set fire Wednesday evening to the funeral hangings in the house of Joseph Prefontaine, former member for Provencher, where the body of his mother was laid out. A large number of mourners were present, who escaped panic-stricken. In their hurry, the seven-year-old son of Prefontaine, asleep upstairs, was forgotten and was burned to death. George Prefontaine, another son, was seriously, and perhaps fatally burned, trying to save the corpse from cremation.

Yesterday morning during the absence of Mrs. Sydney Masters, 396 Arnold avenue, fire broke out in the house where she had left her two children, Ida, aged four, and Earl, aged two years, both being fatally burned. Owing to the doors being locked, neighbors could not render help.

YOUNG MEN GAVE GIRLS LIQUOR

Kingston, Dec. 18.—Magistrate Farrell yesterday committed Frank Redden and Herbert Stanford for trial on a charge of supplying liquor to two girls for immoral purposes. Bail was fixed at $1,000 each.

The girls went out to Collins Bay with the men for a drive and were served with two glasses of whisky. They claim the whisky was doped, as they did not know anything until the police raided a building on Clarence street, where they were found with the men. The proprietor of a hotel at Collins Bay was fined $200 and costs, or three months, the minimum penalty for selling liquor, as he had no license.

Six Dead in Philadelphia Fire.

Philadelphia, Dec. 18.—Five of twenty girls employed on the 15th floor of Schrock & Sherwood's building, manufacturers of undertakers' supplies, are dead as a result of fire which broke out on the fourth floor. One fireman was also killed.

ACQUITTAL FOR COBOURG DOCTOR

Cobourg, Dec. 18.—In the County Criminal Court, before Judge Benson and a jury, a verdict of "not guilty" was returned in the case of the King v. Stinson, which occupied the attention of the court for a day and a half. Dr. Stinson, Cobourg, formerly of Brighton, was charged with having performed a criminal operation on a Mrs. Dale, wife of a farm laborer. The prosecution was conducted by D. F. Kerr, crown attorney, and Dr. Arthur J. Johnston, Toronto, medical expert. Dr. Cotton, Toronto, was present for the defence. Counsel for the defence were George Tate Blackstock, K.C., Toronto, and F. M. Field, K.C., and F. F. Hall, Cobourg.

The judge charged strongly in Stinson's favor.

RESIGNATION OF PRESIDENT

Washington, Dec. 18.—As to the published statement from Zelaya, the retiring President of Nicaragua, that on Dec. 4 in a telegram to Secretary of State Knox, he suggested that an American commission visit Nicaragua, and that if their findings should show his administration to be detrimental to Central America he would resign, it is officially announced that no such telegram ever was received.

Zelaya's message to President Taft complains that he has received no reply to this offer and adds, "To avoid harm to my country and desiring that it shall renew friendly relations with the United States, I have to-day sent my resignation to Congress. As my opponents consider my presence a disturbing factor, I propose to show my good faith by leaving Nicaragua. I stand ready to account for my acts."

CARELESSNESS OF SOMEBODY

Parry Sound, Dec. 18.—The coroner's jury in the case of James Keeler, killed in the gas explosion at the Marine Department's depot on Nov. 26, decided that death was caused "through the negligence or carelessness of some persons connected with the manufacture of gas at the factory where the explosion occurred, and it is the opinion of this jury that no person not an expert in the manufacture of such a dangerous gas should be allowed to give orders to as when gas should be made."

LAWYER LEFT COURT ROOM

Toronto, Dec. 18.—L. V. McBrady, council for George Weber, charged with perjury, left the sessions court room yesterday after a warm discussion with Judge Winchester. The lawyer objected to his honor sitting on the case, as he had laid the charge against Weber at the trial of Lansdowne v. Kelly, in which Weber was a witness.

RECEIPT IS FICTITOUS

Judge Finkle Says Document is Not Genuine — Investigation Into Graft Charges.

Woodstock, Dec. 18.—County Judge Finkle made a report yesterday on his investigation into graft charges in connection with the country roads system. He made no recommendations, but stated that he could not accept Councillor M. T. Buchanan's present statement as to the charge made by J. L. Thayer.

The judge held that the document which purported to represent the sale of an automobile from Buchanan to Thayer was fictitious. He could not see why Buchanan would return the $340 had the document represented a bona fide transaction.

Thayer had charged that Buchanan demanded the sum in return for the purchase by the company of a road roller and as a receipt acknowledged the payment of money as on the purchase of an auto.

The council referred the whole matter to the Provincial Department of Public Works, with a request for a thorough investigation.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF THE POTASH MINES

Berlin, Dec. 18.—The Government of Prussia, which owns three potash mines, has presented to the federal council a bill extending imperial control over the potash production of the country. Many of the existing potash contracts are with American firms. It is understood that if the measure is adopted the foreign contracts will be permitted to remain in force for two years, after which they will be subjected to Government regulation.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 18.—On complaint of Attorney-General Jackson all the fruit, produce and commission men of Topeka were arrested yesterday charged with being members of the Topeka Produce and Fruit Exchange, and violating the anti-trust laws of the state.

It is alleged the organization has for its purpose the control of prices of food.

ARRESTS MADE IN COBALT ORE CASES

Detectives After a Busy Chase Round up Ten Men, Who Are Arraigned on Charges of Acting as Go-Betweens in a Traffic Amounting to a Quarter Million Dollars a Year.

MEN ARRESTED.

H. A. Van Winckel, life insurance agent; selling illegally, arrested at Cobalt.

J. H. McGale, hotelkeeper, arrested at Cobalt.

William Jansen, Finnish, bartender, Cobalt; illegal selling.

Jacob Cohen, alias Harry Cohen, jeweler and restauranteur, 78 Agnes street; illegal buying and illegal selling.

Dmytas Andreas, Austrian, miner, Cobalt; receiving stolen ore and illegal selling.

N. Nicholas Zozotz, Austrian, miner, Cobalt; receiving stolen ore and illegal selling.

Toronto, Dec. 18.—Ten arrests have now been made in connection with the gigantic thefts of ore from the Cobalt mines which are now said to approximate at least $250,000 a year in ore disposed of to the J. E. Wilkinson company alone.

The number was advanced by eight yesterday when the city detectives rounded up additional prisoners upon a charge of receiving and selling in violation to the provision of the criminal code, and Chief Caldbeck of Cobalt gathered in two more at the mining town on like charges.

Thus far none of the thieves has been arrested as only the go-betweens are known to come to the city, and as these are the only charges which can be tried here. Of these latter two escaped from the police yesterday and more are to be located. Further action against those on the spot at Cobalt is expected to-day.

H. A. Van Winckle, a life insurance agent, was arrested as he left his office at Cobalt yesterday afternoon on charges of illegally selling the stolen ore. He is charged with having made at least nine trips to Toronto with ore and to have received checks as large as $1,200 at single payments, from the Wilkinson company.

Earlier in the afternoon, J. H. McGale, owner of the Leland Hotel there, was also arrested by Chief Caldbeck as he stepped off the Haileybury train. He is said to have made five trips to the city with ore. Van Winckle has his office in one of the best blocks in Cobalt, and has been known as a life insurance agent for two years. McGale is a big Irishman who has been in camp ever since there was a mine here.

Detectives McKinney and Guthrie have gone to Cobalt to bring the men to the city. The police have received descriptions of ten other men, but information was received so late that they are not very sanguine of success.

Once more the work here was begun by Detective Murray who boarded the in-coming Cobalt train at Parkdale and picked out four men carrying gun sacks and suit cases. Of these one left as the detective boarded the train and one separated from the other two at the Union Station. Murray followed the two to the house at 58 Simcoe street, to which he had traced Littlejohn on the previous day. He placed both under arrest and they were taken to Court street station and taken before the court at 10 o'clock.

Cohen was gathered in by Detective Tipton in the street at noon and taken to headquarters. A search of his premises later disclosed broken melting pots which had been destroyed and placed in a pail in the yard in the rear. Detective Archibald arrested Rodchinsky at his place of business at 1.30, and he, too, was taken to headquarters. Jansen and Heikkila were arrested two hours later by Detectives Wallace, Mackie and Sockett.

Among the effects found in the Wilkinson premises on Lombard street which were searched yesterday were the returned bank checks for the month of November last. These show that during the month payments of $25, $65, and $25 were made to Rodchinsky and $125, $50, $91, and $188 weer made to Cohen under the name of H. Cohen in that month. Among these checks were others for $1,000 and $1,200, but the police refuse to disclose the names of those to whom these were paid.

A scrutiny of the company's books disclose that about two tons of ore per month were being handled. The value of this in a proper market would be about $20,000, showing a business of $240,000 a year.

In the police court yesterday morning Wilkinson, Littlejohn, Andreas and Zozotz were arraigned. All were remanded a week without plea or election. Bail was furnished and permitted for one alone, Wilkinson, who was given his liberty upon sureties of $20,000, and even this was reluctantly assented to by Magistrate Denison. T. C. Robinette, K.C., who appeared for Littlejohn, will likely defend all, who will probably go to a jury.

PROBABILITIES.

MAY BE BITTER STRUGGLE FOR THRONE OF BELGUIM

Five-Year-Old Lucian Said to be the Legitimate Son of Baroness Vaughan and the Late Monarch of Belgium is Set up as a Rival to Prince Albert.

Brussels, Dec. 18.—A contest over the succession to the throne of Belgium is possible. The Vatican is reported to have confirmed the marriage a year ago of King Leopold and Baroness Vaughan. Two sons are said to have been born from this union and both survive. The elder is Lucian, five years old. It is reported that he will claim the throne.

The Socialist organ, Le Peuple, violently attacks the memory of the King, because he repulsed his daughter and admitted his favorite to his bedside. The paper discusses the reported morgantic marriage of the King and Baroness Vaughan, and asks whether the children of the union will hold pretentions to the throne. This point appears to be settled by the constitution. The children will have no rights, but it is understood that they will inherit a great part of the King's immense personal fortune.

Prince Albert, the heir presumptive, who will take the oath to the throne next Thursday, is a nephew of Leopold II., being a son of Prince Philip, Count of Flanders, Leopold's younger brother. Prince Albert married in 1900 Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria. They have three children, the eldest of whom, Prince Leopold, is eight years old. Prince Albert has traveled and studied in America, and is a great student of economics and politics, is a splendid horseman, and is interested in aviation and motoring. He has even made a flight in a dirigible.

Prince Albert is a tall, soldierly looking man, more than six feet in height. He wears glasses and bears an extraordinary likeness to his uncle, King Leopold II., when he was of the same age, and also to his grandfather, King Leopold I., for they are all tall, finely built men in the Belgian royal family.

Prince Baldwin, Prince Albert's elder brother, who died suddenly in 1891, was the handsomest officer in the Belgian army. Prince Albert was equally popular in the army, never allowing any difference to exist between himself and his brother officers, again showing his resemblance to King Leopold by this democratic trait.

Little Effect on Politics.

London, Dec. 18.—It is thought here that the death of King Leopold can have little effect upon the political situation of Europe, apart from the withdrawal from the scene of the man who knew the innermost secrets of every state, and whose intellectual and practical talents, especially in former years, were drawn upon frequently by brother sovereigns.

All comment here lays at Leopold's door the responsibility for the barbarities committed in the Congo and it is believed that his removal will be followed by new methods of administering in that colony.

With the death of Leopold the lease of the Lado Enclave expires and Great Britain will resume sovereignty on behalf of the Soudan. This enclave was leased to Leopold during his life, to give the Congo access to the Nile.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Mr. Lloyd-George declared at a meeting at Walworth that the colonies and foreign nations buy British goods only because of their better quality or lower price.

Brother Michael, principal of St. Francis Roman Catholic School, Toronto, was killed by a west-bound Dundas car at Euclid avenue and Arthur street last night.

The coroner's jury in the case of the 22 Japanese killed in the Great Northern wreck four weeks ago, at Kirby Creek, near New Westminster, decided yesterday that the train crew was not to blame.

G. T. R. BRAKEMAN INSTANTLY KILLED

London, Dec. 18.—Ernest Glennon, a G.T.R. brakeman, living at Sarnia Tunnel, fell from a through freight at Ridout street here last night, and was instantly killed. His head and one arm were cut off. The body was noticed by the crossing watchman when the train had passed.

FERRETS BEAT DOGS AND GUNS

Galt, Dec. 18.—The attention of the game warden has been called to local "pot hunting." A specimen instance is that of three men with ferrets who killed 17, 10 and 18 rabbits in one afternoon's "sport." Dog and gun hunters complain that they have no chance with "pot hunters" and this fine rabbit section is fast being depleted of game.

Horse Backed Into Train.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Mrs. Thomas Hunt, of Osgoode, was killed at Osgoode crossing, over Prescott Railway, yesterday. The horse she was driving became fractious and backed into a passing train. She was 35 years old and the mother of three children.

George A. Cox, former Mayor of Ottawa, died yesterday from pneumonia.

RIFLE PRACTICE FOR U. S. SCHOOLS

Washington, Dec. 18.—Representative Hull of Iowa yesterday introduced a bill in the House providing an annual appropriation of $100,000 for rifle practice in public schools, colleges, universities and civilian rifle clubs.

Traveling expenses of superintendents to teach the art of shooting straight, and to manage competitions, are arranged for in Mr. Hull's bill.

WILL BUILD FIVE CRUISERS?

Montreal, Dec. 18.—A Liberal member of Parliament here yesterday stated that when Parliament meets in January it will be found that a vote of about three million dollars per year will be asked for from the Commons.

It is said that these cruisers will be up-to-date and will possess the very best sailing qualities, or equal to 27 knots an hour.

CAN TRADE WITH THE DOMINION

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—An order-in-council has been passed, under which vessels of the following countries will be allowed to participate in the carrying of goods and passengers between any ports in the Atlantic provinces of Canada, and any port on the Pacific coasts of Canada: South America, Italy, Germany, the Netherlands, Sweden, Norway, Austria, Hungary, Denmark, Belgium, Argentina Republic and Japan.

THE ABOLITION OF COBDENISM

London, Dec. 18.—Joseph Chamberlain, who again is a candidate for the House of Commons in Birmingham, has written the preface of a political pamphlet in which he strongly supports the position of the House of Lords in rejecting the budget.

As an election cry Mr. Chamberlain adopts: "Abolition of Cobdenism, not of the House of Lords."

Wealthy Man Suicides.

New York, Dec. 18.—Albert Walling Van Winkle, a retired lawyer and a man of wealth, committed suicide in Central Park last night by shooting. Van Winkle was 68 years old and prosperous, but the increasing popularity of the automobide had made serious inroads into his principal business venture, a harness and horse goods factory.

Belgian Trade With Canada.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—Clarence I. Desola, Belgian consul, said yesterday that the appointment of Prince Albert to the throne of Belgian would probably mean closer trade relations between that country and Canada, as he had made a study of Canada, and was known to favor the scheme.

Bicycle Accident Fatal.

Detroit, Dec. 18.—W. J. Ray, aged 80, died in the general hospital yesterday from the injuries, the result of being run down by a bicyclist several days ago. It is thought Mrs. Velande Morse of Cobalt, Ont., is a sister.

The Daily Review

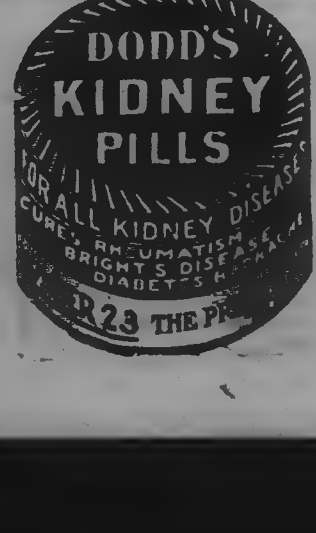
SATURDAY, DEC. 18, 1908.

AT THEIR FACE VALUE

Sir Lomer Gouin, the Prime Minister of Quebec, has just paid this province an official visit. He came to confer with Sir James Whitney and his colleagues upon the grievances of both provinces against the federal government. Chiefly, however, he spent his time in impressing upon us that Quebec was loyal to the Empire. We shall expect to see Sir Wilfrid Laurier back down from his outrageous refusal to furnish a fleet-unit or to endorse even the principle of a united empire. We shall expect to see French Canadian journals reverse their policy also and declare for what they have repeatedly declared they dreaded and hated most, viz., Imperial federation. The French are a power, perhaps THE power in Canada just now but in a united empire they would be inconsiderable as a distinct portion. Hence their policy. From Sir Lomer's professions we shall expect to see this policy reversed straightway. We all like the French. We are all prepared to be the best of friends with them. But they won't be friends. They will no more mix than oil with water. But let us see if Sir Lomer is alive to the facts.

That the French have given proofs of loyalty we do not deny. But it is useless to give proofs of loyalty when that loyalty simply means loyalty to things as they are (because those "things" happen best to suit the purposes and aspirations of the people aspiring.

We should like to speak differently but how can we in the face of daily facts in press and on platform? Sir Wilfrid's mad navy policy is a direct outcome of French ambitions. It will never materialize because it is wasteful and absurd. The end of it all will be "as you were" and that is just what we have supposed the French wanted. The diplomatic triumph of the French over the rest of us will then be complete.



EXTRACT FROM BLUE BOOK

The official records of Parliament show that the British Admiralty memorandum re Naval Defence Conference reads as follows:

"If the problem of Imperial naval defence were considered merely as a problem of naval defence it would be found that the greatest output of strength for a given expenditure is obtained by the maintenance of a single navy with the concomitant unity of training and unity of command. In furtherance then, of the simple strategical ideal the maximum of power would be gained if all parts of the Empire contributed according to their needs and resources, to the maintenance of the British navy."

It was this truly imperial suggestion that Sir Wilfrid Laurier refused to entertain in any form. He, also, had, before this, refused to acquiesce in any resolution of any sort affirming the principle of a United Empire. Is this what Canadians desire?

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Daylight-saving Bill is not dead yet? It ought to be.

The publication of the names of subscribers to charity deters many from giving.

What difference is there between Redmond's desire to tear up the Act of Union and Laurier's to deny it?

La Patrie takes La Presse severely to task for saying that Judge Cannon's report is an attack on the French race. Always LA RACE.

In a recent case in a New Brunswick court a judge, who suspected the witness of lying, at last turned to him and queried: "Do you come from Peterborough?" This is a fact.

Riot and bloodshed ensue where better means fail. When a man robs you politely it is, nevertheless, useless to argue with him. He knows he is doing wrong. What then? Shoot him! This is the modern view.

Australia has prorogued her parliament without passing any measure of preferential trade with Canada. She has begun to think that Canada, if the truth were known, does not really belong to the Empire at all. but merely hangs on for what it is worth to her.

While we publish the Globe's article on the evils of the ward system, we feel that the Smith street bridge would have been rebuilt years ago, but for the entire neglect of that end of the town by the council. It took little less than a rebellion to get anything done north of Dublin street for many years.

BOOK REVIEWS

"What a Newspaperman Saw in Britain," by Mr. J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Globe. There has been some disposition on the part of sensitive Britons to express irritation at Mr. Macdonald's searching, and in some cases biting observations upon life in the industrial centres of England. That irritation has largely abated, however, since, on reflection, the facts and sympathy expressed by the gifted writer have appeared in no false colouring. It is a book of the day, just as Mr. Macdonald is a man of the day. The volume is a result of continued inquiries for the articles as originally appearing in the Globe.

Strangled With Clothes Line.

New York, Dec. 17.—Willie Paul Gebauer was in the Police Court yesterday awaiting arraignment for intoxication, and still half dazed from the effects of drink, his wife's dead body was found in their flat in Brooklyn. The woman had been strangled to death, and her five-year-old son said that he had unwound ten feet of clothes line from around her neck. He was playing with the rope when the neighbors entered.

Blinded by Dynamite.

Cobalt, Dec. 17.—Picking into a missed hole in a tunnel under the Montreal River at Ragged Chutes, James Pardexter, colored, of New York, will probably lose the sight of both eyes, while Major Jackson, also colored, will probably lose one eye. Their faces were terribly smashed by flying rock.

The five other men in the tunnel escaped with minor injuries.

Switch-Cleaner to Millionaire.

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 17.—From switch-cleaner on an electric railway to a millionaire, is the long step made by Michael Bryer yesterday, when he received a letter from an aunt at Posen, Prussia, advising him that he was one of the heirs to an estate of $20,000,000.

Centenarian In House of Refuge.

Belleville, Dec. 17.—Philip Smith, an inmate of the county house of refuge, near this city, yesterday celebrated his 100th birthday.

J. S. Is Discussing the Question of Increasing the Army.

Washington, Dec. 17. "There is no first-class respectable power, with which we are in the slightest degree liable to have any complications or a conflict which cannot put into the field almost immediately at least 300,000 men. They would put them wherever the conflict might be more rapidly than we could move arms, organize troops and deliver them on the ground to oppose them."

This statement was made by Brig.-Gen. Crozier, chief of ordinance of the U. S. army, at his hearing before the House commission on military affairs, just before the army appropriation bill was reported to the House yesterday.

"The reserve of ammunition which we consider desirable to have," added Gen. Crozier, "considering facilities for manufacturing both in Government and private firms, has been fixed, tentatively perhaps, at 300 rounds per rifle for 600,000 rifles. If we have that upon entering into war, or active preparation for war, with the facilities we have for manufacture, operated at their full capacity day and night, we will be able to keep up the supply that will be needed.

"At the rate at which we will go under the estimate before you after June 30 next, it will require twelve years to accumulate the reserve. Manufacture is under way to run the supply on hand up to 123,000,000 rounds by June 30 next."

Railway Cars Looted.

New York, Dec. 17.—More than $100,000 worth of goods has been stolen recently from freight cars of the Michigan Central, the Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley railroads, according to detectives who appeared yesterday against four men charged with being partly responsible for the thefts.

AFRAID OF BARTERING

Sir Edward Grey Advises Against Duty on Wheat.

Once England Starts That It Will Mean a Retaliatory Campaign That Will Dismember the Empire—Brassey Wants Their Shilling Duty—Redmond Has a Fierce Battle With the Irish Papers.

London, Dec. 17.—Sir Edward Grey, addressing a meeting at Berwick, said the duty on colonial wheat was not a step towards free trade within the Empire. Once we begin to do that we shall have embarked on a system of bargaining with the colonies that would lead to retaliation between parts of the Empire, and that would be a most dangerous thing to introduce.

T. A. Brassey, speaking at Bexhill, favored a three-shilling duty on corn, with a shilling preference to the colonies; 5 per cent. on other agricultural produce and 10 per cent. on manufactured goods.

An enthusiastic reception was given at the Dublin meeting of the Irish Parliamentary party Wednesday to what was called the generous subscription from Hon. Edward Blake, and his expression of sympathy with his old colleagues in the present great struggle. Some indication of the difficulties Redmond has to face with in the National press is given by the fierce attack of the Sinn Fein, which says:

"By Redmond's resolution, the United Irish League unreservedly accepts the Liberal program and declares that the consideration of Home Rule should be deferred until the English Liberal-Socialist parties have altered the English constitution as it has existed since 1688.

"It associates Home Rule definitely with the position which one of the two great English parties abandons even every pretence of. The Irish party, acting as an independent factor in English Parliament, accepts the budget which imposes new two million taxes on Ireland."

Hot words are also being used to describe the unwritten compact between the Ministers and Socialists. The headlines in the Unionist papers read "Financing the Red Flag." "Liberal Funds for Forty-Six Socialist Candidates."

Among Radicals, on the other hand, the greatest satisfaction is expressed. Practically every opponent of the Lords is now in with the Liberals—Radicals, Socialists and Nationalists.

"In future," they say, "the House of Lords can look after itself; we mean unitedly to draw the Lords' teeth."

May Be Snead.

St. Catharines, Dec. 17.—Although Pinkerton detectives are watching a man known here as John Lucas, and employed in a hotel kitchen, but believed to be Fletcher W. Snead, husband of Ocey Snead, the East Orange, N.J., "bath tub murder" victim, the local police will make no move till word has been received from the New York police. The only difference from the description is a beard, which Lucas has grown since coming here. It completely hides his features.

When seen last night he would neither deny nor affirm that he was Snead. His nervousness was very apparent. When Snead's name was spoken, he staggered backward and narrowly escaped falling.

Massacre In Solomon Isles.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 17.—News of massacres by Solomon Islanders, because they objected to inter-marriage of their women with white men, was brought by the R.M.S. Aorangi, which reached port yesterday morning from the antipodes.

Shortly before the Aorangi left Suva, Fiji Islands, Nov. 29, news was brought from Bagga, Solomon Islands, of the massacre of Joseph Binskin, a planter, his wife and two children, and several native servants, by head hunters.

Art Treasures Bequeathed to Nation.

The total value of the collection, the making of which occupied many years, is estimated at from fifteen to twenty million dollars.

Salting was a Dane, who inherited a fortune in Australia. He lived a very retired and penurious life, save in the direction of his hobby for fine art.

Italian Delegate to Ottawa.

Rome, Dec. 17.—The appointment of the Marquis of Molinary as a special delegate to the Foreign Office to negotiate at Ottawa a treaty of commerce and reciprocity between Italy and Canada is expected immediately.

It is also likely that a commissioner of immigration will be appointed to reside in Canada to look out for Italy's immigration.

Revenue Stamps to the Winds.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 17.—Over $250,000 worth of internal revenue tax paid whisky stamps, the property of the Government, were mutilated or blown away yesterday when the iron arm attached to a mail car of a fast train failed to properly connect with a registered mail bag and threw it under the wheels.

WHAT ABOUT DEFENCE

Dr. Sproule Wants to Know Government's Plans.

Budget Debate Develops Into a Discussion of Canada's Proposed Navy and Sir Wilfrid Is Taken to Task For Not Announcing His Plans—Mr. Armstrong Has National Resource Bill.

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—The budget developed into a naval defence debate yesterday, led by Dr. Sproule.

R. L. Borden had previously asked when the Premier would bring the naval defence bill.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that it would be introduced on Jan. 12.

The debate was resumed by Dr. Sproule, who could not understand the delay. Canada expected that something should be done immediately and effectively, yet the House had now been sitting for six weeks and nothing had been done.

The House listened attentively to a eulogy of the work of the present administration by J. L. Fowke (South Ontario). He avoided the subject of naval defence.

W. F. Maclean said he waited for a long time to hear the naval defence views of the Government. Apparently they were contained in the budget speech, yet all the Finance Minister said was that the Government intended, out of the current revenue, to carry out a policy in regard to naval defence. There were to be no loans.

J. R. Stratton of Peterboro, reviewed the expenditures made by the present Government, justifying them on the ground that they were necessary for proper development of the Dominion. He twitted opposition with being divided on the naval question. He was personally opposed to a contribution to the British navy on the ground that there should be no taxation of Canadians to raise money for others to spend.

Mr. McCall, Northumberland, who followed, criticized the Government for spending large sums of money on public buildings in places of small population.

J. E. Armstrong introduced a bill to amend the act to establish a commission for the conservation of our national resources. He explained that the chairman of the commission could send them out to examine mines, lands, waterpowers, etc., and these men, spending public money in doing so, could make these properties their own.

The bill proposed to prevent that No member of the commission or persons employed by it should purchase, lease, acquire or obtain on royalty or otherwise any dominion or provincial franchises, fishing rights, waterpowers, water privileges, lands, mines, mineral lands or timber limits, or in any way contract therefor, or acquire any interest therein, either for himself or as an agent. The information obtained must not be disclosed to any person except members of the commission.

The penalty should be forfeiture of any such property acquired and $1,000 fine for each violation.

Claude Macdonnel drew the attention of the Minister of Marine to the loss of life caused by the wreck of the Bessemer II. on Lake Erie and by other similar wrecks.

He said there were no proper marine signals at Port Stanley, Port Burwell or Port Rondeau.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur said he had given instructions to have a careful inquiry into the matter.

Mr. Marshall asked if it was not the case that petitions for lights had been presented to his Department.

Mr. Brodeur said he could not undertake to answer these questions without due notice.

The speaker gave his ruling yesterday upon the point of order raised by F. D. Monk, Wednesday, when Sir Frederick Borden, replying to Col Worthington, who inquired regarding the Ross Rifles Mark I. made some comments upon the member for Sherbrooke.

The Speaker said that while Col. Worthington's question was in some respects irregular, the answer given must be clearly stated, and there should be no comment whatever.

Col. Worthington rose to a point of order. He desired that a remark by Sir Frederick regarding himself—"answer a fool according to his folly"—be withdrawn. Sir Frederick agreed to the deletion of the remark from Hansard.

To Put a Stop to Ore Thieving.

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—Mr. Gordon of Nipissing introduced a bill in the House yesterday to amend the criminal code, so as to stop the illegal traffic in silver in the district of Nipissing, to put receivers out of business, and to throw on a person in the possession of ore the onus of proving where he got it.

Drowns In Culvert.

Hamilton, Dec. 17.—Wm. G. Hill, who until recently resided on a farm near Weston, drove over a culvert to Glanford Station. The heavy wagon in which he was driving upset, and pinned him down in the shallow water, and he was drowned. His brother had a narrow escape.

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterboroug Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

THREE ATTEMPTS TO DISCREDIT LOCAL OPTION

The liquor interests in Peterborough have at last shown their hand. For over eleven months the advocates of local option have invited the supporters of the Open Bar to come forward and discuss the question on its merits. This they have declined to do. Within the past few days, however, they have made three contributions to the discussion of the question. First, distributing a pamphlet entitled, "A Thoughtful Article for Thoughtful People on Local Option and Prohibition." This article is written by the Rev. W. A. Wasson, whose address is not given. Second, they have distributed a bill entitled, "Owen Sound's Awful Record," in which they have attempted to prove that drunkenness and crime in Owen Sound have increased since the adoption of Local Option. Third, they have distributed a pamphlet entitled, "Where Local Option Fails." The author of this article is not given, it simply being stated that the facts were sifted by a Toronto newspaper man.

Only a brief examination of these various articles show how weak the side of the liquor interests is. The fact that they do not give the post office address of Rev. Mr. Wasson indicates that they do not care to have this man's record examined and exposed to the people of Peterborough. The temperance workers of Peterborough, however, have been making investigations and have secured information that leads to the conclusion that the Rev. Mr. Wasson is a paid campaign worker for the liquor interests in the United States.

Might we ask why the advocates of the Open Bar do not bring the Rev. Mr. Wasson to Peterborough to speak on this question. The temperance workers are bringing speakers not only from various points in Ontario, but from the United States as well. These men are prepared to argue the question on its merits. Their names and addresses are given.

Rev Mr. Wasson claims that prohibition has proved a failure in Georgia. Next Wednesday night the Temperance League will have the Hon. Seaborn Wright, a well-known public man, of Georgia, address a mass meeting in the Opera House here, on this question. The speaker will be prepared to demonstrate conclusively that prohibition has been a success in Georgia.

As the arguments put forth in this pamphlet were effectively answered in the opera house last Sunday afternoon by Mr. Irwin, K.C., of Toronto, and as many of them were answered in this column last week, further notice of this pamphlet seems unnecessary

Only Part of the Facts Given.

The dodger purporting to show an increase of crime in Owen Sound affords another indication of how the cause of the liquor interests has to be bolstered up. It is significant that this dodger reports convictions for only six months in each year, instead of for the full year. Those are the six months of the year when sailors from distant points frequent the city. The fact also that this doger is not signed by any person shows that no one cares to father it. The City Temperance League stands by anything that it publishes. Why are our opponents not willing to do the same? More extended reference is given to the dodger below in this article.

As regards the pamphlet entitled "Where Local Option Fails," it is significant that it also is not fathered by any person, not even the name of the Toronto newspaper man being given. What is wanted in this campaign is clear cut, definite statements made by men who are not afraid or ashamed to make their identity known.

WHAT GOOD HAS THE BAR ROOM DONE YOU?

WHAT ABOUT OWEN SOUND?

The dodger entitled "Owen Sound's Awful Record," claimed that crime was three times greater under local option than under license, and that local option had debauched Owen Sound." In support of this are quoted some police court returns for a part of each year since 1903. Why were not the returns for the full year given in each case? If this had been done the story would have been somewhat different. But, admitting that the figures are correct as far as they go, does it necessarily follow that they prove the "shocking" condition that is claimed for them?

Testimony of Citizens.

A representative of the Peterborough Temperance League in Owen Sound this week made an honest and vigorous effort to arrive at the truth. It was found that the testimony is almost unanimous that crime of every sort has greatly decreased under local option. This is especially the case in the class, "Drunk and Disorderly," though it is there that the convictions seem to show the greatest increase. People of every class were consulted, including merchants, manufacturers, hotel-keepers, draymen, laborers, ministers and school teachers. The testimony as to the decrease of crime is so general that one is forced to the conclusion that everyone, who is honest and whose opinion is not warped by prejudice believes it. Many who were and still are opposed to local option on other grounds admit that it is not true that crime has increased under the operation of the by-law.

The Explanation.

It is well known that before the abolition of the open bar, Owen Sound had a most unenviable reputation for drunkenness so much so that it is admitted by the authorities that under the former order of things practically no attempt was made to suppress drunkenness. No man was arrested unless he was engaged in some violent disorder or was so drunk that he was in the gutter. Besides that drunks were secreted about the hotel or helped home when incapable. After the adoption of local option a new order of things was brought about about in three different way. First, a new police magistrate come into office who pursued a different policy in dealing with drunks; and, as a result, many convictions were made where cases would formerly have been dismissed. Second, those who have supplied the "booze" since local option come in have been afraid to have drunks on their premises, so that as soon as one began to show symptoms of being about loaded up he was pushed out for the police to gather in. Third, there has been, as every one knows, a deliberate attempt to discredit local option in Owen Sound, and one of the plans has been to run in and convict every possible drunk, just for the purpose of doing precisely what this dodger attempts to do, namely, prove that drunkenness has increased.

Owen Sound's Answer.

Every ratepayer of Peterborough, when confronted with statements like those referred to, should remember that the men and women of Owen Sound were given a year ago a chance to reply to such statements. Notwithstanding the fact that money was freely spent, cart loads of literature were distributed, the most eloquent advocates that money could procure were put on to expatiate on the beauties of an open bar, and the evil and debauchery of local option, yet the people who were on the ground and knew the situation as we cannot hope to, declared by a large majority that the present condition was to be preferred to the former. That was their answer, most emphatically expressed, and it ought to convince every reasonable person that local option is proving a success in Owen Sound.

The Field

A few days ago this diagram was prepared to show the situation in this province of Ontario, with its 806 municipalities. It shows the proportionate numbers that have licenses and are free from licenses. It, of course, does not represent the proportions of either territory of population from which bar rooms are excluded, but the numerical fact it does represent is both instructive and inspiring. The white part of the circle stands for the corporate municipalities that are free from licenses and the shaded and black parts the municipalities in which the liquor traffic still operates. The shaded was intended to indicate the number in which local option contests are now going on.

So rapid, however, is the progress of our course that any statement of its position is out of date almost as soon as it is published.

Already the field of fight is enlarged, and the number of places in which campaigns are under way is

164

In how many of these shall we win? That depends upon ourselves, upon our earnestness, our wisdom, our energy, our loyalty to God and our fellow-men. The "wins" in the highest and best sense of the term who does his full duty.

HELD OVER.

Owing to pressure of other matter, some local option matter is held over to-day. It will appear Monday.

Our Country's Future Depends Upon Our Manhood and Womanhood, The Bar-room Business is Built up by the Ruin of Both.

Breaches of the License Law.

This is another place where there has been an increase in the number of convictions. This was probably to be expected, but here as in the other case, part of the increase is due to the coming in of a new license inspector. A good indication of the efficiency of the former occupant of the the office is to be found in the fact that on his retirement, he was tendered a banquet and presented with a purse of gold by the license holders. A very significant circumstance in this connection is that of the 85 informations laid in 1908 for illegal selling 67 were against hotel keepers. Of 37 convictions, 35 were against the same class. Eight out of 9 persons who absconded, and 5 out of 6 who went to jail, were of the same class. This would seem to indicate that the much maligned blind pig is a very unimportant factor in the case. The law-breaking is nearly all done by the people who urged that local option takes the trade out of the hands of the "decent" people who handle it under license and give it to—"blind pigs."

The Officials.

Mayor Harrison has been from the beginning, a vigorous opponent of local option. Unlike many others in Owen Sound, he has not yet changed his mind. When spoken to he refused to make any statement if it was to be made public. However, when questioned in regard to the "dodger" he admitted that the statements that crime had greatly increased, and that Owen Sound had been debauched were not in accordance with fact.

The chief of police, while not friendly to local option, does not believe that it has increased crime in any such way as is indicated by the number of convictions. Other members of the force, who were familiar with conditions both before and since the advent of local option, state freely that there is a marked decrease in the number of drunks to be seen on the streets.

Newspaper editors, business men, and others can be seen in Owen Sound who are emphatic in their statement that no more liquor is now sold illegally during prohibited hours under license, and this present law is being violated by the very same people who violated the license law. The statement was made by several people that had all the drunks been run in during the last week of license the number would be greater than for any whole year since.

SENSATIONAL CHARACTER EVIDENCE

Comprised the Bulk of the Testimony at the Perjury Trial This Morning—Witnesses Swear That They Wouldn't Believe Officers on Oath—"Not Guilty" the Verdict.

After Forty Minutes Deliberation This Afternoon The Jury in the Case of the Crown vs. Graham Returned and Foreman George Hardicke Announced the Verdict "Not Guilty."

With the intention of having the case discontinued on the grounds that the indictment should be quashed for the reasons he submitted yesterday at the opening of the trial on the charge of perjury of G. N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental, Mr. O'Connell, accused's counsel, asked this morning that the case be dismissed by his Honor Judge Huycke.

The accused was alleged to have sworn falsely and corruptly in his trial at the police court for selling liquor after hours on the night of Sunday, September 21st, and in which a conviction was made on the evidence of police officers. Mr. O'Connell said in his opinion the judgment of the court on his objection could have but one inevitable result. He did not think it unnecessary to waste the time of the court in proceeding further with the trial.

Crown Attorney Wood stated that on account of the large number of witnesses for the defence the case could not be finished to-day. He moved that the jurors outside of those sitting on the present case be dismissed and suggested that the cases other than the one before the court be traversed to the next session. If the indictment in the present case were quashed, or if the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty" the other cases might be dropped.

Mr. O'Connell said that serious charges hung over the heads of the accused and it was the prime object to give them justice and as speedy a trial as possible.

The court ruled in favor of Mr. O'Connell and said he would not force him to discontinue any of the cases. His Honor intimated that if the prisoner were found "not guilty" it would be unnecessary to deal with the indictment, and anyway his judgment could be appealed.

What appeared to be very damaging character evidence was given by several witnesses who testified concerning the veracity of P. C's Newhall and Meharry.

THE EVIDENCE.

P. J. Carroll, the first witness this morning, with the exception of a a couple of a space of time has been a bartender at the Oriental for 19 years. He was there last November. Each of the two bartenders had a key to the cash register and they take them home with them after they leave the bar. The witness was not in the bar on Sunday evening, November 21st and did not know what went on at the hotel. The settee near the hotel office was used by the bellboys. There were no arms on it.

Chris G. Graham, son of the proprietor and manager, of the Oriental, was next called. His father had very little part in the active management of the hotel. He had nothing to do with the business of the bar. Each bartender had a key and the witness had a key of the lid which when opened, did not give access to the cash compartment, but showed the reading of the money placed in the cash register. When the bartenders took away their keys it would be impossible for the father of the witness to operate the register. The witness remembered taking the cash out of the register about 7.30 on Saturday evening. The hydraulic pressure that was used for the lager and the taps was turned off at 11 o'clock on every week night but Saturday, when it was turned off at seven o'clock. The witness said the settee opposite the cigar stand at the east wall of the rotunda was for the bellboys to sit on. There was no arm on it.

POLICE OFFICERS GAVE EVIDENCE

"No, sir, I did not," replied witness.

"Did you have a drink during your stay at the hotel?"

"Nothing from the bar."

Witness stated that he and Graham went out for a walk on Sunday morning between one and two o'clock, but nothing was seen of the police officers. He knew they walked towards the west, but as to where they went further than this he could not say, as he did not know the name of the streets.

Victor Fowler said he worked at M. Pappas'. He remembered being at the Oriental Hotel on Sunday night, November 21st. Graham, Maunder and Connor were also there. He was at the hotel from 10 p.m. till 2 a.m. Witness denied having had a drink during that time, or having gone into the passageway. Graham did not go into the bar to his knowledge, and he did not see Lawrence at the hotel.

Cross-examined, witness said that he did not notice any travellers arrive. In reply to questions as to his occupation, he said he worked at the fall exhibitions in Lindsay and Peterborough. He took pictures on buttons, and had sold programmes, but was not in any tricks to rope in the public. He had also worked at the Canadian General Electric Company on several occasions, and was employed by S. H. Knox as floor manager when the store was opened here. He also played billiards.

"Aren't you a poker player?" witness was asked.

"I've played poker," was the reply.

"Often?"

"No, not very often."

Witness stated that he did not rely on the revenue received from this game for his living.

G. N. Graham was next called.

"One witness says your hotel is the leading one in the city. What do you say?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"I've always thought so until lately," replied the witness.

"It is said that you served drinks to Maunder and Fowler, is that true?"

"It is not."

Witness said he might have been in the bar, but did not remember having lighted a match. He was positive that no liquor had been served. Lawrence was not around the hotel Sunday night as far as he knew. He remembered having left the hotel and gone to the stable. This was to see the stableman in regard to two chickens for Maunder.

The statement made by Lawrence that he had been given a drink was a fabrication. In regard to the water pressure and the cash register, witness stated that he did not have anything to do with either. He did not know how the former worked, nor, did he know which of the taps the beer was drawn from. The statements made about his having gone to the bar and drawn liquor were false.

To Mr. Wood witness stated that he did not remember having met P. C. Adams while out walking.

He might have been in the bar three times.

"Didn't you threaten to lick Lawrence yesterday?"

"No, I did not."

"Didn't you call him some bad names?"

"No."

Witness would say very little in regard to the bell boy, John Brown.

Mr. O'Connell—"My learned friend has intimated that you were instrumental in sending the boy away. Were you?"

"No. He went away because he was afraid I might say something to him for having caused an injury to one of the horses."

Witness produced a letter received from Brown, in which he asked to be given his position again. The letter stated that the writer was sorry for the accident to the horse.

"That letter was the first intimation you had of the boy being away?"

"Yes."

Thomas McDonough, clerk at the hotel, told of the rule in regard to the cash register and the water pressure. There were only three keys to the former, one for each of the bartenders and the other for Chris. Graham.

It was impossible for anyone else to open it. The water pressure was supposed to be turned off by the bartenders at the close of the day's work, but he did not know how it was operated. There was no handles on the settee used by the bell boys.

To Mr. Wood witness again said he did not know how to work the water pressure.

Harry Stinson, next called, said he was a bartender at the hotel. He explained about the working of the cash register. He carried his key with him always. The receipts for the day were left in the register until the following morning, when they were taken charge of by Chris. Graham. The water pressure was turned off on Saturday night, November 20, and it was not on when he came to work on Monday morning.

To Mr. Wood witness said to operate the water pressure all that was necessary was to turn a tap.

Patrick Carroll was called, but no evidence was taken and the court adjourned.

The members of the jury were warned as to how to conduct themselves. His Honor stated that he had decided that they should be allowed to go to their homes, and he charged them strictly not to discuss the evidence with anyone.

SPORTING NEWS

WHEN PETERBOROUGH WON INTERMEDIATE RUGBY HONORS OF THE DOMINION IN 1901

Peterborough teams have won many championships in various lines of sport. Prominent among them was the winning of the intermediate rugby championship of Canada in 1901. In the final game at Montreal Peterborough defeated Quebec, 16—9. The account of the game in the Review at that time will make interesting reading. It is as follows:—

Thanksgiving Day, 1901, will go down to history as having been marked by an event triumphant in Peterborough sporting circles. This was the winning of the intermediate championship of Canada by the local club, champions of the O.R.F.U. The victors are to-day being congratulated on every hand upon their success, for they won laurels, of which they may well be proud. The match was played on the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association's grounds, and victory came to Peterborough by 16 points to 9. The grounds had been covered with snow, and though swept clean, were still hard and slippy, and the thermometer hovered around the zero mark. Under such circumstances there were only a couple of hundred spectators.

The teams and officials were:

Quebec—W. Pugh, Farrell, Toofield and Stocking, full ball; McWilliams, quarter; Gordon, Pope and Lindsay, scrimmage; McGreevy, Rattray, Power, McGillivray, Scott, Stuart and T. Pugh, forwards.

Peterborough — Full-back, Scott; halves, McPherson, Burnham and McDonald; quarter, Bell; scrimmage, Revel, Noble and Bainard; wings, Dillon, Picard, Meagher, Rackey, Graham, Smith and Crowley.

This team was considerably stronger than that which played in London, the work of McDonald, Crowley, and Revel being noticeably valuable.

Officials—Referee, Phil Mackenzie; umpire, W. Christie.

Quebec having won the toss, chose to play with the wind, which was fairly strong from the east, and blowing directly along the field. But, notwithstanding the wind, Peterborough gained the first point, for shortly after the kick-off Quebec's backs muffed and Peterborough followed up fast, securing a try, which, though easy, was not converted. Score, Peterborough 4, Quebec 0.

Quebec, however, recovered, and the halves did some pretty work, running and passing, until Farrell was able to kick over the line. In the scramble which followed, Quebec secured a try, which Stocking converted. Peterborough 4, Quebec 6.

Quebec punted over the goal line again, and Scott, while trying to run out, was tackled and compelled to rouge. Peterborough 4, Quebec 7.

There was some delay because Powers was hurt on the head. Then Burnham, of Peterborough, who all along played a cool and effective game, got the ball from scrimmage and passed out to MacPherson, cleverly dodged half a dozen opponents and punted over the Quebec goal line. The Quebec back division bungled the ball, and Revvel got a try, which, however, was not converted. Score, Peterborough 8, Quebec 7.

Farrell, of Quebec, hurt his leg and had to retire, his place being taken by Genest. Crowley, of Peterborough, went off for five minutes, but he did not know why, though it looked like persistent off-side work. Then the ball went in to touch near Peterborough's goal line, and from the resulting scrimmage Peterborough, by pretty work of the quarter, got the ball out a bit, but the field captured, and, kicking over, compelled Peterborough to rouge. Peterborough 8, Quebec 8.

Shortly after Quebec got a free kick on account of Peterborough's off-side work in scrimmage, and compelled Peterborough to rouge again. The half time was called and the score stood Peterborough 8, Quebec 9. Peterborough had done very well against the wind, and the expectation was that with the wind in the second half they would do much better, but Quebec managed to keep possession of the ball the greater part of the time, and Peterborough had few chances to use the wind. Quebec, however, in their anxiety to keep the ball, got off-side in the scrimmage, and Peterborough being given a free kick, sent the ball over the goal line and got a rouge. Peterborough 9, Quebec 9.

For some time, though, the ball was within Quebec's 25 yard line; their stubborn defence prevented Peterborough from scoring. Finally McPherson made a beautiful run for 30 yards, and then a fortunate free kick enabled Peterborough to punt over the line for another rouge. Peterborough 10, Quebec 9.

The play continued to be chiefly in Quebec territory, but Peterborough could not get possession of the ball or take advantage of the wind. Finally, when about three minutes of playing time remained, Peterborough was awarded a free kick about Quebec's 25 yard line. Peterborough followed up fast and rattled Quebec's defence, and Graham got a try, which was converted. Score: Peterborough 16, Quebec 9.

No further points were scored and Peterborough thus became Intermediate champions of Canada. On the side of Peterborough the most effective work was done by Burnham, whose quick, cool, judicious punting reminded one of "Eddie" Gleeson. When he got a chance he was effective, but the Quebec people seemed to have a better knowledge of scrimmage work, and especially in the second half kept possession of the ball so long that Peterborough could rarely take advantage of the wind. Crowley also figured in many brilliant and effective plays.

The team, with the supporters who took in the trip to Montreal, and displayed extreme interest in the match, arrived home from the east early this morning.

"It has been stated here that you have two men watching the police and when they are not doing this a bellboy sits on the arm of the settee and does this."

The witness termed the first part of it a lie, the part about the settee not only a lie, but an impossibility as there was no arm on the settee.

"Evidently something is being hidden," ventured Mr. Wood.

"I wish to take strong objection to any such remark," said Mr. O'Connell.

"I don't think it's right to say that, Mr. Wood," said the court.

HAVE LITTLE CONFIDENCE IN OFFICER.

Mr. W. H. Denham, manager of the Quaker Oats Co., said he had been here since 1904. To Mr. O'Connell the witness said he wouldn't believe P.C. Newhall on his oath. He would believe George Graham. Before the witness had been subpoenaed on liquor case he didn't believe in Newhall, and that opinion had been strengthened by that case, as Newhall had laid false information against him.

Mr. A. Haskill has been a resident of Peterborough for twenty-five years. He knew P.C. Newhall. From what the general public said the witness said he wouldn't believe P.C. Newhall on oath.

Mr. Joseph Stewart, the local license inspector, said he had watched the hotel with P.C. Newhall. He watched it several times during the present and past year. If he had seen anything wrong with it he would have laid an information. There were no beer pumps in the Oriental. The witness thought Newhall's veracity was bad, and that he colored his testimony from what he could learn.

Mr. O'Connell—"Would you believe him on oath?"

"I would not."

Mr. Stewart told the county crown attorney that he had no particularly ill feelings against the police officer.

W. A. Howard, chief of the Peterborough Fire Department, knew P.C. Newhall. The policeman had, the chief thought, a shady reputation in regard to veracity.

"He's considered a little slippery in that respect."

Richard Sheehy wouldn't say that P.C. Newhall's reputation was very good. He wouldn't believe him on oath.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt said he was at the court under protest, as he would rather testify for a man than against him, but he didn't approve of the methods employed by P.C. Newhall. He believed Newhall was an ambitious man. The witness said that he was of the opinion that Newhall, in his anxiety to get convictions, overstepped the mark, and he would not care to accept his evidence, unless it was very well corroborated.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, the defeated Conservative candidate in the late election, in which Mr. Stratton, M.P., was successful, deposed on the stand in reply to questions as to how he came to think Constable Meharry unworthy of belief, that Meharry had told him, Chief Constable Roszel and others that he saw men lining up before a little room going in and coming out with money at Stratton's committee rooms on election day, and that R. R. Hall had offered him $25 to swear that he had seen nothing, and that at the trial of the protest, Meharry swore that he had seen nothing. Mr. Burnham also said that Chief Roszel, when he saw the certified evidence as given by Meharry, expressed his sorrow and astonishment at Meharry's untruthfulness at the protest trial.

Ernest Bartlett was next called to give character evidence against P.C. Meharry. He knew Constable Meharry. The witness said he saw Meharry and he said to Bartlett: "What the h--- are you going to say up there? Didn't I tell the truth at that trial (the West Peterborough election protest.)

Bartlett told Meharry he didn't when he denied his (Bartlett's) evidence, and the policeman threatened to make it hot for Bartlett if he testified against him.

The judge characterized this as most improper.

Mr. James Kennedy, a printer at the Times, said P.C. Meharry's reputation was bad. He wouldn't believe him on oath. He was under that impression ever since his evidence at the election trial. He heard P.C. Meharry make statements before the trial that were entirely inconsistent with what he swore at the trial.

Mr. O'Connell said that under the exceptional circumstances he would like to call Mr. G. N. Gordon, one of the counsel for the prisoner. He was allowed to do so.

Mr. Gordon said in his evidence yesterday that P.C. Newhall did not state the whole truth. On going from the court yesterday Newhall said to Mr. Gordon, "You're beaten again," and under the provocation he told Newhall he intended to have him arrested for perjury, or else said he would lay a charge against him.

This concluded the case for the defence.

MR. O'CONNELL'S ADDRESS.

The counsel for the defence, in an eloquent address to the Jury, reviewed very thoroughly the evidence for both the prosecution and defence, and characterised the testimony of the police officers as absurdly improbable and inconsistent. Their characters had been impeached by respectable witnesses for the defence. Mr. O'Connell spoke of the failure of the police officers to get travellers who came in on the midnight train to give testimony when they were right there getting drinks, as alleged by the constables. Lawrence had proved to be a liar either in or out of the box, and he was the star witness for the Crown. "Now, gentlemen," said the counsel, "a liar is a liar at all times."

He held that it would be entirely wrong to even consider the evidence of Lawrence, and especially in view of the very serious charge against Graham.

Mr. O'Connell placed great stress on the anxiety of police officers in general—even honest police officers—to get convictions. He compared in a striking way the eagerness of police officers for convictions to that of hunters running down big game. The attention of the jury was called to the fact that night ended at 12 o'clock midnight. Mr. O'Connell's arraignment of the constables was a severe and cutting one, and by his references toward them showed them in his opinion, to be utterly unworthy of belief, and therefore no case had been established.

CROWN ATTORNEY'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Wood said in his address at the opening of the afternoon session, that there were many strong corroborative circumstances to prove that Lawrence was telling the truth. There was nothing to indicate that P.C. Meharry had not given straightforward evidence, and the same applied to P.C. Newhall. Was their bearing in the box and the character of their evidence generally not such as to give proof that they were telling the truth? What object could they have in concocting such a story as they told in court? It was unreasonable to believe that Meharry, Newhall and Lawrence would appear against Graham purely out of malice. Maunder, one of the witnesses for the defence, was a confessed lawbreaker— a cock fighter. Then there was Victor Fowler, who was innately a gambler. Bringing up the point of the cash register, the Crown prosecutor said that Graham might have been putting the money for the drinks on the cash register.

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE.

The charge, said his honor, was a matter that should be carefully ferreted out in justice to both the community and the prisoner. The Crown had pressed home its case strongly but not unfairly and Graham's case had been splendidly presented and he had been brilliantly defended. The jury as honest, far-seeing men, were to consider all the evidence and to bring in a verdict on what appeared to them to be the facts of the evidence. If they were prejudiced against policemen or hotel keepers it was their duty to throw these prejudices to the winds. It was most incumbent for the Crown to prove the case beyond any doubt. There was no doubt that the oath that Graham had taken was an oath in a competent court, but what the jurors had to do was to decide whether or not this oath was false. Lawrence was corroborated in some details by the testimony of the police officers.

Evidence had been given against the police officers. The constable who overstepped the mark for the purpose of getting convictions was compared by the judge to the fireman who started fires for the glory of putting them out. At the same time he did not wish this comparison applied to the police officers who gave evidence. The court was pained to see, however, that evidence had been given against the credibility of the officers testifying.

His Honor dwelt for some time on case for the defence. The reflection made against Graham about spiriting away the bellboy had been effectively met by the bellboy's letter to Graham asking the latter to take him back again. The character evidence against the constables was dwelt upon by the court and this should be carefully considered. The jury retired about 3.30 o'clock.

TWO CASES DROPPED

Court House, 4.10 p.m.—The cases against Maunder and Fowler have dropped, and a verdict of acquittal entered.

Ideal weather conditions brought a large number of farmers to the city to-day with a plentiful supply of farm produce and poultry and it also had the effect of attracting one of largest crowds of buyers seen about the market for some time. On the market square, vegetables and meats were the principal offerings. Up in the market hall poultry was everywhere in evidence and the prices were away up. Turkeys brought as high as 19c. per pound, while chickens went at from 65c. to $100 a pair.

Magistrate ordered that the fine be paid forthwith.

The accused stated that an appeal would be entered, and at the close of the court communicated with headquarters over the long-distance telephone to secure instructions.

Fennel stated that while he had purchased 95 turkeys, only five of that number were secured before ten o'clock.

THE VERY NEWEST IN XMAS CARDS

Some Very Beautiful Cards, Calendars and Post Cards, the Work of Raphael Tuck & Sons—Are Obtainable at all Book Stores.

Have you ever seen the lovely cards, calendars and booklets that are issued this year by Raphael, Tuck and Sons, and which can be bought at all the bookstores in the city. They grow prettier every year, and it would seem as if the limit of beauty were reached each time. But each year new ideas are brought out and meet with the approval of all those who delight in pretty things. One of the newest ideas this year, as the card wallets. These come in boxes containing eight or a dozen and are beautifully embossed in white or in colors, and look very dainty and good.

Then there are some beautiful calendars showing coaching scenes, hunting scenes and flowers, and these are certainly well worth having. When the calender has outgrown its usefulness the pictures would look well framed and would be very suitable for your den or library.

A new idea in Christmas cards are those that are made in velvet in the natural shades of the flowers represented. These are very beautiful and are exceptionally rich looking.

The variety of postcards for Christmas use seems unlimited, and there are all kinds to suit all tastes. These will doubtless be as popular as Christmas cards for sending to out-of-town friends as the ordinary Christmas cards, as they are very pretty and in many unique designs.

If you are looking for some particular choice designs in cards and calendars be sure and ask for Raphael, Tuck and Son's and you will get the very nicest. All the stationers have them.

BOBBY BURNS OF SINGERS

Harry Lauder's Concerts at Massey Hall—Cheap Railway Rates

When Harry Lauder appeared last season in Toronto at Massey Hall he made a new high mark for concert receipts, even in the great auditorium where Caruso, Paderewski, Melba, the Sheffield and Mendelssohn choirs have drawn many thousands of dollars. His only appearance in Ontario will be one entire week, beginning December 20, with six matinees and six evening performances at Massey Hall.

Mr. Lauder has added many new songs to his already extensive repertoire, the most popular of which is perhaps "Bounding Over the Bounding Main," describing his voyage to the South Pole with Lieut. Shackelton.

The "Bobby Burns" of singers will be assisted by an admirable vaudeville concert company.

Beginning Tuesday, December 21, the cheap Christmas rates will be in force, and will enable residents of this city to go to Toronto for Harry Lauder and any necessary shopping.

Seats can be secured by writing the manager, Massey Hall.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. POLICE OFFICERS GAVE EVIDENCE

In the Perjury Charge Against G. N. Graham — One Witness for Crown Gave Evidence of Bad Memory—Opening of Defence's Case.

At the opening of the trial of G. N. Graham on the charge of perjury, at the county court yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, the counsel for the defence, Mr. D. O'Connell, made a vigorous effort to have the indictment quashed by his Honor Judge Huycke, and the proceedings dropped in consequence. Mr. O'Connell's effort did not prove to be one of immediate success, but the court received his objection to consider and pass judgment upon. The defence claimed the indictment was not sufficiently strong, and not worded in a direct and explanatory enough way.

The counsel for the defence did succeed in having one count of the indictment dropped, however, before the case went to trial. The accused was arraigned on two counts, and the word 'night' was mentioned in both. In the first count it was not elaborated upon sufficiently to give it a meaning to cover the time that it was apparently the intention of the Crown it should cover, and as a consequence, the count was abandoned. In the second count it was the intention of the prosecution to give the word "night" a wide meaning, and the period of night—"on the night of November 21st"—was meant to extend past midnight.

Mr. O'Connell objected to the second count on the ground that it was not the night of the 21st after 12 o'clock, midnight, and objected at various points in the giving of the evidence by the Crown witnesses, on the ground that their testimony did not apply to the case as the period they spoke of was after midnight and not on the night of the 21st. On the other hand, County Crown Attorney Wood argued that within the meaning of the code, night did extend beyond midnight, and quoted to prove this, but Mr. O'Connell stated that a superficial definition of the word did not alter the fact that it was morning and not night after midnight. The court received the objection which Mr. O'Connell wished applied to all the evidence which referred to anything that happened after twelve o'clock on the night in question.

The history of the charge against George N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental Hotel is too well known to require any detailed deilniation. It developed out of alleged false evidence which the defendant gave under oath in proceedings in the police court against him for selling liquor on the night of Sunday, the 21st of November and in which case a conviction was brought in by Police Magistrate Dumble, and the defendant fined $200 and costs. In giving evidence on his own behalf, Mr. Graham swore that he did not serve liquor to Ernest Lawrence and others on the night of the 21st, as against the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution, and it was for this reason that the charge of perjury was laid against him. The first witness called for the Crown was Police Magistrate Dumble, and he was followed in the order named by Chief Rossel, Ernest Lawrence, P. C. Newhall and P. C. Meharry. This concluded the case for the prosecution.

As mentioned, an effort to have the indictment quashed was made by the defence at the opening of the session yesterday afternoon. Mr. O'Connell said that the indictment was not sufficiently strong, as worded, to place the defendant on trial for perjury.

In his argument to have the indictment upset, the defending counsel stated that section 170 of the criminal code defined perjury as a statement made by a witness, whether the statement was material or not, with the intent to mislead the court, the witness knowing the statement to be false. It was not alleged in the indictment against Graham that the assertion he made under oath was known by the witness to be false, and given with the intent to mislead the court. Counsel held that this should have been incorporated in the indictment, and as it had not been, the indictment was therefore imperfect and not strong enough to place the prisoner on trial to defend the charge. Mr. O'Connell read an appeal allowed in the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, the King versus Cohon, in which the indictment had been quashed and the appeal granted and judgment arrested. He cited the case as practically a paralel of the one before the court in the matter of the insufficient wording of the indictment. The court in this instance in Nova Scotia had said that the indictment had to be quashed, as there was no alegation that the defendant knowingly swore falsely and corruptly with intent to mislead the court. This judgment of the Supreme Court was made after the prisoner had been convicted. The code in another section showed that the indictment should be worded so as to sufficently charge the prisoner with the offence he had been indicted upon. Mr. O'Connel also held that the offence charged against his client could not be brought in as an indictable ofence, in case the indictment was quashed, as the law on the point stated that the jurors had no power to modify the original indictment.

Mr. Wood, in reply, stated that the indictment in the case in the Nova Scotia Supreme Court that Mr. O'Connell had mentioned, was where an affadavit was falsely taken that resulted in the proceedings against the prisoner, and alleged that the indictment brought in against Graham contained sufficient information. It was different from the one given by the counsel for the defence, inasmuch as the offence charged before the court had been committed at a preliminary hearing. The one in the Nova Scotia case would of necessity have to be elaborated, but in Graham's case there was the depositions taken at the police court which would be read to the jury. He held that the indictment in the present case gave the prisoner all the information required, and gave authorities on the point for the purpose of proving the correctness of his position. The form he had submitted was the authorized one, and was quite sufficient in every detail.

Mr. O'Connell responded by quoting that an indictment must contain all the essential ingredients of the charge. If an indictment was in such a form that it did not charge a crime, and the nature and quality of that crime it could not be amended.

His Honor said he would reserve his judgment on the matter.

As the first count had been abandoned the prisoner was placed on trial on the second one, and subject to demurrer, pleaded "not guilty."

Mr. O'Connell wanted to know in what order the other defendants indicted on the charge of perjury would be tried, and Mr. Wood announced that their cases would come up in the sequence given: Maunder, Carroll and Fowler.

The jury was sworn in as follows: George Hardwicke, James Gilbert, Jos. Gray, James McGuire, Charles Greystock, G. H. Hunter, Fred A. Boyce, Kenneth Burgess, Thomas Forsythe, J. J. Moore, James Murphy, Thomas Flynn.

OPENING OF CROWN'S CASE.

In opening the case for the prosecution, Mr. Wood said that the charge was that the prisoner committed wilful and corrupt perjury. The depositions in the police court trial of Graham would be presented to the jury. Their duty was a simple and plain one. It was a clear cut question of fact.

Mr. D. W. Dumble was the first witness called. He identified the depositions and read them over. The trial in the police court commenced on the 7th of December.

The substance of the depositions was reported fully in the papers at the time they were taken, so it is not necessary to dwell on them again at length.

In the evidence of Graham a date had been changed from the 20th to the 21st. Mr. Dumble told Mr. O'Connell that this was made on the statement of the prisoner, and with the consent of his counsel. This modification was made at a second session of the police court on the 13th of December at an enlargement of the case from the 7th to that date. Graham was not re-sworn on that date, owing to the fact, Mr. Dumble stated, that he had been sworn on the 7th.

Chief Rossel stated that on the morning of the 13th of December Mr. Dumble drew the attention of Mr. Gordon to the fact that the accused had sworn to the 20th of November instead of the 21st. The chief was not permitted to question Graham further at the police court as the evidence had been closed.

ERNEST LAWRENCE'S STORY

Ernest Lawrence said that on Sunday night, the 21st of November, he went to the Oriental between 12.30 and 1 o'clock, on returning from the midnight train. The witness stated that he drove a cab for Mr. R. Gibbs. There were some sitting in the rotunda of the hotel, including the prisoner.

In answer to a question of Mr. Wood's, Lawrence said that Mr. Graham came up to the barn yesterday afternoon, that is Gibb's barn, on Water street, where the witness is employed, and asked the witness what he knew about the case. He replied that he didn't know very much about it. Graham then told Lawrence he was not there on the night of the 21st—wasn't in the house that night.

"Were there any threats made by Graham yesterday?" asked Mr. Wood.

"He asked the boss to put me off the back."

"Was any violence attempted?"

"Well, he just called me a damned liar, that's all."

This reply drew much laughter from the spectators, which continued till the official cry of "order" caused the audience to assume its normal attitude of quietude and respect.

Mr. O'Connell, by way of objection, said that Sunday night ended at 12 o'clock. The prisoner was charged with perjury in denying he sold drinks on Sunday night. Mr. O'Connell asked that the Crown Attorney be confined to asking the prisoner questions about Sunday night. Mr. Wood said that the criminal code defined night differently to Mr. O'Connell's conception of it as given by him. His Honor said he would note the objection.

Lawrence said Graham was in the office of the hotel when he went in. He asked Graham if he could get a drink, and the latter said, "Wait a minute and we'll see." Graham got a drink for him. Lawrence did not know where he got it. Graham came out of the office on the west side, under the stairs, walked around the front of the office and back into the hall on the east side of it, and in the rear of the bar. The witness got a glass of rye whiskey. The defendant wouldn't take anything for it.

In his cross-examination Mr. O'Connell, for some reason that did not seem apparent at this stage of the case, asked the witness if he had two occupations.

"Not that I know of," was the reply.

The witness didn't think he was driving last Sunday evening.

"Were you driving the Sunday afternoon before last?"

"I don't remember."

"How often do you go to the Oriental?"

"Nearly every night."

"What for?"

"A drink, I suppose."

"Do you get it for nothing?"

"Sometimes."

"Nearly always?"

"No. Not nearly always."

The witness said that on Sunday evening, November 21st, he stepped into the back hallway to get a drink.

"Did you pass Graham and go beyond the door that leads from the bar to the hallway?"

"No."

A FAULTY MEMORY.

"You had conversations with quite a number of people about being in the Oriental on the Sunday night in question?"

"No, not outside of the barn."

"Do you remember being up to Mr. Gordon's office?"

"You must mean some other case," not this one."

"Do you remember going up to Mr. Gordon's office?"

"No."

"You can't say where you were up to O'Connell & Gordon's office no later than a week ago last Wednesday?"

"I can't remember."

The witness at length remembered conversing with Mr. Gordon. He remembered speaking to Mr. Graham at the barn on Thursday. This was in the presence of Robert and Harry Gibbs. He remembered having a conversation with Mr. O'Connell no longer ago than the day before the trial in progress. The witness remembered telling Mr. O'Connell that he didn't recollect being in the Oriental on the 21st.

'And yet,' said Mr. O'Connell, "you come into the box and swear now you do not remember?"

Lawrence said he had no drink in the Oriental on the 19th, and if the police officers swore he did, as he read in the paper they did, they told what was not true.

To Mr. Wood the witness said that he found out when Harry Gibbs looked at the books that have a record of his comings and goings around town, and out to the back country, that he would be in the Oriental on Sunday, the 21st. He thought in the first place that he was out of town on that date. Mr. O'Connell wanted to know when Harry Gibbs looked at the books, and Lawrence stated it was last week, so he must have known when he stated to Mr. O'Connell that he did not remember of being in the Oriental on the night of the 21st, that he was stating what was not true.

"Did you know you were lying to Mr. O'Connell when you told him what you did?" asked His Honor.

'No, I didn't.'

"That will do," said the court, and the witness left the box, his cross-examination being concluded.

POLICE EVIDENCE.

P.C. Newhall was the next witness. His evidence was largely the same as his testimony at the police court in the case against Mr. Graham.

"Has anybody been threatening you since this case commenced?" asked Mr. Wood.

"Yes, Mr. Gordon threatened to have me arrested for perjury."

The witness told Mr. O'Connell of the conversation with Gordon, and the witness said he told Gordon he would report him to the Judge, which, according to the witness's statement, he had done. Gordon asked Newhall why he had rung Dr. Langfeldt up, and the witness said it had been told him that Dr. Langfeldt was going to testify against his character. He learned from the clergyman that that was the latter's intention.

P.C. Meharry was called by the Crown to corroborate P.C. Newhall's evidence. Like his fellow-officer he he was put through a long cross-examination by Mr. O'Connell.

As it was six o'clock at the conclusion of Meharry's evidence, the court adjourned until the evening session, which commenced at 7.30. The evidence submitted in the afternoon concluded the case for the Crown.

EVENING SESSION

Five witnesses for the defence were called at the evening session, and their evidence was contradictory to that given by the witnesses for the prosecution.

John T. Maunder, first called, said he lived in Lindsay and was a hotel manager. He was a guest at the Oriental Hotel on Saturday and Sunday, and was in the rotunda of the hotel from 11.45 Sunday night until Monday morning at 5 o'clock, but during that time did not ask for or receive a drink. Lawrence was not there Sunday night to his knowledge. Between one and two a.m. Monday Graham and he left the rotunda and went as far as the hotel stable, but that was the only time they were absent from the hotel. He did not see any of the passengers who came on the midnight 'bus, go into the bar, nor did Graham go into the passageway referred to.

To Mr. Wood witness admitted he was interested in cock-fighting, and knew that it was illegal in Canada. He said he returned to Lindsay on Monday morning, November 22nd. On Sunday night or Monday morning he did not ask for or get any liquor. After he and Graham had returned from the trip to the stable they were in each other's company till about five o'clock. Witness denied having left the hotel and gone west on Hunter or having entered McGrath's yard on Aylmer street.

"Did you here any person say to you 'are you looking for a store to burgalize?'" asked Mr. Wood.

SANTA CLAUS TELLS OF HIS NEW TOYLAND MARVELS

The New Dolls from Munich. Modelled After Famous Sculptures

"The Glassy-Eyed Beauty Will Always Hold Her Own

Dolls Modelled and Dressed by German Artists

The Toyland Wrestling Match

QUEENLIKE Dolls of Surprising Talent and Palatial Doll Houses, Automobiles, Airships and Performing Animals of the African Jungle and the Frozen North.

GOOD, medium and, perhaps, even a few fairly naughty boys and girls may look forward to a pretty good harvest this Christmas, for never before in the history of toyland has Mr. Santa Claus been so busy in the manufacture of toys of all sorts as has the old gentleman during the last few weeks.

To a newspaper representative who interviewed Mr. Santa Claus at one of the large toy stores recently the Christmas saint declared that the nerves of toy manufacturers are being terribly wrought upon by the determination of the toys to enter the fields of art and science.

"It was all very well," said Santa Claus, "when we had only to make putty faced, golden haired doll beauties, lead soldiers and impossible wooden animals, but now look what is expected of us! We are obliged to know as much about flying machines as the Wrights and Santos-Dumont, we have to understand subways as well as Mr. McAdoo, and our dolls are expected to be not only beautiful but intelligent and individual."

"Do you mean to say that it isn't enough for dolls to be beautiful and well dressed?" queried the reporter.

"Not at all," declared Santa; "they have to have expression, if you please, and to look natural. It's all this new woman idea, of course, and I don't know but that it's an interesting departure, but it keeps us hustling, I tell you, when it comes to providing individual expressions for a million dolls, more or less. Mrs. Santa approves of it, however. She says she never could bear to think of her sex having no more mind than is expressed in the face of the average doll, and so, of course, the new idea has to go."

The old gentleman led the way down the Christmas storeroom and pointed out to the reporter a most interesting array of dolls, with charming expressive faces and dressed in the various costumes of European peasants.

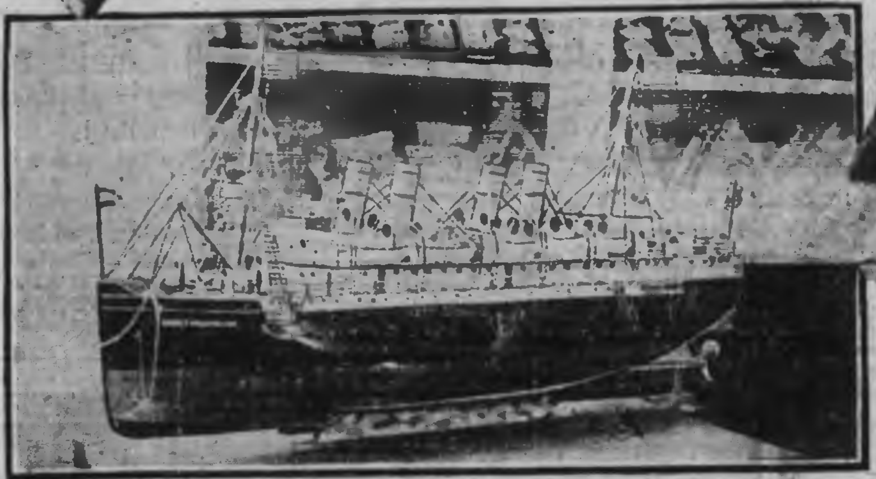
"There they are," said Santa, "the new dolls which are going to revolutionize the entire doll world before long. Over in Munich, where they help me out a great deal in getting up new ideas for toys, some clever artists modelled some dolls which were copied from the boys and girls of famous sculptors. Then they dressed them in character, and the idea grew until a whole host of artists were busy modelling and dressing dolls. There's a Donatello girl, you see, and a boy to match, and there are many dolls modelled also directly from life by artists who have sought to make the puppets thoroughly natural as well as sweet and charming."

Near the foreign character dolls in their quaint old time costumes stood row after row of fascinating American beauties, richly clothed in up to date costumes of satin, lace and fur. These handsome creatures seemed to cast reproachful glances on Santa and his companion.

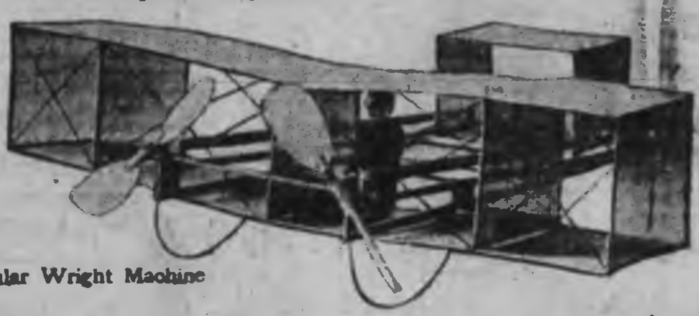
"I hope they aren't going out altogether," said the reporter. "They look so fat, beaming and prosperous it seems to me it would be a pity not to have any of them around."

"Does the glassy eyed charmer ever go out?" demanded Santa. "No; the soulless beauty will always find a certain number of worshippers. She may be compelled to go on a diet to thin out those too rotund cheeks, and perhaps she will be forced to pencil a few lines in that alabaster brow, but it will be all make-up and won't hurt her a bit, and you may be sure that there will always be persons who will prefer her large, dazzling pink and white beauty to all the intelligence in the world."

"And here," said Santa, stopping beside a charming doll's trunk filled with beautiful clothes, " is what will help the fashionable doll beauty to hold her own, even if she hasn't an idea in her head."



The George Washington, the New Ocean Liner



The Popular Wright Machine

The doll's trousseau which was packed in the trunk was indeed wonderful. Every sort of gown, coat and hat which a fashionable doll débutante could desire was included in the outfit, from motor togs to dancing frocks.

"Sixty dollars for the trousseau," said Santa, "but we have others as pretty, though not so elaborate, for much less, and separate garments of every description from French corsets to overshoes."

The old gentleman now led the way through several rows of doll mansions, ranging in price from $1.50 to $36, unfurnished, to the aerodrome at the rear of the premises. Here were stored a magnificent array of flying machines of all kinds, including every variety of mechanical airship and rubber band aeroplane.

"Every boy will want one in his stocking," declared Santa. "Aeronautics is as much the subject of the hour among the boys as it is among grown ups, and I shouldn't wonder, on the whole, if the boys knew more about it than the average grown person. In order to accommodate everybody we've got machines not only of many models, but in a great number of sizes. Certain boys whose stockings are very large will receive aeroplanes that cost $50, but the inexpensive ones, though smaller, are just as carefully made and are quite as much fun."

At this point the interview was interrupted by a deep, ferocious growling in the distance, which seemed somehow suggestive of Arctic wilds.

"It's those polar bears again," explained Santa, in a vexed tone. "Ever since the North Pole controversy started they've been so popular that their heads are completely turned and they can't bear me to show a bit of attention to anybody or anything else. They're angry now because I passed them by for the aeroplanes, and we'll have to go and pacify them or they'll frighten the dolls to death."

The reporter and Santa Claus found the polar bears making a tremendous commotion in their miniature enclosure. Their heads were indeed turned, for they are beautifully jointed and are able to roll their heads about and twist their limbs in the most realistic fashion. Their voices also are wonderfully terrifying. They have entirely supplanted Teddy Bear and are successful rivals of Billy Possum and the jointed monkeys.

After the bears had been quieted and a mechanical lady doll who had begun to shriek loudly for her papa and mamma when the growling started had been sufficiently soothed Santa led the way to where Mr. Roosevelt waited inspection in the very heart of a toy jungle. Mr. Roosevelt himself, it must be confessed, had a decidedly Germanic cast of countenance, but this, Santa explained, was due entirely to his Dutch blood. There were wond in the jungle, especially the lions, tigers and baby monkeys, but there was no t their acquaintance because Santa hur porter on in the direction of the railroad

"The newest thing," he said proudly front of a vast tunnel. "The subway. I can't get your appropriations in the ev as easily as we do in Toyland. We're ow that in spite of the large demand pretty shortly equal it and every doll in town will be able to ride to and from the shopping district and the theatres in perfect comfort. Our larger railroading system is also very perfect. Our locomotives are of high power and our tracks constructed in such a manner that derailment is almost impossible. Extra cars of every kind, locomotives, tracks, switches, tunnels, stations, signals, bridges, &c., can be renewed at any moment and at reasonable prices. So you see Toyland is much more of a model community than is your home town."

An International Romance

Bwanna Tumbo in the Toy Jungle

The reporter was embarrassed by this attack on his home bailiwick, and to turn the subject stopped before a handsome theatre building, which had attracted his attention.

"Isn't that great? demanded Santa. "You see we have a New Theatre, too; it's lighted by electricity and costs fifty dollars. Only the classic dramas are to be given here, 'Red Riding Hood,' 'Puss in Boots,' &c. It's a stock company—no stars in the Toyland theatre—and so you see we avoid all your troubles."

"Don't the principals ever disagree?" questioned the reporter.

"Well," confessed Santa, "the Marquis Carabas did have a little trouble with Puss on the opening night of 'Puss in Boots,' because Puss said the Marquis was imitating the curl of his whiskers, but we smoothed it all over and everything is all right now with the exception of a little rivalry between Red Riding Hood's grandmother and the wolf. You see, the grandmother wants to be on in the last act and we can't let her because the wolf has gobbled her up. It's very vexing."

Just then the toy clocks began to strike and the reporter drew out his watch.

"Gee whiz!" he cried. "Time's up. Sorry, Santa, but I've got to go."

"Not without seeing the new ocean liner, George Washington," cried the King of the Toys. "She's the most magnificent thing in boats we've ever had. Every boy will want one. And then there are the Jack Horner Christmas pies—only they're not pies, they're chimneys; but you put in your thumb and pull out a plum, just the same. It's the latest thing for Christmas parties, a faithful replica of myself climbing up the side of the house and a gift for every guest inside."

"I haven't a moment," pleaded the reporter, "but I'd like to ask one question. What do the bad boys get?"

"They'd better look out," said Santa, with a twinkle. "I'm thinking of giving them absent treatment."

A QUESTION OF OWNERSHIP.

"I WANT to put a hypothetical question to you," said the pretty girl, after the man had picked out the most comfortable chair in the room and had seated himself therein.

"Suppose you were a woman—me, for example—and suppose two other women visited you the same evening. They were strangers to each other and came and went separately. Suppose that after they had gone you noticed an umbrella which had been left, presumably, by one of your callers. Suppose the next morning Miss A. telephoned you and asked if she had left her umbrella at your house; that she had left it some place, she couldn't just remember where, but she believed it was at your house. Was it? You said it was, and Miss A. said she would send a boy right around to get it; she had just learned that she would have to leave the city for quite a while, and would you kindly give the boy the umbrella?

"Suppose the boy came and you gave him the umbrella, and then, a little later, Miss B. came rushing in and asked for her umbrella, which she had left at your house the night before—her umbrella, mind you! the very one you had just sent to Miss A., but which Miss B. swore she could positively prove to be hers. You'd be in something of a pickle by that time, wouldn't you?

"Well, suppose that to clear the matter up you rushed around to Miss A.'s, hoping to recover the umbrella, but found that both she and the umbrella had already gone. Then you rushed around home again, to find Miss B. pacing up and down your room wondering what on earth she should ever do, because it was beginning to rain cats and dogs and she had dozens of places to go that day and would certainly get soaked to the skin and maybe catch her death of cold because she had no umbrella: because you—you, the careless monster—had given hers away to somebody who hadn't the shadow of a right to it: you'd feel pretty desperate by wouldn't you?

"Well, suppose that to relieve the further you offered to replace Miss B The substitution wasn't your own umb that another friend had left at your h while before, a most excellent umbrella, and a beautiful handle: much better, so the one Miss B. had lost. Would that be you have a moral right to square your person by giving her the umbrella that at your house by somebody else?"

Away from the crowds in the turbulent street where Youth and its fancies have flown,
'Tis only a step to a Fairyland sweet where Childhood comes into its own;
'Tis only a step to a wonderful land of Tinsel and One-Penny Bohemes,
Where a boat lies at anchor and tugs at her strand to sail from the Harbor of Dreams.
Her cargo is placed and her voyagers on, and the wind and the weather are prime.
Her canvas is raised and her anchor is drawn to a chanty or nursery rhyme—
She starts and she trembles — she luffs! And, heigh-O! o'er a handpainted ocean we reel,
With love on the decks and above and below and a gingerbread man at the wheel.

The captain bold is a pirate of love with a smile and the rosiest cheek;
His sailors are mariners if you please —a sea-going tribe made of bisque,
Whose course lies over unchartered seas with many a dangerous risk,
Past reefs and shallows and unknown lands with castles of painted blocks,
Through "Popcorn Narrows" and shallow stands by Peppermint Candy Rocks;
And O, the chances we take—and risk! but never a fear we feel
With the captain bold and his crew of bisque and the gingerbread man at the wheel.

To Pixy Port and to Fable Strand and the Coast of the Fairy Queen,
And straightway to the wondrous land of Jack and the Giant Bean;
To Treasure Isle and the Jungle's heart and fairy enchanted nooks
And spots that mariners never chart except in the story books.
Around the world and across and back with never a calm or gale,
And never a change in the captain's tack or sag in the whitened sail;
Then up in the wind like a flying dove, as the weather-wise captain deems,
And home again with our load of love in the Pleasanter Port of Dreams.

• • • •

'Tis only a step from the turbulent street, a minute to say good-bye,
A happy welcome from faces sweet, then off on the seaway high
To the happiest ports where a man may touch—the fairest a man may know—
And pity the fellow whose greed is such that he hasn't the time to go!

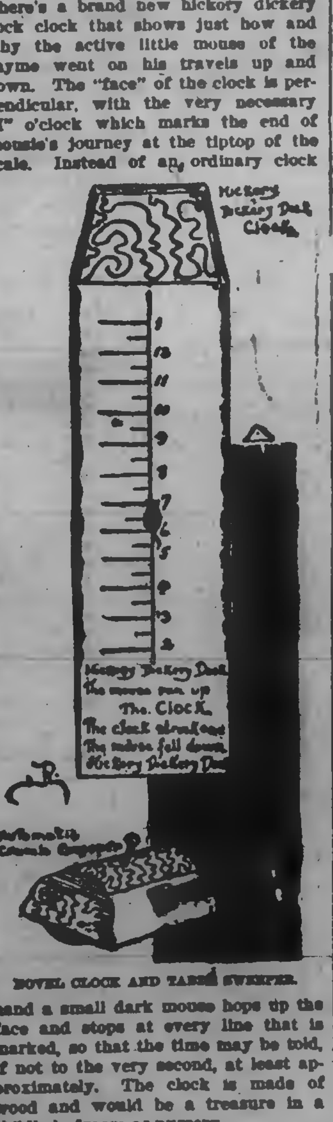
DICKERY DOCK CLOCK.

Table Crumb Sweeper Built Along Lines of Carpet Invention.

If Mother Goose needed anything more to perpetuate her she has it now. There's a brand new hickory dickery dock clock that shows just how and why the active little mouse of the rhyme went on his travels up and down. The "face" of the clock is perpendicular, with the very necessary "I" o'clock which marks the end of mousie's journey at the tiptop of the scale. Instead of an ordinary clock hand a small dark mouse hops up the face and stops at every line that is marked, so that the time may be told, if not to the very second, at least approximately. The clock is made of wood and would be a treasure in a child's bedroom or nursery.



NOVEL CLOCK AND TABLE SWEEPER.

The automatic crumb sweeper shown in the cut is a miniature of the familiar carpet sweeper, intended for table use. It is fitted with a tiny revolving brush.

BOYS' CABINET OF Y. M. C. A. TO HOLD TWO DAYS' CAMPAIGN

At the regular meeting of the Cabinet of the Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon, it was unanimously decided, after having secured the approval of the Board of Directors to carry on a two days' campaign, between Christmas and New Year, for the purpose of raising $250 in cash for redecorating and refurnishing the boys' rooms on the second floor of the Association building. The boys will solicit the aid of their numerous friends in the city, but it is understood that no one who is now a subscriber to the funds of the Association will be asked to help the boys in this campaign, unless it be some of the boys' own personal friends. The boys are alive to the work of the Association, and realize the necessity of having their department so attractive that every boy in the city between the ages of 12 and 17 will desire to be a member and participate in the activities of the department. At the present time the boys have a good library and well-equipped reading room, so far as magazines and papers are concerned, but their game-room is not as attractive as it should be.

Several of the boys are taking a training class for teaching the Bible, and after the New Year several classes will be organized, to be taught by the older boys, and any boy who is a member of the department, and is not a member of some Bible study club, will wake up some day to discover that he is out of it, so far as the activities of the Association are concerned.

The boys are most enthusiastic over their campaign, and are already making detailed plans in connection with it. They have no doubt that their success in this particular undertaking is already secured, and it will be a surprise if they do not far exceed the amount they intend to raise.

THE DOLL BRIDE'S NEW HOME

WHAT HAPPENED WHEN MARY BELLE AND SAILOR JACK RETURNED FROM THEIR WEDDING TRIP

BY ALICE LATIMER

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

IT was such a stormy day that Maud Marian and her cousin Theresa could not go out to play after lessons were over, and so they went up to their playroom, where their large family of dolls lived, to see what there was to do.

"Mary Belle and Jack will soon be back from their wedding journey," said Theresa. "Don't you think we ought to fix up a home for them? It ought to be thoroughly cleaned and have fresh curtains and bouquets."

"Oh, yes," agreed Maud Marian. "It's the very thing. We'll look over the houses right away to see which will be best."

Mary Belle, the Parisian beauty, and Jack, the sailor lad, were members of the playroom family of dolls. Their wedding had taken place about two weeks before and they had gone away on a trip. As yet they had not returned, but they were on their way home, and, indeed, at the very moment when their future residence was being discussed they had paused to rest—before completing the last stage of their journey—on the top shelf of the sewing room closet.

There were a number of doll houses in the playroom, most of which were at the present time fully occupied. The largest and handsomest of these mansions was Harcourt House, the residence of Lord Frederick and Lady Gwendoline Harcourt, a stately doll couple, who were the handsomest and most affluent of the doll family, with the exception of Prince Ormond. Lord Harcourt and Lady Gwendoline belonged to Theresa, who was a most careful mother to them, so they were beautifully groomed and possessed unlimited wardrobes.

Their house also was Theresa's, and it, too, besides being equipped with all the modern conveniences, such as electric lights, a bathroom and a staircase, was perfectly furnished and always in the best of order.

Gretchen, Theresa's pretty German doll, was a nurse in the family of Mrs. Mandeville Magruder, a much battered elderly doll of Maud Marian's. Mrs. Magruder and Gretchen, the infant doll, whom Gretchen cared for, and Bijou, a pretty young doll, who was Mrs. Magruder's niece, lived in a large, rather dilapidated house which belonged to Maud Marian. It had once been a very pretty house indeed, but Maud Marian had never taken much care of it and it was sadly out of repair and in need of cleaning.

Prince Ormond occupied handsome bachelor quarters over the garage, where the dolls' motor car was kept. Theresa had made the garage from a box with the assistance of her Uncle Charles, and Lord Ormond's apartment in the upper story was divided into bedroom, bathroom and sitting room and most attractively furnished and decorated. The Young Brave of the Wabash, as the Indian doll was called, who acted as chauffeur for the doll family, when not otherwise engaged, and Li Hung Chang, the Chinese boy doll, shared a bungalow, which had been made from a starch box and was furnished with red and yellow chintz and a bead curtain.

THERE were also a row of mansions, known as the Box cottages, ranged against one side of the playroom wall. These were occupied by the remaining members of the doll family and were designated as Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 Wall street. Only one of them was vacant, and this was the one which Mary Belle had occupied with Dinah, the colored doll, who was her cook and lady's maid. Like all the cottages, it had been constructed from a box, and it was neither handsome nor commodious. Downstairs there were only two rooms, a sitting room and a small kitchen, and upstairs the two bedrooms had such low ceilings that Mary Belle always bumped her head when she went to bed. The front of the house was entirely open and exposed to the weather, which was a good thing in one way, because as there were no windows in any of the rooms it was the only way of getting light and air. There was no staircase in the house, and Mary Belle was always obliged to come outside and climb up when she wanted to go to her bedroom.

"Dear me," said Maud Marian, "it doesn't look very nice for a bride's house, does it?"

It certainly didn't. It was Maud Marian's house, and consequently had suffered from neglect, interspersed with violent spasms of setting to rights, which had resulted in much damage to the furnishings. The paper was stained with watercolor paints, which Maud Marian had used in trying to decorate the ceilings. The chairs were broken and the bedclothes bedraggled. Indiscreet splashing of water had ruined the hangings of red and caused them to run into the carpet and upholstery. Altogether No. 5 Wall street presented a sorry sight to house hunters.

"Oh, well," said Theresa, cheerfully, "we can fix it up so that it will be just as sweet and pretty as can be. We've got lots of new paper and carpet and we can mend the furniture with sticking plaster. I'm sure they'll be pleased with it when we get through."

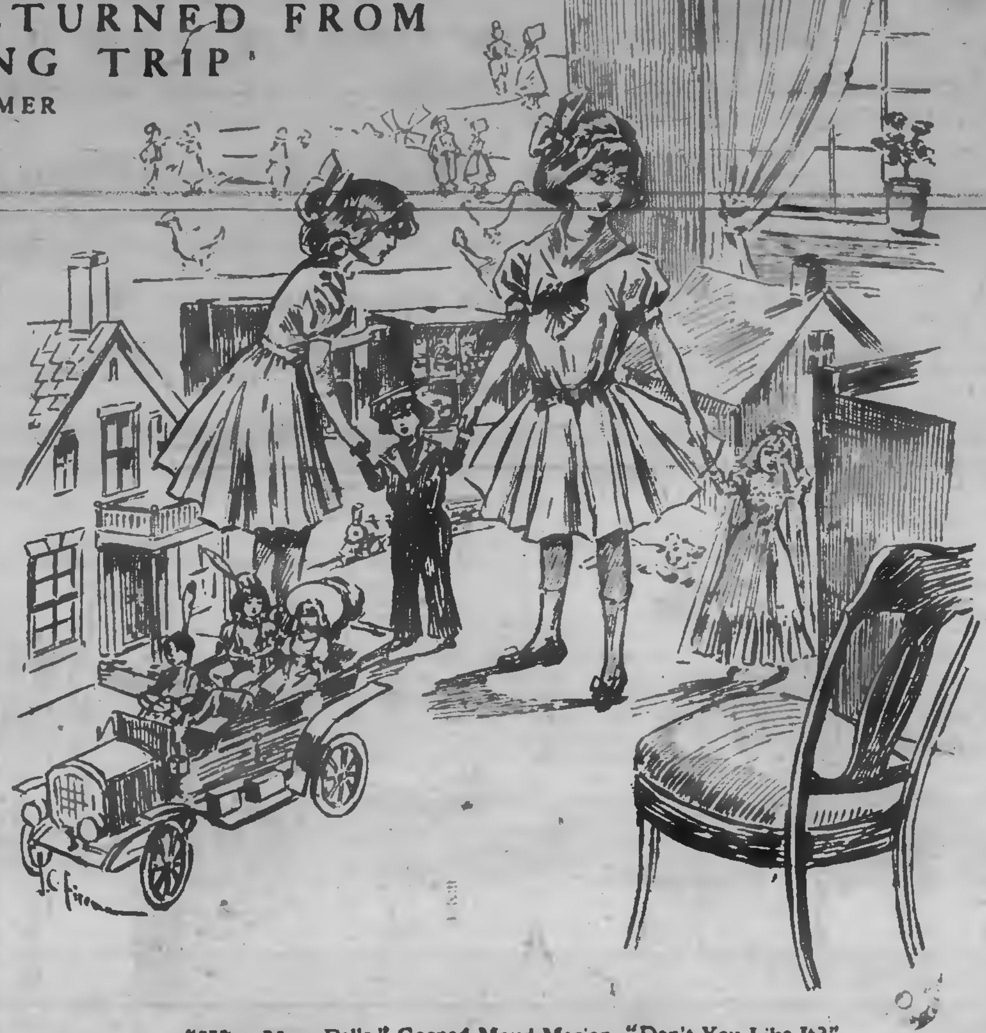
"No," declared Maud Marian, decisively, "it won't do for a bride, Theresa. There's only one thing to do. We'll have to move Lord and Lady Harcourt over into this cottage and give the bride and bridegroom their house. Of course he can't expect Dinah to keep on living here with Lord and Lady Harcourt—there wouldn't be room—but she can move over to Harcourt house and work for Mary Belle. We'll have to change the name, I suppose, and call this Harcourt cottage. Then the other house can be called Bellevue, after Mary Belle."

"But I don't think Lord and Lady Harcourt would like that at all," remonstrated Theresa. "They've lived at Harcourt house too long to be willing to give it up, and, besides, they're so grand and elegant it seems suited to them."

"Yes," said Maud Marian, "but now that they are older they would really be more comfortable in this nice little cottage, and I think they've had their share of Harcourt house. They ought to be willing to give somebody else a chance to live there. We can fix up this cottage for them just as we would have done for Mary Belle, and they ought to be quite satisfied."

"Well," said Theresa, "perhaps they ought, but I'm afraid they won't be."

Maud Marian, however, had firmly made up her mind about the matter and was already busily engaged in looking over the box which contained the playroom housefurnishing stores with a view to freshening up the cottage for Lord and Lady Harcourt's occupancy.



"Why, Mary Belle" Gasped Maud Marion. "Don't You Like It?"

IN the housefurnishing box were odds and ends of wallpaper left over from papering the various rooms, bits of carpet for rugs, pieces of satin, velvet and denim and chintz for cushions, and upholstery and white barred muslin for curtains. Theresa and Maud Marian entered eagerly into the task of renovation after they had divided the house between them, Theresa selecting the bedroom and the kitchen and Maud Marian the drawing room and remaining bedroom. They ran downstairs to get warm water with which to scrub the floors and flour paste from the cook to put on the wallpaper.

Theresa selected blue and white striped paper for her bedroom, with a floor covering of blue denim to match. The bed for the room was so large that there was only room for two other pieces of furniture, the bureau and a chair. There was enough of the blue denim left over after the floor had been entirely covered to reupholster the chair, which was badly in need of it. The new cover was put on with tiny pins deftly concealed at the corners after the raw edges of the denim had been neatly turned under.

As the dressing table and bed were both disfigured by splashes of paint and were very dilapidated besides, Theresa draped them with white muslin and made a valance of white muslin for the bed. She mended the bed and the chair leg with court plaster and supplied fresh bed linen and a counterpane from her own stock.

Maud Marian had chosen a pink paper for her bedroom. It had a deep border of little pink roses, and when a large new rug of green carpet was laid on the freshly scrubbed floor it made a most attractive apartment. Theresa helped Maud Marian upholster the two chairs with pink and green flowered chintz to match the paper. The bed they draped in the flowered chintz also, and as the room contained no bureau or dressing table Maud Marian took a small table and a mirror from Mrs. Mandeville Magruder's house—Mrs. Mandeville was not at all anxious to give them up and these, with a white drapery, made a very nice dressing table.

For the drawing room there was a lovely lattice paper, with climbing violets clambering over it. "A lattice is so like a cottage," said Maud Marian.

As this room served the cottage as dining room also it was necessary to have a dining room table and a sideboard. The table was covered with a violet denim cloth and the chairs were upholstered in violet denim, which was also used for the floor covering. In the centre of the table Maud Marian placed a vase full of artificial violets.

THERESA'S kitchen was, however, the most beautiful of all the rooms when it was finished. It was papered with a blue and white bathroom paper which looked like tiling and the floor was covered with blue and white oilcloth. Theresa gave the stove a good coating of shoe polish and it was as black as jet. The kitchen table, which refused to come clean, was covered with a snowy cloth, and three shining copper cooking utensils, surreptitiously removed from the Harcourt mansion, were hung on the wall. Theresa planted a tall artificial rose in a pot and placed it in front of the cottage so that it peeped in at the kitchen doorway, or what would have been the doorway if there had been any, most romantically.

It was so lovely when it was all finished that even Theresa began to think that perhaps Lord and Lady Harcourt would be happy there and wouldn't mind being deprived of their more splendid home.

There was nothing really to be done at Harcourt house to prepare for the bride and bridegroom except to arrange a few bridal bouquets. The furniture was all in perfect order and extremely elegant and it was swept and dusted to a fault. The drawing room, furnished in gilt, mahogany and damask, showed not a chair out of place nor a velvet hanging awry.

With the Assistance of Her Uncle Charles

The elaborately decorated walls reflected in the long gold framed mirrors were without a blemish; the dining room displayed a dazzling array of china and glass; the bedrooms all contained complete sets of perfect furniture, highly be-frilled beds, large gold chandeliers and heavy carpets; the marble bath was spotless, kitchen and pantry perfectly equipped, the library walls were completely lined with books and the heavy leather furniture placed exactly where it should be. There was not even the slightest need for added pictures or mantel decorations. Painting and statuary, magnificent clocks, handsome tapestries, &c., filled every available space. Theresa and Marian sighed as they admitted that there was nothing to be done. "Not even to fill the vases," said Maud Marian, "for the bouquets in them are better than any we could get."

Lord Frederick and Lady Gwendoline Harcourt sat in the drawing room while Theresa and Maud Marian looked their residence over. They were both very large and magnificent dolls, but it seemed to Theresa that they had never looked so large and magnificent before. She looked from them to the newly furnished Harcourt cottage with misgiving. She felt they would be very uncomfortable in the smaller abode. Lady Gwendoline, she was sure, would not be able to sit in the chairs and Lord Harcourt would lose his stately presence and grow round shouldered because of the low ceiled bedrooms.

"Are you going to tell them now?" she asked Maud Marian.

"No," said her cousin; "it will be best to send them out for a spin in the motor. Then Jack and Mary Belle can come in and take possession, and we can lead Lord Harcourt and Lady Gwendoline gently to their new home. Their clothes can be sent after them."

AS a result of this move the Young Brave presently brought around the motor car and Lord and Lady Harcourt, little thinking that it was a final farewell to the mansion they had occupied for so many years, were persuaded to take a spin.

It was then decided to bring Dinah over from the cottage. Dinah, who had watched the renovation of the cottage with great interest, seemed not at all pleased to be obliged to leave the little house now that it had been made so attractive. Her large new kitchen, with its great array of cooking utensils, seemed strange and unhomelike to her. She sat stiffly in the chair where Maud Marian had placed her and seemed not at all interested in her new surroundings.

"Dinah doesn't seem to like it," remarked Theresa.

"She's very ungrateful then," said Maud Marian. "Look at all the advantages she has here—stationary tubs and a lovely range."

"Still, the cottage kitchen is awfully dear since it's been made over," said Theresa.

"There!" exclaimed Maud Marian suddenly. "We've sent the motor car away and it's time for their train to come in, and there'll be nothing to meet them with. What shall we do?"

"They" were the bride and groom and Theresa was equally taken aback by this dilemma. Finally it was decided that the only thing possible was to send Li Hung Chang to the station to carry the returned travellers' bags and to explain to them that it would be necessary for them to walk. Maud Marian and Theresa also went along to welcome the bride and bridegroom.

Never had Mary Belle looked more beautiful than she did when Theresa and Maud Marian greeted her with words of welcome. She still wore the white satin bridal gown in which she had been inadvertently sent on her wedding journey, and Sailor Jack still wore his seaman's uniform. But in spite of the fact that their clothes were so ill matched they both looked so handsome that they seemed a perfect pair. They didn't in the least mind walking, and when they entered the play-room and Maud Marian announced that a new home had been prepared for them their faces shone more brightly than ever. Theresa was assisting Mary Belle to carry her train and Maud Marian had taken the arm of Sailor Jack. As they came opposite the newly furnished cottage Mary Belle stopped expectantly and turned her head, gazing admiringly at the little house.

"COME on," said Maud Marian. "Why are you stopping here?"

"I think Mary Belle was admiring the house," said Theresa. "I think she wanted to go in."

"She'll be a lot better pleased at the house she is going to have," said Maud Marion. But Mary Belle didn't seem pleased. She said nothing, but, if Theresa was correct in guessing what her look meant, it was one of disappointment.

"Now," said Maud Marian, as they arrived at Harcourt house, "you are at home. Lord and Lady Harcourt are no longer to occupy this house. It is to be yours, Jack and Mary Belle. It is no longer Harcourt house. It is Bellevue."

Mary Belle did not answer; neither did Sailor Jack. They entered the magnificent mansion with no apparent enthusiasm. Maud Marian led Jack to one of the gilded damask chairs, but Mary Bella hung back on Theresa's arm and slowly turned away her head. It was perfectly evident that Mary Belle did not care for her new home.

"Why doesn't Mary Belle come in and sit down?" demanded Maud Marian. "She ought to rest a little before we show them over the house."

"She doesn't like the house," said Theresa. "She doesn't want to live here."

"Why, Mary Belle," gasped Maud Marian, "don't you like it? Just look at the mirrors and the furniture, and there are four bedrooms, and a lovely bath, and a gorgeous dining room, and, oh! everything that any doll house could have."

But Mary Belle still averted her gaze and refused to even glance at her new abode. Then suddenly she raised one hand to her eyes. A handkerchief was in the hand. It was evident that Mary Belle was weeping.

Theresa helped her wipe her tears away, as Mary Belle's arm was a little stiff.

"What do you suppose is the matter?" asked Maud Marian.

"I think," said Theresa, "that this place is a disappointment to her because it is too large and formal and stiff. She liked her old house in spite of its shabbiness, and now that it's all fixed up she's anxious to return to it. Besides, she feels this place isn't the kind of home Jack would like. He'd feel out of place here."

Maud Marian looked at Jack, who, indeed, seemed very far from comfortable in the gilded chair. His rough sailor costume was certainly very much out of place in the magnificent mansion, and he seemed afraid to put his feet down on the velvet carpet.

"Then," said Maud Marian, "I suppose it would be best to let them have the cottage."

So it was agreed, and when the change had been made Mary Belle clapped her hands with joy—with Theresa's assistance—while Sailor Jack sat on the dining room table and swung his legs in the greatest delight. Nor was Dinah forgotten. She, too, was brought from Harcourt house and installed in the cottage kitchen, to her entire satisfaction.

Lord and Lady Harcourt, who returned from their motor ride a few minutes after the change had been made, never knew how narrowly they escaped losing their handsome home. As for Jack and Mary Belle, they settled down most happily in their cosey cottage, to which Uncle Charlie has promised to build a dining room extension and a side veranda on his first rainy holiday.

AN UNWELCOME GUEST.

UNCLE SAM has found the beautiful English starling which he imported from England some time ago, with the hope that it would be a good friend to the fruit growers of this country, not the helpful little visitor that he had expected, but, instead, rather a naughty little bird with a particularly strong passion for indulgence in fruit on its own account.

About twelve years ago the starling was introduced from England, several pairs being placed in Central Park, New York. The numbers have increased so enormously since then that in some parts of the East, especially in Staten Island, they are more numerous than the native birds. They were originally brought to this country by the United States government to help the wren, the sparrow, the chickadee and other feathered friends of the farmer to rid orchards and forests of destructive insects. With the increase in numbers of the starlings, however, has come the discovery that they have wholesale appetites for the succulent fruits of late fall, nor have they shown any reluctance to indulge these appetites at the expense of the orchards. Another and a worse crime that is charged against them is their bloodthirsty tendency in relation to their fellow birds, attacking other birds in their search for food and destroying large numbers of the weaker ones.

As yet the starling is not generally known in most sections of the United States. It is about the size of the robin and it is supposed to have gained its name from the starlike yellow spots on its dark plumage. It is seen mostly in the late fall and winter and seems to be as impervious to cold as its fellow visitor from England, the sparrow. Its note is a sharp whistle precisely like that made by a human being. In the tradition of the starling it is said to have been taught to talk like the crow.

THE BABY AND THE POLE.

BY ELIZABETH DUDDERIDGE.

TELL me what will you do when you're big, baby dear,
For that you'll be famous is perfectly clear.
In your musical gurgle great meaning there lies,
And your wonderful wisdom shines forth from your eyes.

But what is the great thing you'll do, baby dear?
So many great things have been done that I fear
There are few still to do that are worthy of you—
Of a baby that plays with its toes and says "Goo."

Men have learned how to fly in the air, baby dear,
And to do other things that are equally queer.
Since the wise men of Gotham sailed off in a bowl
Men as wise have been trying to find the North Pole.

And that troublesome pole has been found, baby dear,
But it's making more trouble than ever, I hear.
Uncle Sam is much puzzled, for nobody knows

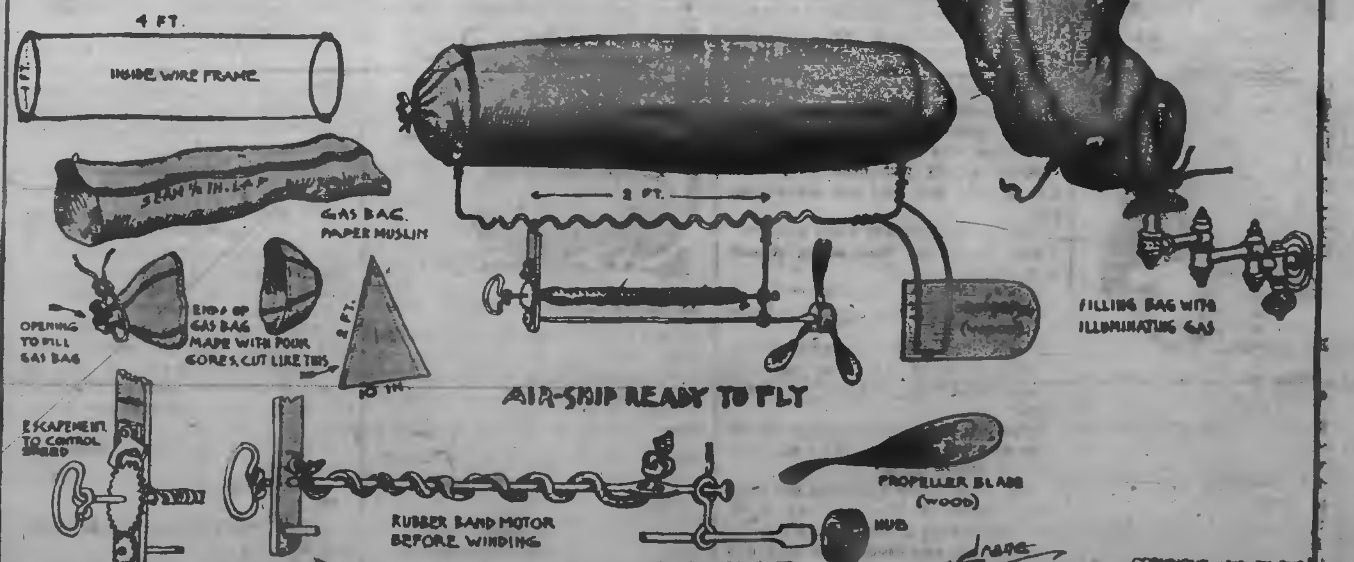
So there's one thing remaining to do, baby dear,
That to all this big country your name will endear,
And that's to discover the venturesome soul
Who discovered that very obstreperous pole.

Answers to Puzzling Cities.

THE puzzling cities in last week's story were London, Paris, Belfast, Lyons, Saratoga, Buffalo, Troy, Charleston, Mobile, Venice, Denver, Madrid, Newport and Jackson. They were used in the order here given.

UNCLE DICK'S DIRIGIBLE AIRSHIP



SOME of the boy readers of the Children's Page have written to ask that Uncle Dick's plans for a dirigible airship, which were published a year ago, be now republished, as they say that many boys are now interested anew in airships because of the aerial navigation tests in France. Accordingly, the plans are here given.

One rainy Saturday, when the boys had nothing else to do Uncle Dick announced that it was about time the boys built an airship. After they had discussed the matter thoroughly Uncle Dick said:—

"Now, let's stop talking and go to work. Here's a yard and a half of glazed muslin. I bought it on the way over—paper muslin, they call it in the stores. I guess you can scare up the rest of the materials necessary."

This was a matter of small difficulty, as Tommy never threw anything away that might come in handy. There were parts of two or three discarded clock works, pieces of wire of different thicknesses, and all sorts of odds and ends, both metal and wood, on the shelf or hanging on nails and pegs in the woodshed. After getting things ready Uncle Dick, with Tommy's assistance, fashioned the inside wire frame for the balloon. This was made from a piece of wire that had already done good service in holding a stovepipe in position. The glazed muslin that Uncle Dick had purchased was a yard wide. This made the gas bag about a foot in diameter, and Uncle Dick decided to make the bag four feet long.

Tommy had a bottle of prepared glue with which the seams were fastened, a hole in one end being left to admit the gas. Next the outside wire frame was bent out, the same kind of wire being used. Then the old gentleman set Tommy whittling out the hub, propeller blades and rudder from light pine wood, keeping everything as light as possible. In the meantime he was shaping the pieces of wire for the shaft and to twist the rubber band on.

"You see, Tommy," said Uncle Dick, "most boys get rattled when they are confronted with the problem of making things of metal because you can't whittle it with a jackknife! Now just see how easy this is." And Tommy looked attentively on while his uncle flattened out the end of the shaft and filed it into shape.

"Of course, your vise with the anvil attached is the best thing to use, but an old smoothing iron will do the trick."

At first Uncle Dick started to turn the propeller with a spring, but finally decided to use a rubber band, as it was simpler. Tommy had just the kind he wanted, a good thick strip of elastic about a foot and a half long. The escapement, which Tommy extracted from one of the clockworks, was really the only thing that required any degree of nicety in the adjustment, and, as Uncle Dick said, you could cut that out, as it only served the purpose of keeping the rubber from unwinding too quickly.

At first Tommy didn't understand how the kinks were bent into the wire frame, but soon perceived that they were intended to hold the propeller in position when it was learned by experimenting where it would best balance the gasbag. It took a good deal longer to do all these things than it does to read about them, and by the time the job was finished the seams were dry. So the contraption was carefully carried to the house and inflated over a gas fixture. The rudder was bent ever so little to one side, and after the rubber band had been wound and wound and wound, just as far as it would stretch, Tommy held it above his head and let go. Slowly it soared upward, the propeller humming like a humming bird, the slight twist of the rudder causing it to move in a circle about a hundred feet in diameter. And just as it all but completed the circle the motor ran down. Then it got tangled up in a tree, but Tommy rescued it without the balloon being damaged.

"There!" said Uncle Dick, "that contraption cost about twenty cents, and any bright boy can make one in half a day."

"It's just bully," said Tommy. "Only I'm going to take the spring off my toy automobile and run it with that. I could adapt the clock spring, but the gear is already adjusted on any toy that winds up."

THAT BEAUTIFUL CHRISTMAS

BY

FRANK H. SWEET

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

IT was the night before Christmas—and stormy.

"Squash, squash!" went the wheels of the carriage in the mud.

"Whew-ew-ew!" whistled the wind. And it blew Peter's hat out into the middle of the road.

The princess poked her head out of the window. "What's the matter?" she asked.

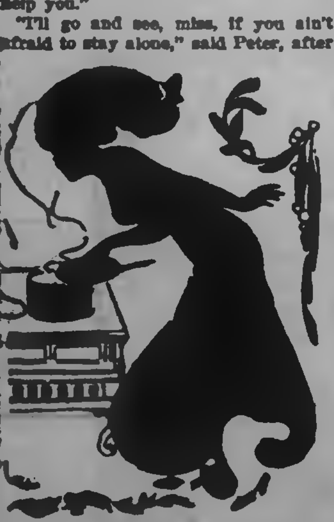
"My hat blew off," Peter told her, "and the wheel is stuck in the mud, miss."

"Oh, Peter, Peter!" the princess chided. "You must get that wheel out of the mud at once."

"Which is easier said than done," Peter grumbled. "It's that dark I can't see my hand before me."

"There's a light back there among the trees," the princess informed him. "Perhaps you could get some one to help you."

"I'll go and see, miss, if you ain't afraid to stay alone," said Peter, after some effort succeeding in quieting the plunging horses.



"DID YOU EVER SMELL ANYTHING SO GOOD?" SHE ASKED.

"I am dreadfully afraid," she admitted shiveringly, "but I suppose you will have to go."

Now, in the middle of the pine grove was set a little cottage. Peter knocked at the door.

"Our wheel is stuck in the mud," Peter answered from the dark, "and I want to get a man to help me."

"There isn't any man here," Jenny informed him. "There is only me and Jessie, and our mother has gone to nurse a sick neighbor, and she won't be home until morning."

So Peter went back to the carriage and reported to the princess.

"I shall freeze out here," said the princess. "I will go up to the house and sit by the fire while you look for some one to help you with the carriage."

She climbed out of the carriage, and with Peter in the lead she plodded through the woods, and the wind blew her long coat this way and that, and at last, wet and panting, she came to the little house.

And once more Peter knocked, and once more Jenny came to the window. Then she flung the door wide open, and so tall was the princess that she had to stoop to enter it. It was a dingy little room, and there was a dumpy black stove in the corner, with a bubbling iron pot that gave forth a most appetizing odor.

"Oh, oh, how nice and warm it is!" said the princess as she held out her hands to the fire.

In all their lives the little girls had never beheld such a wonderful person, for the princess wore a long red cloak and a black velvet hat, with a waving plume, and her muff was big and round and soft, and she had a scarf of the same soft fur about her neck. Her hair was pale gold, and she had the bluest eyes and the reddest lips, and her smile was so sweet and tender that Jenny ran right up to her and cried, "Oh, I am so glad that you came!"

Jessie from her little chair echoed her sister's words. But she did not run, for there was a tiny crutch beside Jessie's chair in the square window.

"And I am glad to be here," said the princess, whose quick eyes were taking in the details of the shabby room. "It's so nice and warm and cozy."

"Isn't it?" said Jenny happily. "And we are getting ready for tomorrow."

On a small round table beside Jessie's chair was a tiny cedar bush, and Jessie's fingers had been busy with bits of gold and blue and scarlet paper.

"We are going to pop some popcorn," Jenny explained, "and string it and hang it on the tree."

"Oh, may I help?" the princess asked. "I haven't popped any corn since I was a little girl."

Jessie clasped her thin little hands. "I think it would be the loveliest thing in the world," she said, "if you would stay."

"Peter is going to find some one to help with the carriage, and I will stay until he comes back."

And when Peter had gone the princess slipped off the long red cloak, and underneath it she wore a shining silken gown, and around her neck was a collar of pearls.

"And now if you will lend me an apron," she said, "we will pop the corn."

But Jessie and Jennie were gazing at her speechless.

The beautiful lady laughed joyously. "Peter calls me the princess," she said. "He has lived with me ever since I was a little girl. But really I am just an everyday young woman and am going to spend Christmas with some friends in the next town."

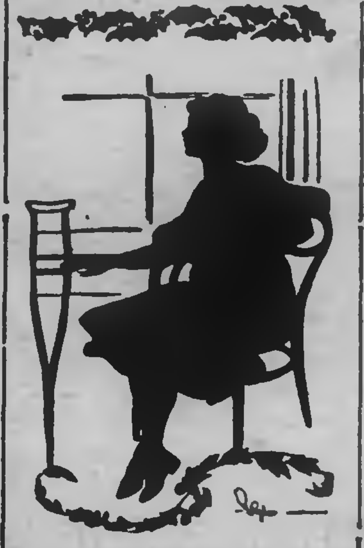
She dismissed the subject with a wave of her hand.

"And now to our popcorn," she said.

Jenny brought a green gingham apron, and the princess tied the apron on, making a big butterfly bow of the strings in the back, and then she danced over to the dumpy little stove and peeped into the bubbling pot.

"Did you ever smell anything so good?" she asked. "I am as hungry as a bear."

The little girls laughed joyously. "It's bean soup," Jenny said, "and we are going to have it for supper, with some little dumplings in it. I was afraid it wasn't nice enough for you."



"Nice enough!" the delighted lady exclaimed. "I think bean soup and little dumplings are—um—um!" And she flung out her hands expressively.

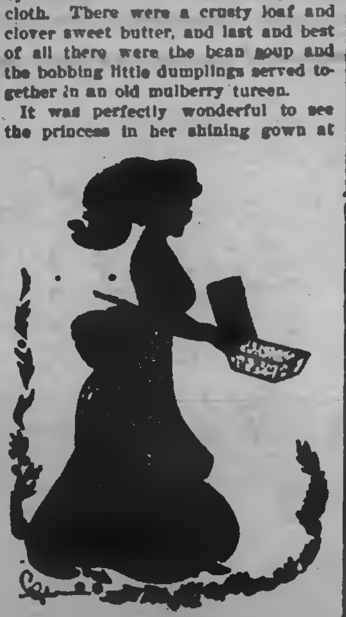
"Which shows that I am not a true princess," said the beautiful lady, "for honey and dew would never satisfy me."

Jenny got out three little blue bowls and set them on a table that was spread with a coarse but spotless cloth. There were a crusty loaf and clover sweet butter, and last and best of all there were the bean soup and the bobbing little dumplings served together in an old mulberry tureen.

It was perfectly wonderful to see the princess in her shining gown at the head of the table, and little lame Jessie said: "You were just sent to us for Christmas. Why, it's just like—



AFTER SUPPER THEY POPPED THE CORN.

"The night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse.
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there.
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar plums danced in their heads."

"But our stockings weren't hung yet, and we weren't in bed," said Jenny.

"It was too early for that," said the princess, "but let's go on with the rhyme, just for fun. I see you know it all through, so you mustn't mind my changing it a little:

"When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter
Jenny sprang from her chair to see what was the matter.
Away to the window she flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.
When what to her wondering eyes should appear
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer!

"Oh, no; I forgot! I mean—

"When what to her wondering eyes should appear
But a carriage stuck in the mud right out here
And a little old driver, so lively and quick
You must have thought Peter was dear old St. Nick."

The children laughed gleefully, and Jenny said: "We would have thought that, only we aren't going to hang up our stockings this Christmas at all. Jessie and I aren't going to get any presents, for mother hasn't been well, and she couldn't get any sewing. But she said we could make our Christmas merry, and we were to pretend that we had been to the big stores in the city and had bought things for the tree and dolls and everything."

"That's a lovely way," said the princess gently, and she laid her hand, with its flashing rings, over Jessie's thin ones.

"And we are going to pretend," Jessie said, "that our chicken is turkey. But we won't have to pretend about the mince pie, for mother has made a lovely one."

"I wish I could help you eat the chicken," said the princess wistfully, "and I should like to meet your mother. I know she is lovely. And I haven't any mother, you know."

"Oh!" said the little girls, round eyed with sympathy. And then the princess told them that all her life she had lived in a big, lonely house and she had always yearned for a cozy home and for a sister.

After supper they popped the corn, and just as they finished in came Peter.

"I can't find any one to help, miss," he announced, "and it's snowing. I'll have to unhitch the horses and go back to town and get something to take you over in."

"No," the princess demurred as she stood in the middle of the room with a heaped up dish of snowy kernels in her hand. "No, Peter, I'm going to stay here all night."

Peter stared, and the little girls cried, "Oh, will you?"

And the princess said: "I really will. And, Peter, you can bring up the steamer trunk and my bag."

"Won't your friends expect you, miss?" Peter inquired, as if awaiting orders.

"I will send a note by you," was the calm response. And as the man went out she followed him and shut the door behind her. "Oh, Peter, Peter!" she whispered confidentially. "I am going to give them such a Christmas!"

"The little girls, miss?"

"Yes. They are so sweet and brave! And I have the presents in my trunk that I was going to carry to the other children. But they will have so much that they won't miss them, and I shall spend my Christmas in a plain little house, but it will be a joyful house, Peter."

"Yes, miss," Peter agreed understandingly.

"I wish we had a big tree," said the princess regretfully.

"Well, leave that to me, miss," Peter told her eagerly. "You just get them little things to sleep early, and I'll be here with a tree."

"Oh, Peter, Peter—Santa Claus!" exclaimed the princess gleefully. "It will be the nicest Christmas that I have had since I was a wee bit of a girl."

So Peter went away, and the princess, with her eyes shining like stars, danced back into the room and said, "Oh, let's play mariners!"

Jessie and Jenny had never heard of such a game, but the princess told them that she was a ship on the high seas and that they were to tell from her cargo what country she hailed from.

"I carry tea," she began. "Where do I hail from?"

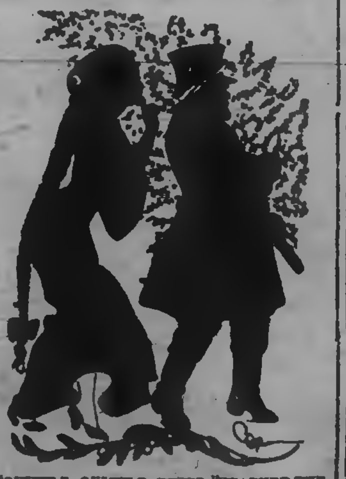
"China," guessed Jenny.

"No."

"Japan," cried Jessie, with her little face glowing.

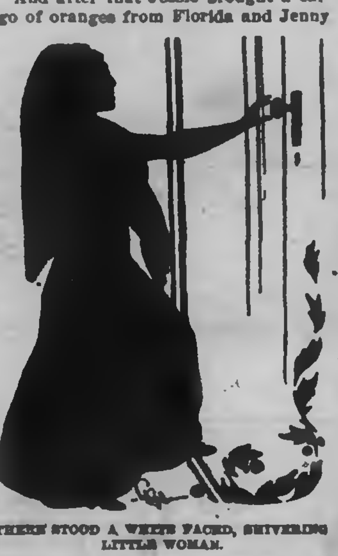
"No."

Then the little girls pondered. "It might be India," ventured Jenny, but the princess shook her head. Then Jessie cried, "It's Ceylon!" And that was right.



"QUIETLY, QUIETLY, PETER," WARNED THE PRINCESS.

And after that Jessie brought a cargo of oranges from Florida and Jenny brought a cargo of rugs from Persia, and there were cargoes of spices and of coal and of coffee and of fish and of grain and of lumber, and the princess finished triumphantly by carrying a cargo of oysters from the Chesapeake bay.



THERE STOOD A WHITE FACED, SHIVERING LITTLE WOMAN.

"One more," begged Jessie.

"I carry a cargo of castles," said the sparkling princess. "Where do I hail from?"

The little girls guessed and guessed, and at last the princess said:

"That wasn't a fair one, really, for my castles are castles in Spain."

Then, with Jessie in her arms, she told them of her own castle building, and when she had finished she said, "And so your mother shall have all of my sewing, and that will keep her busy until spring."

"Oh, you are going to be married and live happy ever after!" sighed Jessie rapturously. "It's just what a fairy princess should do."

"And what you should do," said the princess, looking at the clock, "is to go to bed, bed, bed, so that you can wake up early in the morning."

She tucked them in and came back later in a fascinating pink kimono, with her hair in a thick yellow braid, and she kissed them both. But it was little lame Jessie that she kissed last. And then she went away like a glorious vision, and the little girls sank into slumber.

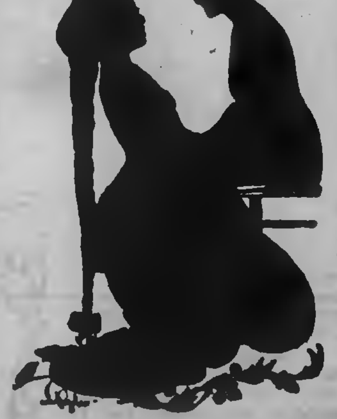
In the next room the princess opened the door cautiously, and there was Peter with snow all over him, and his arms were full of holly and mistletoe, and a great tree was propped against the doorpost.

"Quietly, quietly, Peter," warned the princess, and Peter tiptoed in and set the tree up in the corner, and its top reached to the ceiling.

The princess opened the steamer trunk and took out two white Teddy bears, one with a flaring blue bow and the other with a flaring pink one, and then she took out a green and a yellow and a red and a blue fairy book and a beautiful square basket of candy, tied with holly ribbon, and then from the very bottom of the trunk she drew string after string of shining little silver bells, fastened on red and pale green ribbons.

"I was going to get up a cotillon for the children at the other house," the princess explained to Peter, "but these little folks need it so much more."

The little bells went "tinkle, tinkle," as Peter hung them, and Jessie, dreaming in her little bed, heard the sound and thought it a part of her dream.



"YOU ARE THE LITTLE MOTHER," SAID THE PRINCESS.

And while Peter and the princess

trimmed and whispered and laughed, someone rattled the doorknob.

Peter opened the door, and there stood a whitefaced, shivering little woman.

"Oh, what has happened to my little girls?" she panted, "I saw the light, and it is so late." Then as she beheld the golden haired vision in pink and the gay tree and Peter in his trim livery she gasped, "Why, I believe it is fairies!" And she sat down very suddenly in Jessie's chair.

"You are the little mother," said the princess as she knelt beside her and put her arms around her and told her how she came to be there, and when she had finished she said simply, "And I have wanted my own mother so much this Christmas, and the little girls were so sweet that I knew I should love you."

"You poor little thing!" cried the little mother to the tall princess, and the beautiful lady put her head down on the other's shabby shoulder and wept, because in spite of her riches she had been very, very lonely in her big house.

And after Peter had gone they talked until midnight of Jessie and Jenny, and then they concocted great plans about the pretty things that the little mother was to make for the princess.

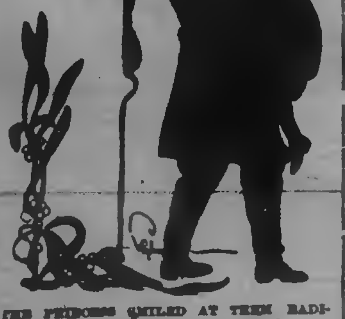
And in the morning Jessie and Jenny, waking in the early dawn, saw sitting on the footboard of the bed two Teddy bears, one with a flaring pink bow and one with a flaring blue bow, and the Teddy bears held out their arms saucily and gazed at the happy little girls with twinkling eyes.

"Oo-oh!" cried the little girls, who had never seen a Teddy bear before. And that was the beginning of the most wonderful day of their lives, for all day the tree went "tinkle, tinkle," as they foraged in its branches for bonbons. And the chicken dinner was a delicious success. And in the afternoon they all took a ride in the princess' sleigh, with Peter driving on the box, and when at last he set them down on their own humble doorstep and lifted little Jessie in his arms the princess smiled at them radiantly from under her plumy hat.

"Remember, Peter will come for you every Saturday, and you are to stay at my house all day," she said.

"Oh, yes!" Jenny sighed, with rapture.

"And you are to come to my wedding in the spring—all of you," said the princess gayly.



THE PRINCESS SMILED AT THEM RADIANTLY BENEATH HER PLUMES

"And see the prince!" said Jessie over Peter's shoulder.

"And you are going to let me share a third of your mother?"

"Yes, oh, yes!" from both of the little girls.

"Then you shall share a third of Peter," the princess called back as the smiling coachman drove her away through the glistening snow.

The Present Said "Papa!"

In station K, in New York city, a young clerk who was sorting a sack of Christmas mail was amazed to see a package in the sack move. He carried the sack to the sorting table and dumped out the contents. Something suddenly exclaimed:

"Papa! Papa!"

The frightened clerk examined every package carefully. In the one that moved he found a live kitten packed in a small bird cage. The kitten had a pink bow of ribbon at its neck, and attached to the ribbon was a card bearing the inscription:

"A Merry Christmas from Uncle Jack."

Further investigation brought forth the fact that the cry "Papa!" came from a doll with blond curls that called "Papa!" each time it was squeezed. In moving the mail sack the postal clerk had frightened the kitten in one package and squeezed the mechanical doll in the other package. He was much relieved when he had unraveled the double mystery.

Revised For Christmas.

"You say Jack writes he can't be here
With you on Christmas day?
Well, 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder,'
So the poets say."

"'Tis not Jack's absence. What care I
Because he can't be near?
It's absence of the presents
That I, of all, most fear."

For sake of up to dateness now
We'll change this little rhyme.
"'Tis presents make the heart grow fondest"
Just at Christmas time.

Daddy's Christmas Dream.

That Christmas comes but once a year
Is rather sad for Willy,
And likewise limits much the cheer
Of Mabel, Maud and Milly,
For they would welcome ten or twelve
To shout around the shanty
And in their stockings deep to delve
For goodies left by Santy.

But once a year is quite enough
(Since buying's such a bother
When times are panicky and tough)
For these dear youngsters' father—
In fact, poor daddy hopes the fates
Will cause (to get a cheap year)
The calendar to change its dates
And Christmas swap with leap year.

A MEASURE OF MERCY

It is a measure of mercy to the over burdened servants of the public behind the shop customers. There is just about as much Christmas shopping to be done, and every bit of it that is done before the rush of the last few days is that much relief for the saleswomen and salesmen. It is that much less to be done in those terrible last days of the Christmas shopping season when nerves are worn to the breaking point, and when aching heads and weary hands and tired feet do their best to meet the demands of an eager and insatiable and thoughtless public. That early shopping tends to relieve the pressure of that awful last week is reason enough for it, but there are other and more selfish reasons.

It is a measure of mercy to yourself. Buying now, you get the pick of the stock, you have less competition for the attention and assistance of the clerks; you are crowded less and hurried less; you shop more comfortably and to better advantage.

Buying just before Christmas you get what wiser shoppers have left for you; you necessarily get less attention from the clerks because there are thousands of others pressing for their services; you submit yourself to a jam on the streets and in the shops; shopping then is a burden and a care and a dread; shopping now is a leisurely and comfortable pleasure.

The arguments are old, but they are always good. There is every reason for shopping now; no reason whatever for shopping at the last moment. As a measure of mercy to the people in the shops and to yourself, do your buying now.

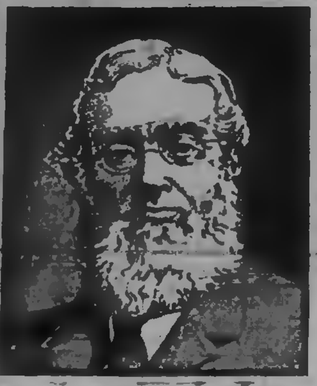
Kidney Disease For Years

This Well Known Gentleman Strongly Recommends "Fruit-a-tives" to all Sufferers.



JAMES DINGWALL, Esq.

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I was a lifelong sufferer from Chronic Constipation, and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was "Fruit-a-tives." This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring I had a severe ATTACK OF BLADDER TROUBLE WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE, and "Fruit-a-tives" cured these complaints for me, when the physician attending me had practically given me up.

I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" for chronic constipation and bladder and kidney trouble. This medicine is very mild like fruit, is easy to take, but most effective in action."

SANTA CLAUS A STRANGER.

He is Officially Unknown to Uncle Sam's Mail Agents.

The postoffice department does not know Santa Claus. The old saint has no official existence so far as Uncle Sam's mail agents are concerned. This is due entirely to the fact that Santa Claus lives everywhere at the same time instead of having a single local habitation like other people. It is very sad, but it cannot be helped. Letters which children address to Santa Claus or Kris Kringle must go straight to the dead letter office.

Some time ago an effort on behalf of the children was made to induce the postoffice department to permit postmasters to open all letters addressed to Santa Claus and turn them over to the parents of the child correspondent or to some local organization having a Christmas fund to spend, but the attorney general for the department rendered an adverse decision, holding as follows:

> If postmasters were granted authority to open all such letters and select those which they thought proper to deliver to persons applying for them, there would be temptation and opportunity for postmasters and other employees to open letters indiscriminately, some of which contain inclosures of value, and give us an excuse for such action the authority granted by the department.

The department's legal adviser also was of the opinion that, if permission were granted to deliver such letters to benevolent societies and individuals, it would be difficult for the department to draw the line where benevolence ends and commercialism begins. Many persons desire such letters for use in newspapers and magazine stories, the name of the child of some prominent public man attached to such a letter making it especially valuable for that purpose and often correspondingly embarrassing to the parent of the child. Furthermore, the opinion states, such a practice would violate the principle of the sanctity of the seal, which is one of the best features of our postal system, and the department would continually be open to serious suspicion.

Candles For Christmas.

Christmas candlemakers are busy for many months in the year. It would be impossible to estimate how many hundreds of thousands of dozens of pretty little colored wax candles are required for Christmas trees all over Europe and America. There are also candles for church decoration at Christmastide. Whereas the Christmas tree tapers are, some of them, so tiny as to require seventy-two to make a pound, the great altar shafts of pure beeswax will sometimes stand six feet and weigh forty pounds apiece.—Tit-Bits.

Avoiding Temptation.

Callahan—Probably he is afraid of temptation.

Hammert—Temptation?

Callahan—I mean that he is afraid that if he did buy a tree he would be tempted to buy something to hang on it.—Town and Country.

A TELEGRAPH JOKER.

He Knew What the Crowd Wanted and Delivered the Goods.

ELECTION RETURNS TO SUIT.

Swung States and National Chairmen Into Line in His Reports and Gave the Boys of the Mining Camp the Time of Their Lives.

A funny incident happened on the night of the national election of 1896 in a little camp tucked away in the mountains of southwestern Colorado, where the only means of quick communication with the world were a single uncertain telegraph wire and a single more uncertain telegraph operator. Naturally only the merest scraps of election news reached the camp, but before the certain news of McKinley's election could have been got the uncertain operator had fallen a victim to his favorite vice and, further, had fallen beneath the table.

The only other person who knew anything about telegraphy was "Shorty," the local wit and humorist, who volunteered to write out the election returns as they clicked off from the telegraph instrument. Political sentiment was aflame for Bryan. News of his election was not only sought, but demanded, for the average American miner is as sanguine concerning the uncertainties of politics as he is concerning the uncertainties of mining. The volunteer telegrapher was noted for an obliging disposition. He was the "genial" of the camp.

The "boys" had placed stores of giant powder at various points. They had cleaned and oiled their six shooters and refilled their cartridge belts. Bonfires were ready to be lighted on the hillsides, and natural enthusiasm had been stimulated at the Metropole, the Cosmopolitan, the Fashion, the Trocadero and less pretentiously named oases in the desert of mining camp existence—in fact, every preliminary to the grandest celebration the San Juan country ever had known.

Shorty was not the man to neglect an opportunity like that. The first bulletin he handed to the waiting crowd stated that New York and Indiana were in doubt and it looked like a close election, with the chances favoring Bryan. That whetted the crowd's keen appetite for returns to razor edge. The second bulletin sent their spirits up with a leap. "Bryan has carried Kansas, and the Democrats are claiming Iowa."

"Whoopee!" from the crowd.

Shorty bent his ear to the clicking sounder and inscribed "Bulletin No. 3—Illinois joins the Bryan column with 80,000 majority. Indiana certain, New York very close."

When the deafening chorus had died down a young member of the party asked the leader, "Hadn't we better begin to set off the giant?"

Before the leader could answer Shorty reproved him by word and look. "Don't go off half cocked," he said. "It's always best to wait until you are sure. You can't be too conservative in a case like this."

After a long pause, in which the crowd displayed much impatience, the imperturbable and conservative Shorty transcribed bulletin No. 4, but before passing it out he said:

Bulletin No. 4 read, "Senator Jones claims Ohio and Pennsylvania for Bryan."

Under ordinary circumstances a doubt might have been expressed concerning the probability of such states reversing their political records, but the crowd was convinced of an impending landslide for their favorite and yelled with delight. "Now we are beginning to get the news," remarked Shorty when the cheering ceased, and he began to write bulletin No. 5 as follows:

"New York gives Bryan 100,000 plurality; Indiana, 40,000. Returns from Wisconsin and Minnesota indicate large Democratic gains."

The crowd heard only the first sentence. Shouting, cheering, yelling, screaming, it broke for the street.

"Hold on!" called Shorty. "Here's another."

Bulletin No. 6, "Quay concedes Pennsylvania to Bryan."

Another fragment broke from the crowd and ran down the street shouting the news. The new operator's pencil was traveling rapidly over the paper, while his friends and fellow citizens crowded closely upon him and read as he wrote bulletin No. 7, "Mark Hanna has locked up Republican headquarters and gone home."

The roar of the crowd was drowned by the roar of exploding giant powder. Buildings shook, windows rattled, accompanied by the crash of broken glass. The celebration was on, and Shorty McIntyre was alone.

The celebration lasted for two days. The morning after election the regular operator had recovered sufficiently to transcribe messages announcing McKinley's victory. Those who were sober enough to understand them didn't believe them. After several warnings of what would happen to him if he didn't quit "trying to fool people" the operator desisted and joined in the general jubilation. Not until the arrival of the Denver papers on the second day did that camp awake to a realization of the outcome of the election, and then there was not sufficient energy left to vent even indignation upon Shorty, much less to take revenge. On the third day the volunteer operator was more popular than ever, for all admitted he had given them the time of their lives.

A WILD ANIMAL I HAVE KNOWN

I wonder if you ever met
A humpydoodledee?
I really quite advise you not;
It is so bad, you see!
The humpydoodle sulks and frets,
It's grumpy, and it's cross—
For simply being horrid
It is never at a loss.
It stamps its foot, and kicks and cries
In such a naughty way,
And it sometimes is so spunky
That it really won't obey!
It is, indeed, an animal from which
I'd have you flee
If you, by chance, should come upon
A humpydoodledee!

CHRISTMAS TOYS ARE INTERESTING

All Thats Needed to Cheer Childish Hearts on Display

The Christmas toy display of this year has many original ideas, which will greatly please the childish heart. From large firms in the old land come a variety of ideas in the old-fashioned "crackers." Many are worked out in the same designs and pretty colors of a quarter of a century ago, but with the modern touch, introducing the "airship cracker" for instance. The "North Pole" idea is also one of pleasing design and greatly admired by both young and old. The "aeroplane toy," modelled on the kite plan, is shown in all sizes and made in several varieties to please the growing boy. Many local establishments have exhibits of this article. Miniature engines to be run by steam, with all the detail apparatus of belts and wheels, tiny phonographs, up-to-date ideas in military and naval sets, together with tin ships, in all sizes and beautiful colored and equipped form the larger part of the newest and most admired of the Christmas toy.

Sudden Change In Diet.

Sudden change in the diet of any animal is bad, especially the horse. The soft bran mash, by many advocated as a good Saturday night offering, is apt to cause colic unless the horse has been accustomed to bran during the week. Similar sudden use of green grass, roots, boiled grain or grain other than those mentioned is apt to cause indigestion of a serious nature, and, taking all things into consideration, the horse will do better on a steady ration at fixed intervals and in such a way as to allow sufficient time for proper mastication.

WRAP YOUR GIFTS DAINTILY

Make Your Gifts Attractive—Us Holly Cards, Tags and Seals

A large amount of pleasure in receiving a Christmas gift lies in the manner in which the gift is wrapped. If the parcel is daintily tied up, decorated with pretty holly seals and has a pretty card enclosed conveying the best wishes of the donor, the anticipation is sure to be greater than if the parcel is roughly tied in a careless manner, in perhaps, used wrappings.

So if you would have your gifts appreciated to the highest extent, see that they are wrapped up as nicely as possible. First you will need to supply yourself with some clear white paper; than you need some fancy cards, either small or large, in keeping with the gift; then some fancy tags for the outside and these may be had in two or three sizes and designs. After the parcel is tied up, a Christmas stamp may be put in one corner, and the openings sealed with holly seals, of which there are several designs.

If you do this your parcel will look very much nicer and the recipient of it is sure to enjoy receiving it much more. All these materials may be bought at the Review Office, and really are not expensive. Call and secure some of them before the supply is disposed of.

GOING TO THUNDER.

TOO GREAT A STRAIN.

EVERY once in a while the actor while taking the part of a dude in a play would spend large sums of his stage money. On one of these occasions it seemed too much for a certain person in the audience, when a voice rang shrill and clear through the house, "Hey, Bill, how about that five you owe me?"

HARLEM MUSICAL NOTE.

"OH, papa, papa!" cried the music lesson maid from the adjoining room, "there's a burglar in the parlor! He just bumped against the piano. I heard him strike several keys."

"All right, dearie; I'll go right down."

"Sure not. Leave that to me. I'm going to help the poor duffer. You don't suppose he can get that blamed piano out without assistance, do you?"

VERY GOOD, INDEED.

"AND why are you crying as though your heart would break, my lad?"

"I—I—I jist heard—boohoo—that all the good die young, and—and—I've—I've went and been so durned good that—that I'm skeered."

REAL GOOD FORTUNE.

THERE was the shivering sound of breaking glass heard in the dining room.

"Oh, gracious, James! Have you broken another goblet?"

"Yes, madam; but I was real fortunate this time, really. It only broke in two pieces."

"Well, and you call that being 'fortunate,' do you?"

"Yes, madam; you can't imagine what a bother it is to pick them up when they break into a hundred pieces."

THE EIGHT PHASES OF LOVE AND ——

AT a recent hearing in a suit for breach of promise there were eight letters produced in which could easily be traced the course of true love.

The first letter bore the dignified salutation, "Dear Mr. Smith," after which followed "My Dear John," then "My Darling John," "My Ownest Darling Sweetheart Jack," "My Darling John," "Dear John," "Dear Sir," "Sir."

And so the curtain fell on the grand finale of love's fickle drama.

SIZING UP THE BABY.

THIS is what the Browns had to say of the latest addition to the family:—

The Mother—Oh, isn't he the cutest, grandest, handsomest, smartest little fellow in the whole world? Such eyes! Such features! Such shoulders! And hear him talk, will you? Why, he understands perfectly every word I say.

The Father—There's a boy for you! Smith will brag about that kid of his, will he? Well, you just wait until this youngster is a month old and I'll take the conceit out of Smith!

Little Bobby—So that's what the stork brought, eh? Gee! the stork must have it in for this family.

Little Bella—Oh, ma, he's swallowed all his teeth and all his hair's blowed off!

Bachelor Brother—I don't want to cause you folks any anxiety, but he's the smallest human being I ever saw outside of a dime museum. You want to feed him up on roast beef and porterhouse steak right away.

Uncle Jack (a dog fancier)—Is his nose cold? Hold him up by the back of his neck and we'll see if he's got any nerve.

Grandma—There you go, spoiling the child as soon as he has his eyes open! I suppose when he's a month old we shall all have to stand on our heads to amuse him! Give me that infant this instant, before he has colic and dies!

The Family Cat—Well, that settles my hash! It's either hunt a new home or become a tailless feline inside of a month. Why, that kid's got a grip on him like a longshoreman's!

The Baby—Goo-goo! Goo-goo! Goo-goo-goo-goo! Or, in other words, "I'll make it good and hot for this family about midnight!"

IT HAD COME TO THAT.

THE Benedict—I wish I could get some bread like mother used to bake for me.

The Benediction—I wish I could get some clothes like father used to buy for me.

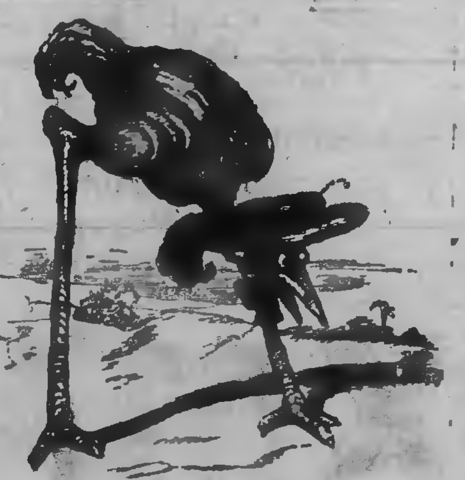
MRS. WASHBOARD—'Skuze mah 'pert'nence, honey, but why on erf did yuh hitch up tuh sich a homely niggah as yuh man is?

Mrs. Washington—Wa-al, yuh see, chile, I prefud a ugly husband what'd stay tuh home 'n' wring mah clo's rad'r'n a shore han'sum niggah what wud kite 'roun' 'n' wring mah heart!



I do hope nobody will frighten me. How dreadful it would be to be forced to bury this beautiful milliner in the sand.

EVOLUTION.

When a college bred professor
Who has taken his degree,
And is settled in his habits
At the age of thirty-three,
Takes an educated woman
On a honeymoon of bliss,
You may hear the two conversing
In a language much like this:—

"Is oo hubby's honey darlin'?"
"Es. Who's lovey-dovey is oo?"
"Oors. Tiss oor ikkil lub again."
"Lub oo? Why, ob course I do!"

This wears off a short time later,
When they come back home again,
And she drifts away to card clubs,
While he smokes within his den,
Till a most important person,
Young and tender, comes to stay
In a much beribboned cradle,
And then this is what they say:—

"Oh, the pitty teenty weenty!
"Is 'e mudder's cunning pet?
"See the itty tootsies wootsies!
"Never mind, lub, don't oo fret!"

TOO EMBARRASSING.

"SO the American heiress will not listen to your suit?" interrogated the friend. "Perhaps you are too modest in your courtship. You should unbosom yourself."

The nobleman looked horrified.

DOWN THE OLD ROAD.

THE big autumn moon rolled up above the frosty pines.

"You like to go out driving?" he said after a long silence.

"Yes," she answered, nestling closer.

"And you always like to go with a young man who knows how to handle the ribbons?"

"Well, er—sometimes I like to go with a young man who knows how to drop them."

And after that the old horse jogged along unguided.

SAVING HIS STRENGTH.

MR. BUNKER—I've walked at least twenty miles playing golf and——

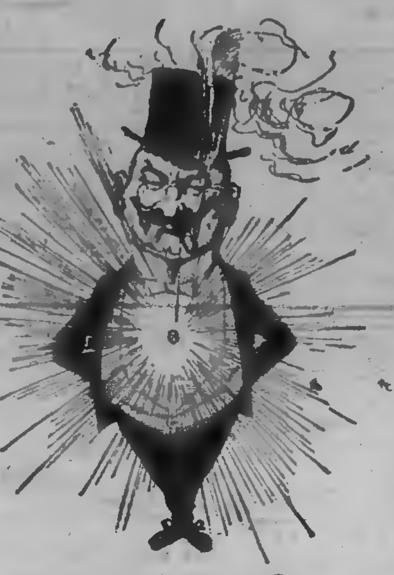
Mrs. Bunker (breaking in)—I don't doubt it, and yet you made an awful fuss this morning when I asked you to step down cellar and bring up a pail of coal for me.

Mr. Bunker—Well, did you imagine I was anxious to tire myself out carrying coal when I knew I had that long walk ahead of me?

EVEN MORE.

"IS Gladys taking a day off to celebrate her birthday?"

"She's taking a year off!"



THE THEATRICAL MANAGER.

The man who stands behind the blaze
Is he who gratifies the craze
Of high society to pay
To worship at a matinee.
He is the sun round which one learns
The "stars" revolve and "do their turns,"
The sun which holds its genial rays
From ticket speculating ways.
Ah, friends, how happy all could be
Could all live such a life as he!

PERQUISITES.

HY WHITTLESTICKS (perched on a barrel in Dupay's store, munching a cracker and reaching for a piece of cheese)—I do think that if that thar Andy Carniggy 'ud give our town a lib'ry it 'ud become right smart pop'lar with th' boys. Don't you think so, Cy?

Cy Dupay—I cal'late would—providin' he kept it right well supplied with crackers and cheese.

THINKING OF THE ELECTION.

IN concluding a review of the lesson of the Pharisee and the publican the superintendent said to the class:—

"Now, then, whose prayers does God answer?"

To which a bright little lad quickly replied—"Republicans'."

VIRTUE'S REWARD.

ONCE upon a time there was a boy and he applied for a job.

"We don't want lazy boys here. Are you fond of work?" asked the boss.

"No, sir!" answered the boy, looking the boss straight in the face.

"Oh, you're not, aren't you? Well, we want a boy that is."

"There ain't any," insisted the boy, doggedly.

"Oh, yes, there are! We have had a dozen of that kind here this morning looking for a situation with us."

"How do you know they are not lazy?" persisted the boy.

"Why, they told me so."

"So could I have told you so; but I'm not a liar."

And he got the job.

NO NEED OF CALCULATION.

TEACHER—Now, Tommy, suppose you borrowed $50 from your father, agreeing to pay him $5 a month, how much would you owe him at the end of a year?

Tommy—$30!

Teacher—You don't know how to calculate, Tommy.

Tommy—No, but I knows human nature!

HE WAS THE LIMIT.

A NUMBER of Congressmen were talking of the smooth characters that appear in Washington in support of certain legislation. Reference was had to a lobbyist who had the reputation of being one of the "slickest" that ever visited the capital, when some one asked a prominent Southern Congressman whether the lobbyist was indeed as clever as he had been represented.

"Why, gentlemen," replied the Congressman, "that man could hear a postage stamp drop into a waste basket!"

SOME EASIER METHOD.

NOT Handsome but Wealthy Bride (asking the question for the hundredth time or thereabout)—Are you sure, perfectly sure, dear Albert, that you married me for myself alone and not for my money?

Dear Albert (who is getting somewhat weary of answering the same old chestnut)—Sure? Of course I am! If it had been only your money I wanted I would have tried burglary or some easier way of getting it.

WISE.

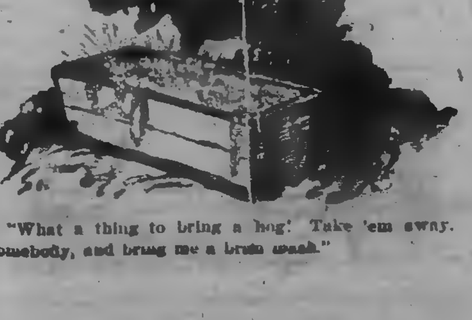
MRS.—Most of the toy drums are shipped from Germany.

Mr.—They're mighty wise to ship them.

A PROPOSAL.

GERALDINE—Life is what we make it.

Gerald—Let's make it hearts.



"What a thing to bring a hog! Take 'em away, somebody, and bring me a bran mash."

THE BRIDE.

THE bride is an institution that is common to all ages and climes, but in this country has attained unusual prominence owing to the large export trade in brides being carried on with England, Germany, France and Russia.

The bride is always accompanied by an awning and a clergyman, who varies in number and importance according to the financial standing of the bride's father.

During the open season brides can be seen at Niagara Falls and Washington.

Brides live in flats and suburban villas. They also inhabit mountain and seaside resorts in the summer. The June bride is known wherever there is a railroad.

There is more money spent on brides in this country alone than on gold mines. The profits are about the same. Occasionally a rich vein is struck, but as a rule it is nothing but a constant expense with nothing coming in.

Every bride is given away. This may happen at any time, either before, during or after the ceremony.

No bride is complete without either orange blossoms, lilies of the valley or orchids. She also wears a veil which is useful afterward as a window curtain.

Every bride has a trousseau and a honeymoon, upon which she goes. She is usually accompanied by a husband, but as a rule he cannot be seen above the horizon, except on a clear day.

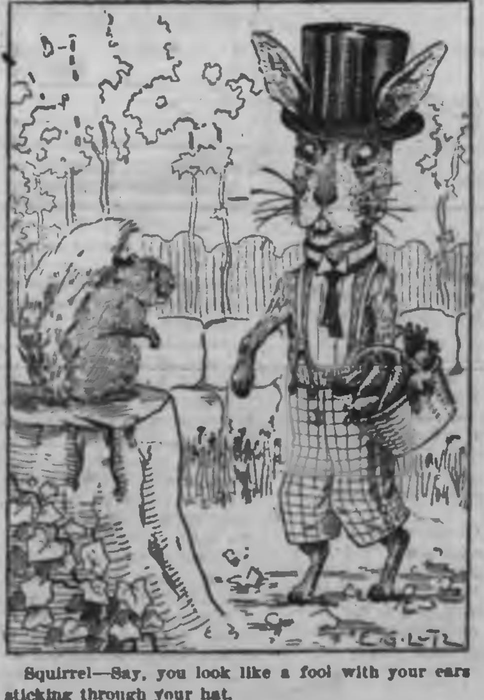
Every bride has her day.

GETTING A LINE ON PROSPECTS.

"SIR, I have a very personal business proposition to make to you, but before approaching that would you care to make a statement of your financial condition?"

"Certainly! I have been established in this business for more than twenty-five years, my yearly income is well into the hundreds of thousands and constantly increasing, I have unlimited credit and also have real estate valued at a couple of millions. Go ahead!"

"That is quite satisfactory. Now, may I ask for the hand of your daughter?"



Squirrel—Say, you look like a fool with your ears sticking through your hat.

Rabbit—Look like a fool, maybe, but I'd be one if I covered them up so that I couldn't hear the hunter's dogs.

STILL WATERS.

THE dashing, handsome Algernon,
With keen delight for any fun,
Approached the shy Miss Annabel
And softly said:—"Now, will you tell,
If you prefer"— and, with a smile,
He whispered for some little while.
Then asked she, with a simple laugh:—
"You wish an answer to your chaff?"
She cast down her sweet, pensive eyes
And simpered, to his great surprise:—
"Two strings to my bow, or two beaus on a string?
A bird in the hand is the only thing."

WHAT HIS FATHER SAID.

There was a young fellow named Sam,
Who closed the door with a slam;
His aunt said, "Dear me!"
And his mother said, "Gee!"
But his father, he only said—"Samuel!"

—R. ROCHESTER.

REPLENISHING THE LARDER.

A DUSKY divine whose supply of hominy and bacon was running low decided to take radical steps to impress upon his flock the necessity for contributing liberally to the church exchequer. Accordingly at the close of the sermon he effected an impressive pause and then proceeded:—

"I has found it necessary, on account of de astringency of de hard times an' de general deficiency of de circulatin' mejium in connection wid dis church, to interduce my new ottermatic c'lection box.

"Dis box is arranged so as to cause a half dollar or a quartah to fall on a red plush cushion widout makin' any noise; a nickel will ring a small bell distinctually heard by de congregashun, an' a suspendah button, my breddern and sistern, will fiah off a pistol. Yo' will govern yo'selves according. Let de c'lection now percede."

NEVER AGAIN.

Borne on the first autumnal blast,
Heralding the snow and sleet,
One hears the old, old tale again
In busy mart and street:—
"You'll never hear me make complaint Again of summer heat!"

—D. C. E.

IN A RESTAURANT.

WAITER—We cannot serve half a portion to two persons, sir.

Guest—All right. Serve it to me and I'll sublet it to my friend here.

THE REASON FOR IT.

"THEY say he has a splendid flow of wit."

"He ought to. He takes nothing but liquid refreshment."

NO REDUCTION FOR HIM.

THEY were swapping stories one night at the Friars' Club when Jefferson de Angelis told of two players, one of whom is growing bald, passing a barber shop, in the window of which was displayed a sign reading:—

FIRST CLASS HAIR CUT, 20 CENTS

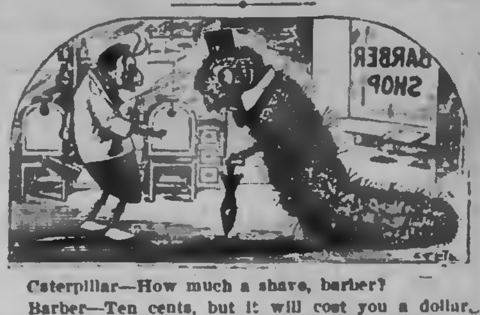
"That's the place for me," said the actor, whose locks were diminishing. "I have so little hair left they couldn't conscientiously charge me more than ten cents."

"You misinterpret the sign," rejoined the second Thespian. "If you possessed but three spears yours would still be considered first class hair, which, you will observe, is the kind for which they demand twenty cents."

AIN'T IT AWFUL?

"A PAWNBROKER'S is the dearest place imaginable."

"Yes, it is loan-some!"



Caterpillar—How much a shave, barber?

Barber—Ten cents, but it will cost you a dollar, the price of ten shaves, if you want to be shaved all over.

CLEOPATRA'S CODE.

Never be pessimistic. The rose colored glasses of idealism are much more becoming to a woman than the blue spectacles of pessimism.

Don't be the slave of your desires, but their master.

The art of adaptability is a better aid to conversation than intellect.

A POEM IN NEED.

THE silver frost is on the pane,
The windy woods are bare,
The norther in the chimney plays
A wild and wailing air;
I hear upon the lake below
The skaters laugh and shout
In careless glee (I'm writing this Because the coal is out).

The babbling brook is silent, held
Beneath an icy thrall,
And gently from the leaden skies
The flakes begin to fall.
In purest ermine, soft and white,
The earth is robed anew
(I've got to finish this to-day,
The rent is almost due).

Still faster from the wintry clouds
Descend the snowy showers,
Until the orchard blooms again
With fair and frozen flowers.
And hark! the merry sleigh bells now
Ring out o'er vale and hill
(I hope this poem brings enough
To pay the butcher's bill).

—MINNA IRVING.

UNKNOWN TO SCIENCE.

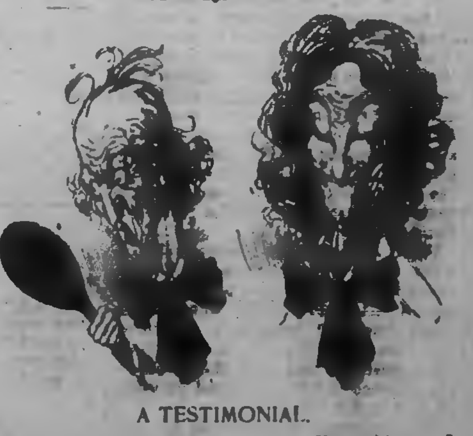
"Dad," he said, "they photograph comets and meteors and flying birds and lightning flashes and all sorts of moving things without any trouble, don't they?"

"Yes, my son."

"Then how is it they can't photograph a boy without putting his head in an iron frame?"



A TESTIMONIAL.

"Sirs—I am a poet by profession; and some time since the thinning of my hair caused me serious alarm; but since taking one bottle of your tonic——

——Everything I have written has been accepted."

A COMMON HAPPENING.

CASE of reckless speeding,
Going lightning fast,
Years crammed into seconds,
Whizzing quickly past.

Case of chauffeur scorching
Like a careless clown,
Heeding not the warnings
Given to slow down.

Case of auto smashing
In a thousand parts,
Occupants emerging
Both with broken hearts.

Cause of the occurrence
Usual is seen:—
Cupid took a joy ride
In Friendship's buzz machine.

A BIT OF CHRISTMAS

By C. E. WYMAN

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

It was Christmas morning and very, very cold. Every few minutes a trainman would come through the car, watching carefully a dial faced thermometer and stopping to turn screws of the heating apparatus in persistent attempts to keep the pointing finger at 70 degrees.

Despite the discomfort of close air, which was none too warm at best, the passengers in the main wore joyous faces and didn't seem to consider the numerous packages and bundles as an annoyance.

From a wayside station, which looked as if it had never been neighbor to any house where human beings lived, a poor little girl entered and dropped into a seat where an overcoat told that its owner was probably in the smoking car. The child did not notice this, and in her ignorance of travel it would have made no difference if she had. She might have been eight or ten years old, but that air of self reliance was there which poverty's child often acquires very young, yet there was nothing forward or "bold" in her appearance. Her dress was of the scantiest—a thin cotton gown, barely concealing the lack of suitable underwear; a little worn shoulder shawl and a battered straw hat.

When the conductor appeared the hand which presented her half fare ticket was red with cold, but the small person lifted to him a wonderfully frank face and confidingly informed him that she was going to grandma's for Christmas and that the package she clutched in her other hand contained cookies for grandma.

The conductor smiled down at her. A pitying smile it was, as he thought of his own well fed, well clothed children, with whom he expected to eat a late Christmas dinner when this run was over. The smile lingered on his face as he passed to the next seat and saw that its occupant had heard.

Two women sat in the seat, strangers to each other and as unlike as two persons made on the same general principles could be. One was tall, dignified, young, wrapped in costly furs, everything about her showing the person who never lacked money or leisure; the other, stout, jolly, elderly, comfortable—a kindly and well to do woman. The two had traveled miles and miles side by side with not a word passed between them.

Now both sat with eyes fixed on the forlorn bit of humanity in front of them. Suddenly the younger woman opened her traveling bag and took from it a soft gray shawl. It was at least two yards long and half as wide. Folding it together, she touched the little waif, saying in a low tone, "Stand up, my dear." The child obeyed wonderingly, and this woman in the costly furs placed the folded shawl around the small shoulders, crossed it in front and, bringing the ends to the back, pinned them securely.

"It is yours to keep," she whispered—"a Christmas present." Then, turning to the woman at her side, she said apologetically, "I really did not need it myself." There was a blink of tears in her eyes.

"Well, now," the older woman exclaimed in admiration, "you just set me to thinkin'! I'm really ashamed that I didn't think of doing something myself. Here, I've got two pairs of mittens for my grandson—just about her size—in my hand bag, and he can't wear out more than one pair this winter. Besides, I can knit another. It's nothing at all to knit mittens." She was busily undrawing the strings of an enormous silk bag, but her glasses were blurred, and her fingers were clumsy with haste.

"What's your name, little girl? Katie? Well, hold out your hands, Katie. My! Aren't they a good fit! There's another Christmas present to keep. And here's a frosted cake. Just eat it right now, Katie. Your grandma won't need it, with all those you've got in your bundle."

The child again obeyed. She did not say, "Thank you." Possibly she did not know how, but she seemed to glow all over, and her eyes returned thanks even if her timid lips did not.

"I'm proud to know you, my dear," the rolly poly, comfortable woman said now to the young lady, for she had been saying to herself all the while: "You're the right sort. I can see that."

"And I am proud to know you," the other responded, almost shyly offering her hand, which was quickly buried in a big, warm grasp. "We all long to be of service at Christmas time, you know."

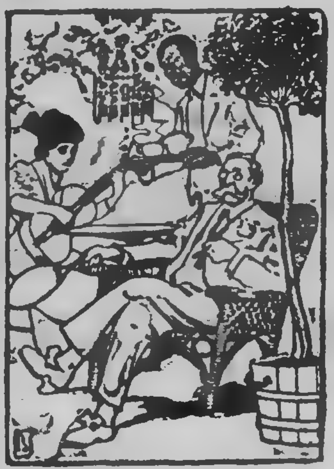
At that instant the man of the overcoat sauntered in to resume his seat. He gave a low whistle of surprise at the happy little traveler next the window, glanced at the two women and comprehended the situation. His right hand made a quick dive into his trousers pocket as if to get some money. In another instant he withdrew it and reached up to the rack overhead and lifted down a large paper bundle. Taking the bundle across the aisle to an empty seat, he opened it and took out a smaller package from among many others. Untying this package, he brought to light a flaxen haired doll dressed in the latest style and resplendent in a large picture hat. This he placed in the little girl's arms, saying, "From my little daughter, who would rather you should have it." Then he lifted his hat courteously to the women, took his overcoat on his arm and strode off to find a seat elsewhere. Rich little Katie!

SANTA CLAUS IN PORTO RICO.

CHRISTMAS in Spain is a religious festival rather than a social one. It was so originally in Porto Rico, but the population has been influenced partly by the spirit of the new world and partly by the many American merchants who reside in the cities and who exert an influence much greater than the numbers would seem to warrant.

The churches welcome the day with chimes which begin at midnight and last until the midnight of the next day. What with one church beginning ten minutes too soon and another ten minutes too late and a third at the right moment, what with bells which ring every fifteen minutes and bell ringers who under some ancient custom will sound the great bells every half hour, the air is filled with music which never seems to end.

If you are near a campanile the effect is not altogether pleasant on account of the volume of sound striking the ear with too much force, but in a public square several hundred yards from the nearest belfry, where trees and buildings break the sound waves, or in suburbs on the hillside the effect is unspeakably delightful.



A DAUGHTER PLAYS ON THE GUITAR.

Pleasantest of all is it when you are sitting in the inner court or quadrangle of a Porto Rican home. Around you on four sides the house rises above you, and in the grounds or in great tubs and porcelain pots rich flowers, graceful vines and restful trees afford shade, color and perfume. The sound of the bells descends from the air above very much like a benediction. You sit in an easy chair, and servants bring you tea or steaming coffee, sweetmeats and biscuits, confections and cigarettes, while a daughter or son plays ancient songs or dances upon a mandolin or guitar.

The churches are crowded; so are the clubs and most of the places of recreation. Every vehicle is in use, and here and there can be seen young men and women trying to imitate English models. Some of the people of the mountain districts carry out many of their early superstitions in regard to Christmas. They hang over the doors of their houses boughs of trees which are supposed to possess charms and often conduct marriage ceremonies under great canopies made of these charmed trees.

A great many wild flowers are in bloom at Christmastide, and these are worn by children of the mountain districts in wreaths and garlands about their heads, necks and waists. The Christmas giving is sadly missing in our new possessions. The churches hold no Christmas tree, and there are few charitable societies to give feasts. However, one hospital for old people and orphans in Ponce gives a Christmas fete, and the inmates have a good meal and receive warm clothing, medicines and other needful gifts.

The American occupation has brought extra Christmas cheer to the people of the island. The American residents celebrate the day in good American fashion, and, best of all, they put money into circulation and give zest to industry and business.

When Shepherds Watched by Night.

Some historians contend that the shepherds could not have watched by night on the Bethlehem plains in December, it being a period of great inclemency. In answer to this a well known student says: "Bethlehem is not a cold region. The mercury usually stands all the month of December at 46 degrees. Corn is sown during this time, and grass and herbs spring up after the rains, so that the Arabs drive their flocks down from the mountains into the plains. The most delicate never make fires till about the end of November, and some pass the whole winter without them. From these facts I think it is established without doubt that our Saviour was born on the 25th day of December, the day which the church throughout the world has united to celebrate in honor of Christ's coming in the flesh."—Washington Star.

Christmas Greetings

THE TERROR'S CHRISTMAS.

Turkeys Were $17 Each During the Siege of Paris.

When the Christmas day of 1870 dawned upon Paris the city had been in the iron grip of the German investment for about three months. The winter was a bitterly cold one, the thermometer registering 10 degrees below freezing point on Christmas morning. The Seine was frozen over.

The poor's daily rations were a few ounces of horseflesh and a piece of repulsive looking black bread.

By Dec. 25 food prices had reached their highest point since the beginning of the siege. On Nov. 13 a pound of butter fetched $14 and a rabbit $3.50. By Dec. 19 rabbits had risen to $5, a box of sardines brought $2.50 and eggs 25 cents apiece. For one's Christmas dinner one could buy a goose for $10 or a turkey for $17. Pigeons were $3 each, and a small fowl could be obtained for $5. Ham was $1.50 a pound. As for vegetables, carrots and turnips were 4 cents each, and a bushel of potatoes cost $6.25. There was hardly any milk in Paris, and the little there was had to be preserved for the sick and wounded. However, there were oceans of wine, and the wineshops did a roaring trade.

For some time before Christmas the starving people had been feeding on cats, rats and dogs until by Dec. 25 a dish of cat's flesh was hardly obtainable. Dog was 60 cents a pound, and fine rats fetched 14 cents each. Many domestic pets were killed for food. "Poor Azor!" said a humorous citizen as he finished a stew made from his favorite dog. "How he would have enjoyed these bones!"

With true Parisian light heartedness the citizens tried to make the best of things, and the cafes and restaurants wore almost their normal aspect. At half past 10, however, an order of Trochu closed every shop and cafe, and by 11 o'clock Paris had gone to bed.

The midnight mass of Christmas eve was celebrated as usual in the churches, which were crowded with praying, weeping women. Newspapers appeared as usual, some of them containing glowing accounts of perfectly imaginary French successes. The satirical sheets were even more bitter and venomous than at other times and published scathing caricatures. Some showed the fallen emperor, Napoleon III., as a shoeblack at King William's boots, or as a beggar with his pockets turned inside out, or as a traitor handing over France to murderers, or as a thief making off with millions of the nation's money. Others depicted Jules Favre in tears and pocketing Bismarck's gold and Trochu handing over the keys of Paris to a Prussian in exchange for a bag of coin. In all the idea of Parisians that France had been betrayed by those who ought to have protected her was prevalent.

So at this season of peace and good will suffering Paris was nearly at her last gasp. Owing to the tenacity of her rulers and citizens, however, her agony was to be prolonged for some weeks longer, as it was not until February that the negotiations for a capitulation began.

Worse.

A Yuletide Story

A CHRISTMAS AT CAPE HORN.

ONCE I had a shipmate who celebrated the most grateful Christmas of his life at the Horn.

It was on the Mary Ann, in December, 1897. She was a deep cut steel clipper, but she was a four masted bark, and four masted barks are all ugly in heavy seas. The best sea boat afloat will plunge at Cape Horn, but four masted barks are all the time under water. Sometimes they are swamped altogether and float waterlogged around the Horn. Then the current pushes them south to perish in the ice jam.

Some sailors can be likened to the four masted barks. They are the sailors who have been too long away from home. All sailors plunge liberally into shore life, but the "too long away from home" fellows are, as a rule, swamped in shore life's breakers.

One of my mates on the Mary Ann was Bob Jones, a typical "too long away from home" unfortunate. But Bob still had somebody dear to his heart. He had started on more than one trip around the world with the set determination that the end of the voyage should see him rejoin his own loved ones at home.

But on pay day at the end of his trips his good resolutions had been broken. It had often gone so, and Bob was hiding self despair under the grim surface of a man hating man.

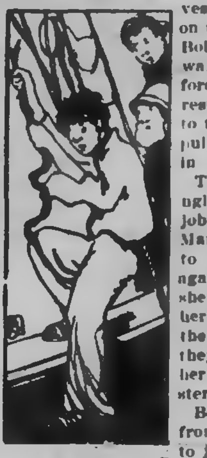
Bob and I, with twelve other Yankees, Dutchmen and Swedes, were on the starboard watch under Chief Mate Dickson of the Mary Ann. When we went below on Christmas eve the sea was running high. Sleet and hail came down in the squalls. The western gale had trimmed our sails down to the lower topsails.

We had hardly fallen asleep when we heard the man at the wheel strike one bell. Before the signal for "All hands on deck" was answered forward Bob and I were out of our bunks and had our sea boots on.

"What's up now?" growled Bob, and he got his answer from Jimmy, the deck boy, who came rushing in without preliminary warning.

"Rise, rise, rise, sleepers! Weather ship for icebergs on the leeward bow. Rise, rise, rise!"

The watch on deck was already setting the fore staysail to bend the vessel off the wind. She was running easy when we came on deck, and the storm spanker was hauled out to bring the vessel o the wind on the other tack. Bob was sent forward to furl the fore staysail. The rest of us went to the braces and pulled the yards in to starboard.



BOB AND THE ROPE DROPPED.

Then came the ugliest part of the job. Slowly the Mary Ann turned to face her foe again. But before she could bend her bow against the mighty seas they broke over her from stem to stern.

Bob came aft from the staysail to join us just as we all jumped out of the way, for a big breaker came thundering over the weather rail.

The breaker caught Bob at the fore backstays. He jumped up and put his arm through the coils of the fore sheet, hanging in straps in the royal backstay.

The straps were rotten, and Bob and the coil sheet rope dropped and disappeared in the boiling deck waters.

"Poor Bob!" said everybody to himself. It was all we could do for him. Bob was gone, and there seemed to be no help for it.

We had the Mary Ann snug at last. Our watch had still an hour more below, not long enough to make it worth while to crawl into our bunks, and we lighted our pipes, lay down on our chests and discussed poor Bob.

Bill, who was Bob's own chum, went to Bob's bunk and overhauled the things.

"It is enough to make anybody ripping mad to think of a rotten old strap chucking a poor fellow overboard," mused Bill. "Christmas night too. Say, boys, when we auction this stuff off we've got to show Bob up handsome to his friends."

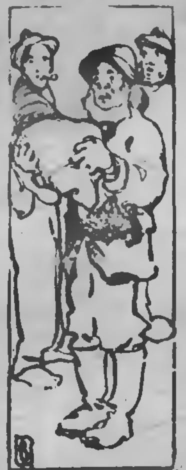
It must be explained that when sailors die at sea their belongings are sold at auction to the crew. This custom serves a double purpose. It is easier to ship money halfway around the globe than to insure the safe delivery of an old wooden chest. A good sum of money is also more welcome to most heirs than a chestful of tarred rags. Besides, the sea auctions give the shipmates of the dead an opportunity to "raise his reputation" by adding generously to his account.

Everybody wanted to fill the Christmas stockings of poor Bob's folks. The chief mate, Dickson, good naturedly consented that the auction should be held then and there and came to the forecastle with pencil and paper to record the sales as fast as they were made.

"Here you are, boys—here you are! Get your money ready. The greatest Cape Horn sale ever held will now start," rasped the old chief. "First article is a valuable straw pillow. Remember what Bill Shakespeare says, 'Uneasy rests the head that hasn't got a pillow.' What am I bid? Two dollars? Thank you! Three—four—five—six—six I have. Cape Horn prices, gentlemen. Eight—ten—ten—are you all done? Tom, you can have it for $10. You may get a better one in San Francisco for 50 cents, but you can't duplicate it for $50 within a thousand miles of this place.

"Next article is a handsome stand up linen collar. It has only been worn by poor Bob in Liverpool and can be washed absolutely clean for the small price of 5 cents. It is the only article of its kind that has ever been for sale at Cape Horn. What am I bid—a dollar—two, two-fifty, three-fifty, four—four—are you all done? Sold to Dick for $4. Dick is a sport now. Wait a minute; there is a button in the back of the collar. You will have to buy the button separately, Dick."

And so each worn and patched garment of poor Bob was sold at "Cape Horn prices." Bob's shipmates took care that none of them contributed less than a month's wages to Bob's final pay day.



A VALUABLE STRAW PILLOW.

The mate at last put his hand to the bottom of Bob's chest, and from a corner he brought up a bundle of papers wrapped in an old piece of canvas tied together with yellow silken cigar bands. The mate held the bundle thoughtfully in his hand. He hesitated to trespass.

"Open it up!" shouted the men in chorus.

"Hem! Well, we will see what is in it anyway," assented the mate.

When the canvas cover was opened a score of letters in soiled and torn envelopes dropped out.

"I see no harm in letting you fellows get a little home sentiment out of these old letters," said the mate, "but you must not keep them. They must be forwarded to Bob's friends. You boys can bid for the privilege of reading the letters."

Dick for $9 bought the right to first pick. He took the best preserved envelope and its inclosure and went away to read the letter.

The sale continued, letter after letter fetching a neat sum. Half the letters were sold when Dick came from his corner and interrupted the sale. He looked troubled and shook his letter in our faces.

"Boys, this letter is from the girl," said he. "She's a dandy. Bob was no good. He didn't go home when he was paid off in Liverpool; he didn't go home from New York; he didn't go home from San Francisco when he could have made the trip in a day. The girl is waiting yet."

"Bob's mother is getting old, and she is poor. She does not ask for money however. All she wants is her boy. He will never return to her now. Poor Bob's mother! Poor Bob!"

At four bells the lookout gave us his "All's well! Side lights burning bright." Suddenly he began to beat the forward bell like mad.

The lookout was shouting and waving his arms from the forecastle head, where he stood clinging to the rail. When we reached the fore part of the house the lookout attracted our attention to a dark object leaning limply against the starboard lighthouse.

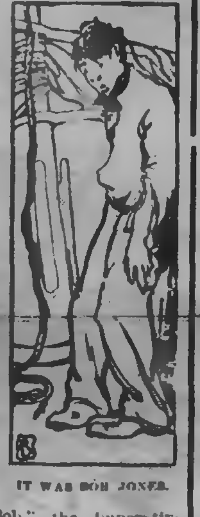
It was Bob Jones.

We carried him into the forecastle. The mate and the whisky bottle were brought forward, and Bob slowly came to his senses.

"I was slambanged something fearful, boys," drawled Bob. "That breaker caught me right, and the blamed strap broke. Then over she rolled to leeward"—

"And I saw you go over the side," interrupted Dick.

"Not I. It may have been the sheet coil," continued Bob. "I was washed away up under the forecastle head. I guess I went clean off in a faint after I had crawled to a dry place. When I woke up I made for the forecastle, but I couldn't make it. I dropped right off again at the lighthouse."



IT WAS BOB JONES.

When Bob had been bandaged up and given a warm breakfast he was the old Bob once more. The boys poked lots of fun at him when they returned his things to him.

"Hold on, boys; let us make a bargain with Bob," the imperative Dick broke in. "Here is my Bible. If Bob will swear to go home to his mother and the girl from San Francisco he can take the auction money along as a Christmas present."

"That's right! Come on, Bob. Swear, man, swear!"

"I do, so help me, God, and a merry Christmas to you all, boys!" sobbed Bob. "I will go home, boys—I will!"

And he did.—Philadelphia Ledger.

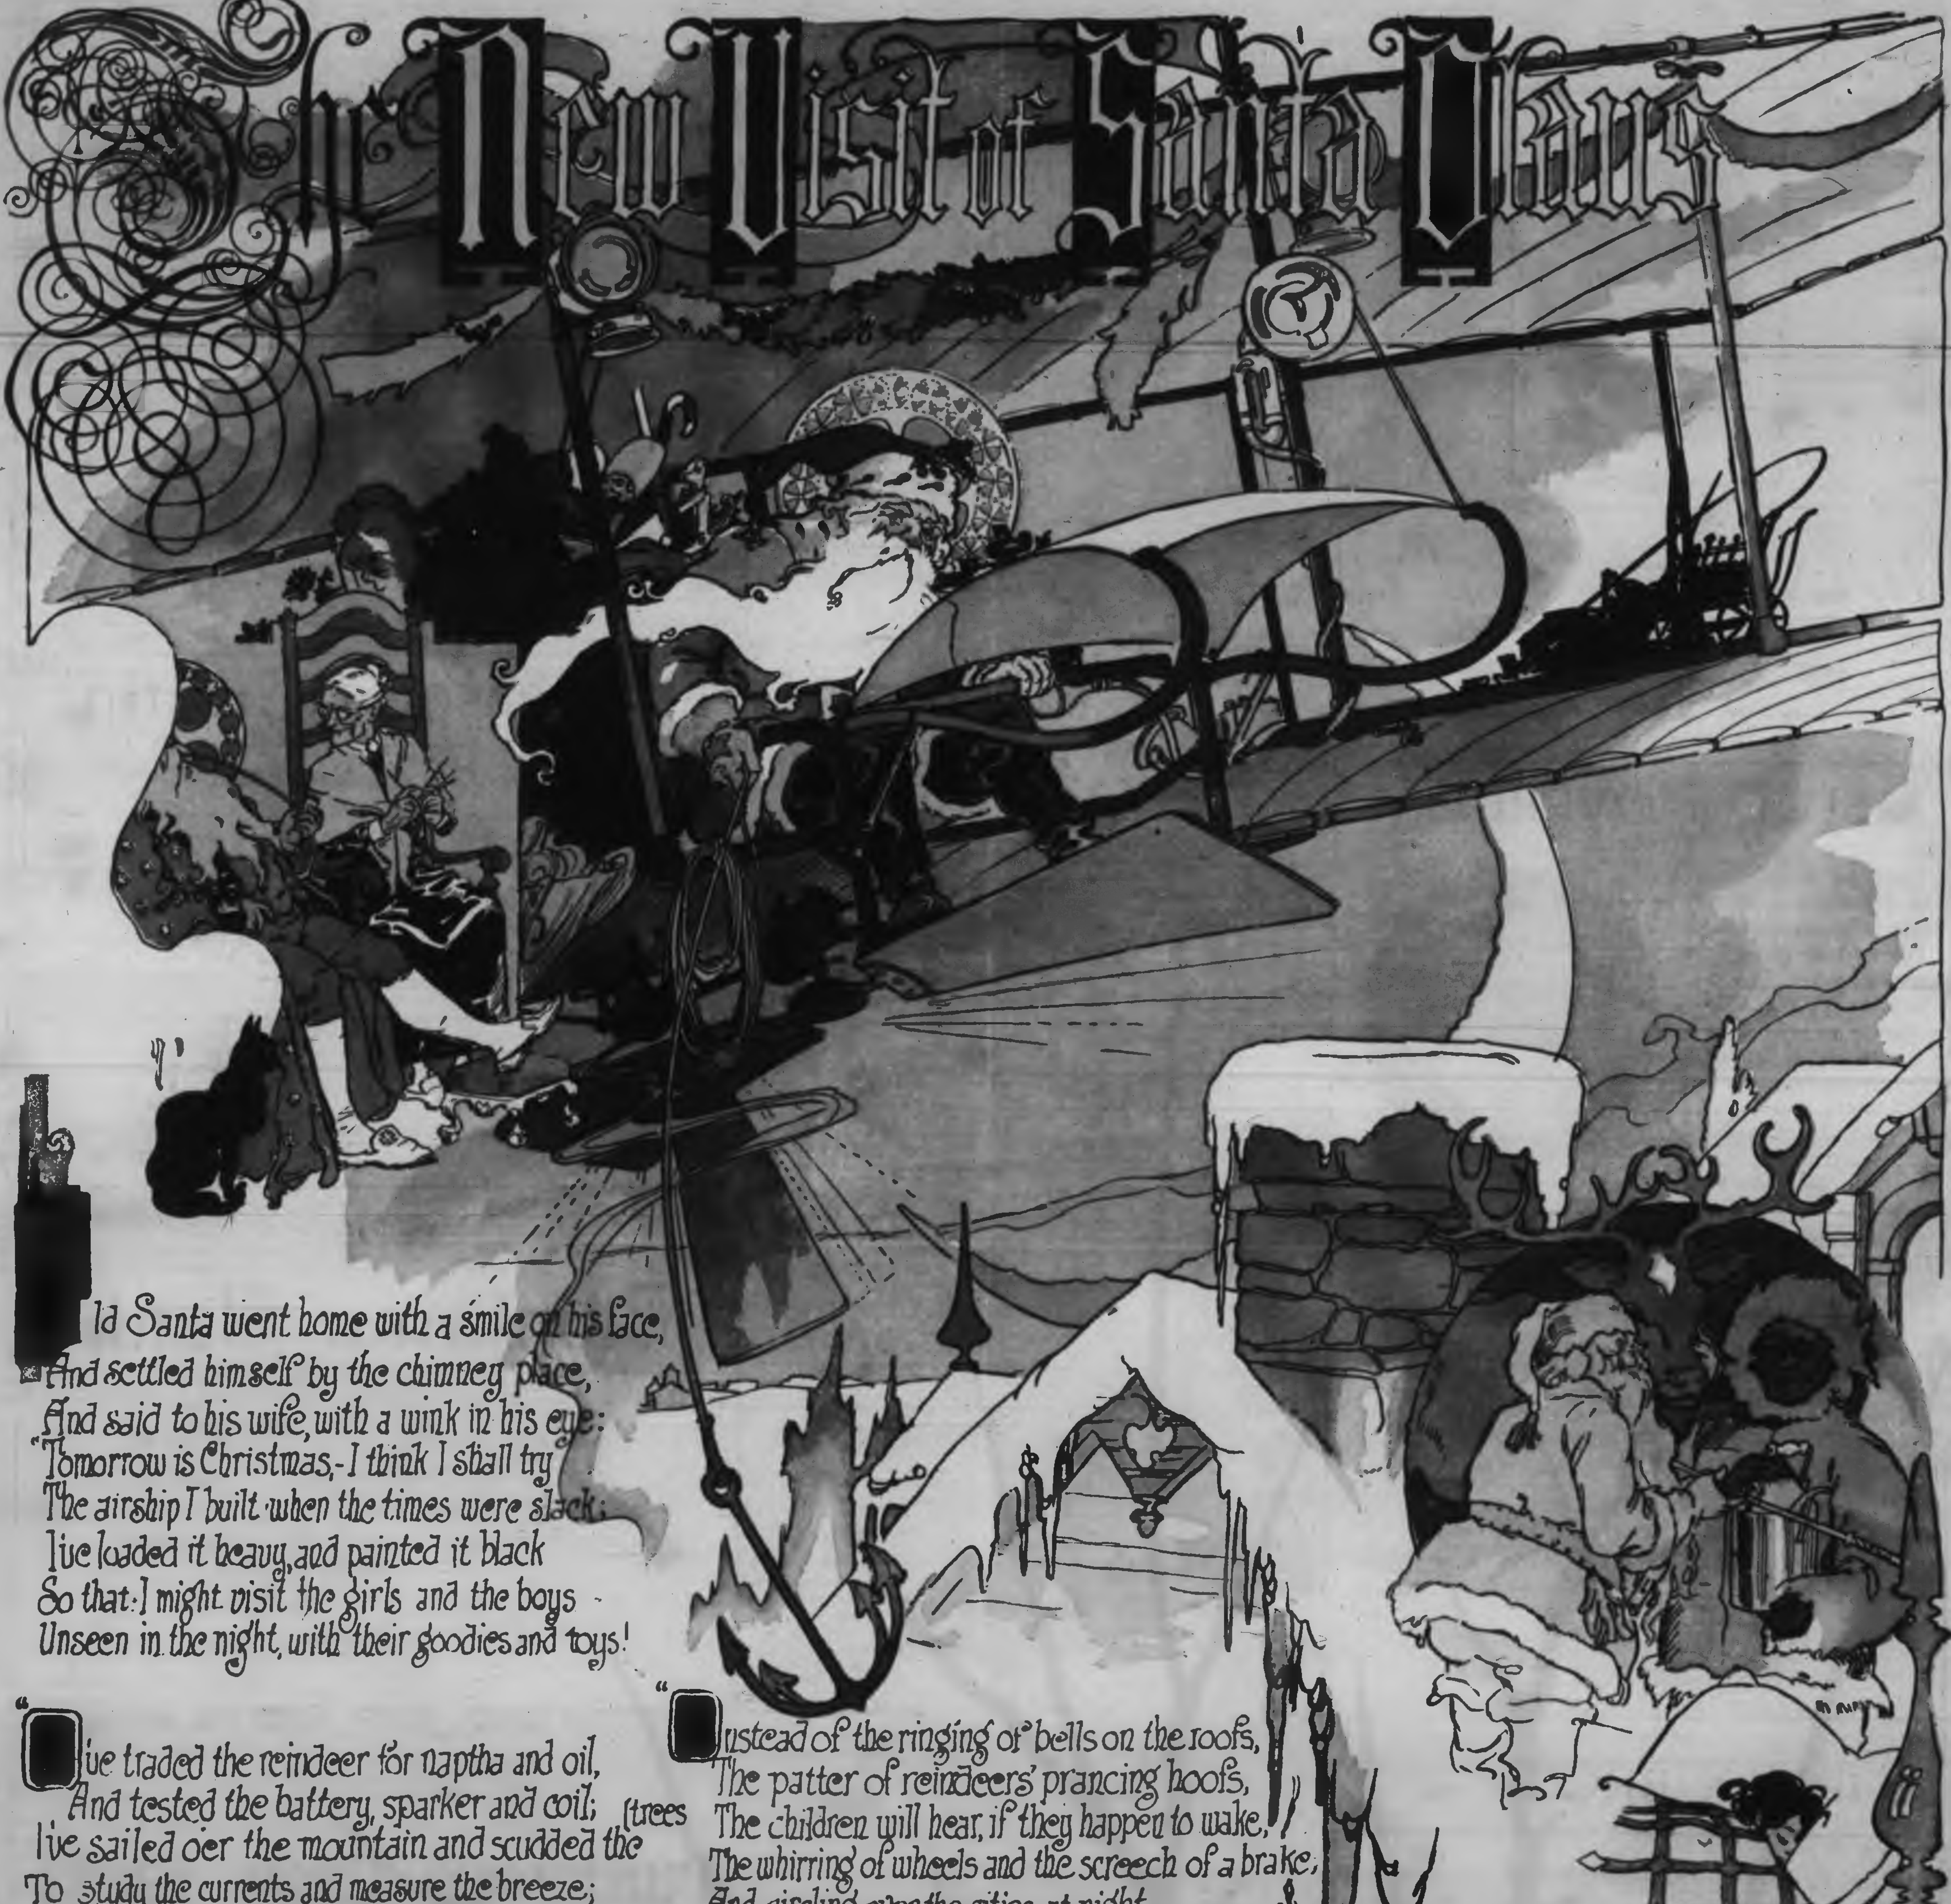
The New Visit of Santa Claus



[illegible]ld Santa went home with a smile on his face,
And settled himself by the chimney place,
And said to his wife, with a wink in his eye:
"Tomorrow is Christmas,—I think I shall try
The airship I built when the times were slack;
Ive loaded it heavy, and painted it black
So that I might visit the girls and the boys
Unseen in the night, with their goodies and toys!

"[illegible]ve traded the reindeer for naptha and oil,
And tested the battery, sparker and coil;
Ive sailed o'er the mountain and scudded the trees
To study the currents and measure the breeze;
I've learned how to steady the wings and to stop
When I come to the little boy's chimney top,
While my anchors dangle low and free
To hold the ship while I trim the tree!

"[illegible]nstead of the ringing of bells on the roofs,
The patter of reindeers' prancing hoofs,
The children will hear, if they happen to wake,
The whirring of wheels and the screech of a brake,
And circling over the cities at night
The people will wonder what marvelous light
Kris Kringle has set in the clouds agleam
To shine on the little boy's Christmas dream!

"[illegible]ve driven the deer in an Arctic sleigh
To carry the gifts of the Christmas day;
Ive loaded the train and the carriage full
For the horse and the iron steed to pull—
But tonight Ive packed my aeroplane,
And I'm off on the same old trip again,
With the sweetest of sweets and the brightest of toys
For the good little girls and the good little boys!"

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS WILL HAVE MANY HARD FIGHTS

Balfour and Asquith Will Speak Again This Week While Ministers Have a Hard Drill Before Them—Imperialism is the Only Thing That is Really Significant Says Milner.

London, Dec. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It has been finally decided that the writ for the new elections will be issued Jan. 8, allowing the first election on the 13th.

There will again be heavy broadsides of oratory this week. Balfour, who has recovered from a cold, speaks at Edinburgh to-night, and Asquith at Birkenhead on Tuesday, and half a dozen Ministers will be on the platform every night, led by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The most novel feature of the election is the campaign of the peers. They have addressed 73 meetings and 70 more are already arranged.

It is now impossible to indicate how the parties stand in the matter of candidatures. The uncontested constituencies will be smaller in number than for a long time past, at the outside there will probably be 17, whereof 15 are represented by Unionists. The triangular contests will also be few. The Chronicle estimates they will not exceed 20. In thirty constituencies the Laborites and Unionists have a straight fight.

Lord Milner, speaking at Bridport on Saturday, said he had never been a scaremonger, but the great position won by England was being menaced more and more every day. The future demanded the energies not only of the United Kingdom, but of the Empire. Imperial unity was the great issue, before which all others sank into insignificance. What trace of this issue was there in the speeches of the Liberals? The Unionist policy was at least constructive, remedial, national and imperial. The Liberals were agreed on nothing except predatory taxation and hostility to the Lords.

Churchill, speaking at Warrington, laid stress on the unemployment, for which palliations were to be found in the development of the scheme of insurance under consideration by the Board of Trade.

McKenna, in London, denounced the cordite scare as ridiculous.

The Earl of Cawdor at Leeds asked if home rule was granted to Ireland, what was there to prevent Belfast becoming a base for a German fleet?

CORINTHIAN IS AGROUND

Halifax, Dec. 20.—Stranded on the sandy ledge of George's Island, in the centre of Halifax harbor, one of the strongest fortifications on the Atlantic seaboard, lies the big Allan liner Corinthian, which ran ashore late on Saturday night, while outward bound for Glasgow, with a full cargo and passenger list.

The Corinthian left her dock at Deep Water Terminus at 11 o'clock Saturday night, and suddenly when opposite the island, and within the rays of George's Island lighthouse, Captain Rennie, who was on the bridge, noticed a dark object looming up through the mist straight ahead. There were no lights showing, but he noticed the sails and realized it was a schooner.

Quick action was necessary to avert a collision. There were only two things to do, run the schooner down or shift his course to dangerous water. Captain Rennie saved the schooner and crew by porting the helm. He ran towards the island, cleared the schooner by a few yards and was in the act of taking the regular course again, when the ship struck on the sandy ledge.

Several attempts were made during the night and yesterday to get her off, and it has been decided that the cargo will have to be lightered. No blame is attached to Captain Rennie. He is one of the oldest captains in the Allan service, having been coming to this port for thirty-one years.

The Corinthian has sixty passengers and 7,000 tons of cargo, made up mostly of lumber and grain.

MEXICO WILL BE NEUTRAL

Washington, Dec. 20.—Mexico's policy of peace and her harmonious relations with the United States concerning the Nicaraguan and all other international subjects was the subject Saturday of a statement by Enrique C. Creel, confidential agent of the Mexican Government. Mr. Creel made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"Mexico has no intention of having any war with Guatemala or with any other country. Our policy is one of peace and our relations with every country are most cordial, harmonious and agreeable.

"Mexico has not made representations to the State Department, to uphold the Zelaya administration.

"The relations of Mexico and the United States have never been to a higher cordial standard, and this issue of Nicaragua is too small an affair to change either the policy or the feelings of the Governments and the people of the two great republics."

BROCKVILLE HAS STRANGE IDEAS

Brockville, Dec. 20.—For six years the municipal legislators of Brockville have been chosen without regard to party affiliation leading Conservatives and Liberals having picked the best men on both sides, equally divided, to abolish the party spirit as far as possible.

It is proposed this year to enlarge upon the scheme by having the ratepayers as a whole meet next Tuesday night and pick out men they want to serve for mayor, councillors and commissioners. There is liable to be a clash with the labor element, who favor two candidates of their own class for aldermanic honors. There will be two bylaws, one for the reduction of liquor licenses by three and another to increase license fees by [illegible]

PROSECTIONS ARE POSTPONED

Montreal Will Not Follow Up Grafters At Once—City Excited Over Matter.

Montreal, Dec. 20.—Saturday afternoon, printed copies of Judge Cannon's complete report on the civic investigation were placed in the hands of aldermen and of others interested.

The aldermen and the others interested, it goes without saying, will devote a considerable portion of their Sabbath leisure to reading, and digesting the report.

On Monday, when the council meets, it is expected the aldermen will take some action on the report.

Some of the city fathers are in favor of a resolution calling upon those aldermen censured by Judge Cannon to resign their seats.

It is hardly probable, however, that such action will be taken.

Others want the council to wait the announcement of the apportionment of costs against the aldermen named by Judge Cannon, as it has been announced that several of the accused aldermen will contest payment through the courts, and will thereby bring the question of their culpability indirectly before a legal tribunal.

It is a pretty safe guess that if action is left to the present council, nothing decisive will be undertaken in regard to giving Judge Cannon's findings and recommendation force and effect.

The question of punishing the grafters whom Judge Cannon accuses of looting the civic treasury of twenty-five per cent. of its income for the past six years is still a mooted one.

The Citizens' Association has informally talked the matter over, and decided to postpone action until its executive has had a chance to study Judge Cannon's report.

There is not much doubt, however, that unless action is taken in another quarter, the association will stand the move that will result in prosecutions.

MAIL ROBBERS ARE SENTENCED

Winnipeg, Dec. 20.—Police Magistrate Daly, Saturday morning sentenced the two self-confessed mail robbers, Barnett getting seven years and Rowe three years.

Barnett broke down Friday and confessed he was the author of the plot, and Rowe was only an accomplice.

E. L. Howell for the crown, asked for a severe sentence on Barnett who was a postoffice employe, and a shorter term for Rowe, who was not in the postoffice service, having been discharged after one month.

It was on his homestead in Springside district, near Yorkton, that some of the money was hidden.

HEAD CRUSHED BY A WAGGON

Toronto, Dec. 20.—Willie Ashby, 15 years, 6 Clinton street, while driving a wagon for Patrick Martin, expressman, 100 Claremont street, was fatally injured when the wagon, skidding on the slippery pavement, struck a post in West Front street Saturday morning, was overturned and fell upon his head. The horse did not stop, and the lad was dragged along with the heavy wagon resting upon his head. When the horse was stopped, the lad was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, where he died while being carried to the operating table.

MANUEL BONILLA

San Juan Del Sur, Nicaragua, Dec. 20.— revolution has started in Hondrasu. President Davila has proclaimed a state of siege throughout the repeblic.

The revolutionists have attacked the small frontier town or Tortuga. After a sharp encounter they captured the chief of police of Tortuga, a handful of government soldiers, and then by a rapid march crossed the frontier into Costa Rica.

The revolution in Honduras reported in the above despatch from San Juan del Sur is believed to be the result of an invasion of the country by an insurgent army under General Manuel Bonilla, formerly President, who has been suspected at the capital of planning to take advantage of the situation in Nicaragua and attempt to regain the Honduran Presidency.

President Davila, aided by President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, deposed General Bonilla, and the latter took refuge, on April 12th, 1907, on the United States cruiser Chicago. He has spent much time since then in the United States, Mexico and British Honduras, but on Nov. 23rd, last, departed from New Orleans for Colon. It is reported that he has made his peace with Zelaya and that the latter is fomenting the revolt against Davila, who denounced Zelaya after he was safe in office.

DONALD GUNN, PROMINENT TORONTO MAN, KILLED

President of Gunn's, Limited, is Struck Down on Yonge Street by a Car Driven by Roy F. Brintnell—Was 66 Years Old and Came From Thorah.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—Donald Gunn, president of Gunn's Limited, wholesale pork packers, was struck by an automobile on Saturday afternoon at Yonge street and Wilton avenue and fatally injured. He died Sunday morning.

Mr. Gunn was taking his daughter-in-law and her child to the Union Station on a street car, when he decided to alight at Wilton avenue to buy some Christmas toys. As he stepped from the car, an automobile, driven by Roy F. Brintnell, of 419 West Queen street, was coming down the street. Mrs. Gunn and child crossed the street to the sidewalk, but they had hardly reached there when Mr. Gunn, who was following them, was struck by the car with sufficient force to throw him on the ground and fracture the base of his skull.

He was immediately driven by Mr. Brintnell to St. Michael's Hospital, where he was attended to by Dr. Herbert A. Bruce and Dr. Mallock. They found it necessary to operate to remove the pressure from his brain, but the injury was so serious that no hope of recovery was entertained and Mr. Gunn died yesterday morning at 10 o'clock.

Roy F. Britnell, who was driving the car, is a son of Geo. S. Britnell, manager of the Brintnell Motor Car Co. He is a traveler for the Blundall Piano Co., and was driving one of his father's cars.

Donald Gunn was in his 67th year. He was born in Thorah, near Beaverton, Ont., on Sept. 3, 1843, and was the second son of James Gunn and Christiana Grant, who were natives of Sutherlandshire, Scotland, and came to Canada in [illegible] of seven sons and two daughters, of whom there are now living: Dr. John Gunn of Ailsa Craig; Alex. Gunn, Janesville; Hector Gunn, Toronto; Dr. Wm. Gunn, Clinton; Andrew Gunn, managing director Gunn's Limited, and Mrs. (Rev.) J. Rose, of Glasgow, Scotland. When Donald Gunn was 29, he came to Toronto, where he bought out the firm of Morse & Taylor, and began business under the name of D. Gunn & Co. Under his guidance the firm has grown to be one of the largest pork packing industries in Canada, and has branches throughout Ontario and Quebec. In recent years, though, he has not taken a very active interest in the business. Most of his time has been spent on the Dunrobin Stock Farm, where he was interested in agricultural experiments and cattle and horse breeding. He is survived by his widow, Jane Fraser Gunn, and a family of four, Trena at home; John, of the Gunn-Langlois & Co., Montreal; Mrs. (Rev.) E. W. Mackey of Smith's Falls, and Ernest, manager Dunrobin Stock Farm.

Mr Gunn was a Presbyterian and a member of Westminster Church, where he was an elder for many years. He was a Liberal in politics. The funeral will take place from his late town residence, 3 Rosedale road, to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 to Mount Pleasant. The service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Neil of Westminster Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. Prof. McFayden of Knox College.

Coroner A. J. Johnson is investigating the case, but there will likely be no inquest.

ANOTHER WRECK IN LAKE ERIE

Port Colborne, Ont., Dec. 20.—Lake Erie found another victim Saturday night when floating ice is supposed to have been the cause of the foundering of the steamer F. A. Myers of Buffalo, about 25 miles northeast of the Southeast Shoal Light. The Myers was bound from Boyne City, Mich., to Buffalo with about 600,000 feet of maple lumber. The Myers was valued at $30,000. There is no insurance.

The crew of 15 men and one woman were taken off by the steamer Mapleton, Captain A. E. Stinson, which left Sandwich coal dock with her on Saturday afternoon. About nine o'clock Saturday night, when the Mapleton was about half a mile away, the Myers gave a signal of distress, and the Mapleton lay alongside. The Myers' crew saved nothing, the steamer going under about half an hour after. The steamer Haddington was also near by at the time. The Mapleton reached here yesterday afternoon and left for Thorold last night to tie up for the winter.

The Myers was about 280 feet long and 36 feet beam, and was owned by Adam Hartman of North Tonawanda, New York.

PROBABILITIES.

ANOTHER ARREST IN COBALT CASES

Cobalt, Dec. 20.—The latest arrest—the eleventh—in connection with the big ore stealing cases, is that of G. C. Barber, of "Ye Olde Countrie Inn," one of the best saloons in town.

Barber has been prominent in sporting circles in Cobalt for years.

It is alleged he figures on Wilkinson's books in Toronto as Neilson, and that he took ore to Toronto under that name. Barber is an Englishman, a South African veteran, with Ladysmith and Kimberley bars, and one of the best amateur boxers in town.

A computation that the four tons of ore on Wilkinson's books was a month's haul, leads mine owners to calculate that $250,000 has been stolen each year, or approximately a million dollars since the camp started.

Happy Day.

New York, Dec. 20.—S. Claus, Esq. has drawn on the United States for between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 in cash to help make people happy, in other countries next Saturday. That is a conservative estimate by bankers

Explosion Kills Five.

Naples, Dec. 20.—A manufactury of explosives near Caserta blew up Saturday, five persons being killed and five injured.

JAS. CONMEE IS DEFIANT

Port Arthur, Dec. 20.—Answering a statement made on the authority of Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General of Ontario, to the effect that the Ontario & Michigan Power Co. had been given no lease or rights on the Nepigon or Pigeon Rivers, James Conmee said:

"We have rights on the Nepigon River and when we are ready will go ahead and develop. I defy the Ontario Government or any one else to lay a finger on us."

GOVERNMENT AND UNIONS

Montreal, Dec. 20.—At the Builders' Exchange dinner at the Windsor on Saturday night, the chief speakers were Hon. Mackenzie King, Hon. Charles Marcil, and F. D. Monk, M.P. The Minister of Labor said the Government had no intention of restraining the influences of trade unions in the Dominion. The duty of Parliament would be, however, to see that all parties, both labor and capital, should get fair play.

New Italian Ministers.

Rome, Dec. 20—The new Parliament opened Saturday. Baron Sonnino, the new Prime Minister, made allusions to reforms contemplated by the Government, such as the creation of two new Ministries, one on railways and the other on trade and labor.

Baron Sonnino's first act as Prime Minister has been to abolish the censorship of the press.

Three Months Lost In Wilds.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 20.—Vernon Howe of Minneapolis, former captain of the Yale crack team, who had been lost in the woods of the interior for three months, has reached One-Hundred-Mile-House, Cariboo, with his companion, Jack Cunningham of Kamloops, B.C.

BROTHER OF WATSON SAY THAT THE POET IS MAD

Robinson Watson Ascribes English Poet's Publication of "Woman With the Serpent's Tongue" to His Brother's Breakdown When He Achieved His First Success.

New York, Dec. 20.—Robinson Watson, in an interview wired to The New York Evening Mail Saturday from Montreal, Que.; declares that his brother, William Watson, the poet, is insane.

He believed that the poet came to the United States on a "mission of hostility" against the family of Asquith, the British Premier, and that his implications against the wife and daughter of the Premier are the result of hallucinations in a disordered brain.

He attributes his brother's alleged mental condition to the joy of sudden success after a long period of literary struggle.

William Watson and his pretty Irish bride have disappeared and, beyond the fact that they have left the hotel where they registered upon their arrival here a few weeks ago, none of their friends here knows what has become of them.

"I, who alone have the right to speak out," says Robinson Watson, "declare deliberately, in full knowledge, that the terrible things lightly hurled by my brother against a certain distinguished family are in no sense the responsible utterances of the poet, William Watson. They are the outcome of a mental malady alien to himself, and when he returns to himself, the William Watson we know will condemn them with burning words and bitter tears."

Robinson Watson goes on to explain how his brother came to enter on "what is perhaps the saddest experience that can be endured in the life of any man—a mental aberration."

On the death of Lord Alfred Tennyson, William Watson, he says, labored 50 hours without rest and almost without food to produce what was originally intended to be a brief commemorative poem, but, under the impulse of burning ambition, became "Lachrymae Musarum," a poem of which Robinson Watson quotes Gladstone as having said that "it is greater than Tennyson's own ode on the death of the Duke of Wellington."

The poem won its author immediate fame and a grant of $1,000 from the royal bounty fund.

William Watson's delusions, says his brother, assumed the form of a belief that he had a mission to perform against certain exalted personages. That belief, the brother is convinced, has returned.

FISHING TUG IS DESTROYED

Lorain, Ohio, Dec. 20.—The fishing tug Penelope of Cleveland burned yesterday afternoon four miles off shore. The crew of three escaped in a small yawl. Their oars and boards were crusted with ice before they had gone a mile. Two miles off shore they encountered shore ice, too thin to bear their weight, but thick enough to impede the progress of the boat. Through this they were compelled to break their way. When they reached shore they collapsed.

MURDER OF A CAR CREW

East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 20.—Three hundred negroes, resembling in some particular the description of the highwayman who shot Motorman Eugene B. Goody, and probably fatally wounded Conductor M. P. O'Brien on a street car Saturday night, are under arrest to-day. The negroes were captured by citizens.

The thug sought for obtained $40 from O'Brien Saturday night by cutting out his pockets and taking the money. The car, after the negro left it, ran uncontrolled for four miles into the centre of East St. Louis.

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAIEVITCH PASSES AWAY

Cannes, France, Dec. 20.—Grand Duke Michael Nicholaievitch, grand uncle of Emperor Nicholas, died Saturday. He was the oldest representative of the imperial house, having been born in 1832, the fourth son of Emperor Nicholas I.

He entered active military service at fourteen as a lieutenant and at 20 had attained the rank of general, in nominal command of the ordinance department of the empire. He fought in the Crimean war, and in 1863 was appointed viceroy of the Caucasus, with instructions to bring the tribes of this region under the Russian aegis. This task he accomplished successfully, receiving a sword of honor and the cross of St. George for personal bravery under fire. In the Turkish war of 1877-83 the grand duke commanded the Russian army operating against the Turks in the Caucasian theatre of the war, and was finally able to force the surrender of a large part of the Turkish forces at Ardahan and Kars.

In 1881 he became president of the Council of State, and played an active role until the organization of the Douma, when he was named its honorary president.

The young man lived with his parents in 10 Florence street, and the shot was fired in his own bedroom. It is said he had had some words with his father just before the shooting. He was reported to have a violent temper.

His father summoned Drs. Griffith and Spence immediately after the shot was fired, but the victim lived only a few minutes. Coroner George W. Graham visited the place and decided an inquest was unnecessary.

CHRISTMAS

This year Christmas seems likely to redeem itself. Cold, clear weather and plenty of snow is the merchants', the farmers' and the young people's delight Snow protects the land and nourishes it. Plenty of snow means good crops. It provides the farmer with easy going for his heavy loads. A team of horses can draw on well-laid snow four times the weight of a summer load. It provides the young men and—young women with opportunities of going for a drive together. The "together" is what makes the drive so pleasant. For the very young and lively, snow is a never-ending delight. It provides material to slide on and also to throw at the felders.

In the old days or rather young days since they were the first, the great log-fire blazed in every house. The wide and open fire-place took in big logs and blazed accordingly. There was the family cooking done. Hob and nob and a variety of hooks and spoons testified to the opportunities for hot meat and drink. It was glorious in the olden days to be either in or out. Nowadays the furnace or the stove does the heating and cooking, hiding the radiance of the fire, while modern cookery of the get-cooked-quick style has taken the place, largely, of the good wholesome old-fashioned and toothsome articles of diet of the former era. Withal, life is pleasant in the older settled parts and when the young people learn that life is what is made of it in either city or country they will be less inclined to rush citywards and more disposed to enjoy the freedom and the natural happiness of the fresh green grass, the waving grain and, in winter, of the snow-clad hillside.

The pioneers sleep. The men and women of the good old days rest from their labours. But the present has not forgotten them. The past teems with the record of their faithful works and the present reaps where they have sown.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The King of the Belgians is dead. Long may he remain so.

Many good and thoroughly representative movements are spoiled by putting lightweights at the head And this do the friends of these movements prove its deadliest enemies. The charge certainly can not be laid against local option But it applies to some others.

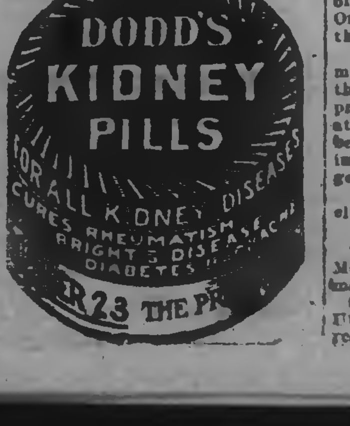
"You can't beat Canada back." Railway robberies, departmental graft, wholesale humbug, Newmarket canals, sawdust wharfs, moral wreckage are not enough. Like a young and lusty pugilist, she can stand an awful lot of punishment. And she is getting it.

The bells are ringing in the frosty air:—

"The bells—silver bells;
What a world of merriment
Their melody foretells."

Many have already hung up their stockings—on the clothesline. It is said that plumpudding causes more deaths than plumbago.

If we want to know how it is that under the Fielding administration of the finances our expenditures have risen from $12,000,000 to $133,000,000 per annum, it is only necessary to watch the revelations made before the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa. An illustration was given in the case of the "sawdust wharf" at Richibucto on Wednesday. The Government did not need the "sawdust wharf" at Richibucto. But it bought it for $5,000, not, however, from the owner, but from a middleman, who got it from the owner for $700. There was a graft of $4,300 on this $700 transaction. That is to say, we paid seven times the proper price for this property. Sir Wilfrid Laurier allows the Treasury thus to be looted; but an honest trustee would have someone in jail for robbery such as this.—The Mail and Empire.



DOES IT MATTER WHAT HE THINKS?

The following report from the Montreal Gazette, of the week's doings in Parliament, may be of interest:

"Mr. J. R. Stratton, who followed late to-night with his maiden speech, got into an amusing cross-fire with A. C. Boyce. The ex-Provincial Secretary of Ontario was dilating on the glories of the Government naval policy, which was sure to be satisfactory to the country when brought down.

"What is that policy?" asked Mr. Boyce. Mr. Stratton was non-plussed for a moment. Then he replied:—"What was that resolution passed unanimously last session?"

"Oh," came back Mr. Boyce, "is the Government's policy contained in that resolution?"

But Mr. Stratton could not be drawn any further and the incident ended in a general laugh.

Mr. Stratton came out in violent opposition to any direct contribution towards imperial defence. He did not think that was a true Liberal policy. As for Dreadnoughts, he literally turned up his nose at the idea. On the general topics of a budget effort, Mr. Stratton dwelt exhaustively and came out strongly against the export of raw materials, which should, he said, be turned into the finished article on Canadian soil. He was followed by Mr. McCool, of Norfolk.

There are a great many speakers still to come on the budget and the tide of eloquence is almost certain to go over to-morrow and extend into the New Year."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

FARMERS' CLUB HAS GOOD START

First Meeting of Central Smith Club Attended by About Fifty Farmers

The recently organized Central Smith Farmers' Club held its first meeting on Friday night of last week in the Temperance Hall. It was most successful, about fifty farmers being in attendance. The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. T. H. Graham, and the feature of the meeting was a paper on "The Winter Feeding of the Dairy Cow," by Mr. J. A. McGregor. Mr. McGregor went into the subject in a very thorough manner and his address was followed with deep interest. Following the paper there was an interesting discussion on the subject in which many points in connection with the winter feeding of dairy cows were brought out. After a short intermission an interesting address was given by Mr. H. C. Duff, of Norwood, the representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in this part of the province.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on the 25th of January when the speakers will be two of the college professors, who will be in attendance at the short course in stock judging to be held in Peterborough. This meeting will be open to both ladies and gentlemen.

Mr. Chas. Moore is secretary of the club.

Three dime novel reading boys of Moncton, are in gaol on charges of making "Black Hand" threats.

Havelock, Dec. 16.—The village council held their last meeting for 1909 on Wednesday evening, Dec. 15th, with Reeve Knox and Councillors McMaster, Philips, Wood and Young present. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Wm. Weese made application to purchase 18 feet off gravel pit lot. The application was laid over for the new council to consider. Mr. R. Philips was ordered to be paid $15.00 for pails lost and destroyed at fires during 1909. The collectors roll for 1908 was returned showing $7,065.00 collected, $20.58 being the amount of 5 per cent interest added to all taxes not paid by Dec. 20th. Dr. Kindred has withdrawn his writ against the township of Belmont, the Board of Health having decided to pay his claim for services in full.

There promises to be a very active time at the municipal elections, both in Belmont and Havelock and things are warming up already for the fray. Here and there throughout the town groups of men are gathered together discussing the great municipal questions around which the election will centre. In the township Reeve Russel will be in the field again opposed by Mr. Jas. Johnston, who two years ago was Russel's opponent for the reeveship. There is a possibility of a three-cornered fight as it is rumored that Councillor Griffith will make a try for the reeveship.

In Havelock two important by-laws will be before the electors at the coming elections, one is a by-law, for to raise $8,000 for the purpose of laying cement sidewalks throughout the village, the other one to raise $4,000 for a drainage system on Quebec and Ottawa street. Reeve Knox is in the field for another term, opposed by S. S. Joyce, who is already making strenuous efforts to win out. Here there is also the possibility of a three-cornered fight, as Mr. Thos. Curtis is mentioned as a probable candidate. Two, if not all, of the old council will be in the field again and others mentioned as probable candidates are F. Wallar, Wm. Webb, Jno. Toman, jr., Wm. Jones and Ed. Williams.

The school board held their last meeting for the year on Wednesday evening. They are advertising for a principal for the continuation school.

A Christmas tea and concert will be held in Blanton school house on Christmas night, Dec. 25th.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION

If you have indigestion, your food ferments in the stomach and bowels. It does more; it decays, and the nutritious matter which should go to make new blood decays with it, and this leads to an impoverished condition of the blood, to nervousness, biliousness, constipation, sick headache, bad breath which disgusts your friends, and other disagreeable and unpleasant conditions.

And all this trouble is caused by the food that doesn't digest, but ferments, and oftimes rots in the stomach.

And fermentation is caused by the stomach not being strong enough and energetic enough to thoroughly mix the food with the digestive juices.

MI-O-NA is responsible for tens of thousands of cures. In fact, it is such a positive cure for indigestion and all stomach troubles that it is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to cure or money back. The price of a large box of Mi-o-na Tablets is 50 cents, and they are sure to promptly relieve the worst case of indigestion or gastritis. Try them.

MR. LASTER DISCUSSES THE CAMPAIGN

He Offers to Hire a Hall and Give His Opponents a Chance to do Some Speaking

Note.—The communication following, and which appears over the signature of Mr. B. Laster, is offered for publication by him, independent of the wishes and objects of either side in the local option campaign, and without approval or endorsement by either party. The space occupied is paid for by Mr. Laster, and it is on these conditions that the communication appears.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—In last Saturday's literature of the Local Option campaign, there was again statements that are incorrect and improper. They say again that for eleven months the advocates of Local Option have invited to supporters of the open bar to come forward and discuss the question on its merits. This, they have declined to do. Now, how can they make such misleading statements? Let us see how correct this statement is.

Have I not challenged them, time and again, in public and through the press to discuss this question on its merits. Have they accepted, or even shown a willingness to discuss it publicly? I say, as every citizen here in the city knows by this time, that under all kinds of foolish excuses, they have tried to avoid it up to this present time. How dare they, in the face of this, try and blindfold the people by such statements. Do they really think that the people of Peterborough are so ignorant or foolish, as not to see these false statements.

Then a little further they say, that the City Temperance League stands by anything that is published, and why are we opponents not willing to do the same. Now this is absurd. As I have already said, they are not standing by what they say, nor what they are writing. Has not the Rev. Mr. Potter, at their open meetings, stated publicly that those questions that I have given them, would be answered publicly. Have they answered them? "No." They also stated in last week's paper that they would answer them. Now, can they answer them? A little further they say again, that what is wanted in this campaign, is a clear cut definite statement, made by a man, or men, who are not ashamed to make known their identity. Now let us see if this is correct. Have I not given you a clear and definite statement? Have not I given my own name? I have done this without you asking for it. But what about yourselves? How do you sign your statements? Do you sign young own name? Not that I can see. What do you sign? Nothing on the bottom, but at the top is stated, that it is arranged by the Moral Reform League, or "Literary Critic," and when you are challenged to come and state your facts and give your name, it is 23 skidoo for yours. You are not in it. Are you not ashamed to write such incorrect statements. If this is not bluffing: then I don't know what bluffing means. But let me tell you something that is the truth and nothing but the truth. You are afraid to come out publicly. You dare not stand before the people and discuss the question from all sides. Therefore, you come on the one side, only, and in your own way, and ways that not all honorable men would care to follow. You should think twice before you make these statements.

Then you criticize a little booklet distributed through the city by the opponents, written by the Rev. Dr. E. A. Wasson, that breaks actually all your statements, facts and arguments. You try to discredit this booklet on the ground that the Rev Dr. Wasson's full address is not given on the front page. Have you ever seen a book where the author's private address is given on the front page? I haven't. Let me tell you that those parties who are objecting and who are suspecting the character of Rev. Dr. Wasson, if they will read the little booklet through on page 24, they will find the full address of the Rev. Dr. E. A. Wasson of Newark, N. J. Then they say that they secured information to the effect that Rev. Dr. Wasson is a paid campaign worker for the liquor interests. Well, even so. Is there anything wrong in it? Why all your speakers that you bring here, only private men, who have no more right to name themselves reverend, than any ordinary man; but still you blindfold the people by calling them such as Rev. Small, etc. Then do they come here and speak and preach for you for the benefit of their health? You find fault with the other side, when at the same time you bring all kinds of professional speakers here, at a great expense, (as high as $100 and more, for one address).

Now, is this your own money you are paying out to bring them here? Have you done one day's work for this money, to pay this big expense? No, you go around begging for donations, to help you out; and by your influence and station in the community, you have succeeded in inducing some people, and especially ladies, to give you money, by telling them all kinds of irresponsible stories. It is very easy for you to go and say to the few men who are interested in the liquor business. "Why don't you bring some important speakers to argue the matter?"

In the first place, let me tell you, that these men work for their money, and the majority of them work very hard, and are not in a position to spend thousands of dollars on speakers to defend the cause; and then, I think they are not bringing any speakers here, because there is no necessity for it. They think by this time the people of Peterborough are intelligent enough to see that this campaign is brought on by a few irresponsible men, who have no foundation whatever, and they see that there is no reasonable reason why they should support them, and that the supporters of Local Option cannot defend their case, when asked a few simple questions; nor will they come on the open platform and discuss the matter with a private citizen of the city. They are trying by all possible means to stop through a public discussion. There is no use in bringing a speaker from outside, when it can be seen that no support is necessary in such an unjust campaign as there is here. What would they say to Owen Sound's awful record since Local Option, which has been taken direct from the police court records for three years before Local Option and three years after. The total number of all kinds of offenders that have been convicted through liquor directly and indirectly?

Before Local Option was passed—1903, 105; 1904, 90; 1905, 106.

Since Local Option has been in force—1906, 177; 1907, 231; 1908, 198; 1909 to December 4th, 157.

The total number of drunks and disorderlies in 1908 was 134, and in 1909, down to December 4th, 141. But the supporters of Local Option say frankly that is only for one-quarter of the years. Now, I don't know where they had their information from, but that makes their cause still worse. In order to give some answer they are getting themselves into it deeper. Now, I am only arguing against their own literature. But, what do they say further? That it is only six months in the year that the sailor comes into that town, and that it is in those six months that the crimes happen. Well, take that for granted. Only six months for the record. Where do those sailors get all their drinks? In the few public hotels, where the town would get a revenue and make less taxation for the general public, or was it raining with all kinds of liquors when those sailors came to town? Now here is where you put your foot in it, and acknowledge that all those intoxicating liquors were supplied by hundreds of blind pigs, where no authorities can reach them. Supplied by men, women and girls, who are tempted to make a living by breaking the law, to demoralize not only their own boys, but the strangers who visit the town. The strangers can find those places, then the boys of the town can surely find them, and the authorities are powerless. Of if they should enforce the law, then they have to arrest half the town. Do you want to bring to such a degree and position the city of Peterborough?

Oh, you moral worker, if you will only think over your own statements, you will be convinced that it is the biggest crime to pass Local Option here. Then you say: Why, if it is as bad as that, why did they pass it again for another three years, and is it not sufficient proof that the majority of Owen Sound is satisfied? It is not the majority, but the minority of blind pigs that are satisfied, and will advocate, under the mask of moral reform, as long as they are able to sell liquor without any expense. They will always vote for Local Option. That gives them the opportunity of making an easy living. That is the class of people who are working for Local Option, and there are not only a few—as the hotels would be—but hundreds of them where intoxicating liquors are sold. But to what does it lead, when girls induce boys to come and visit them, and then supply them with drinks? Because these are the places where liquors of all kinds are supplied. They try to make the business more attractive and more paying; and it is the young girls who are pushed forward to induce the boys to drink.

Oh, citizens, if you just think. If you love your children, it is for their sakes that you should not allow Local Option to be passed here in your city, where, at the present time, we are not brought to such a position that our four amongst us should be tempted to such lives and ways to make their living by breaking the law, and to be tempted to all kinds of demoralizing crimes. Think, every reader of this letter. Talk to your neighbor, and if you will only think without prejudice, and look straight at these facts, you cannot come to any other conclusion, but to condemn Local Option.

I was going to deal with the statements made by Mr. Gibson, as with all the speakers in this, the last week of the campaign, where I will prove that all the statements made by these speakers are not true. But I will only say to those facts that he acknowledged himself, that by passing local option here in this city we will not abolish the liquor traffic; that we will be sure to have blind pigs. Then he also states, to get out of difficulties, and not answer any questions I might ask, he made the excuse that on account of it being Sunday he could not discuss the matter. Now, is this not bluff? They can discuss their side on Sunday. Is this holy work? Then when any one wants to disprove his statements, why, that is not a Sunday discussion.

Well, we will see what will happen on Wednesday, on a week day. I would advise you to answer my questions then, because I expect to be there myself, and will certainly demand the answer that you have publicly advertised you will give. You should be able to answer them, for they are with you over a week.

Your struly,
B. LASTAR.

P.S.—I may add that I am prepared to take a hall and discuss matters publicly for the benefit of Peterborough, provided that Rev. Mr. Potter and Rev. Mr. Pearson and their friends will speak as leaders in the campaign. I do not want to say, and I will not say anything behind their backs, but in their presence.—B.L.

Does Local Option do the Work?

What a Toronto Newspaper Reporter saw in Owen Sound—

1. Illegal selling over the bars.
2. Drug stores doing a rushing business in intoxicating liquor.
3. Blind pigs at work.
4. Eleven drunks pass a given point in half an hour on Saturday night. Six drunks taking dinner at the same time in the same hotel.
5. More drunkards in proportion to its size than in any licensed town in Ontario.
6. A town full of spotters and whiskey informers.
7. Men buying booze who had voted for Local Option.
8. Little beer being sold but plenty of hard stuff.
9. A double faucet to the keg—beer for the patron, water when the license inspector dropped in.
10. The human bar—rye in his hip pocket, gin in his coat.
11. Young men hitting the bottle in the back parts of stables and barber shops.
12. Liars and sneaks being made by the shifts men were put to to get drink on the sly.
13. Perjury rife. False swearing by informers, and false swearing by respectable men caught drinking, so as to escape the fine imposed by law.

Local Option is a Failure Wherever Tried

An Excellent Weekly

The Canadian Courier has entered upon its fourth year of publication, and continues to make wonderful progress. For many years Canada was without a national illustrated weekly, and when The Canadian Courier was started there were not many who believed that the country was big enough to support such an expensive publication. It was recognized, however, that Mr. John A. Cooper, who had been editor of the Canadian Magazine for more than ten years, was not likely to embark on such an enterprise without due consideration. That he has been able to duplicate his success and to produce a periodical which finds a ready sale from coast to coast is a matter for congratulation. National periodicals are an important feature in the growth of national literature and the development of national unity, and it is pleasant to know that Canada now possesses several of these. We heartily wish The Canadian Courier long life and continued influence and success.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

The Children's Aid Society will appeal, on Sunday, Jan. 2nd, to the charitably disposed. A special collection will be taken up in all the churches. This appeal has not been made for three years. The Society has had much extra expense this year on account of the scarlet fever epidemic at the Shelter and, at present, there are ten little ones there. This has been the busiest year in the society's history. It is unnecessary to add that the amount of good done on behalf of the destitute and dependent children is so great as to speak for itself. LICENSE LAW MADE BY PARENT INFLUENCES THE BOY

He Takes the View That The Bar Is There With The Consent Of His Parents And The Chances Are He Will Go In — Splendid Address By Mr. Gibson, of Ingersoll, at the Grand Opera House.

A large audience assembled at the Grand Opera House last night to hear the address by Mr. Joseph Gibson, of Ingersoll and President of the Canadian Branch of the Dominion Alliance for the suppression of the liquor traffic.

Mr. Gibson in his opening remarks stated that he had not come to amuse them, but would be satisfied if he should send half a dozen of the audience away thinking.

By the attentive hearing which he received and the frequent approval of the audience of the many points which he brought out, it would appear that there were more than the desired number sent away, as he wished.

During his remarks, the speaker said that he had heard that there was a man who came to the Sunday meetings who was simply boiling over for a fight. His advice was for that person to rent the Opera House and fire away till he gets all the gas out of his soul.

I am not here to-night, said the speaker, to say one unkind word against the liquor men. They have my sympathy. It is a miracle if the average man behind the bar escapes from the influences which surround him. I was born in an Old Country hotel, my father was an hotelkeeper and my mother tended the bar often, though much against her will. I stand here to-night and challenge your criticism when I say that I am one of the best friends the hotelkeeper has. If I get them out of the hotel business, with your help, I give them a chance, and if my policy is adopted, it will be to the interests of every hotelkeeper. Mr. Gibson gave some interesting statistics. The drink bill of Great Britain last year was $800,000,000 and it was Lord Wolseley who said that the amount spent in drink in seven months equalled the total revenue of the country for twelve months. United States with a population of 85,000,000, spent $1,234,000,000 and in Canada the drink bill was $175,000,000.

Mr. Gibson gave his reason for objecting to a license law. In the first place the laws of the country are made by ourselves. This allows electors who are unprincipled to sell their vote. In any case the man votes according to the knowledge he has of public affairs. If the license people win, what then? The sign is put over the door of the hotel setting forth the fact that it is allowed to sell intoxicating liquor. What effect does this have on the boys? They put the name of their parents on that sign. They believe and it is only logical that they should, that the sign was put up there by the consent of their father and the chances are that the boy will go into that bar.

The speaker said that local option would not stop all the drinking, but it will reduce it. To combat the statement made by some that, this law is being violated, he gave a number of statistics showing how the authorities, by convictions and fines were making it apparent to all that the law must be kept. He also took up the question of appeals and showed by facts that the arguments of the opposition were contradicted by these. By using three articles on a table to illustrate a factory, an hotel and a home, he showed how an employee of the factory, by the evil of the treating system was sent to his home, a drunken man for the first time. He told of the opposition capital and labor were taking against the liquor traffic, on account of the effect it had on the shop and the employee.

RESIDED HERE MANY YEARS AGO

Death of Robt. J. Green of Delano, Cal.-Was a Brother of Mr. Edward Green Water St.

The following clipping which is taken from the Delano, Cal., Record of Nov. 18, refers to the death of Robert J. Green, who passed away at that place. He was a brother of Mr. Edward Green, Water street, and many years ago resided in Peterborough. It is 40 years since Mr. Green of this city saw his brother.

Last Monday afternoon witnessed the death of an old pioneer, Robt. J. Green, who lived about seven miles west of Delano. Mr. Green, up to within a few days of his demise, had been doing his usual day's work on his ranch. About five days previous to his death, erysipelas set in on his right forearm, followed by gangrene. On Sunday, Dr. J. B. Rosson of Tulare, was called in attendance, but the disease had made such inroads upon the vitality of the man that medical assistance was of no avail.

Robert J. Green was a native of Ireland, and died at the age of 79 years, ten months and ten days. He came to Canada when a young man and for a number of years was a resident of Canada and the State of Minnesota before coming to California he made his residence at San Luis Obispo, but for the past twelve years had made his home at his ranch near Delano.

Mr. Green was one of our substantial citizens, having through hard work accumulated an estate of no mean proportion. He has been married for 57 years and his widow now survives him. There are no direct descendants of the deceased, and the only one to mourn his demise, besides his widow and a host of close friends, is an adopted daughter, who is residing in San Francisco.

The funeral services were held Wednesday at one o'clock in the Methodist church, Rev. E. Menley, pastor of the church, officiating. The remains were followed to their last resting place in Delano cemetery, by a large concourse of friends.

NO TRUTH IN THIS RUMOUR

Chief Roszel Denies That P.Cs. Newhall and Meharry Have Resigned Their Positions

There is a rumor about the city to the effect that both P.C. Newhall and P.C. Meharry have resigned from their positions on the city police force.

Asked by a Review reporter this morning as to the truth of the rumor Chief Roszel stated most emphatically that it was absolutely false.

465 TIMES IN CHICAGO HERE TO-MORROW EVENING

H. H. Frazee will present at the Grand Opera House to-morrow evening, Tuesday, Dec. 21st, a comedy with music, entitled "The Time, The Place and the Girl." During a run of 465 consecutive nights in Chicago this piece was received with such unequivocal approval by the theatre-goers of that city that it not only ran this length of time, but exceeded in point of attendance any play that has ever appeared there. The reasons for this unusual success are ascribed by the management to the fact that the authors struck a new idea in musical plays and developed it with unusual skill. It is a comedy with unique characters and unique situations as rigid as those used by the best-known writers of plays without music. It would be interesting if there was not a song in it. But with a pleasant accompaniment of attractive music, vivacious dances and pretty girls introduced legitimately, it has all the attractive features of both musical and legitimate comedies.

Briefly, the story is that of a pleasant, whole-souled young "gambler," square as a die, and on the level with everybody but himself, and with the descriptive name of "Happy Johnny Hicks." He and his pal, Tom Cunningham, son of a rich man, get into trouble through a fight which Cunningham has in a gambling house, and are forced to flee to a sanitarium in the mountains to escape arrest. Here they both meet their fate—Hicks in the person of a pretty trained nurse, and Cunningham in that of the charming daughter of a thrifty farmer. All of these characters, and many others almost as interesting, are quarantined in the sanitarium by the county health authorities, and the complications ensuing are original and amusing to an extraordinary degree. The production is staged by Ned Wayburn, a master of his craft.

COAT WAS RETURNED

Harold Fowler Gets Back His Overcoat and Chas. Deligne is Given Suspended Sentence --John Lee Goes to the Hill

Charles Deligne appeared in police court this morning, and the coat which it was alleged he stole from Harold Fowler was also there, it having been returned by the accused's relatives. Fowler identified it as his property, and Mr. Poussette asked that the prisoner be allowed to go. He had been in gaol three weeks.

The magistrate decided that Deligne should go on suspended sentence, and report by letter to Chief Roszel every three months for the next year.

The young man was handed out some good advice as to how to conduct himself in the future, and if he acts on it he will display decidedly good judgment.

TWO MONTHS

The officials at the gaol have been looking for a man who is hanging around a wood pile, and it so happened that John Lee, who has been wandering around the city without any visible means of support, fell into the hands of the police.

When he pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy at the police court it was agreed by all that John would fill the bill, and he was sent up for two months.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The Bad 10 Per Cent.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Some time ago attention was called to the five-cent theatres with particular reference to the very questionable pictures occasionally presented there.

Observation on the part of a number of our citizens has since fully verified the statements made on that occasion. A number of these observations have been related to the writer, presumably as a result of the former letter. In each case the eye-witness expressed hearty disapproval of a particular picture, and blamed the city authorities for permitting such offending scenes.

No one will question the value of the five-cent theatre as an educative influence. A child will learn more here in twenty minutes sometimes than in weeks at school. And certainly no one disputes the entertaining nature of the pictures; the hundreds of children thronging there daily give ample testimony as to that. And grant that nine out of ten pictures presented to the public are good and wholesome, laughable and elevating. Does such justify the admission of the ten per cent. of the demoralizing and debasing?

Recently pictures were presented in one of the local theatres which were of a very questionable nature. This should not be. They undoubtedly injured the business of these houses, as I know a number of parents who declared, after witnessing such, that their children should go there no more.

I am of the opinion, sir, that if the city authorities take steps to prevent the appearance of such questionable and offending scenes, that the managers of these entertainments will gladly assist, realizing that business success comes only with pleased patrons.

Hoping, sir, that you will use the influence of your paper to this most desirable end, I am.

Yours truly,
H. B. COLLIER.

WAS FINED HEAVILY

Magistrate Dumble Decided That Ernest Weaver Was Guilty of Securing Liquor for Tobbico an Indian

"These whiskey stories are becoming abominable, and I am going to decide as to which to believe," said Magistrate Dumble Saturday at the police court, when he convicted Ernest Weaver of having secured liquor for Robert Tobbico, an Indian, and imposed a fine of $50 with costs. "I'm going to order it to be paid forthwith. It will be a lesson to him and all others. This trifling with Indians has got to be stopped."

Weaver did not have the amount and had to take the alternative, which was three months in goal.

Mr. Poussette, in the interests of the accused, argued that Weaver did not give the whiskey to the Indian. They had parted company at Munro's hotel; Tobbico going to meet some of his friends and Weaver remaining at the hotel. He was there until his father took him out and put him in the wagon with the flask of whiskey in his inside pocket. The evidence showed that in the short time the father was away, both bottle and Indian disappeared. The Indian must have taken the liquor. But he was intoxicated before this, and Mr. Poussette contended that he must have secured the liquor while away from Weaver, with his friends.

The magistrate said it was just a question as to which story to believe. The Indian told a straight story of having given Weaver one dollar with which to buy a flask, and this he did. On the other hand, Weaver said that he was given the money to buy a pair of socks. He did not give either the articles or the change back. He did not believe that the Indian took the bottle from Weaver's pocket, and there was no evidence to show that he did. It was only a theory.

Friends of Mrs. W. J. Morrow will be pleased to hear of her continued success in New York. She gave a lecture on "voice" at a reception given to the members of the Board of Education by the school principals of New York city, on Friday, December 10th, at the Hotel Astor. The acting mayor, Mr. P. J. McGowan, who addressed the assemblage, following her lecture, expressed himself as delighted with Mrs. Morrow's talk. Mrs. Morrow sang four songs, and the audience were so enthusiastic over her that there were repeated recalls.

WEDDING BELLS

McCLELLAND—MORRIS

The home of Mrs. H. E. Morris, Churchill avenue, was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening at half-past six, when her youngest daughter, Eva Lingen Seager, became the wife of Mr. Alex McClelland, of Winnipeg, eldest son of the late Rev. A. M. McClelland. The drawing room, where Rev. J. D. Fitzpatrick conducted the service, was lovely with hyacinths and carnations, and Mr. H. O. Morris gave his sister away. Her handsome gown was of ivory satin with pearls and silver sequins. Over it fell a tulle veil draped over orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of roses and lilies. Miss Mary Morris, as her sister's bridesmaid was in a silver grey frock with bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. R. Guiton played the wedding march, and Mr. Donald McClelland of Chicago supported his brother. After the wedding breakfast the newly wedded pair left for New York, but will return to Toronto before going to Winnipeg. The bride travelled in a western broadcloth gown with large hat of ottoman silk, and velvet, and Persian lamb coat, a gift of the groom. — Toronto Telegram.

Mrs. W. J. Coe, of Peterborough, was one of those in attendance.

CONSIDERABLE TALK ABOUT THE WARDENSHIP

Who will be warden of Peterborough County for 1910?

This question is causing a deal of talk throughout the county, and, judging from the opinions expressed, there is going to be a warm fight for the big chair. The representatives of two or three of the townships in the north would like to have the position.

MAY GET THE REEVESHIP BY ACCLAMATION

According to the talk among the municipal lights of Smith township, Mr. T. H. Graham, who is now deputy reeve, will be elected to the reeveship by acclamation. He is a popular man in the township and is well versed on municipal matters. Several names are mentioned for the deputy-reeveship, and there will likely be a contest for the council board.

DR McPHERSON ELECTED TO THE O.R.F.U. EXECUTIVE

Annual Meeting in King Edward Hotel—$79.77 Balance on Hand—The Business of the Meeting.

Toronto, Dec. 18. — The annual meeting of the O.R.F.U. was held in the King Edward this afternoon, with President A. R. Dennison in the chair.

The secretary, E. Livingston, in presenting his report, commended the clubs for the spurt they have shown during the past year and also scored the Aura Lee Club for their infringement of the rules. The financial statement showed a balance of $79.77, while the following officers were elected; President, A. R. Dennison; first vice-president, Father Carr; second vice-president, A. B. McGillivray; secretary, E. J. Livingston; junior representatives, Percy Scott (London), James Brydon, Y.M.C.A.; senior representatives, Dr. W. McPherson (Peterborough), E. Ray Clarke (T.A.A.C.), Dr. S. A. Weismiller (Parkdale).

President Dennison thanked the union for doing him the honor of re-electing him to office. He said he had played the game himself in his younger days, but there has been a great change in the style of play since then. He congratulated the clubs on the good sporting spirit displayed in all the matches. The showing made by Parkdale against the great Varsity team was a tribute to the strength of the union, besides furnishing a big surprise to the sideline critics. He also referred in the highest terms of praise to the St. Michael's College team, whose win of the Canadian junior championship was most creditable. He prophesied great things for the union next year.

The following amendments were passed;

That when the receipts are not sufficient to cover expenses of the competing teams, which shall be computed on a basis of six cents per mile one way per man for 18 men, the expenses shall be pooled and deficits shared equally between the two clubs.

It was also decided to send three representatives to the Canadian Rugby Union meet in Montreal next month, and that they be chosen from the following; Dr. Wisemiller, Ed. Livingston, W. A. Hewitt, Father Carr, Dr. Wood, and A. R. Clarke. These representatives will be allowed $15 each for expenses.

BASKET BALL AT THE Y.M.C.A.

BLUES 14—GREENS 21

The basketball game Saturday night was somewhat of a surprise to the spectators. The last time these two teams met the Blues didn't do a thing but trim the Greens, but it was very much the other way on Saturday night. The Greens have secured some new men on their team and it has turned out that things are looking very much their own way, and the other teams are of the league are also beginning to look the field over for some new men.

The game started with a flash and the teams played hard for three minutes. Morrow started his usual game and there was nothing around that seemed to keep in his reach and he scored three goals in the first half. Wallace played an excellent game as usual.

Although the Blues lost the game they didn't get the blues as might be expected. But they kept on playing as if they were in the lead. Stratton played the game for the Blues, shooting five field goals for his team.

Line up:—

Blues		Greens
	Right Field
Pearson		Phelan
	Left Field
Stratton		Hogan
	Centre
Scott		Wallace
	Right Guard
Lees		Morrow
	Left Guard
Hill		Harper

Officials—Referee, H. A. McLaughlin; timer, Hol. Hill; scorer, Ross Laing.

SPORTING NOTES

Ottawa's first game at home is on January 15th.

Fred Taylor will not play with Renfrew, but will be found on the Ottawa line-up.

Andrew J. Lynch, at one time known as the king of umpires, has been elected president of the National Baseball League.

Hugh Gall has been elected captain of the Varsity Rugby team for the season of 1910.

A booklet entitled "How to Play Hockey," has been written by Percy LeSueur, the crack goal tender of the Ottawa seven. By way of the stereotyped humorism we would like to recommend the pamphlet to Lindsay, but in view of the Midgets showing that is the joke might be a rather pulled one.

Arthur Conan Doyle has received a cable despatch from the committee in charge of the arrangements of the Jeffries-Johnson fight, asking him to act as referee. Although the author of "Rodney Stone" is greatly pleased by the offer, he has replied regretting his inability to accept.

Just now Sir Arthur is busy rehearsing his "Drama of the Prize Ring," to be produced at the Adelphi Theatre on December 27. He is a recognized authority on pugilistic matters, his writings showing a wide knowledge of the manly art.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Ottawa Board of Trade has re-elected all officers.

President Zelaya has sent a message of resignation to the Congress of Nicaragua.

Clara Guthrie was acquitted of the perjury charges, arising out of the Barrie fire inquest, on a technicality.

Congress will be asked to support a resolution changing inauguration day from March 4 to the last Thursday in April.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain was so persistently interrupted at a political meeting at Bromsgrove that he was unable to finish his speech.

Northcliffe Criticizes Canadians.

London, Dec. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A lengthy interview with Lord Northcliffe appears in Canada Illustrated. Lord Northcliffe says he found a distinct prejudice against Englishmen in Canada, due almost entirely to the fact that England in the last twenty years had made Canada a dumping ground for the surplus Cockney. The fault is a little on the side of the Canadian immigration authorities.

The American immigration authorities were much wiser. They put the right men in the right place.

Regarding naval defence, Lord Northcliffe did not believe that the average Canadian knows anything about the dangers of his overseas trade. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians had never seen a sea at all, and are never likely to.

"I found people at Vancouver who had seen warships, and those in the Maritime Provinces, anxious, but the fact that the whole of Canada's export oversea trade could be held up by one or two modern fast foreign cruisers is quite unknown to a people who are extremely busy getting their country into shape for residence and trade."

Manitoba to Own Elevators.

Brandon, Man., Dec. 17.—Hon. G. R. Caldwell announced yesterday at the Western Grain Growers' Convention that, owing to the failure of the Premiers to achieve any co-operation in the matter, the Government of Manitoba had decided to adopt the policy of accepting the principle laid down by the grain growers of establishing a line of interior elevators as a public utility, owned by the people and operated for the public.

The Government was prepared, he stated, to co-operate with the association in carrying out that policy and working out a plan to that end, and he asked that a committee from the association prepare and file plans and meet the Government to prepare a bill to present to the next Legislature, which will meet sometime in February.

The announcement was a complete surprise to the convention, and when he sat down the delegates rose in a body and cheered enthusiastically, many being moved to tears.

Wissahickon Loss $12,000,000.

Buffalo, Dec. 17.—The Wissahickon, of the Anchor Transportation Co., Buffalo, wrecked on the Outer Duck Island, Lake Huron, was in command of Capt. Hugh Miller, of Ogdensburg, N.Y. She was one of the finest of the new type of boats on the Great Lakes, built in 1907. Her dimensions are: Gross tons, 4,062; length, 350 feet; beam, 46 feet.

This is the second disaster the Anchor Line has suffered this month, the first being the loss of the steamer Clarion, burned in Lake Erie, last week.

The Wissahickon was valued at $500,000, and the cargo at $700,000.

James Markey of Prescott, was in the crew, who were relieved yesterday by a tug which left the Soo on Wednesday night.

Cruel Deportation.

Montreal, Dec. 17.—A peculiar case has come to the notice of the civic authorities through the deportation from the United States to this city of Andre Levigne, from St. Albans, Vermont.

Levigne has resided 49 years in the United States, having gone there when he was 13 years old. He married and brought up a family in the States, but they all died and now the old man is unable to work, and was likely to become a burden on the community in which he lived.

Says Affidavit Was Faked.

New York, Dec. 18.—B. S. Osbon, secretary of the Arctic Club, announced last night that Capt. Loose has verbally confessed that he faked the recent affidavit in which he said that he had prepared data for Dr. Frederick A. Cook.

The National Geographical Society at Washington has presented Peary with the gold medal as the discoverer of the North Pole.

May Lose Their Votes.

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—By the terms of the Municipal Act, not only civil servants, but all others in arrears of income assessments can be disqualified from voting in the municipal election. There are several hundreds thus affected in Ottawa, including the civil servants who, on advice, refused to pay their tax. A sworn list of delinquents will be prepared for use at the polls.

Rather Be Man Than Senator.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Dec. 17.—The vacant Senatorship, caused by the death of Senator Ferguson, was two weeks ago offered John McLean, M.P.P., of Souris, who declined with the remark that he would rather remain a man than be made a Senator.

Fortune For Medical Research.

London, Dec. 17.—Otto Beit, to whom his brother, the late Alfred Beit, the South African financier, left the greater part of his millions, has donated $925,000 to London University for medical research.

Capt. Jas. Reid, of the Reid Wrecking Company, was seized with paralysis at Port Burwell.

WHAT WOMEN INVENT.

Five Safety Razors Among the Things to Be Exhibited in London.

What was the inspiration of the five Englishwomen who during the last year felt that their inventive powers were put to their best use in inventing safety razors? At all events, five such appliances will be exhibited in the forthcoming London exhibition of inventions by women. The inventive spirit of Englishwomen seems well developed. There are on an average every year about 1,500 new contrivances patented. The greater number of these are, naturally enough, intended for the use of their own sex, although there are such occasional exceptions.

Other recent forms of their inventive skill when it soared far beyond the needs of mere women were shown in an automobile, a steam engine and a flying machine. Of sterner stuff than most of their sex even in this country of militant suffragettes were the inventors who applied to patent their methods of strengthening the sides of ships in their powers of resistance and the new kind of invisible shield to be worn in war. Yet these superwomen were rare among the whole number, most of whom devoted themselves to such characteristic inventions as new kinds of hats for women and children, a method of washing furs, an apparatus to kill chickens painlessly, new fangled clothes for dogs and similar evolutions of feminine necessities. This exhibition is a contrast to that which will soon be opened in Paris, dedicated to proving the social misery of women through their legal and social inferiority to man. It is prophesied that the most stubborn opponent of woman suffrage will be convinced by this eloquent collection of documents, pictures and other evidence.

How Local Option Hurts Owen Sound

Creates Discord
Increases Drunkenness
Harms Business
Promotes Disorder

"I CONSIDER Local Option detrimental to the best interests of the town from a business point of view, as it has created discord and set up one portion of the town against the other. From a moral or temperance standpoint, I consider it the worst blow the temperance cause ever had in the town. I believe it will take a great many years before the sympathy of the people as a whole can again be secured through temperance movements, such as we had before Local Option was carried. It has created more drinking among young men than there ever was in town under a good license system. The arguments advanced when Local Option was advocated that the working classes would have more money to spend in foodstuffs have been proven to be absolutely wrong, as it has not been the case at all.

BUSY DAYS FOR THE MERCHANTS

In Many Cases, Business is Better This Season--Santa Claus Doing Well

Santa Claus is getting on well with his big contract for the Christmas of 1909. A round of the stores this morning found a happy lot of smiling-faced business men, who had a most satisfactory report to make of the progress of the Christmas buying. Dry goods, jewellers, fancy goods, book stores, grocers, hardwares, all have had a big season's trade, fully up to, and in many cases, far beyond that of a corresponding date of last year. The trade up to Saturday had been most satisfactory, and the crowds that thronged all the stores on Saturday added a great big day's record to what had gone before. There was not a complaint anywhere along the line, all seemed to have had their full share, and in fact all their respective staffs could handle.

With five days of average winter weather yet before Christmas, the sales should not only equal those of any previous year, but be very much in excess of them.

FIRST FUNERAL TO NEW CHURCH

Funeral of the Late Miss Julia Doherty was Held on Saturday Morning.

The funeral of the late Miss Julia Doherty took place Saturday morning to the Sacred Heart church, and was largely attended. Service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. O'Brien, after which interment took place in St. Peter's cemetery. This is the first service of the dead to be held in the new church, and the fact of of the deceased being one, who by her exemplary manner of living, had reached the rare old age of 87 years, should not pass unnoticed by the young people of the parish and others.

TO BE ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD

An Interesting Ceremony to Take Place at St. Peter's Cathedral

An interesting ceremony will take place at St. Peter's cathedral tomorrow morning at eight o'clock when Rev. James Toner will be ordained to the priesthood by his Honor, Bishop O'Connor, Rev. Father Toner is native of County Louth, Ireland, and commenced his studies for the priesthood there. Coming to America eight years ago, he entered a seminary at Buffalo where he studied for some time. He completed his course at Montreal. He will likely be attached to the cathedral staff here.

For the first eight months of the current fiscal year Canada's trade totals $420,959,213, in increase of $63,067,972.

HERE'S A CHANCE FOR THE POETS

DOG WAS OF A RELIGIOUS TURN OF MIND

He was only a puppy—not a big puppy either—but he played havoc with the morning service at St. Paul's church yesterday. He strolled in at the front door during the solemn silence of the service and walked up the aisle on one side with the pleased expression of a lady (with a new fur coat ($125.00). By way of diversion he nipped at some rubbers that were lying close to the carpeted path. When he reached the front of the church he mounted the platform and made friendly advances towards the choir and the minister. He was greeted with smiles, but the friendly hand of fellowship was not extended. Then he walked across the organ pedals and was quite a success in the role of the "Volunteer Organist." When doggie pressed the pedals the sounds that came forth reminded one of grand opera, or a tramp making an assault on a wood-pile with a buck-saw, if such a thing ever happened. It is even said that the pup sat down and held out his front feet. If this is true there is no doubt but that he was supplicating the choir to stop singing. The "purp" then sauntered down the other aisle and was ejected into the coldness of an unfriendly world.

Was First Five-Masted Schooner Built.

Boston, Dec. 17.—The loss of the five-masted schooner Gov. Ames, valued at $36,000, which was wrecked off Cape Hatteras on Monday, was the hardest blow that local shipping has received this year. The Ames was the first five-masted schooner built, and during her twenty-one years career she had a number of accidents, and was completely dismasted on her maiden trip. She had been used almost entirely in the coasting trade carrying mostly ice, coal and lumber.

Capt. A. M. King, who, with his wife, and twelve men of the crew are reported lost, lived at Everett. He and his wife came from Lunenburg, Nova Scotia.

Members of the crew shipped in Boston included Engineer C. S. Higgins, Prince Edward Island, and Seaman Joseph Spearing, Nova Scotia. Other members of the crew were shipped in New Brunswick, only one, Josiah Spearing, was saved.

New Target at Bisley.

London, Dec. 17.—The Canadian Associated Press learns that it is intended to introduce into the King's Prize competition at Bisley a figure target on approved service lines. The new target will supplant the bull'seye target at 500 yards, and will be what is technically known as a second-class sectional target, such as is used in the Pixley match. The Bisley target will be colored blue and brown. The scoring values remain as hitherto.

Needs Two Legs.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 16.—Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science denomination, may be deprived by the Government of the services of a highly-recommended English cook, simply because the latter has only one leg. The cook is held at the immigration station while an appeal against her deportation is being considered. The immigration officials fear that the crippled woman may in time become a public charge.

Christian Science Case.

Mt. Holly, N.J., Dec. 17.—At the request of the public prosecutor, the Burlington County Court yesterday entered a nolle prosequi in the case of Edwin M. Watson and his wife, who were convicted on a charge of manslaughter in May, 1908, for refusing to summon a physician for their seven-year-old son, who was ill with pneumonia, preferring to rely upon Christian science methods.

Following their conviction the case was carried to the State Supreme Court, which ordered a new trial on the ground that the trial judge had erred in his charge to the jury. In making the motion for the nolle prosequi yesterday the prosecutor said he was convinced that it would be impossible to secure a conviction that would be sustained if the accused parents were tried a second time.

The case excited great interest among Christian scientists throughout the country and many of them aided the defendants financially.

Hon. Ian Gordon Dead.

London, Dec. 17.—The Hon. Ian Archibald Gordon, third son of the Earl of Aberdeen, died yesterday from injuries received in an automobile accident. He was born in 1884.

On Nov. 27, while motoring, he collided with another auto at a cross-road near Winchester. Mr. Gordon's car was struck and turned completely over, landing in the opposite hedge and pinning Mr. Gordon underneath. The chauffeur had his collar-bone broken.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Asquith to the Hon. Archibald Gordon was made last week, while Miss Asquith was in attendance on him in the hospital.

Deceased spent considerable time in Canada at the time of tenure of office of his father, Lord Aberdeen, as governor-general. He was only fourteen years of age then. He paid a visit to Ottawa about a year ago.

Prominent Woman Killed by Train.

Paris, Dec. 17.—The body of Mme. Gouin, whose husband was the late Jules Edouard Gouin, governor of the Bank of France, was found mangled under a train near Paris yesterday.

The door of the compartment in which she was traveling was almost torn from its hinges and there was a pool of blood on the floor.

The relatives of Mme. Gouin first believed that while trying to emerge from the train, her dress became entangled in the door, throwing her under the wheels.

Now, however, the police believe they have found evidence of a crime. Rings and other jewelry were missing from her reticule.

The curtain of the door of the compartment, covered with bloody finger marks, was found half a mile from the body.

What Labor Leaders Say

"The damning course to the labourer is that which gurgles from the neck of the bottle."—T. V. Powderly.

"Labour leaders are alive to the menace that the saloon is to the progress of working men. When the Toronto Labour Temple was founded a clause was put in its constitution totally excluding intoxicating liquor from the premises."—James Simpson, Delegate A.F.L.

"The destruction of the poor is their poverty and the present licensing system is the chief cause of the present time poverty, debasement and weakness of the poor.—John Burns, M.P., English Labour Leader.

"So far as my observation goes, drunkenness was at the bottom of all misery (in workingmen's homes), and not the industrial system or the industrial conditions surrounding the men and their families."—Ex-U. S. Commissioner of Labor, Carroll D. Wright.

"The use of liquor and its influences have done more to darken labour's homes, dwarf its energies and chain it hand and foot to the wheels of corporate aggression than all other influences combined."—R. F. Travelick, President of National Eight Hour League.

"If a brewery is closed down, in its place springs up a factory. If a saloon is closed, in its place comes a store. It is simply a process well known to union men, the same process as follows the introduction of machinery. It is a readjustment, a changed condition of society. Almost every disturbance in the ranks of organized labour can be traced back to some connection with the saloon."—John Mitchell, Vice-President A.F.L.

"The purpose of the trade union is to raise the standard of living. What about the saloon? Is there a man who will dare to say that there is any influence from the saloon except to lower this standard, and make man less manly and women less womanly? I don't know a solitary principle for which the labor movement stands but that the saloon is on the other side of the question"—John P. Lennon, Treasurer A.F.L.

"The day will come when practically every labor leader will be a total abstainer. Why, just a little time ago across the line the bartenders in one town organized a total abstinence society. Why shouldn't labor leaders do the same? I would not have you conclude that I think there are no good labor leaders who drink. There are, some of the first in the ranks. Yet it seems to me, other things being equal, the man who is the total abstainer is the best man.—Rev. Charles Stelzle, Delegate A. F. L.

The Position of the Catholic Church

Every now and then the insinuation is made that the Catholic Church is not in favor of attempts to regulate or vote out the liquor traffic. A pamphlet now being circulated in Peterborough by advocates of the open bar, makes such an attempt.

That this is not the case we have shown repeatedly in these columns. The subjoined paragraphs are taken from statements respectively made by his Eminence, Cardinal Manning, and Archbishop John Ireland.

I impeach the liquor traffic of high crimes and misdemeanors against the commonwealth, and I ask you, in the name of common sense and common justice, can you withhold from those entrusted with the high responsibility of the ballot the power of applying their votes in the form of a veto when it is proposed, without consulting them, to put in the midst of them these places for the sale of intoxicating drinks?

We thought we meant business years ago in this warfare, but I hope God will forgive us for our weakness, for we went into the battlefield without sufficient resolution. We labored under the fatal mistake that we could argue out the question with the rumsellers. We imagined that there was some power in moral suasion, that we would show them the evil of their ways they would abandon the traffic. We have seen that there is no hope of improving in any shape or form the liquor traffic. There is nothing now to be done but to wipe it out completely.

THE CROWN CALLED THREE WITNESSES

Ex-Ald. Johnston, P. C. Meharry and P. J. Carrol Testify in Perjury Charge Against P. C. Newhall —The Prosecution Closes Its Case—Witnesses for the Defence Will Be Heard This Afternoon.

The last of the five perjury charges in which true bills were brought in at the present sessions of the County Court, was resumed this morning. Patrick Carroll, a bartender at the Oriental, was the accused and the charge against him was that of having sworn falsely at the police court trial of George N. Graham, who was charged with selling liquor after hours on the night of Nov. 19th. Graham was acquitted on this charge.

Carroll was a witness at the trial and swore he did not hand out drinks to a bellboy. The Crown alleged he swore falsely in this regard and had him charged with perjury.

At the opening of the Carroll trial which was on Saturday afternoon, Mr. O'Connell moved to have the indictment quashed on the same grounds as those advanced in the Graham charge. Judgment was reserved on this point by the court.

This morning the Crown's star witness, ex-Ald. W. J. Johnston, testified and was searchingly cross-examined by Mr. D. O'Connell, Carroll's counsel.

INTERESTING TESTIMONY.

William J. Johnston, a Peterborough contractor and builder and resident of the town all his life, was the first witness called by the Crown. In reply to a question by Crown Attorney Wood he stated he had been on the Ashburnham and Peterborough Council. On the night of November 19th he was on Hunter street on the side opposite to the hotel. P. C's. Meharry and Newhall were there at the corner of Hunter and Chambers streets. The defendant, Patrick Carroll, was in the bar. It was 12.30 when the witness came along. He saw Carroll pass out drinks at the back of the bar door three times. Prisoner gave out drinks once to a bellboy.

PERSISTENT CROSS-QUESTIONING.

Under cross-examination by Mr. O'Connell the witness said he gave evidence at the Police Court.

"You are an ex-alderman?"

"Yes."

"And likely to remain so?"

"That's for the people to say."

"You were watching the Oriental Hotel on the night in question?"

"Yes."

"A nice occupation for an ex-alderman. You hid yourself in the doorway occasionally?"

"No, I stood in the doorway."

"To conceal yourself—that's what we call hiding."

"What did you go there for?"

"I went down there to see a certain party—Fire Chief Howard."

"You expressed a desire to a police constable you would like to see him caught?"

"I said I would like to see him in a place of that kind."

"What did the policeman say to you?"

"He said he could let me see him at any time."

"Who was that constable?"

"P. C. Newhall."

The witness said on the night of the 19th he was called up by P. C. Meharry at 12.15 and in response to the 'phone message went down to the Oriental to see if he could catch Chief Howard, he stated, in answer to Mr. O'Connell's evidence. Afterwards he rang up from the police station and asked Chief Howard if there was a light out at the corner of Crescent and George streets. Part of the witnesses' intention in calling up the Chief was to see if he was at the fire station.

"Who told you the light was out?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"P. C. Newhall" came the answer.

The witness saw the bellboy come to the door three times.

"You are quite sure you saw him at the door three times?"

"I'm quite sure about seeing him twice."

Mr. O'Connell produced the evidence of the witness at the police court in which the witness swore that "what he took to be a boy came to the door once."

"What do you mean by saying 'I took him for a boy?'"

"I mean he was a boy."

"Why didn't you say he was a boy?"

To His Honor—"It was a boy."

"You'll go the full length now," said Mr. O'Connel to the witness.

Mr. Johnston said the prisoner was working back and forth what the witness believed to be a beer pump.

"In the police court you swore flatly it was a beer pump. Has anybody told you since it was not a beer pump?"

"No, I read it in the papers."

"And after reading it in the papers you come here and try to hedge?"

Mr. O'Connell produced a large tap in court.

"Do you take that to be a beer pump," he asked.

"No, that wasn't what he used."

To Mr. O'Connell the judge said:—"It looks more like a revolver the way you hold it."

The witness saw Chief Howard at the Oriental on the night of the 19th. The witness was standing across the road from the hotel in a doorway. He could see across the road into the bar and could see to the bar door at the rear from about half way down the bar. A doorway and the step was about eighteen inches high. The height of the bar blind was about seven feet.

"Could a man of your height standing on the same side of the street as the hotel, see over the blind without standing on the ledge?"

"No."

In referring to the box the policemen in their police court evidence swore they used, Mr. Johnston said he saw a big box leaning up against the Review office.

The witness saw Fire Chief Howard at the hotel, but did not see him take a drink.

In the course of his evidence the witness admitted he was opposed to the appointment of Fire Chief Howard.

To Mr. Wood he said he had no interests in the case other than those of a private citizen, and no ill-feeling against Patrick Carroll.

P.C. Newhall, an officer on the local force for four years, was in the locality of the Oriental Hotel on the night of November 19th. He was there under instructions. This was not the first occasion on which he watched the place. About 11 o'clock he reached the Oriental. He was there till 11.45, when he called P.C. Meharry by 'phone. The bar was lit up. The policeman got a packing box and placed it by the bar door. The fanlight was opened and they looked into the bar through the fanlight. The constable's evidence was a repetition of what he told at the police court trial of Graham, the proprietor of the Oriental.

Mr. O'Connell questioned the witness closely on the dimensions of the box that the police officers stood upon. P.C. Newhall said it was five feet high, he thought. He said the same at the police court. Mr. O'Connell told him it was four feet at the police court, but on looking over the Magistrate's depositions Mr. O'Connell discovered that it was five feet the officer had said, and stated it was Meharry who had said four feet.

Newhall said that he was six feet and one-half inch tall in his boots, and looked over the bar blind on the night of the 19th while standing on the pavement.

Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble identified papers in connection with the case and read over the deposition of Carroll at the police court proceedings against Graham for the charge of the 19th. In this deposition the witness said he did not prepare drinks and hand them to a bellboy.

There was no cross-examination.

P.C. Meharry was called to corroborate the Crown's previous testimony.

"How long since you read your notes over?"

"I read them over this morning."

"For what purpose?"

"To refresh my memory so that I wouldn't get mixed up on the two nights."

"You were the man who rang up Johnston?"

"For what?"

"To tell him to come to the hotel?"

"Yes."

"Who told you to?"

"Newhall."

"For what purpose?"

"I don't know."

"Were you in the police station when Johnston rang up Chief Howard at the fire hall?"

"I don't remember being there."

Mr. O'Connell questioned Meharry as to who was at the hotel that night and concerning Carroll's doings in the bar.

"You saw the pump worked?"

"Yes"

"How does it work?"

"It works up and down."

"The other constable says it works this way," said Mr. O'Connell, making a twitch of the hand to and from him.

"I don't know what he says," was the reply.

"How high was the box?"

"About four feet or more."

"Did you put the box in the barbershop door once when you weren't using it?"

"No."

"That's strange; Newhall said you did."

The witness made an effort to give some explanation on this point, but the counsel for the defence blocked him and said, "You've answered the question."

"You knew that Johnston had a wrangle with the Chief?"

"I knew he had some wrange with him in the council."

At the conclusion of Meharry's evidence Mr. Wood said, "That's the case for the Crown."

The court adjourned at 12.30 until 2 o'clock this afternoon, when the defence will open the case.

LONDON, ENG., DRY GOODS STORE BURNED AND MANY LIVES LOST

Loss of Life in Two and a Half Million Dollar Fire in British Metropolis is Estimated at Fifty—Hon. John Burns Helps Firemen for Three Hours

London, Dec. 21.—A disastrous fire, involving the loss of many lives and the destruction of the big drapers' store of Arding & Hobbs, at Clapham, a southwestern quarter of London, occurred yesterday. An estimate, which cannot be confirmed, places the loss of life in the fire at close to 50.

The breaking of an electric bulb started a blaze among celluloid articles beneath, about 4.30 p.m., when the store, covering an acre of ground, and having five floors and a hundred departments, were crowded with customers. In little more than an hour the building was in ruins. The damage is estimated at 2,500,000.

All the customers got out in safety and over 300 employes followed. The fire was so rapid that some of the employes were caught in the upper floors. Two men brought a couple of girls to one of the windows. One of the girls descended the fire escape in safety. While the second was trying to reach the ground the ladder took fire and she fell and was killed. The two men then jumped and were killed also. Several were seriously injured, a few possibly fatally. At midnight some of the employers are also accounted for.

President John Burns of the local Government, assisted the firemen. He remained at the scene for three hours and then attended a meeting of the electors of Battersea, with his hand done up in a bandage, his clothes saturated with water and his face begrimmed with smoke. He related his experience and asked the meeting to excuse him from making a speech.

The audience, after standing uncovered as a mark of condolence for the victims of the fire, dispersed with cheers for "Honest John."

BIBLE TEACHING ESSENTIAL IN TORONTO UNIVERSITY

Committee Appointed to Decide on the Charges of Hon. S. H. Blake and Rev. Elmore D. Harris That Bible Knowledge Lectures Are Illegal, Decides Against Them.

Toronto, Dec. 21.—Hon. S. H. Blake, K.C., Rev. Elmore Harris and the others who startled the public last spring with their assault on the teaching of "higher criticism" in connection with the department of "religious knowledge" at University College of the Provincial University have now their answer in the report of the special committee of the board of governors appointed to consider the charges in question.

The verdict on almost every count is "not guilty," though it is almost too much to expect that Mr. Blake will accept the finding.

The kernel of the matter is summed up in the first sentence of section 13 of the report:

"Your committee begs to report that, in its opinion, the university act does not exclude all interpretation of the Bible in University College, and that every discussion of any of its books in the college would not be a teaching of 'theology' contrary to the statute."

The correllation of all branches of learning is well emphasized in the same section, where it is pointed out that a strict barring of all discussion of the sacred writings would cripple the teaching of almost the entire arts curriculum.

The term used in the statutory prohibition, the committee points out, is "theology" and not "religious knowledge."

Appended to the report is a letter from Rev. Father J. R. Teefy, explaining why he finds it necessary to withdraw his concurrence from certain phases of the finding.

As the legal questions involved depended upon the construction and effect of the provisions of the University act, 1906, a sub-committee, consisting of Sir Charles Moss, Sir William Meredith, Dr. Hoskin, K.C., and Dr. Z. A. Lash, K.C., was requested to consider and report upon these provisions, and the report of the subcommittee forms part of this report.

EARTHQUAKE CAUSES TREMOR ON PARTS OF ATLANTIC COAST

Halifax, Dec. 21.—Northern Cape Breton was shaken by an earthquake Sunday afternoon, the effects of which were felt from Mabou, on the western coast of the island, to St. Ann's on the east. Communication with Inverness was wholly cut off Sunday night. The shock was felt there more severely than in any other section of the island, and after three o'clock Monday afternoon it was impossible to get in communication with that section of the island. While it was not thought there has been serious damage, there was some anxiety felt last night over the interruption of communication. The first news of the disturbance came from Baddeck. The telephone central there reported that between 3 and 3.30 o'clock the town was rocked by a seimic disturbance of considerable force. St. Ann's, on the eastern coast, also reported severe shocks.

Reports came in next from Orangedale of a disturbance there. The telephone central at that point stated that shortly after 3 o'clock the village was startled by a heavy rumbling sound. At first it was thought to be an express train running at high speed, but in a moment the ground began to sway [illegible] Dishes and light articles danced around on the shelves and houses were badly shaken. No damage was reported along the line of the Intercolonial. The operator at the Grand Narrows station stated that the earthquake had not been felt there, but Orangedale station, before it closed for the night, stated that, in addition to the shock there, West Bay, Mabou and Margaree had also been visited by the tremors. No news could be secured from Inverness or Port Hood last night. All evening the long-distance operators in the Sydney central endeavored to establish communication with these points, but every attempt proved futile. The wires all failed to respond, and about 11 o'clock the Sydney office concluded that the earthquake was responsible for the derangement of communication. Judging from the force of the disturbance in other sections of the country it is not thought that the 'quake could have been severe enough in Inverness to have caused any damage, but the fact that no word could be got from there during the night caused some anxiety.

SAY BARGE CANAL WILL BEAT RIVER

New York, Dec. 21.—New Yorkers who have read the recent address of G. W. Stephens, chairman of the Montreal harbor board, declaring the superiority of the St. Lawrence water route over the Erie Canal, say that when the new barge canal is completed the water rate to New York will be as cheap as to Montreal, and that this port has many advantages that Montreal does not possess.

WANTED TO WORK FIFTY YEARS

Philadelphia, Dec. 21.—After being employed by the one company for 49 years, Albert Heald, 69 years old, a conductor on the Pennsylvania Railroad, was struck and killed yesterday by an engine. Though entitled to go on the company's pension list, he had asked to be permitted to continue his work until February, to round out fifty years' continuous service.

Not One Voted Nay.

Welland, Dec. 21.—A bylaw granting a fixed rate of assessment for the Electro Steel Co., was passed yesterday in Crowland Township by a vote of [illegible] for and 0 against. The company commenced the construction of their buildings some time ago.

LABRADOR TO EXPORT MEAT

Sydney, N.S., Dec. 21.—That Labrador may soon become an important source of food supply, exporting large quantities of meat, cereals, etc., is the opinion of Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, missionary, author and lecturer. Dr. Grenfell and his bride, formerly Miss Clanahan of Chicago, are on their way to Labrador. The doctor is enthusiastic over the outlook for extending his herds of reindeer, imported from Lapland, to all parts of Labrador.

"There are excellent prospects of this try," he said. "The flesh of the reindeer makes splendid food, and I look forward to the time when large quantities will be exported to supply the meat markets of the world."

AMERICAN CEMENT CO HAD BAD YEAR

Philadelphia, Dec. 21.—The American Cement Co., which controls a large portion of the cement output, yesterday reduced its annual dividend rate from 6 to 2 per cent. In a statement the company says:

"The present year has been the worst known in the cement industry. The mills of the country have been run to about 60 per cent. of their capacity, and the production has been marketed in many cases at or below cost."

COLOSSAL SPIRAL TUNNELLING FOR THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Nº 1. ENTRANCE TO FIRST SPIRAL TUNNEL. Nº 2 EXIT OF FIRST SPIRAL TUNNEL

Nº 3. ENTRANCE TO SECOND SPIRAL TUNNEL. Nº 4. EXIT TO SECOND SPIRAL TUNNEL.

Nº 1 NEW TRACK HIGH LEVEL Nº 2. NEW TRACK SECOND LEVEL Nº 3. OLD TRACK Nº 4. NEW TRACK LOWER LEVEL

Work has just been completed on the most colossal piece of spiral tunnelling work that has ever been attempted in Canada in the finishing of the two famous spiral tunnels on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway between Field and Hector, which will add several miles to the length of the track, together with over a mile of tunnelling and a couple of bridges, but will so cut the "Big Hill" grade as to more than double the tractive power to the locomotives. While the work meant the excavation of nearly three-quarters of a million of cubic yards of virgin rock, the employment of a thousand men for nearly two years, the boring of about a mile and a half of tunnels through mountains ten thousand feet high, and the building of two bridges over the Kicking Horse River, it is estimated that it will prove a splendid investment for the Canadian Pacific Railway, as it will reduce this big grade from 4.5 to a maximum of 2.2. This will mean that the biggest obstacle to the running of trains over the Rocky Mountains has been removed, and that in future on this section of the line two engines will be able to do much more work than four engines have hitherto been able to do at much less expense to the company and with an almost complete elimination of the ever present risk to life of operating trains on a steep grade.

WHOLE WORK COMPLETED

Mr. James A. Macdonell, head of the firm of Macdonell, Gzowski & Co., who had the two contracts for constructing this big work, stated that the whole work had been completed, so far as the contractors were concerned, some ago, and that the miles of tunnels and cutting had been turned over to the company. All that now remained, said Mr. Macdonell, was to complete the ballasting and track laying, and then this important improvement to the main line would be ready for trains.

"This improvement," said Mr. Macdonell, "has meant eight and one-half miles of work, of which one and a half miles were tunnelled under mountains of ten thousand feet or more. While it increases the length of the line by four and a quarter miles, at a cost of about $1,500,000, it will mean the reduction of the grade from 4.5 to 2.2 at the worst point, while the general grade will be less than 2 per cent.

"The result of this will be that where an old track with its big grade it took four engines to handle a train, now only two engines will be needed. And where the four engines used to be able to make only four or five miles an hour, the two engines on the new line will be able to make twenty-five. In this way the cost of operating a train over this difficult piece of line will be cut to about one-third of present cost, with an improvement in the time of running, while the element of danger, inseparable from high grades, has been practically eliminated. It is these factors which have induced the Canadian Pacific Railway to go to such tremendous expense to cut out the famous 'Big Hill' grade."

LARGE AMOUNT SUPPLIED TO DEFEND FREE TRADE POLICY

Dundee Jute Manufacturer Gives Winston Churchill a Gift to Keep up the Fight—Government is in a Joyous Mood, Says Augustine Birrell

London, Dec. 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Liberal campaign fund was yesterday augmented by a contribution of $50,000, a gift to Winston Churchill by a Dundee jute manufacturer for the defence of free trade.

Speakers last night included Augustine Birrell and Sir Edward Grey. The Secretary for Ireland said the present House of Lord was "Jerry built." The second chamber must be differently composed in future. "We are in a joyous mood," he declared. "With customary cheerfulness, we scent victory."

The Secretary of Foreign Affairs at Sunderland replied severely to a personal attack by the Duke of Northumberland, and also declared the House of Lords to be the only permanent opposition to the Liberal party.

Lord Charles Beresford at Pembroke dock reiterated his determination to speak out unless things in the navy were put right. The public had been misled by the Admiralty press bureau, which had done away with good feeling and comradeship in the navy.

F. S. Smith to a Salford audience emphasized the danger of a German challenge of the empire's naval supremacy.

Keir Hardie, at Glasgow, referred to the fact that the House of Lords, to-day gives judgment on the question whether trades unions possess the right to levy for the salaries of members of Parliament, and said that if judgment was adverse, the party had everything in order for carrying on its financial work for at least two years.

Lloyd-George had a remarkably enthusiastic reception while motoring through the streets at Newport. A crowd of several thousand compelled him to make a speech.

Both sides are conducting campaign with utmost vigor in every corner of the land.

Balfour's indisposition necessitating his retirement from the platform will be a serious handicap to the Unionists, if prolonged after Christmas.

Mr. Haldane, Secretary of War, is also sick.

Lord Rosebery writes The Times asking for definite declarations of policy on the question of reform of the House of Lords from both sides. He says: "I can pledge no faith in Balfour's manifesto that his party will undertake to reform the House of Lords, and yet, unless such a pledge be given thoroughly and unmistakably, we may see a Conservative Government come into office and repeat once more the fatal error of letting an opportunity pass."

Wireless 'Phone Useless.

Washington, Dec. 21.—The wireless telephone has not been a success in the navy. The apparatus which was installed on several of the vessels of the Atlantic battleship fleet has been taken off. The experiment cost about $30,000.

THE FINISH OF A NEGRO OUTLAW

Abbeville, La., Dec. 21—Boy Charre, a negro desperado, killed himself after a chase lasting since Tuesday last when the negro shot Officers Holley and Thomas. At the entrance to the Cheetawhatchie Swamp a hundred men surrounded the negro. Wounded, barefooted and tired he placed the barrel of his shotgun to his breast and pushed the trigger with his toes. His body was then tied to a buggy and dragged to Abbeville and placed in the court house, where it lay for several hours.

WATSON WAS ONCE SENT TO ASYLUM

New York, Dec. 21.—The American yesterday reprints an item from The St. James' Gazette (London, Eng.) of Dec. 2, 1892, which chronicled the appearance in public court there of William Watson, the poet, on a charge of being a dangerous lunatic. The Gazette story says "about 12 years ago Mr. Watson met with a disappointment in a love affair, and this induced for a time a strong suicidal mania. 'The care and attention of his friends, combined with a visit to Algiers, restored his reason.'"

"He was arrested because he had rushed forward and tried to stop the horses in the carriage in which the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh and one of the princesses were driving. He gave as his reason that he wanted to see if one of the two leading royal personages was in it. He was committed to an asylum by the magistrate.

ALIEN LABOR LAW DISMISSED

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—A charge of breach of the alien labor act, laid by the striking leather workers against Hugh Carson, Limited, was dismissed by Magistrate O'Keefe yesterday.

It was shown that a member of the firm wrote to a man named Heath, at Salem, N.Y., offering him a job. Heath came over, but did not have his tools and before he got them, learned a strike was on. He declined the job.

The court held there was no evidence of a binding contract to give Heath work, and that therefore there was no importation.

THOMAS E. EDISON DINED IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 21.—Thomas A. Edison, who with a few exceptions has declined all dinner invitations for a number of years, last night consented to dine at the Hotel Plaza with a number of moving picture manufacturers, who desired at once to pay him tribute as the pioneer in the field and to signalise the completion of their first twelve months of peace after a protracted period of costly litigation.

A silver trophy depicting a Greek procession of victory was given Mr. Edison by his associates, who also exposed a special film as a record of the dinner.

C. P. R. REVENUE IS GOING UP

Montreal, Dec. 21.—The controller of the Canadian Pacific Railway gave out a statement yesterday to the effect that the gross revenue for the year 1909 would be $100,000,000, beating Mr. Fielding's estimated revenue by $5,000,000.

Of this amount, it is understood that eighty-five millions will come from the railway, and fifteen millions from the steamers, hotels, etc.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, DEC. 21, 1909.

JAN. 12TH THE DATE

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has announced that the detailed programme of the government's naval policy will be brought down on January 12, 1910. This will be a historic occasion, surely. The Liberal policy will be that of an independent Canadian navy, as expensive as useless. No other part of the Empire has refused Great Britain's request that the various members of the Empire should now unite in some effective way for mutual defence. What we contribute to the defence of others, others will contribute to the defence of us. But above all, it would use the union for defence of the British Empire. Sir Wilfrid Laurier declined the Mother Country's invitation to the sound of French Canada's enthusiastic approval, and to the delight of every hater of Great Britain across the line. It is for us to say that this betrayal of British connection shall not come to pass. Let us lay aside our political differences for the moment. Every loyalist, Liberal or Conservative, is called to the ramparts. If this last but one link in the union of Empire is snapped Canada becomes "independent." Shall we throw over the old flag? Never.

(John o' London, in T.P.'s Weekly.)

The Christmas card is not an old institution. It dates from the great Dickensian revival of Christmas. The weight of evidence is in favour of Sir Henry Cole's claim to be the inventor of this token of remembrance and friendship. Sir Henry Cole died in 1882, after a long and useful career as an artist and promoter of national art education. He was greatly concerned.

Mr. Fielding claims that the steel bounties have had good results in the growth of Canadian trade, particularly at Sault Ste. Marie, Sydney, North Sydney, Glace Bay, New Glasgow and Hamilton. Perhaps so; but when does the Hon. Finance Minister propose to discontinue these bounties? Surely he does not expect to continue them indefinitely and make the people forever pay the piper.—Kingston Standard.

The following remark of Mr. Alexander McNeil, M. P. for Norfolk, describes Mr. Stratton's speech at Ottawa;—

"That style of argument in which the hon. gentleman indulged is one well known throughout this country, and has been heard in every school-house during the last eight years. It is just such an argument as one may hear in a corner grocery among politicians who sit around the stove. Sir, I think we have got beyond that, at least in this House and at this day.'

"The Christian churches are established for the purpose of replacing paganism with Christianity; the trade-union movement is organized to educate the people, to drive out ignorance, and elevate the toilers of our land. Because the liquor traffic tends to enslave people, to make them satisfied with improper conditions, and keep them ignorant, the leaders of the trade-union movements are called on to fight the saloon."

There is nothing more delightful than collecting for cases of charity by means of what is popularly known as "waits." Men and women with voices can do a lot of good in a very acceptable way by singing sweet Christmas carols from door to door. There will be very few who will not at least ask them in and add to their store. It is not necessary to furnish food or drink. That is not the object of the visit, or need not be. At any rate, it is a custom that helps to make Christmas delightful and kindly, and should be encouraged.

Said Mr. Mitchell, a leader idolized by the unions;

"Poverty has driven many a strong man to drink, and drink has driven many a strong man to poverty. I am not at all imprest with the argument that if you close down the liquor traffic you bring about a calamity. Rather the contrary. There is a readjustment of society. Nothing has done more to bring misery upon innocent women and children than the money spent in drink.

"No man has a right to spend a cent upon himself until he has first provided for his family. The average workingman does not yet earn enough to give his family all the comforts they deserve. He has no money to spend on drink without robbing his family. I believe that, as the labor movement grows, so will the temperance movement grow."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

An Excellent Weekly

The Canadian Courier has entered upon its fourth year of publication, and continues to make wonderful progress. For many years Canada was without a national illustrated weekly, and when The Canadian Courier was started there were not many who believed that the country was big enough to support such an expensive publication. It was recognized, however, that Mr. John A. Cooper, who had been editor of the Canadian Magazine for more than ten years, was not likely to embark on such an enterprise without due consideration. That he has been able to duplicate his success and to produce a periodical which finds a ready sale from coast to coast is a matter for congratulation. National periodicals are an important feature in the growth of national national literature and the development of national unity, and it is pleasant to know that Canada now possesses several of these. We heartily wish The Canadian Courier long life and continued influence and success.

T. AND L. COUNCIL DUB HIM "TRAITOR"

The District Labor Council at its regular meeting at the Labor Temple last night by unanimous vote, condemned Hon. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor in the Federal Government, as being a traitor to the cause of labor. One of the speakers described him as a "shuffler," saying that he virtually promised the Executive of the Dominion Trades Congress that the Government would favor a scheme of technical education. When it came before the House of Commons he had led the opposition to the movement, and also opposed the Eight-hour Bill of Mr. Claude Macdonell.—The Mail and Empire.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 20.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts for last week were 860 cattle, 1625 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs and 650 calves, while offerings this morning consisted of 1000 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves. Altho the supply of cattle was much larger than a week ago, prices were firm, but with no advances. The supply of really good, useful cattle was none too large for requirements. There were a large number of cows and bulls on the market, for which the demand was active from local packers for canning purposes. Sales of extra choice Christmas steers were made at 6c; choice at 5¾c to 5⅞c; good at 5c to 5½c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c; medium at 3¾c to 4c; common at 3c to 3½c; canning cows at 1½c to 2c, and bulls at 2½c to 3c per pound. A strong feeling still continues to characterize the market for lambs, owing to limited supplies, and prices scored a further advance of ¼c per pound, with sales to-day at 6¾c to 7c per pound. The market for sheep was weaker on account of limited demand and excess offerings. Sales of some small lots were made at 4c to 4½c per pound. The demand for choice calves was good at 5c to 6c per pound. The market for hogs was stronger, and prices advanced 10c to 15c per cwt., owing to the increased demand from packers and smaller receipts, and sales of selected lots from west of Toronto were made at $8.75, and from east of Toronto at $8.65, weighed off cars.

Does Local Option do the Work?

What a Toronto Newspaper Reporter heard in Owen Sound—

1. That retired farmers were going into the blind pig business because there was so much easy money in it.

2. That a factory hand, who had gone into the blind pig business, had made four hundred dollars in a month, selling whiskey to his fellow workmen.

3. That employers of labor had had more trouble with their men since local option went into force than they had in fifteen years before.

4. That there is a system of signals, lights and bells, to warn the illegal vendor of the approach of the police. Also that there is a recognized vocabulary for the contraband.

5. That debts are thirty per cent. harder to collect under local option than they were before, as the records of the division court show.

6. That crime has increased thirty-three and a third per cent. as the police records show.

Local option is class legislation. No community would consent to be ruled entirely by any one religious denomination. Why then should it be obliged to submit to the opinions and restrictions of the total abstainer.

Liberty of Conscience and Liberty of Conduct should go hand in hand.

VOTE AGAINST LOCAL OPTION, IT WILL NOT SUIT YOU.

MR. LASTER URGED TO ADDRESS PUBLIC

Following the publication in yesterday's Daily Review of a communication from Mr. B. Laster, and in closing which he expressed willingness to address a meeting under certain conditions, a prominent citizen of the city called at this office and asked to have his wish made public, that Mr. Laster should, without delay, get his hail and deliver an address. As the citizen points out that if Mr. Laster has the courage of his convictions these convictions may be founded on impulse or on fact, and if the facts are in Mr. Laster's possession it would be well for him to verbally make them public. He urged that Mr. Laster not wait to parley with the opposition, but so to speak, carry the war into Africa by holding his meeting, and if the opposing forces come forward as they would have the opportunity, well and good. Mr. Laster has, at considerable expense, (twenty-five cents per inch, single column) given his views in print. It only remains for him to add his voice in support of his arguments. That voice should be heard.

MONTREAL BUYER VISITED PORT HOPE

And Secured Large Amount of Fowl—Peterboro By-Law is Commended

Wm. Fennell, a representative of the J. A. McLean Produce Co., Toronto, paid a visit to the Peterborough market on Saturday and purchased all the geese and turkeys he could obtain.

Peterborough has a by-law prohibiting merchants or other persons buying for retail to purchase before ten o'clock. The police officials soon brought Mr. Fennell to a stop and in the Police Court it cost him $23.35.

Our City Dads throw the market doors open to every person and on Saturday a buyer for the Montreal market filled a large sleigh with the choicest fowl. The boosting of the price of market produce effects the householder, and a by-law similar to Peterborough's protects the local buyers. Barrie, Woodstock and other towns have by-laws of this kind, so if some young man who is looking for municipal honors will make this by-law a plank in his platform his election will be assured.—Port Hope Guide.

Montreal Irishmen subscribed $1,000 to the Home Rule fund.

This space is arranged for by the Local Option Committee and the matter supplied and its insertion paid for.

Does Local Option Do the Work?

What a Representative of the Toronto Star found in Owen Sound:

1. That the Law was being rigidly enforced.
   During 1908 there were Convicted Hotelkeepers 35, Blind Pigs 2; Absconded Hotelkeepers 8, Blind Pigs 1; Sent to Jail Hotelkeepers 6, Blind Pigs 1. Total fines $1,420
2. More Business Done.
   Two-thirds of the business men said that their business had increased materially—more cash paid, less credit asked for.
3. Less Rowdyism.
   The Chief of Police said "There is not one drunk now to the 100 there were under the license system and the quiet of the town at night is wonderful."
4. Real Estate Values Increased.
   In five years property in Owen Sound had increased over 30 per cent. in value.
5. Employers of Labor Pleased.
   Employers of labor said "We have had no trouble with our men being off since Local Option came into force."
6. Approved by the People.
   The best evidence that can be given that Local Option is a success in Owen Sound is that the people of the city, with all the facts before them, voted last January by a large majority to retain local option. Even the Ontario Brewers Association could not induce them to go back to license.

THAT WATCH OF YOURS

Is in many respects similar to a railway engine. Let an engine be run without oil or cleaning and before long it will stop dead. Upon examination it will be found that the friction and wear and tear has ruined the machinery, and it is fit only for the scrap iron heap. Likewise your watch. You put it in your pocket, and while there is a kick in it, you, in your mistaken economy, do not consult the watchmaker, and consequently rob your watch of years of good service and also much of its former accuracy. The time-keeping qualities of a good watch are maintained and often improved by timely and skilful attention. If you have been one of the neglectful ones call around and see us.

OUTSPOKEN DISCOURAGEMENT GIVEN BY JUDGE HUYCKE

To Persons Sending Him Letters Concerning Pending Charges --- Referred to Procedure as Highly Improper—Exception in Cases of Those Convicted

At the session of the county court yesterday morning His Honor Judge Huycke made the following remarks;

"There is one matter, after some consideration, I have decided to refer to, and it is not with reference particularly to what has been taking place during the past week, or it is not particularly referable to any one case or any one person, but I wish to make a statement publicly in open court. During the term of my residence in Peterborough, some four months or more, not once but many times, comparatively a good number of times, I have been approached, either personally or by letter, by not one person, but different persons, regarding not one case but different cases. I have answered none of them, and ignored them all. I simply wish to state here in open court that, in my opinion such a course is highly improper, whether the people who do it are well meaning or ill meaning or, as in my judgment, mostly people with no meaning at all. I consider it highly improper, and some lawyers have said it is an unwarranted impertinence. I wish to have it publicly known I do not wish such interference. If such takes place, as it has taken place, I desire to say it does not influence my attitude. If it would influence me at all, it would rather influence me against the people who made these efforts with reference either to prisoners, litigants or witnesses. Therefore I do not want anything of this kind to occur from any person or persons or body of persons in the future. That, however, does not apply with respect to people who have been convicted. As to them I am always glad to hear any representations or information regarding the antecedents, character or circumstances of the person convicted."

JUDGE HUYCKE HEARING APPEALS IN CONNECTION WITH 1910 VOTERS' LIST

There is no "off again, on again, gone again, Finnigan," about the proceedings before His Honor Judge Huycke to-day. The voters' list for 1910 is being revised, and on account of the local option campaign there is a great scramble to get names on the list. If you're off you have a chance to get on—the last chance, too. Those who haven't their names placed on the list at the present court will not have another opportunity.

The court opened at 11.15 o'clock with about two hundred persons in attendance. Mr. E. L. Goodwill is looking after the interests of the local option party, and the antis are represented by Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. Summerhayer, of Toronto.

In view of the large number of appeals his Honor suggested that the lawyers for both sides hold a short conference, and come to a decision on the names on each petition, which would not be protested. The suggestion was acted upon, and while the conference was being held the court proceeded to deal with three or four appeals entered by private parties.

A fairly large number of names on each petition were agreed upon as "O K" at the conference, and they were placed on the list at the conclusion of the conference. The local option people got a larger number of names on in this way than the antis.

When the names agreed upon at the conference were disposed of, the court took up the hearing of those which will be protested. Evidence will be taken in connection with these.

Adjournment took place at 12.30. The court resumed at 2.30.

UNIVERSITY OF COPENHAGEN DECLARES AGAINST DR. COOK

Special to the Review.

Copenhagen, Dec. 21.—The University of Copenhagen as the result of the report of the committee appointed by the University to examine Dr. Cook's records to-day formally declared that the alleged records submitted by Dr. Cook for examination had failed to prove the explorer's claim that he reached the pole. The committee's report states that Cook's papers are without any value.

The copies of his note books submitted contain no original calculation of observations, but only results thereof.

AN IMPOSTOR.

Another despatch received by the Review says;—

Copenhagen, Dec. 21.—The University of Copenhagen, which first recognized Dr. Cook as discoverer of the North Pole, this morning repudiated his claim after receiving the report of the Special Committee. Report states that Cook's papers are without any value, and note books contain no original calculation of observations, but only results thereof. Several members were willing that the University should go further and brand Cook as an impostor. Claims of Peary now generally recognized here.

THE TRUTH COMING OUT

The following editorial of Le Canada shows very plainly what "the French idea" really is. It is only a side-light, but side-lights throw strongest, as the saying is. It is as follows:—

"The challenge thrown out by M. Forget, in his speech before the Club Lafontaine, to the Conservatives of the west, has been taken up by the Ottawa Citizen. M. Rodolphe Forget asserted that the Conservative party could never upset the Liberals at Ottawa, and get into power again without the support of Quebec, and that Quebec will never vote for them, as they are. A complete re-organization is necessary. The Citizen takes up the challenge on all points. It asserts that the CONSERVATIVE PARTY HAS NO NEED OF THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC to regain power. It counts upon the increase of the number of Conservative members from the west. It sees no calamity from not depending upon the PREDOMINANCE OF QUEBEC (Review capitals). It sees no disorganization in the (Conservative) party.

* * * * * *

"The position taken by the Citizen is that of the Telegram and News of Toronto, and by the Telegram and Tribune, of Winnipeg, that the Conservative party can get back into power without Quebec."

Then follows a denial by Le Canada of this claim, and a statement that Quebec will maintain its racial and claim rights.

That Canada is swayed by Quebec at present is undoubted. All policies point in that direction.

FOX WAS TOO CLEVER FOR HUNTERS FROM BRIDGNORTH

Special to Review.

Bridgenorth, Dec. 20.—Sleighing is good at present, but some are suspicious of it going as they take both cutter and buggy with them.

Mr. Russel Hall returned home Friday after spending a few days at Cobalt.

Our village people are wearing the smile that will not wear off about the Christmas presents they are receiving from our village merchants.

A hunting party headed by one of our noted butchers, a barber and four or five of our village sports, went a few miles east of our village to spend the day. Their dogs soon struck a fox track. Then there was an exciting time for a while, but it did not last long for Reynard thought he would have a joke on these noted sports. After a few minutes' run he ran into a den. The boys were soon on the scene with picks and shovels which they had procured and began to dig. The farmers in the vicinity thought the contractors for the new grain route had commenced operations, but the boys dug on with high expectation, when lo and behold, the fox came out, played hide and seek among their legs. Then he departed to a little knoll a short distance away, sat down, licked his lips, and wished them a merry Christmas, and strange to say not a shot was fired.

THE TORONTO GLOBE ADVISES INQUIRY INTO LOCAL AFFAIRS

A Severe Criticism and Good Advice From Chief Liberal Organ— Peterborough Furnishing Food For Reflection—Necessity for Investigation.

Under the heading "Should Be Above Suspicion," the Toronto Globe says editorially to-day:—

It is well for the administration of Justice in Ontario and for public confidence in the officers of the Crown, that cases such as that recently ventilated in Peterborough are rare. A man had been fined by the magistrate for illegal liquor-selling, and two men whose evidence contradicted that of the police were indicted for perjury. Evidently the magistrate concluded that the men whose evidence was contradicted by that of the police were perjurers. At the trial the chief witness for the Crown, under cross-examination, appeared in so damaging a light that he was not believed. Character evidence was damaging to the police. The judge declared himself pained to hear charges against the veracity of the police, and he also condemned one of the officers for having made threats against a witness who was to appear against him. The perjury charges failed, and the accused were honorably acquitted.

Such cases are fortunately rare, and public sentiment must be sufficiently strong and true in Ontario to make them impossible. The officers of the Crown must maintain a standard of character and conduct that will justify the fullest public confidence in them. This condition can be secured and maintained by judicious selection in making appointments and by continued vigilance on the part of magistrates and the public. In this case there was a conflict of testimony that showed perjury was being committed. For a magistrate to conclude without thorough investigation that it was on the part of those who contradicted the police, was a course not calculated to correct developing abuses. The crime of perjury should be punished, but care should be taken to discover the guilty. If innocent men have been put on trial in Peterborough, it is the duty of the Crown to discover the real criminals.

Where carelessness in such matters has continued, society has found itself menaced by those who are supposed to defend it as well as by those who attack it. Whenever any such case arises it should be thoroughly ventilated that officers of the Crown may be made quick to check every tendency toward the abuse of authority. The ready confidence of the magistrate in the evidence of police officers is in accordance with standards of integrity that should always be maintained. But such standards can be maintained only be official vigilance and a healthy and active public opinion.

TRIED TO USE KNIFE

Trouble at a Boarding House near the Waterworks Dam—An Arrest to be Made.

There was some excitement last night at a boarding house kept by Nichola Renzetta, near the new waterworks dam. It appears that another son of Italy, named Nichola Lamorgia, who has been boarding in the place for some time, refused to vacate his bed and bunk in with an old man. The request that he should do this was made by Renzetta and on the other's refusal an argument began which resulted in both Italians getting their blood up. It is said Renzetta grabbed a large knife off a table and according to Lamorgia would have stabbed him had not the other men present took a hand in the fracas and took the knife away. An information against Renzetta was sworn to by Lamorgia and an arrest will follow.

GOOD CONDUCT IS REWARDED

New York, Dec. 18.—The happiest woman in this city yesterday was probably Margaret Higgins, who during the last twelve or fourteen years, has filled several places as a servant in the city and surburban households. She worked for five and a half years for Miss Annie Johnson, a welathy spinster of Red Bank, N.J. She accompanied Miss Johnson to this city two years ago and lived with her for six months at 2131 Broadway.

"I'm going to go down and live with my niece in Florida and won't need you any more," the elderly spinster told Margaret eighteen months ago. "But you have been a good servant to me, Maggie, and I'm going to remember you in my will."

"Margaret dutifully saw her mistress to Florida, got another place through an employment agency, and says she soon forgot all about the promised legacy. But her former mistress must have asked and learned what Margaret's new address was, for last Monday Margaret received a call from a well dressed woman of about her own age.

"I am Helen Johnson, of Florida, old Miss Johnson's niece," said the woman with a friendly smile. "My aunt often spoke of you beforee she died. She often said she had remembered you in her will, and when she died recently we found that she had left $10,000 to you."

Miss Johnson then handed Margaret a cheque for $10,000. Then Miss Johnson went back to Florida and Margaret went to a bank to make sure that the cheque represented real money. She found that it did and alternately laughed and cried from happiness.

She told a reporter yesterday that she did not know yet how she was going to spend the money. She has several nephews and nieces, who, she says, need some attention. She will probably settle in Red Bank.

Kidney Troubles attack Peterboro Men and Women Old and Young

Kidney ills seize young and old,
Come quickly with little warning.
Children suffer in their early years—
Can't control the kidney secretions.
Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.
Women worry, can't do daily work.
Men have lame and aching backs.
The cure for man, woman or child.
Is to cure the cause—the kidneys.
Booth's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys—
Cure all forms of kidney suffering.
Peterborough testimony proves it.

Mrs. A. Graham, of 547 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., says:

"My back was so weak and tender that I could not turn in bed. A heavy, dull pain had settled across the small of it and caused me almost constant suffering. I became weak and languid. I was run down generally and had little ambition to move around. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes and I would be unable to see. I had tried numerous remedies without getting results. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy, which I tried and soon found relief. The kidneys were quickly regulated and each and every symptom of kidney trouble was quickly cured. I am glad to recommend Booth's Kidney Pills as I believe them to be the best and most reliable of all kidney remedies.

A transposition in a heading in the Review yesterday made it read that P. C. Newhall was on trial for perjury. Such was not the case, as the article showed.

PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY

Death of Mr. Harry Neil, a Well-Known and Highly Esteemed Citizen—Was Forty-Eight Years of Age.

It was with general regret that the news of the death of Mr. Harry Neil was received yesterday. The deceased had been a sufferer from cancer of the stomach for some time, but had not been prevented from attending to his duties as an employee of the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Company. A little over a week ago his ailment became more serious and his condition gradually became worse and about four o'clock yesterday afternoon he passed away. The late Mr. Neil, who was 48 years of age, had resided in Ashburnham practically all his life, and by the many sterling qualities which he possessed and displayed during his life made many friends, who will sincerely regret his demise. He was a member of the A.F. and A.M., and the Sons of England, and attended St. Luke's Anglican church.

To mourn his loss, besides his widow, he leaves one son, Percy, and one daughter, Alice at home, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. J. Gammel, of this city.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon. Service will be held at his late residence, 333 Burnham street, at two o'clock and at St. Luke's church at 2.30, after which interment will take place at Little Lake cemetery.

STRATHCONAS AND KEENE WILL MEET IN FIRST GAME

Schedule for City Hockey League Drawn Up—Chieftains and Collegiates Withdraw—Any Player Who Signs Two Certificates Will Not be Eligible to Play During the Season.

The schedule of games for the City Hockey League, has been drawn up and the player's certificates given out to the respective managers. The popular malady for the next few days will be Renfrewites, but it is hoped that it will not effect the local magnates to such an extent as has been the case in the grease town. The executive met last night in the Oriental parlours. The secretary read a letter received from Mr. Gene Hurtubise, of the Auditorium rink, who gave his terms for the patronage of the City League teams. The proposition is a favorable one, but as this is an important question, it was decided to leave it over for further consideration. Two teams gave notice of their withdrawal from the league. Mr. Bill Gibson, representing the Collegiates, stated that owing to the fact of a seven being entered in the junior series of the O.H.A., it had been decided to withdraw the city league team and Art Hall, of the Chieftians gave lack of interest and finances as the reasons for his teams not being included in the schedule. On motion the entrance fees were returned. This leaves only four clubs in the league to fight it out for the championship. They are the Strathconas, T. A. S., West Ends and Keene.

An important motion was moved and carried and any player who signs two certificates will not be eligible to play in the City Hockey League.

A double schedule was decided on and the Strathconas and Keene will play the first game on Wednesday night, January 5th, with the West Ends and T.A.S. going on the ice for the second. By unanimous consent, Keene was given the first game each night.

The schedule follows:

January 5—Strathconas vs. Keene, West Ends vs. T.A.S.

January 12—Keene vs West Ends, T.A.S. vs Strathconas.

January 19—Keene vs T.A.S., West Ends vs Strathconas.

January 26—Keene vs Strathconas, T.A.S. vs West Ends.

February 2—West Ends vs Keene, Strathconas vs T.A.S.

February 9—T.A.S. vs. Keene, Strathconas vs West Ends.

The referees selected were Messrs. W. Rose, George Lynch, of Peterborough, and T. R. McIntyre, of Keene.

D PEET COMPARES THE MEASUREMENTS OF FIGHTERS

How Johnson and Jeffries Round Up—On the Whole the Doctor Indicates His Favor Toward Johnson—The Advantages of Both.

JEFFRIES.		JOHNSON.
34	Age	31
225 lbs.	Weight	195 lbs.
6 ft. 2 in	Height	6 ft. 1-3 in
17 in.	Neck	17 1-4 in.
44 in.	Chest	41 in.
37 1-2 in.	G of Waist	34 in.
14 in.	Arm	14 1-2 in.
50 in.	Shoulders	49 3-4 in.
12 1-2 in.	Forearm	13 1-4 in
24 in.	Thigh	24 1-2 in.
27 in.	Calf	15 1-2 in.

Dr. Walter L. Peet, the noted New York oarsman, former coach of the Columbia crew and physical culture expert, has taken the most recent measurements of both Johnson and Jeffries and is the only one to get the best idea of the men compared physically. He says;

"Looking at the men superficially, Jeffries seems more symmetrical and more pleasing to the eye, because of Johnson's high shoulders, behind which the large muscles of the back are piled up, and which robs him of that graceful poise which we see in so many of our athletes.

"But these high shoulders, with the masses of muscles in front and behind, are there strictly for business, and while not so agreeable artistically, will count for much on the great day.

REMARKABLY SIMILAR

"Coming to the men closely and comparing a few of the principal measurements we find that they are remarkably similar in many details.

"In weight Jeffries is heavier by thirty pounds, but it is, to say the least, a very open question as to whether Jeffries, by reason of this, has the advantage.

"Furthermore, it is well known that, in all athletes who have been fat and afterwards have reduced, the heart is not as strong in enduring power as in the case of a person who has not been fat. This has much to do with 'wind'—as it is termed.

"Fat is put not only around the heart, which hampers its action, but it is stored between the bundles of muscle fibres (the heart, in fact, is simply a muscle), and it becomes flabby like any other muscle infiltrated by adipose tissue.

"This does not lessen the actual strength in sudden exertion of short duration, like that required in the hammer throw, shot put and the discus; but it does rob the man of 'lasting power.' Especially is this true in rowing, running, etc.

Jeffries has the advantage in height, which means much. Both are very nearly even in girth of neck, which in their large measurements shows great vitality. The great blood vessels running to and from the brain, of course, are contained here, and, as Dr. Sargent of Harvard University has pointed out, this is an important index of vitality. Roosevelt and Morgan both have very large necks, and they are remarkably good exponents of this teaching of Sargent.

"The chest figures, measured in repose, show three inches in Jeffries's favor, but it is well known that the chest measurement is very hard to get accurately, as a slight 'tensing' of the muscles or imperceptible expansion changes it decidedly.

"Johnson has a slimmer waist in circumference by three and a half inches, but it is safe to say that Jeffries will cut his own measurement down. The breadth of waist gives Jeffries two inches the advantage, and if this difference is not due to fat, it would mean more room for the vital organs and more bulk in the powerful side muscles of the torso.

WHITE MAN HAS LONGER REACH

"The girth of shoulders is almost identical, being a variation of only one-quarter of an inch, which does not mean much. Johnson's biceps in repose are slightly the better, but the forearm has a decided advantage over Jeffries's. There is practically no difference between their thighs, but Jeffries has the advantage in the size of the calf. In reach Jeffries has slightly the better of it, but they are so nearly together in this respect that it does not count for much.

"As a general rule other things being equal the less power is behind the blow.

"The mien and general carriage of the two men are entirely different. While Jeffries is very fast and light on his feet, he is not as catlike or rather, taking size into consideration, not as pantherlike as is Johnson. Johnson's spring, both forward aggressively or backward when retreating and getting away from a blow, has probably never been surpassed.

"As to pluck and the ability to stand punishment, both men are past masters, although in this respect Jeffries has had the opportunity to prove himself to the good more times.

SUMMARY OF MEASUREMENTS

"To summarise—in physical measurements, the men are about as even as any one would wish to see. Jeffries has the call on height, weight and reach. Johnson has it in youth, agility and lack of nervous temperament. Of the two Johnson is decidedly the lesser muscle bound.

"From past records of the two men, it would seem that Jeffries can deliver the harder blow, and if he is to win at all he must get his punch in early in the game or his younger and more lithe adversary will wear him down. But he will have to be most aggressively quick to get to Johnson, as the latter's footwork and backward spring cannot be beaten.

"Finally, and perhaps most important, we know Johnson's heart. That of Jeffries we know nothing about.

"Furthermore, Johnson will be able to stand head blows the better.

"Johnson never diets; he eats anything that appeals to him up to the eve of the fight, and Jeffries is not much more careful. It is doubtful whether this is a good plan, as it has been proved in the case of tests with university crews that dieting has much to do with condition and lasting power.

"Both are drinking men. Johnson never drinks whiskey, but trains on champagne and beer. Much will depend upon the necessary curtailment of alcohol in each."

HOCKEY

Manager Metheral of the Strathconas announced late last night that he had signed Ben Dusty and Herb. McMillan, for this season's team. This will be McMillan's fifth consecutive yera with the Straths, he having been on the line-up when the club entered the league as the Suicides. That year not one goal was scored by the team during the playing of the scheduled games. This will be Dusty's third season with the Straths, and it is characteristic of that player to come out at once and say with which club he will lend his services.

The executive of the league made a wise move when at the meeting last night, a rule was made by which any player who signs with two teams will be barred from playing with either team.

Lakefield was not represented, but a worthy successor has been found in Keene. Watch this team.

With a match every night at Mutual Street this winter and then a few double headers necessary to work them all in, the crying need of Toronto for something more than a village rink becomes more emphatic than ever. Toronto's the best hockey town on the map if only given a fair chance, and there's money in it for the man who has the money and the nerve to furnish said chance.—Toronto Telegram.

Mr. Parkin and Mr. Squires were in Peterborough on Saturday and arranged the junior O.H.A. schedule with Mr. R. Glover, of the Quaker City. Peterborough witnesses the first game between the locals and Peterborough Collegiates on Jan. 10th, while Lindsay lines up again on the 14th inst. with the Peterborough juniors on local ice. It is hard to state which of the Peterborough teams appear to be the strongest, but the locals picture the Collegiates as their most dangerous opponents.

All those who wish to line up for the team are asked to have their names given to Mr. R. Butler as soon as possible so they can be given the privilege of being on the ice with the others as soon as the rink is flooded.—Lindsay Post.

SPORTING NOTES

The Christmas Day race in Hamilton, which has been an annual affair for the past ten years, will not take place this year.

Bonuses have been guaranteed the players of the Ottawa hockey team if they succeed in holding the Stanley Cup.

Cobourg has asked the O.H.A. for permission to play all their intermediate games at Port Hope rink, as reasonable terms cannot be received from the management of the home rink.

GOOD HORSES FOR THE ICE RACES

The Lindsay Post says;—Tom Hodgins, of Orillia, was in Lindsay last week. Mr Hodgins will stable his horses hereabouts, reports say, and will have a couple of good racers for the winter meets. Joe Patchen II. will be entered in the "35" stake race at Ottawa. The stallion is going to do something this winter the wise ones say, and will make a big bid for the $1,000 at Ottawa. He is sired by Joe Patchen, 2.02 3-4, dam Bessie Bombill, 2.05 1-4. Mr. Hodgins has owned several good horses, among the number being Walter G., of considerable fame in these parts.

CONAN DOYLE AS A REFEREE

Editor Review,—I noticed in the papers that there has been talk of Sir Conan Doyle being asked to referee the great Jeffries-Johnson fight. Will you kindly tell us why Doyle should act as referee. What does he know about prize-fighting?

ENQUIRER.

Note—Conan Doyle is well known, not only as the creator of Sherlock and as a story teller, but as an amateur boxer. Probably the best fight story ever written is Doyle's "Croxley Master." Doyle in his time, has travelled pretty nearly all over the world. It is told that on one of his whaling trips to the North Sea, Doyle taught the sailors to box, and the lessons he then imparted started the sport spreading to the whole of the North Sea fleet. Doyle has always been a great lover of sport, and his sporting stories are among his most interesting writings. It a doubtful, however, whether he would agree to referee a prize fight such as the Jeffries-Johnson bout, though there would not be any doubt about his competency.—Sporting Editor.

George Martin, who was convicted of perjury at the opening of the December sessions, came up before Judge Huycke this morning for sentence.

The judge allowed Martin to go on suspended sentence.

The supper will be served at the fire hall at 6.30 with the Christmas tree festivities beginning at 4 o'clock. Provision for about 100 guests will be made, this last of course, including the wives and children of the firemen.

Robin at Lindsay

A little robin red breast has been hovering about the residence and grounds of Mr. Paul O'Neill, King-st., during the past week or so. It does not seem to fear the cold weather, but merrily flutters around the trees and its happy chirp, chirp, chirp can be heard at all times of the day. Surely this cannot be a harbinger of next summer!—Lindsay Warder.

"NOT GUILTY" WAS VERDICT IN CHARGE AGAINST P. J. CARROLL

Acquitted of Perjury After Trial That Lasted Till 11 O'Clock Last Night — Many Witnesses and Interesting Testimony—Judge Referred to Excellent Character of Accused.

The last of the five charges of perjury at the sessions of the County Court was disposed of last night when the jury on the case in which P. J. Carroll was charged with perjury was dismissed. The case opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and was concluded last night at 10 minutes to 11, when the jury after forty minutes' deliberation, brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

After the foreman, William J. Condon, had announced the finding of the jury, His Honor said to the defendant in the case;—"The jury have found you not guilty. I have pleasure in discharging you. You are free to go."

The first witness called for the defence took the box at the resumption of the trial yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was E. G. Patterson, superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Company. He was in the Oriental in company with Messrs. McIlroy and Denham on the 19th of November. They went there to talk to Mr. Graham.

"Witness Johnston states that you disappeared from view," said Mr. O'Connell.

"That's a deliberate lie," said the witness with vehemence.

"Did you see anything wrong going on at the Oriental that night?"

"Nothing whatever."

To Mr. Wood:

"Do you say that anyone who swears opposite to you deliberately lies?"

"I have been told that Mr. Johnston stood across the road and saw us go in and out and followed our movements. If he swears we went beyond the office he swears to a deliberate lie. [illegible]

Mr. W. McIlroy said that he didn't go back of the office.

"If Mr. Johnston said you did, what do you say to that?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"It's a lie."

To Mr. Wood Mr. McIlroy said that the shifting of the position of Messrs. Patterson, Denham and himself might have temporarily caused them to disappear from the view of Mr. Johnston.

Mr. W. H. Denham said that with the permission of the court he wished to make an explanation as to why he went into the Oriental on the night in question. Messrs. McIlroy, Patterson and himself are the house committee of the Peterborough Club, and on the night of November 19th had been taking an inventory of the furniture at the club. This kept them busy till 11 o'clock. They then played a 100 point game of billiards, and this kept them an hour later. When going home past the Oriental witness said:

"Let's go in and jolly George!"

The three went in, but only stayed a short time talking to Mr. Graham.

Mr. O'Connell—"If Johnston said you went back and disappeared from view what would you say?"

Mr. Denham—"I would say it was an unqualified lie."

Again Mr. Denham as at the Graham trial, said he wouldn't believe Newhall on oath.

To Ernest Lawrence, the next witness, Mr. O'Connell said in commencing his examination;—"Well, Mr. Lawrence, you and I have met before." The witness stated he didn't have a drink on the 19th. He didn't ask for a drink.

W. A. Howard, Chief of the Peterborough Fire Department, said he was at the Oriental on the night of November 19th. He was there on two occasions—at 11.45 and 12.15, the last time coming from the Times office. The chief bought some cigars and sat in a chair near one of the big windows and smoked a couple. He didn't have any drinks after supper that night. The Chief denied that he was in the passageway for twenty-five minutes getting drinks.

The Chief said that Mr. Johnston had opposed his appointment as Fire Chief, and was, he believed, unfriendly to him. The witness said Newhall's reputation for veracity was not very good.

Mr. G. N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental, said that the accused had been employed by him for a number of years as a bartender. His reputation as to veracity was of the very best.

The outside transom of the bar door was closed on the night of November 19th. He closed it himself and always did so every night in the cool weather. Mr. Graham supplied some drinks to his family. Paddy Carroll mixed them. The latter was in the bar, and so was the witness. When the glasses are empty at night, after having been used, the bell boys bring them down from the guests' rooms after they are through with them. The witness got change in the bar that night two or three times.

Mr. Wood asked the witness if they didn't collect the glasses at 11 o'clock.

"If I took a drink up to your room and asked you to throw that into you as quick as you could, you'd think I had a lot of nerve, wouldn't you," said the witness.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth, manager of the Peterborough Light & Power Co., which supplies electric light to the Oriental contradicted P.C. Meharry, who said the light in the bar got dim while the light in the passage remained on as usual. Mr. Larmonth said that if the light in the bar got dim all the lights would.

WOULDN'T BELIEVE POLICEMEN.

License Inspector Joseph Stewart said as far as he knew Carroll had a good reputation.

His opinion of Newhall's veracity was not very high, and he wouldn't believe him on oath.

This opinion commenced to form, the witness said, when P. C. Meharry came to him in 1907 and said Newhall had asked him (Meharry) to swear to a lot of evidence he had written down concerning the pickpockets arrested, and Meharry told Mr. Stewart he didn't know whether a quarter of it was right.

Mr. Wood objected to this evidence, on the ground that it was personal experience, rather than general reputation, and the objection was sustained.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, editor of the Review, said he wouldn't believe P.C. Meharry on oath.

Richard Sheehy wouldn't believe P. C. Newhall on oath. He formed his opinion principally from his own experience, but he had heard responsible citizens say so also.

Victor Fowler saw Ernie Lawrence at the hotel on November 19th. He didn't have a drink with Lawrence or anybody else.

C. G. Graham, manager of the Oriental, identified the kind of tap used in the bar.

Frank Conroy said he made observations concerning the bar of the Oriental. He said T. W. McDonough stood behind the frosted glass window at the rear of the bar. There was quite a bright light in the bar, but outside of a mere shadow he couldn't distinguish the features.

Fred O'Connor corroborated the evidence of the last witness. Thos. McDonough and James Bogue testified along the same lines. He would not believe P.C. Newhall on oath. To Mr. O'Connell he said the accused had an excellent reputation in the community, and would take either his word or his oath. He didn't know much about Mr. Johnson's reputation for veracity.

Mr. A. Haskill wouldn't believe P.C. Newhall on oath.

Ernest Bartlett wouldn't believe P. C. Meharry on oath.

James Kennedy wouldn't believe P. C. Meharry on oath. He had his opinion ever since Meharry's evidence at the election trial, when he swore in the box opposite to what he had told the witness.

SPOKE WELL OF CARROLL.

Mr. Thomas Barrie said he had dealt with the defendant for years and believed Carroll to be perfectly truthful. He had dealt with him for years, and had had many opportunities to see whether or not he was trustworthy.

Mr. Adam Hall gave a high opinion of the accused's veracity.

James Lynch, druggist, also spoke well of Carroll's reputation for veracity.

James Storey testified to Carroll's good character.

Mr. James Blackwell, architect, produced plans he had prepared of the Oriental bar, and made statements bearing on the testimony of the policemen, regarding the possibilities of them seeing what was going on in the bar under conditions that existed. A box, similar in size to the one used on the night of the 19th, by the officers to stand on, as they alleged, was also produced in court.

DEFENDANT TESTIFIES.

The defendant, P. J. Carroll, was called. He said there were no pumps in the bar. He had served no drinks to the bell-boy on the night of the 19th, but had given him some ice-water once. He sometimes stayed in the bar for an hour and a half or two hours, cleaning up.

Mr. Wood cross-examined the prisoner at greater length than he did any other witness, but failed to shake his testimony in any detail.

The jury then adjourned to the Oriental bar, and the two officers, P.C. Newhall and P.C. Meharry, gave a demonstration of climbing the box produced in court and of looking into the transom.

COUNSEL'S ADDRESS.

Mr. O'Connell commenced his address to the jury at 8.10. He read over the charge, the indictment as has been before stated, alleging that the prisoner had sworn falsely at the police court case when he stated under oath that he had not handed a bell-boy drinks during illegal hours on the night of Friday, the 19th of November. Mr. O'Connell referred to the fact that the prisoner charged had been employed at the Oriental for nineteen years, and had an excellent character and unblemished record in the community.

The counsel for the defence characterized the evidence of the Crown as the weaving together of truth and fiction. The policemen had sworn they looked over the blind and had seen the deceased handing out drinks with the bar room lighted up. It was absurd to presume that an illicit traffic would be carried on under such conditions. And when the policemen could see over the blind, why would they employ a big, cumbersome box and stand there in the dead silence of the night, when the scraping of the feet on the box and two big men mounting it would necessarily have made a noise that would have attracted the bartender inside the door. And Johnson, the other witness, swore he stood in a doorway across the road—sixty-six feet away—and saw what was going on in the bar, and that which could be seen, if Johnston could see it, by people passing by.

Mr. O'Connell said in the face of the manifest contradictions by the two policemen, even if nothing had been said about their characters, their evidence was unworthy of belief. Evidence had been given by prominent citizens that Newhall's and Meharry's characters with regard to veracity, were bad.

Mr. Wood asked the jury to lay aside every feeling that could tell against the prisoner or for him and come down to the cold facts. On these alone they were asked to find whether the prisoner was guilty or not guilty. Mr. Johnston was elected year after year for five years to the City Council of Peterborough and did not this prove that he was worthy of confidence. He only wanted to see if Chief Howard was at the hotel and was it at all probable that he should maliciously give testimony against the prisoner, a young man against whom he had nothing.

JUDGE'S CHARGE.

It was the duty of the jurors as judges in the case to dissociate from their minds anything, but the evidence in the case, said his Honor. The jurors should obliterate all sympathies from their minds either for or against the prisoner or against the witnesses for the prosecution over whom a cloud had been apparently cast by some of the witnesses for the defence.

The sole question was was the oath that Patrick Carroll took true or false. It was not necessary that the jury find absolutely but according to the best of their ability after considering the evidence.

The main witness brought by the Crown was Johnston, an ex-alderman, of the city. He says he saw drinks put on a tray and passed out by Carroll to a bellboy. A strange story was told by Johnston when he described getting up out of his bed at 12 o'clock at night and went down to the police officer to entrap Fire Chief Howard. And when he went over to the police station, after he had been watching the Oriental, to telephone and see if Chief Howard was at the fire hall yet. This to use the judge's own words was "a cheap, shabby trick."

But because Johnston had a very apparent grievance against Chief Howard it was no sign that he had any animosity against Carroll. His Honor referred for some length of time to the evidence of Johnston. This evidence had been corroborated by the police as the learned Crown Attorney said. The question was had that evidence been sufficiently corroborated. His Honor spoke on the excellent character borne by the accused and he was entitled to any benefit that might be derived from that good character. It should be a strong consideration if the jury had doubt as to the prisoner's guilt to consider of a man would sell his soul over such a comparatively small matter as a liquor trial.

There would seem to be no beer pumps in the bar according to the evidence. These matters should all be considered. Graham himself says he did get drinks that night for his family.

The question was, however, did Patrick Carroll give drinks to a bellboy or did he not. The character evidence against the policemen was most unfortunate and was to be deplored.

"Then there is character evidence for the accused of which I have spoken. Unless you are reasonably certain this man is guilty then say he is not guilty and justly so, when he is a man of unimpeached honor and integrity."

The jury retired at 10 minutes after ten and in 40 minutes brought in their verdict, the foreman, William J. Condon replying "not guilty" to the clerk of the court's question.

YOUTH WAS FOUND SHOT

Hamiltonian Believed to Have Attempted Suicide--Case is a Peculiar One.

Hamilton, Dec. 22.—Joseph Mitchell, 232 North Victoria avenue, 20 years of age, was found yesterday evening leaning up against a fence at Delaware and Sherman avenues, with two bullet wounds, one in the temple and the other in the forehead. He was in a semi-conscious condition, and Constable Goodman rushed him off to the hospital. He will likely die.

In the afternoon the police had obtained a search warrant and gone to the home of his widowed mother. In a shed in the rear of the house they discovered enough stuff to fill up the patrol wagon twice. Amongst the stuff were boots and shirts stolen from store doorways. There were also many bicycles and one motor cycle, valued at $150. All the bicycles were cut up into small pieces. The police claim that the shirts, boots and motor cycle were stolen.

In addition there were all manner of goods, including plumbers' and carpenters' tools, paint, etc., most of which they suspect were stolen. They value it at $500.

Mitchell was released on bail after the search was made. When found by the constable he admitted that he had shot himself in order to avoid disgrace. The revolver was found on him. It was a 32-calibre weapon.

He was placed under the X-ray at midnight and a search made for the bullets.

Relatives who were at the hospital last night scouted the idea of attempted suicide and maintained that he had been shot.

It is a very peculiar case. Mitchell belongs to a wealthy family, and in less than a year, when he came of age, he would have come into possession of $10,000 left him by his father. Kleptomania seems to be what led him to his downfall. It is said that he would sell the clothes that were given him by his parents and buy cheaper clothing in order to get money to put in the bank.

BELGIANS ARE INDIGNANT

New York, Dec. 22.—Criticism in Great Britain and America of the Belgium administration of the Congo State has elicited a manifesto of protest signed by August Beernaert, Belgian Minister of State; the directors of the Belgian Royal Observatory, Prof. Lecointe; his grace, Cardinal-Archbishop of Mechlin, and many other distinguished Belgian educators, jurists and public men. Copies of this document have been received in New York. The signers express their "righteous indignation" at the "continued unfair criticism and attacks upon our country concerning its African possessions."

NEW RADIAL LINE IS TALKED ABOUT

London, Dec. 22.—The Grand Valley Railway and the Cataract Power Co. are said to be preparing to purchase the Southwestern Traction Co. and the London Electric Co. The plan also includes the extension of the radial railway line now connecting Brantford and Hamilton through to Woodstock and Ingersoll to this city, thence connecting with a steamship service to Port Stanley; and also to transmit Niagara power for general consumption along the route.

Bomb Kills Two.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 22.—A bomb exploded last night in a terrorist lodging-house. Two persons were killed, the police captured one man who was fleeing from the building.

Three Men Suffocated.

New York, Dec. 22.—Three men were suffocated last night in a fire which swept through the cabinet factory of Edward B. Jordan & Co., in Brooklyn; loss $125,000.

ASQUITH SAYS BRITAIN COMPARES WELL WITH THE OTHER COUNTRIES

In Speech at Liverpool He Declares That Exportation of Capital From United Kingdom is a Good Sign—Says Union Levies Are Not Legal

London, Dec. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Premier Asquith spoke four times and Lloyd-George five times yesterday. The other Cabinet Ministers are also on the stump, whilst the ex-Ministers and lesser stars orated everywhere.

The Premier, at Liverpool, made a strong pronouncement on the efficiency of the navy, and said that Lord Cawdor's picture of Belfast as a German naval base showed the unwisdom of letting loose a band of peers and proconsuls, who had been making the political welkin ring. Respecting fiscal matters, he claimed that Britain had shorter hours for labor, higher wages and lower prices for the real necessities, and on the whole, less burden of unemployment than any protectionist country. The exportation of capital was one of the surest indications of the prosperity and productiveness of British industry.

Upon the constitutional issue Asquith was sarcastic. Really, he said, they had better close the House of Commons altogether (laughter). What need was there for it, when by the mercy of providence (laughter), at the other end of the palace at Westminster, free from the dangers and temptations of popular reflection (laughter), they were interpreting with disinterested detachment the true mind and permanent temper of the people (great laughter and cheers). The Premier declared the sky was full of good omens.

He asked that the coming fight should be clean. He regretted they had not got the clear issue, fearing that a combination and confusion of issues might land the country in trouble which would be dangerous to the Empire.

Walter Long, in Wiltshire, said tariff reform would produce £18,000,000 annually and give Ireland home rule, and we should require to conquer it within twenty years.

Runciman, at Bradford, said that if the foreign fleet went to Belfast otherwise than on a visit of courtesy, they would be as prizes, flying the British flag.

The whole aspect of an electoral fight may be changed by a judgment quietly delivered yesterday by the law lords. Lord Shaw, ex-Radical Minister, being at their head.

The judgment declares that trades unions cannot legally make compulsory levies on their members for Parliamentary representation purposes. Nearly two million members of trades unions have hitherto been compelled by their unions to contribute to the salaries of 47 members of Parliament, and, out of similar compulsory levies, some 80 Labor candidates are now standing for Parliament. Many members of trade unions habitually vote for a Unionist and Liberal and against Labor candidates at elections, and have only paid their shillings because, if they refused, they would have been driven out of the union.

The executive of the Labor party meets immediately to prepare a bill legalizing what the law declares illegal and will press Mr. Asquith to accept it as a Government measure, and fight the election on that issue.

One Peer Opposes Lords.

London, Dec. 22.—Lord St. Aldwyn, in a letter which was published yesterday morning, says he abstained from voting on Lord Lansdowne's resolution in the House of Lords on the budget because he did not wish to oppose his own side, but he saw nothing in the budget justifying its rejection by the House of Lords, nor anything in its proposals which could properly be described as socialistic or revolutionary.

At the same time, he says, he does not approve the budget, expressing the opinion that small duties on imports would be sounder finance.

Sir Robert Perks, in a letter, denounced the Free Church council and its claims to speak for the Protestant dissenters of the Kingdom. He pointed out that the Wesleyan Methodists are standing aloof distrustful.

He killed his wife, from whom he was separated, with an axe, after accusing her of stealing $70. He then mutilated himself.

SHOULD TAX FOOD STUFFS

Montreal, Dec. 22.—F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., was asked whether he thought the United Kingdom would be justified in placing a duty on all foreign wheat and flour, and whether, should this be done, her overseas dominions could be depended upon in the near future to meet her full requirements.

Mr. Thompson replied that he was convinced that Great Britain would be fully justified in taking such action.

OPERATOR MURDERED

Crime at Redwater Station on the T. & N. O. — Dead Man Came From Near Toronto.

North Bay, Dec. 22.—Redwater, a flag station on the T. & N. O. Railway, 56 miles north of North Bay, was the scene of a brutal murder last night, the victim being the night telegraph operator, W. J. Dyson, aged 22, of Toronto.

The tragedy occurred about six o'clock, when a man entered the station and became boisterous. Dyson attempted to eject the intruder, and a fight ensued, when another man rushed in and struck young Dyson with a club, crushing his skull. He lived only a short time.

The murder was witnessed by a man who happened to be in the Station at the time, but he did not recognized Dyson's assailants, who quickly made their escape.

Redwater consists of a station and section houses only, with lumber camps nearby. Provincial constables from Latchford are at the scene hunting for the fugitives, who can hardly escape, as the country is covered with bush and the railroad is the only outlet, unless they were well provisioned and acquainted with the district.

DR. COOK IS DISCREDITED BY COPENHAGEN SCIENTISTS

Brooklyn Doctor is Missing—His Friends Have all Repudiated Him, and University of Copenhagen is Talking of Withdrawing the Degree.

Copenhagen, Dec. 22.—The report of the special committee of scientists which the University of Copenhagen appointed to scrutinize Dr. Frederick A. Cook's claims that he had discovered the North Pole, was submitted to the consistory of the university yesterday, endorsed by that body and given to the public.

The report shatters completely the Brooklyn explorer's title to such discovery and fills the officials and people of Denmark with chagrin at the figure Denmark is made to assume in the eyes of the scientific world. Many still cling to the belief that Cook acted in good faith, but harbored a delusion.

After obtaining all available information the committee finds as follows:

First, the report of the expedition sent to the university by Dr. Cook is the same as that printed in The New York Herald during the months of September and October last.

Second, the copy of Cook's notebooks does not contain any original astronomical observations whatsoever, but only results.

Third, the documents presented are inexcusably lacking in information which would prove that the "astronomical observations" therein referred to, were really made; and also contain no details regarding the practical work of the expedition, and the sledge journey which would enable the committee to determine their reliability.

The committee, therefore, is of the opinion that the material transmitted for examination contains no proof that Dr. Cook reached the pole.

The report is signed by all six members of the committee, viz., Prof. Elis Stromgren, director of the astronomical observatory; Dr. O. R. Pochule, astronomer, attached to the observatory; Gustav Holm, explorer; Prof. A. B. Yensen, president of the school of navigation; Dr. Royder, director of the meteorological office, and Dr. F. A. Engstrom, director of the Lund Observatory.

Prof. Stromgren last night characterized Cook's treatment of the university as "shameless."

Explorers and scientists almost unanimously have lost faith in Cook's honesty, while one of his warmest supporters, Knud Rasmussen, helped to frame the report. The evening papers attack Cook and severely reproach him for hiding, which they regard as a sign of a guilty conscience.

The rector of the university, Dr. Salomonsen, when questioned as to the possibility of the university cancelling the degree which it conferred on Dr. Cook, said that no decision had been reached, but he thought the degree could be withdrawn in the same way the Government could deprive a person of an order obtained under false pretences.

The documents handed the commission of the University of Copenhagen for examination were: 1st., a typewritten report, prepared by Cook's secretary, Walter Lonsdale, and covering 61 pages of foolscap, and 2nd, a typewritten copy made by Lonsdale from Cook's notebooks. This occupies 16 pages of foolscap and includes a description of the expedition during the period from March 18, 1908, to June 18, 1908, during which, according to the statement, Cook journeyed from Svartevog to the North Pole and returned to a point on the polar ice not specifically indicated, but west of the Axel Heiberg land.

The papers were not accompanied by a private letter from Cook, but Secretary Lonsdale stated that the origin notes and books had been sent to Europe by another route as a precautionary measure and would be delivered to the university in a few days.

In a letter to Prof. Torp presented by Lonsdale, Cook states that not only were his instruments left at Etah, but most of his astronomical observations were also left at that northern point, and he adds that without these it seems unwise and impossible to pass a final judgment upon his expedition.

"Gold Brick," Says Peary.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Commander Peary yesterday said: "Three months ago from the Labrador coast, I sounded an explicit and deliberately worded warning to the world, based upon complete and accurate information in regard to Dr. Cook's claims. In doing so, I accepted the responsibility devolving upon me and fulfilled my duty to myself and to the world."

Bradley Disgusted.

New York, Dec. 22.—"He has fooled us all, from the King of Denmark down," was the exclamation of J. R. Bradley of New York, Dr. Cook's backer in his Arctic trip. "And he fooled me with the rest."

"In common with the rest of the world, I was delighted at the first news from Dr. Cook that he had discovered the pole. His actions, however, and his failure to make more than the meager statements regarding his trip following his return to civilisation took some of the smack off the supposed triumph.

"Cook's flight, for that's what it seemed to me to amount to, killed all my interest in him and his affairs. Before that I never had had reason to doubt Cook, and his whole course in this matter seems inexplicable to me."

Cook's counsel, H. W. Wack of New York says: "If the public knew the truth concerning Dr. Cook's mental and physical condition as it is known by his close friends, they would take a more charitable view of his present unfortunate situation."

ANOTHER ARREST IN SILVER CASES

Toronto, Dec. 22.—J. Parr, alias J. Connolly, a restaurant-keeper in Cobalt, was arrested there last night, at the request of the Toronto police, making the twelfth arrest in connection with the ore thefts at the mines. He, with G. Neilson, alias Barber, arrested at Cobalt Sunday night, will be brought to the city to-morrow by Detectives Murray and Guthrie, who left for the mining town last night.

Parr, like the others, is charged with illegal selling of ore, and is known to have received more than $9,000 from the Wilkinson company during the past year. Neilson is also known to have received over $8,000 during the same period.

Still more arrests are expected.

Toronto, Dec. 22.—A remarkable series of political assassinations of personages high in office is reported today from Italy and in separated points throughout the world.

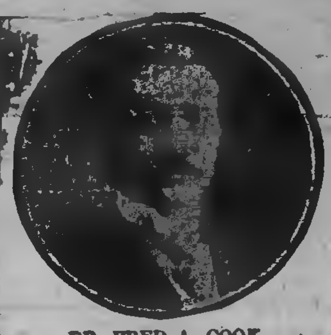
His Christmas Won't Be Merry



DR. FRED A. COOK.

POOR FOOD FOR HER HUSBAND

New Albany, Ind., Dec. 22.—That Mrs. Pearl Armstrong systematically administered doses of poison to her husband, George Armstrong, for four days, and finally brought about his death, was the charge formulated yesterday by County Prosecutor Bulleit against her. She is in jail.

Florence Myrtle Harris, 16 years of age, who lived with the Armstrongs, told the prosecutor that Mrs. Armstrong said she "could have a better time if her husband was dead. He was ill and she gave him, last Thursday afternoon, the girl said, a dose of rat poison, pretending that it was medicine. On Sunday afternoon Mrs. Armstrong, protecting her hands with gloves filled several capsules with carbolic acid and Armstrong took them.

"I begged Mrs. Armstrong not to give her husband more poison, but she answered that she had started to end his life and she might as well finish it," the girl stated, "and on Sunday night she gave him strychnine." The woman says her husband suicided.

MUTINY OF SOME BRITISH SAILORS

Plymouth, Eng., Dec. 22.—A full-fledged mutiny, which has occurred on the British cruiser Leviathan, Admiral Farquhar's flagship, is the sensation of all England to-day.

The Leviathan, one of the finest ships in His Majesty's navy, arrived here yesterday from Gibraltar, and reports that during the cruise 65 of the sailors mutinied.

The mutineers threatened their officers. Loyal members of the crew were summoned to arms and cowed the rebels, who were placed in irons.

A summary court-martial was held, and the ringleaders were dishonorably dismissed and sentenced to two years at hard labor.

Local Option Winks At Drink

In a license town, drinking is done under rigid laws and in the eyes of the public. Every condition operates to make men restrain themselves. The beverages sold are of honest quality, and pure. In a local option town, men drink adulterated stuff of the worst quality, and drink far more because public opinion is blinded by the law.

Practically, local option banishes the decent bar and tolerates the "blind pig." It winks at the abuse of alcohol and fosters its abuse.

Under local option, the man who profits is the keeper of the "blind pig," who sells adulterated stuff by stealth and contributes naught to the local revenues.

Under license, the community benefits as a whole, for the liquor traffic is regulated, is taxed, and is conducted under the watch of the whole population, with all the restrictions that implies. Local option takes the traffic from the grip of the law and delivers it over to private greed.

A REVISION OF TARIFF

The protectionists of the United States demand a revision of the tariff. Like all good things, it has got into bad hands, and is being overdone. It is becoming an instrument of torture. So is it in Canada. The millions being spent in bounties to enrich steel magnates calls for a prompt reform. What excuse can Sir Wilfrid give that there is to be no revision? While the Globe pretends to say "Free Trade!" the Liberals at Ottawa are practising protection in its most odious and malignant form. Of course it is good for the railway-builder and the western railway-builder has lowered Ontario farms by twenty per cent., and thus is the "poor farmer" hit both before and behind.

THE DUNDEE MANUFACTURERS

A Dundee jute manufacturer has just given $50,000.00 to the Liberal committee to help in the campaign for Free Trade. So long as wages are low and food at its cheapest and ordinary labour at its poorest, no manufacturer wants protection. He does not need it. He can undersell any protected manufacturer, because protection means higher wages for the wage-earner, and that is chiefly what it does mean. If wages were lowered in Canada to the British level there would be no excuse for protection. Hence the rich British manufacturers know that protection would injure them so long as labour is cheap. This is where the British workingman learns to read with his eyes shut.

CREEPING INTO BUSINESS

There can be no question that Peterborough has a reputation abroad which to a young man and his prospects in life would be fatal. Everywhere it is now a common jest and is passing from jest to earnest that Peterborough is, politically and morally, the "rottenest burg" in Canada. And this is true. But we are informed that the disposition to prevaricate and evade is creeping into business. A very prominent business man who comes into touch with all classes of the community informs us that the public generally is becoming infected or at least affected by the disease.

It is not so much that it threatens the older men. They have had a different atmosphere to grow up in and cannot be seriously led astray. But it is the young men who are most seriously affected by it. It is they who will find it not only difficult to rise superior to their surroundings but difficult to get employment in responsible positions when it becomes known that they have from what is, without joking, regarded as a plague-spot. It is a failure to realize the enormity of the offence and the far-reaching character of the impression that has put Peterborough just where she is and even the most sceptical will admit that Peterborough has nothing to spare in the way of a reputation.

It may be said to have begun some years ago. In the past both sides of politics have been guilty of lapses, lapses that were regarded as pardonable because well-understood. Then like a flash came the terrible Gamey-Stratton scandal which upset a rotten government and spread the fumes over all the land. The decaying matter has infected the province. The herculean efforts of our clergy (with occasional lapses), of our Y. M. C. A. and (T. A. S., of our young women's societies, the Sunday schools, missionary societies (domestic and foreign), prayer meetings, special meetings, etc., etc., have resulted in Peterborough in what? It may be true that the great body of the solid people of the city is sound. But it does not appear so and what appears is what impresses, influences, sways and governs the rising generation. That the tendency to lie is creeping into business relations between the community and business men, the latter assert, and few will deny.

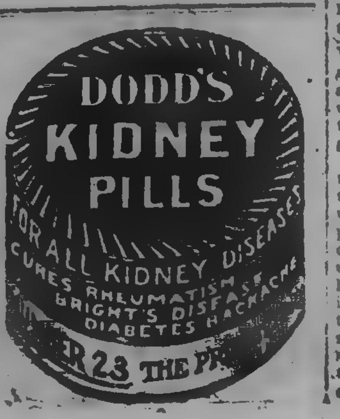
There is a lack of common manliness. That sort of feeling which rises up in a man and causes him to say "I'm not mean enough to lie. I'm no coward. I am not a thief. I cherish an honourable reputation. I can be relied upon," is becoming a thing of the past in Peterborough.

The reason is that the passion for politics, the passion for money, the passion for unfair gain are overmastering the passion for a square deal. Who can wonder that we are sneered at as a "weak and miserable pack," another Murton, where everybody lied until even the dogs wouldn't believe their masters and left them in disgust.

Until we learn to lay all other things aside and rescue fact and truth from whatever danger it be in we can hope for no better. If politics, party, etc., can prejudice us so that our manhood becomes petrified and utterly inactive it is time that political passion be thrust aside before it becomes our utter ruin. It is ten times worse than whiskey. We are rampant against a destroyer of homes when we should pause to remember that we are nursing a more deadly enemy still, that has taken almost entire possession of the moving forces of the community.

When the temperance campaign is over let us turn our attention to this reform. Only by the strongest efforts can we bring it about. Have we got enough of our fathers' blood in us to be true to their ideals? It remains to be seen.

The time is coming when the rude jest heard recently at the corner of a street will be literally true. "I'll get a man to swear he wouldn't believe ye on oath," said one. "Ye would, would ye?" Who'd ye get that the jury could believe?" laughed the others, as he spat a brown patch in the snow and chuckled with glee.



EDITORIAL NOTES

It is said that some writers excel in reading fiction others in writing; others still in voicing it. 'Nuff said.

Imported borrowed money, as Sir Edward Clouston, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, says, is the chief cause of the swelling of bank deposits. It is a bad sign.

There was much drunkenness in the city on Saturday night. Many men from the country loaded up at the various bars before returning to the bosoms of their delighted families.

There is a vanity in some people sometimes that leads them to do some pretty wild things. Peterborough, also, is not without its Dr. Cook. All "poles" are not spelt with an "e."

Hurrah! for Whitney! He still adheres to his plan of protecting Canadian industries. A Swedish firm was the lowest tenderer recently for hydro-electric work but as on a former occasion, Sir James gave it to a Canadian firm.

Scene—The police court.

Magistrate—"You called this man a liar, did you?"

Prisoner—"No, sir. I said he came from Peterborough."

Magistrate—"Same thing. Fifty cents and costs."

"There is a provision in the estimates of $3,000,000 to assist in the maintenance of the navy, but that is being proposed by the government and I am not in favor of contributing any sum of money to the imperial defences."

"The Conservatives of the west are giving their national party leaders no end of distress by forcing to the front the fact that if Canada does not render the empire whole-hearted naval aid, it will be because of the antipathy of the Quebec majority. One would think that at least Mr. Roblin, the Premier of Manitoba, with his large French-Canadian minority, would have sympathized with those who have to tackle a profound political difficulty. We find him, however, railing with the Cape Premier at the proposed tin-pot Canadian navy, which, instead of supporting the Imperial fleet, will need to be defended by it. He seems to regard the opposition of those whose sentiments are anti-imperial as out of court, and would have Canada do her natural duty and emancipate herself from her present condition of dependency, whatever Mr. Monk and his following may say. We agree in the main with Mr. Roblin as to what Canada ought to do, and we were inclined to the belief that a Canadian navy, besides being the most costly way of aiding the empire, would prove rather a weakness than a strength. . . . ."

School closes for the Christmas holidays on Wednesday at noon.

The very sudden death of Mary Louise Cameron took place on Saturday evening, Dec. 18th. Death was due to hemmorhage, and before medical assistance arrived the unfortunate girl passed away to the Great Beyond. Deceased was 17 years of age and with her brother and sister has resided at the home of Mr. A. A. Fife in Asphodel, her mother and father having passed away several years ago. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock p.m. at the home of Mr. A. A. Fife and the remains were interred in the Cameron cemetery, Otonabee. The sorrowing brother and sister have the sympathy of a host of friends.

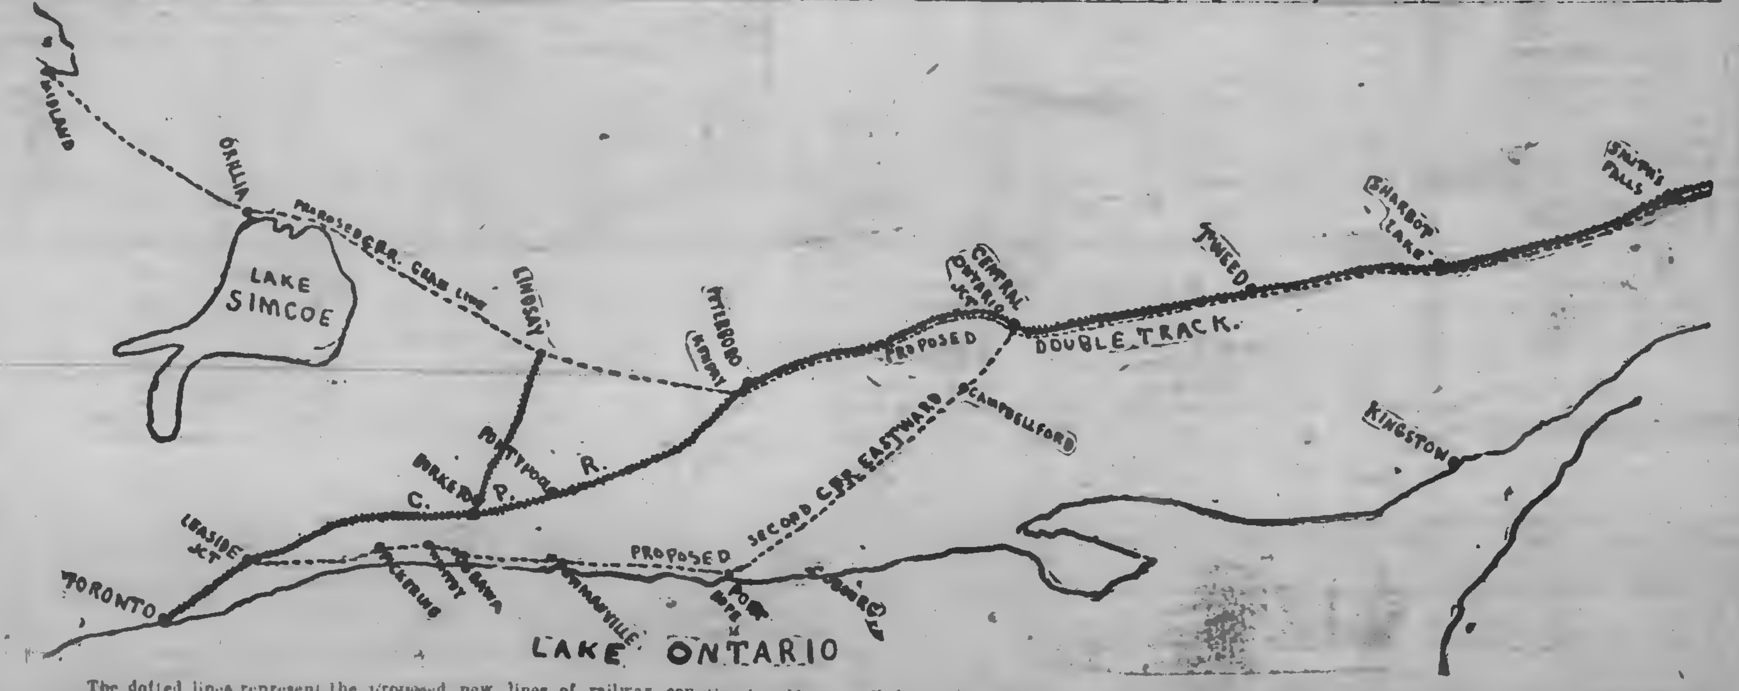
CARTER MEDICINE CO., NEW YORK.

Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.



The dotted lines represent the proposed new lines of railway constituting the so-called new grain route, Victoria Harbor to Kendry; the doubling of the road from Kendry to Smith's Falls; and a second line from Toronto eastward (Campbellford, Lake Ontario and Western) touching the Lake Ontario towns as far as far as Port Hope.

Mr. Fowke, M.P., for South Ontario, in asking the railway committee of the House recently last to renew the charter of the C.P.R's. road from Campbellford to Toronto, along the lake shore front, through Port Hope, Oshawa, Whitby, etc., said he had been assured by Sir Thos. Shaughnessy that the road would be built almost immediately.

From this statement of Mr. Fowke's and from other announcements that have been recently made the Canadian Pacific have three propositions for improving their Ontario and Quebec line, with the prospect of all being under way within a short time. These three propositions are;

First, for a new line called the grain route, which is to run from Victoria Harbor on the Georgian Bay through the towns of Orillia and Lindsay, striking the present main line at Kendry, six miles west of Peterborough. This would involve 105 miles of new high-class construction and would make the wheat route from Victoria Harbor via Peterborough to tidewater at Montreal. At Victoria Harbor and Midland a whole battery of elevators are to be erected for the storage of the western grain transported thither by boat from Port Arthur and Fort William. This grain would be moved by boat, most of it between harvest and the close of navigation, and would make a very busy lake traffic for the period. The grain would be stored at the elevators in Midland and more leisurely moved by train to Montreal during the winter. The final plans of this route are now being completed.

SECOND PROPOSAL.

The second proposal is to double track the present Toronto-Montreal line from Kendry (the junction of the grain route from Midland) to Smith's Falls, a distance of 180 miles, portions of which are already constructed in the shape of long sidings. This would give a double track for freight and grain from Kendry to Montreal, as the Smith's Falls-Montreal section is already completed. This proposed double track from Kendry to Smith's Falls will not necessarily be right along side of the present line, as it might diverge to the south and go to Campbelsford and to other points to get better grades, but always keeping more or less in touch with the existing line. The survey of the second track, which was made three years ago, leaves the old line at several points between Central Ontario Junction and Moberly, near Smith's Falls.

NEW LAKE SHORE LINE.

The third proposition is for a new lake shore line from Toronto through Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Hope, joining the main line at or about Central Ontario Junction, north of Campbellford, in the county of Hastings, a distance of 120 miles. This latter line would leave the present line on the south side a little east of Leaside Junction at one of the Don crossings, and there would have to be a double track from there both to the Union Station and to North Toronto, at the crossing at upper Yonge street, where a double track is already built to West Toronto Junction. This new line through the lake shore towns to the east would in all probability be the route of the main passenger express trains of the system from Toronto to Montreal.

The company is in need of all these lines in order to improve its facilities in Ontario. Toronto certainly has need of a much better route to the east by the Canadian Pacific than it has at present. No direct mention has as yet been made of an improved line from Smith's Falls, or some point, this side of Smith's Falls, to Ottawa, so that the distance from Toronto to the capital can be reduced from 260 miles with an independent passenger express between the two cities.

A Plea in Rhyme.

A New York prisoner, accused of drunkenness, who pleaded his case in rhyme before a magistrate, got a sentence of six months on "the island" for, as the judge remarked, his "jag" was bad enough, but his poetry was worse. Over in London a few days ago a "plain drunk" put forth this;

"I've been drinking wine that is drawn from the wood;
No bottle rubbish, but sparkling and good:
But it got in my head, so myfriends
all explain
That the wine has gone back to the wood once again."

The effusion and the education cost him only ten shillings.

THEATRICAL

The Time, The Place and the Girl

A musical show that has enjoyed quite a big measure of popularity, "The Time, the Place and the Girl," was given a good reception by a large audience at the Grand last night. As to motif, the piece is not strikingly brilliant, and the company isn't above the average in the way of singing and acting. George Ebner as Happy Johnny Hicks, is equipped with a pretty good line of stuff of the conventional slangy order, and it is probably, to use a time-worn expression, "more what he has to say than the way he says it" that wins him many laughs and much applause.

There are lots of catchy songs, some of them reminiscent, it is true, of other light numbers, but the music is bright and pleasing, generally speaking, although there are no soloists of great ability, and the vocal offerings, for that reason, are not passed over with the very best effect.

The audience seemed to like the play pretty well, however, as was shown by the applause, although some of the jokes were a little too broad to elicit a very general appreciation below the upper gallery.

COREAN PREMIER WAS STABBED

Special to the Review.

Seoul, Corean Dec. 22.—Premier Yi, the head of the Corean Cabinet, was stabbed and fatally wounded to-day by a Corean, Yie Cham Yong. Premier Yi was formerly Minister of Education in the Corean Cabinet. He became Prime Minister in May, 1907, when the reconstruction of the Cabinet followed a five hour audience Marquis Ito, the Japanese resident, had with the Emperor.

C. L. WARRINER CONFESSES STEAL

Special to the Review.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 22.—Charles L. Warriner, who confessed to stealing $640,000 from the Big Four while its Cincinnati treasurer pleaded guilty in court this morning to the indictment charging the theft of $5,000, and was sentenced to six years in the Ohio penitentiary.

WIFE CLAIMS SHE IS NOT SUPPORTED

Husband Left the House and Would Not Return—Case is Dismissed by Magistrate Dumble

Charged with not supporting his wife, Edward Kennedy faced Magistrate Dumble this morning and pleaded not guilty. After the evidence had been heard, Mr. Gordon, who acted for the complainant, asked for a committal, but his Worship decided against him, whereupon Mr. Gordon stated that he would have Kennedy rearrested on another charge.

Mr. W. S. Davidson acted in the interests of the defendant.

The complainant's evidence was to the effect that about December 2nd her husband left the house, and since that time had not supported her. He had threatened her life and used abusive language. She had been asked by him to leave the house and board out, but she had replied that before doing so she wished to secure legal advice. Her three children by her first husband lived with her and paid their board the greater part of the time.

A married daughter said that she and her husband lived with her mother. She helped in the household duties and paid for the board of both, $5.00 each week. The defendant had used abusive language to his wife, and witness had heard him threaten her.

The defendant claimed he was willing to live with his wife, at the home, if the children were not there, or, in case they remained, pay him for their board. He admitted having used profane language towards his wife.

PLAYED IN THE SAME COMPANIES

Messrs. George Ebner of "The Time the Place and the Girl" and Perry Alexander Renewed Acquaintance Last Night

Mr. George Ebner, who plays the leading part of Happy Johnny Hicks in "The Time, The Place and The Girl," pleasantly renewed acquaintances last night with Mr. Percy Alexander, who was for some time associated with Mr. Ebner in "A Trip to Chinatown" and other productions. Mr. Ebner originally played the rube part in "The Time, The Place and The Girl," but on the withdrawal from the cast of Arthur Dunn, Arthur Deagon's successor, jumped into the leading role and has made good in it and has played it ever since.

"THE ARRIVAL OF KITTY"

It is refreshing to note that a good, clean, wholesome American comedy, absolutely free from that French "nastiness," which has characterized so many late comedy productions, can succeed. The public has grown heartily sick and tired of the nauseating French adaptions, which have been forced upon the theatre-going public for a number of years, and they turn with pleasurable relief to a play that is genuinely funny, absolutely free from suggestive lines or action, and which has the faculty of thoroughly entertaining and amusing an audience. Such a play is the three-act comedy, "The Arrival of Kitty," which the Magill Company will present at the Grand Opera House on Christmas Day, matinee and evening. Everywhere this delightful comedy has been seen this season both press and public have gone into ecstacies over it, and not once has it received an adverse criticism from either newspaper critics or spectator. The management takes pleasure in boasting of such an accomplishment for there are few plays, no matter how good, but what can find something to pick a flaw in. "The Arrival of Kitty" has escaped all this, however, and there is not a moment in the entire performance when the audience is not laughing at the good-natured comedy which permeates the entire production. The laughter starts a few moments after the rise of the curtain and it continues steadily during the three acts. Norman Lee Swartout is the author of this latest success, and he is to be congratulated upon having given to the stage a play that is bright, clean and well worth witnessing a number of times. Every manager, wherever "The Arrival of Kitty" has been played this season, has asked for an early date, and this fact speaks volumes. The comedy has been finely produced and will be presented here by a splendid company of comedians. To add to the interest in the comedy and to allow audiences a few moments of rest from incessant laughter, several excellent specialties are introduced at intervals during the three acts.

"THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST"

"The Volunteer Organist," which is offered at the Grand next Monday, with special children's matinee, is a delightful sentimental play from the pen of William B. Gray, and well known to our theatre-goers. It possesses the power to appeal to that which is good within us, and adds yearly legions to its multitude of admirers.

The story of the drama is simple, and is blended with genuine comedy and exceptional pathos. There is not a dull moment throughout the play, and the plot is never permitted to drag. In the quaintness of the characters presented, and in the realism of its production of phases of Vermont life, it is truth itself. It is without such time-worn melodramatic elements as a deep-eyed villain, a persecuted heroine, an old mill murder, and a peculiar fact, it is constructed out of a popular song. The story it tells is of every day people in a New England hill town, with the sentiment and homely humor abounding in that communion. The sermon it preaches is that of temperance in physical indulgence and liberality in religion. The danger of alcoholic intoxicants, the wickedness of hypocrisy and the saving grace of sincere religious professions and strictly moral conduct are all properly shown.

The wonderful church scene, pronounced by experts to be the exact replica of the sacred edifice in conjunction with the gifted choir boys, who in this scene sing the beautiful songs "The Holy City" and "The Palms," seemingly lift its beholders into the realms of the most holy.

STRAWS SHOW THE WAY

St. John, N.B., Dec.21.—Premier J. D Hazen has declared himself in favor of a contribution of money or ships to the admiralty instead of a Canadian navy. He concurs in Premier Roblin's view and says there should be only one navy and no divided control.

As straws show the way the wind is beginning to blow so do the lightweights of the Liberal party show which way the Ottawa government intends going in its navy policy. From the above despatch it will be seen that the Conservative policy is as Mr. Borden said in Montreal on Monday night, for the united defence of a united empire.

THE QUESTION OF RACE

It will be remembered that a short time ago we quoted from La Patrie an editorial notice of Arthur Saint-Pierre's brochure "L'Avenir du Canada-Francais." This "Future of French Canada" is greatly exercising our compatriots. It has gradually developed in their imaginative minds until Saint-Pierre feels called upon to begin his brochure with the statement that "it is beyond doubt that a question of race exists in America, and that this question will very soon enter upon an acute phase."

Is it any wonder that La Patrie, while commending it, remarked that there were some things in it that one could not dare to say in the open! We will give extracts from this brochure from time to time. Western Canada has awakened to the situation. Ontario is also awakening from her slumber. The crisis will be the navy. French Canada is for no navy rather than an Imperial one. Is the Mother Country's request of her people thus to be denied!

PRESENTATION TO TEACHER

Successful Entertainment at S. S. No. 11, at Auburn-Good Progaamme

A very successful entertainment was held last evening at the school house of S. S. No. 11, Douro, at Auburn, of which Mr. D. Stinson, of Omemee, was the teacher during the past year, the school being packed to the doors. Mr. G. G. Pratley acted as chairman, and in his remarks, complimented the teacher and scholars on the efforts involved in preparing such a good programme, which was a lengthy one, consisting of fifty numbers, including recitations, songs, choruses, dialogues, etc. The scholars took their parts well which reflected great credit on the training they had received. The dialogue, entitled "Did you ever see a Ghost," brought down the house and won merited praise for those who took part.

At the close of the programme, the teacher was presented with a beautiful gentleman's companion by the scholars of the school. Edgar Jones made the presentation and Asa Downer read the following address:

To Mr. Stinson:

Dear Teacher,—Having heard with deep regret of your departure from our midst, we could not let this opportunity pass without expressing our thanks to you for the many past kindnesses you have so willingly bestowed on us during the current year.

We would ask you to accept this small token as remembrance from your pupils, and we wish you all prosperity in the future.

Signed on behalf of S. S. No. 11, Douro.

SPORTING NEWS

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Garrison Athletic Association was organized last night at a meeting in the officers' quarters. This association will have charge of all the games to be conducted in the new armouries and it is evident that many kinds of sport will flourish at this place.

The officers elected were as follows;—

Hon. Pres.—Lt.-Col. Stevenson.
President—Capt. Cluxton.
1st Vice—Major Young.
2nd Vice—Capt. Medd.
Sec.-Treas.—Capt. McWilliams.
Executive Committee—The officers and Lieuts. Higgins and Clarke and Capt. McPherson.

Lieut. Higgins will generally supervise the indoor baseball. Lieut. Clarke, the bowling, and Capt. McPherson the tennis.

All the members of the 57th Regiment, 3rd Dragoons, and 24th Field Battery, who have been duly enlisted and served during the past year are eligible for membership in the Athletic Association.

The bowling alleys are almost in constant use and a diamond and court have been laid out in the drill hall for baseball and tennis.

Meetings are being called for organisation of individual companies of the regiment as well as the cavalry and artillery.

JOHNSON'S HARDEST FIGHT

BY HIMSELF.

One of the hardest battles and one which I consider of the best in my career in the prize ring, I fought against Hank Griffen, a colored man at Oakland, Cal., in 1902. We went 15 rounds, the decision going to me.

Griffen was a man about six feet four inches in height, and at that time he had the longest reach of any man in the boxing game. If he were fighting to-day he would outreach any man in the business.

Griffen had an awkward punch and one that carried plenty of steam with it. It would puzzle the best of them to get away from that punch, and, combined with Griffen's ability to take punishment and keep on fighting, made him a dangerous fighter for any fighter to monkey with.

In that fight Griffen and I fought toe to toe, give and take, and I want to say right here that I had to travel my best to win. I did not knock out Griffen, but was declared the winner.

Afterward I fought Griffen in Los Angeles, Cal., for Tom McCarey, who at this time was handling the big fellow. I was then under the management of Frank Carillo, of Bakersfield. This fight, like the first one, was a hard battle that went twenty rounds, and I was declared the winner.

In this fight I was able to avoid that punch of Griffen's which had bothered me so much in the first fight. At that time I was not as well developed, nor did I have the physique I now have, and it is probable that men who in the earlier days gave me considerable trouble, would not bother me so much now.

Among the battles I have on my record is one with Jack Jeffries, brother of the man I am now signed to fight. I beat Jack Jeffries just the same as I intend to beat Jim Jeffries when we meet.

Indoor Baseball.

The teams from the local militia corps who intend entering the garrison indoor baseball league are requested to send word to Lieut. W. H. G. Higgins on or before Friday of this week.

HOCKEY

Lester and Frank Patrick, the highest salaried players in hockey, have reported to Renfrew.

Berlin and Waterloo professionals played an exhibition game in Berlin last night. Lelman's seven won out 6—5.

Lindsay Warder — Peterborough's chances in the intermediate series look good. They have the nucleus of an all-round, septette of hockey players and the men are by no means novices. Last year the Lindsay champions had to play no speedier team than the Peterborough aggregation, and the Petes have the majority of the old team on their this year's line-up.

First of the Steamers

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway are in receipt of a cable message announcing the successful launching at Wallsend-on-Tyne, England, of the steamship "Prince Rupert," the first of the Grand Trunk Pacific steamers at present under construction for service on the Pacific Coast between Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Victoria and other Puget Sound ports. Upon the completion of the steamer within the next sixty days she will be sent via Cape Horn to the Pacific Coast and will go into commission next season. The companion ship, "Prince George," is also under construction and will be sent to the Coast as soon as completed. These fine steamships will inaugurate the commencement of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in the coast trade of the Pacific, are being constructed on the most modern designs, and will be models of comfort in every particular.

SMITH PUPILS HONOR TEACHER

A very pleasant social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McIvor on Monday, 20th. The occasion was marked by the reading of the following address to Miss Winnifred Purdy, by Miss Olga Fowler, the presentation being made by Miss Hazel Ackison;—

To Miss Purdy;—

Dear Teacher and Friend,—It is with the deepest sorrow and regret that we learn of your departure from us, and although we are unable to express in words the loss we are about to sustain, we feel we cannot let the opportunity pass without uttering a few humble words in appreciation of you and your work.

You came to us but one short year and a half ago and during that time you were not only to us a most energetic, earnest and painstaking teacher, but you were one of our truest friends. By your kind words and actions you planted in our hearts a feeling of love toward you, which we cannot help but express. In our out of school difficulties you were a friend to whom we felt we could ever go for help and sympathy. In our rejoicings you rejoiced with us, and in our misfortunes you felt for us. In short, you were not only our teacher, but you were one of our dearest friends. We felt that many times during your sojourn with us we were unkind and selfish to you; yet in all our unkindness and selfishness you repaid us with the deepest love and affection.

Now, Miss Purdy, on behalf of the pupils and friends of S.S. No. 1, Smith, we feel that we cannot let you go from among us without sending with you some small token of remembrance, which, although small, we hope it will ever remind you of the large space you hold in the hearts and love of the boys and girls of our school.

We therefore beg of you to accept this sunburst of pearls and chain and watch fob as a memento from your pupils here.

Signed on behalf of the school.
OLGA J. FOWLER,
HAZEL M. ACKISON.

The remainder of the evening was spent in amusements, concluding with a dainty supper.

GIRL HANGING TO CHANDELIER

Stenographer Dies in the Palmer House, Chicago---Man Who Had Room Says He Left Her There

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Lillian Zeller, a stenographer, daughter of J. W. Zeller, Big Rapids, Mich., was found dead Thursday midnight hanging to a gas chandelier of a room in the Palmer House. She had hanged herself with a sheet. The room was occupied, according to the hotel register, by A. W. Morse, Chicago, representative of a Harrisburg, Pa., concern.

Morse said that he had known Miss Zeller for six years. He met her at her home. He believed her to be unmarried. She came to his room early Thursday and complained of despondency, according to Morse. He had left her there to rest, he said, while he went out to attend to some business. On his return at midnight he found the body hanging in the room.

Miss Zeller was identified by a receipt for room rent at a family hotel. A note found on the girl's body read;

"Generally when you make a mistake you are supposed to correct it, but if it is a matrimonial (here a word is blurred), you are expected to deny it and stick it out."

A letter from Mehominee, Mich., signed "H. B.," was also found on the body. On the back of the note was a list of Christmas presents she intended to buy for relatives. The girl had been employed by a labor agency.

Big Rapids, Mich., Dec. 20.—Lillian Zeller was one of the best-known young ladies in this city. She was 25 years old and the daughter of a former policeman. She went to Chicago several months ago to accept a position as stenographer, and visited at her home only a few weeks ago. At that time she seemed in as good health and as happy as ever.

CHRISTMAS TREES ARE FROM CANADA

Now Exported in Carloads to New York-First Time in History Despite Duty

New York, Dec. 20.—The prices of Christmas trees and holly are going up. Several reasons are assigned by the "green goods" men, but their principal complaint is scarcely in the old fields, which are fast being cleared, and the fact that they had to send to Canada this year to obtain an adequate supply. There is an important duty of from $6 to $8 a carload on the Canadian trees, and the cost of transportation largely enters into final cost.

This is the first time Christmas trees ever were imported into New York. Heretofore a sufficient supply has been found in the Catskills and Adirondack mountains. From 100 to 120 carloads of trees are sold in this city each year, and all the last three or four days preceding Christmas.

In some places it is said, the Forestry Bureau has put a ban on cutting small spruce trees for Christmas, as they make good lumber. The balsam trees, another variety used at Christmas, never grow to any large size, and are worthless for any other use. Trees will be retailed this year in prices ranging from 25 cents to $25, the latter price for the large trees used in church entertainments.

To His Saviour

(By Robert Herrick.)

Go pretty child, and beare this Flower
Unto thy little Saviour;
And tell Him, by that Bud not blown,
He is the Rose of Sharon known;
When thou hast said so, stick it there
Upon His Bibb, or Stomacher;
And tell Him, (for good handsell too),
That thou hast brought a Whistle new,
Made of a clean strait oaten reed,
To charm His cries, (at time of need);
Tell Him, for Corall, thou hast none;
But if thou hadst, He sho'd have one;
But poore thou are, and knowne to be,
Even as moneleasse, as He.
Lastly, if thou canst win a kisse
From those mellifluous lips of His;
Then never take a second on,
To spoile the first impression.

OBITUARY

MRS. THOS. A. ESSON.

Mrs. Thomas A. Esson, of Lang, Otonabee, departed this life December 8th, 1909, after an illness of several months. She was a daughter of Mr. John Byram, of Lang.

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon the 10th inst., service being held in the Bethel Methodist church, of which deceased was a member. Interment took place in Fife's cemetery.

She leaves to mourn her death her sorrowing husband, a father and two brothers, John, of Lang, and George of Sidney, Manitoba, also one sister, Mrs. Wm. Comrie, of Keene.

The deceased lady was in her 45th year, and had lived all her life near her early home, nearly twenty years of which were spent quietly and happily with her now bereaved husband. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her, her bright disposition winning her many friends. Her influence for good was deeply felt by all who came in touch with her beautiful Christian spirit.

The pallbearers were Messrs. James Esson, John Byram, W. A. Richardson, Alex. Plunkett, Wm. Comrie, and W. Fife.

ON MAKING A NEWSPAPER

Men who make newspapers sometimes believe that their profession is an exacting one. They are wrong. It is the simplest calling. Making a newspaper is an easy trick. Anybody can do it.

A lawyer with only a diploma and a brass sign, who would lose a suit even if the other side was ready to confess judgment, will tell you how to run a newspaper. A physician who would send his patient to the morgue before the prescription has been filled will know all the fine points of making a newspaper. An actor who never earned any other plaudit than a soft tomato will give instructions in handling the world's news. Any old lady who knows enough to get off a street car backwards has positive opinions on the press. Even a society person who never paid anything but a visit or did anything but a tailor knows how stupid those men are who write 'stories,' edit 'copy,' wrestle with 'heads' that won't fit and get the paper out on time.

One reason for the universality of perfection in this trade among those who do not work at it, is that everybody has been employed in it. It is a most unusual thing to meet a man who, when the occasion seems ripe, will not say "I used to be a newspaper man myself." Every time a man works his county editor for a puff on the strength of a big pumpkin he graduates into journalism. When he writes a "piece" for the Squash County Clarion about "a most enjoyable entertainment," he completes his post-graduate course in newspaper work and when he writes a communication on both sides of the paper to the editor, he becomes a thirty-third degree member of the Tribe of the Scribe.

That so many men have abandoned literature for the law, medicine and other easy walks of life, simply shows that many men would rather fail in one thing than another.—Washington Star.

OUTPUT OF CHEESE 100,000 BOXES MORE

Marked and General Improvements in Quality of Ontario Product

The output of cheese in this Province will be 100,000 boxes more this year than last, according to reports received by George Putham, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

"The factories have been working later this year than last, and this fact will largely account for the increase," said Mr. Putham. This will bring the output to 1,000,000 boxes.

"I have just been down to Montreal, and the exporters are unanimous in declaring that there is a marked and general improvement in the quality of Ontario cheese. The quality is now first-class, and factorymen and producers are paying greater attention to sanitary conditions and taking more pains to have the cheese reach the market in better form.

"New Zealand is one of our keenest competitors in the English market," said Mr. Putham. "In a very few years she has increased her exceased her export trade from 66,000 to over 500,000 boxes.

PROFESSIONAL "HOUSE WORKER"

Is Heading Towards Hamilton--Is Working Towards the East

Hamilton, Dec. 21.—House-keepers, beware! The local police have received word that a professional "house worker" is headed this way, and may pay a visit to the city at any time. The police advise the people to watch for him and see that doors and windows are fastened securely.

The worker in question has visited a number of towns to the west of this city. The people of these places did not receive any warning of the intended visit, nor did the man arrive at the head of a brass band. The result is that many of the residents of each town visited are now mourning the loss of their watches and chains, money and other valuables.

The police of other towns visited report that the man is daring, and evidently old at the game, as in many cases he entered the house while the people were up.

As this is shopping time, many people are away from home during the day, which offers encouragement to this class of gentry.

Though her passengers will not land until after Christmas, the Allan liner Hesperian left Halifax Saturday with 800 passengers bound for Britain to spend Yuletide.

SANTA CLAUS WAS GREETED BY THE CHILDREN

The effect of judicious advertising was well shown at noon to-day, when, as announced in the Review for several days, in the advertisement for the Bee-hive, Santa Claus got off the noon train where he was met by about 3,000 school children. He commenced a free distribution of toys, consisting of toys and other articles up to the size of a gun or drum, which was continued all the way from the station to the front of the Bee-Hive. Old Santa was driven over the course in an open hack drawn by a pair of white horses, and he was the center of an animated throng all the way. In front of the store traffic was completely blocked for a while, as the apparently inexhaustible bag was being emptied of its Christmas load. This was finally accomplished, and the crowd of happy children went home with a marvellous story to tell, while they hastily ate their dinner before hurrying away to school.

BIG FIRE AT NEWBURY N. Y.

Special to the Review.

Newburg, N.Y., Dec. 22.—In spite fire-fighting reinforcements from half a dozen towns, the big shipbuilding yards of Thomas S. Marvel Company were destroyed early today. The loss is estimated at $500,000 or more. Two large ferry boats under construction, one of them for the N.Y. Central, were burned to the water's edge. A citizens' line steamship vessel in dry dock was badly damaged. The blaze started in the engine room.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

INDOOR CIRCUS AT THE Y.M.C.A. FOR TWO NIGHTS

On Friday, Dec. 31, and Saturday, Jan. 1, something new in the way of entertainment will be put on in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Association. It is nothing less than an indoor circus, in which the different gym. classes will take part. For the past two months the physical director has been training those who will take part and he has had considerable experience in this line of work at his home town, where an indoor circus was an annual affair at the Y.M.C.A., the performers may be depended upon to fulfil their respective roles with credit to themselves and their instructor. Each performance will commence at 8.15 p.m. The floor of the gymnasium will be converted into a ring, and the whole interior will resemble that of the travelling circus. A glance over the following programme will show that this excellent attraction will be well worth attending.

Harvey Staunton—Ringmaster.

Overture by the famous Premier Instrumentalists.

Grand Parade and Entree—Introducing our great array of talent.

Parallel Bars—A series of bewildering gyroscopic and gymnastic cleverness by the dual bar artists, Loomis, Simon, McCarrell, Martin, Hall.

Exhibition of horse work—Employed Boys' Class.

Clowns—Discovers of the North Pole—Peary-Cook.

Wand Drill — Exhibition— Junior Class.

Corncracker Dance—By that inimitable trio, the Barnyard Triplets, Isyou, Wasyou, Aintyou.

Guess—Something funny.

Grand Finale—The celebrated Hook-the-Loops. Entire company of clowns, acrobats and gymnasts.

Successful Contest.

A successful ladies' skating contest was held at the Auditorium roller rink last night. There was a large attendance and the prize was won by Miss Muge. The judges were Messrs. Wilson, Lawrence and Parrington.

INSPIRING ADDRESSES AT COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

One of the most important events of the year in connection with the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, took place last night when the commencement exercises were held in the assembly hall. There was a large turnout of the pupils, parents, teachers and friends and the arrangements made were so complete that everything passed off in a most gratifying manner. A splendid musical programme, addresses by several of the leading professional men of the city and the presentation of the scholarships, diplomas, medals and prizes won during the past year made up a most enjoyable evening and everyone was delighted. The chair was occupied by Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., chairman of the Board of Education, who expressed his pride at being connected with such creditable institutions as the schools of Peterborough. Splendid addresses were given by his Honor Judge Huycke, Mr. D. O'Connell, Inspector Mowat, Rev. J. R. Webb and Dr. A. W. McPherson.

Judge Huycke delighted the gathering with a talk that was directed principally to the boys and girls. He urged the boys to have lofty ideals, to be straight and honest and upright. He pictured to the girls the beauty and honor of pure womanhood.

Mr. O'Connell dwelt upon the development of character. He emphasized the point that the foundation of character must be laid in the home.

Inspector Mowat defined education as the "development of personality" and spoke interestingly and impressively along that line.

Miss Gertrude Yenney read the valedictory which was a splendid composition.

Dr. A. W. McPherson presented the prizes and medals that were won on the athletic field. In doing so he referred to the importance of a good physique in making a success of life.

Mr. Mowat presented the prizes to the first six pupils of last year's entrance class and to the winners of the five prizes for penmanship.

Rev. J. R. Webb presented the Normal entrance scholarships and addressed the audience on "The duty of the parents towards the school."

His Honor Judge Huycke presented the entrance scholarships.

Mr. D. O'Connell presented the junior and honor matriculation scholarships.

The musical programme was of a high standard and elicited much applause.

DEATH OF REV. W. J. KEILTY

A widely known and respected resident of the county, in the person of Rev. W. J. Keilty, parish priest of St. Joseph's church, Douro, for the past 20 years, passed away at his residence in the above township at 10.30 this morning. The deceased was in his 64th year, as is shown by the register, at the residence of the rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, being born in Prescott, Ontario, in 1846.

The death of Father Keilty was the result of a lingering illness following a severe attack of heart trouble twelve years ago. The deceased, while he has been in precarious health for some time, was only taken dangerously ill about a week or so previous to his demise.

He was conscious to the last and at his bedside at the time of his death were his brother, Mr. Mark Keilty, bursar of Mimico Asylum, and his sister, Sister Mary of the Nativity of the House of Providence, Kingston, the only surviving members of his family.

The deceased priest was born in Prescott, Ontario, on June 12th, 1846. He received his primary education in schools of his native town and his classical education partly at St. Laurent's College and partly at Regiopolis College, Kingston, and his theological education partly at Regiopolis College and partly at Quebec at the Grand Seminary. He received tonsure in the Basilica, Quebec, from Archbishop Baillargian on October 7th, 1866; and in the Cathedral, Kingston, from Bishop Horan he received minor orders July 6th, 1868, subdeaconship July 7th, 1868, deaconship July 19th, 1868, and was ordained to the priesthood July 26th, 1868.

He was professor in Regiopolis, Kingston, for one year after ordination, September 1868, to July, 1869. He was deputy chaplain of the Kingston penitentiary for four years, from July, 1869, to September, 1873; parish priest of Kitley from September, 1873, to July, 1879, and parish priest of Ennismore for 10 years, from July, 1879, to February, 1889. Since February, 1889, he has been parish rpiest of Douro.

The funeral will be held to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock. Solemn requiem high mass will be sung at St. Joseph's church, Douro, after which the remains will be escorted to Indian River station to be conveyed by the midday train to Kingston where another mass will be sung at the House of Providence. The remains will then be taken to Prescott, the birth-place of Father Keilty, for interment.

INTERESTING NUMBERS ADDED TO THE BAND'S REPERTOIRE

When he was in Toronto attending the recent concerts given in Massey Hall by Sousa's band, Mr. R. Gliddon, conductor of the 57th regimental band band was much taken with several of the numbers played by the widely known "March King's" superb organization of musicians. Among these three spirited marches by Sousa himself. They are "The Joy of the Yankee Navy," "Diplomat," and "Hands Across the Sea," and are all written in that stirring, tuneful and unconventional way that have gained the Sousa marches such a great popularity. Included in the list of other new new numbers which Sousa's band played, and which have been added to the 57th's already extensive library are, "Pet of the Guards," march Pryor: the Egyptian serenade "Amina" and the intermezzo "The Glow Worm" both by Paul Lincke; "Frozen Bill," rag, Pryor; medley of popular airs of 1863, and "Miserare" from El Trovatore," with duet for cornet and baritone.

All the selections mentioned are especially attractive and will be given, together with the latest addition to the band's repertoire of popular and standard compositions, at the five successive monthly concerts which will be held in the Conservatory Music Hall, commencing in January.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

What Are The Facts?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The Examiner of last evening has a statement that Inspector Stewart has had nine prosecutions during the current year to date and six convictions while the police have had forty-one liquor prosecutions and twenty-three convictions.

Is Cook Coming?

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—As being a citizen of Peterborough I protest against Dr. Cook, the polar expert liar, coming to reside here, as reported. God knows we have enough liars here already. And it isn't the "poor man" who has been doing the lying either. Don't make any mistake about that. This has been a black year.

Yours, etc.,
DOWN WITH HUMBUG.

What Are the Facts

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The Examiner says that Inspector Stewart has had only 9 prosecutions during the current year, while the police have had 41. I would like to ask for the items of the 41. Inspector Stewart had 2 convictions against hotelkeepers for illicit selling, 5 convictions against black-list men and 2 dismissed against black-list men. Now, how many of the police prosecutions were convictions against hotelkeepers? I will venture to say not more than two of three. Now, as to the black-list convictions let me say that all such convictions must be made from a blacklist as made up by Inspector Stewart himself. What the police do is merely to meet and arrest a drunken blacklister and call Inspector Stewart as a witness. This attempt at rivalry and belittling Inspector Stewart is unfortunate. It is not done in a good spirit. Mr. Stewart is considered by the department and in the city as one of the straightest and best officers in the province.

Yours,
FAIRPLAY.

FREE TRADERS WILL SEND 800 ORATORS NEXT WEEK

Organized Campaign in Behalf of the Liberals Will Begin on Monday—Unionist Paper Fears That That Party is Lacking in "Attractive" Men.

London, Dec. 23—The Daily Graphic (Con.) makes the following noteworthy admission to-day: "With the best cause in the world, the Unionists are lacking in men who appeal to the imagination of the electorate. There is also an uneasy feeling abroad that the methods of the Unionists associations are not so effective as they should be."

The Free Trade Union will despatch 800 speakers next Monday in an organized campaign.

Tory anticipations of John Redmond in command of a German fleet in Belfast Lough, and the Curzonian dictum that the House of Commons is "not fit to be left alone," are the subject of much humor in the Radical press and on the platform. The Radicals profess exceeding gladness that it so clearly indicates that every vote for a Unionist is a vote against the popular House.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal London correspondent is responsible for the statement that the Conservatives expect to get only 20 seats in London, whereas last year it was commonly agreed the Radicals would get only ten.

With Lloyd-George, Burns, Grey and other Cabinet Ministers orating, the Ministerialists again had a big pull last night, at any rate in the newspaper space.

John Burns is in excellent form. Addressing his constituents, he described Robt. Blatchford as a "war-mongering socialist, and a mischievous wanton firebrand, whom the Tory papers are using to bring about a colossal calamity." Talk about the inefficiency of the navy was rot. Britain would, however, take two lessons from Germany. She would avoid conscription and protection. (Cheers.) Between 30,000 and 60,000 British workmen were unemployed in 1908. Why were there 4,000 bureaus for registering unemployed in Germany if there were "two jobs for every man" in that country? (Laughter.)

Burns then detailed the Government's proposals dealing with unemployment.

Lloyd-George received a reception which can only be described as rapturous in the centre of the tinplate industry at Llanelly, Wales. Apparently he will return another solid phalanx of Radicals in January. Retaliation, said the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was not a policy for a principality. It was a sort of new version of the sermon on the mount. The flourishing state of the tinplate trade showed it was not wanted.

Sir Edward Grey declared that a reformed second chamber was necessary.

The lesser lights on the Conservative side are putting up a good fight, but Balfour's health is being anxiously watched.

Bonar Law, at Jarrow, combatted the statement that tariff reform would ruin the shipbuilding industry. That industry had made marvelous strides in Germany under the German fiscal system. Tariff reformers did not want to stop imports, but to change their character and have more raw materials and less manufactured articles.

George Wyndham at Dover declared that Lloyd-George meant to tax landlords until they were compelled to drive unfair bargains with either a prospective tenant or the town council. Old-age pensions would not have come out of the present Government's budget, but out of the simple expedient of not paying for the navy, trusting to next year.

Change In Cabinet.

London, Dec. 23.—The appointment of Herbert Gladstone, the Home Secretary, as Governor-General of South Africa, leaves a vacancy in the Cabinet, which probably will not be filled unless the Liberals are victorious at the elections.

In the case of victory it is expected that John Burns, President of the Local Government Board, will succeed Mr. Gladstone as Home Secretary. Winston S. Churchill, President of the Board of Trade, will succeed Mr. Burns and Lewis Harcourt, First Commissioner of Works, will replace Mr. Churchill.

Under the new arrangement all these officers will command the same salary, $25,000 yearly.

NEW ZEALAND'S PROFESSORESS

New York, Dec. 23.—New Zealand recently sent an envoy to the United States to seek out a woman capable of filling the newly-established chair of household economy at the University of New Zealand, and yesterday Miss Anna C. Hedges, principal of the Hebrew Technical School for Girls in this city, was notified by cable of her appointment to the position. The University of New Zealand is the first institution of its kind to establish such a chair.

TEN YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Chatham, Ont., Dec. 23.—Fritz Diehn, alias Chapman, a famous crook, arrested in California and brought back for the Tilbury valise switching case, of three years ago, was sentenced yesterday afternoon to ten years in Kingston Penitentiary. He is now 64 years of age.

He has served terms in Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and Tennessee state prisons for diamond robberies.

Declared Dead.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 23.—For the first time in Canada, Chief Justice Hunter yesterday granted an order in an application made on behalf of the heirs of Angus McKinnon, timber cruiser, who disappeared on the Skeena River two years ago, for leave to presume death.

This order was made under a new English authority.

LOCAL OPTION IN CAMPAIGN

Winnipeg, Dec. 23.—The very latest reports show that local option carried in 16 places and was defeated in 19. There were only four repeal votes and repeal carried in but one municipality, Roblin, in which the Village of Cartwright is situated. Most of the towns voted against local option, it carrying in only two, Carman and Shoal Lake.

EFFECT OF COAL MINERS STRIKE

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 23.—Deputy Commissioner of Mines Donkin, a witness in the alleged coal operators' combination enquiry, testified that productions of coal had been lessened at all Nova Scotia collieries during the past season. Since the strike and up to Dec. 1, the Dominion Coal Co.'s production was 700,000 tons less, and Cumberland collieries 210,000 tons less.

To Get Senatorships.

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—It is understood that the Senate vacancies for Nova Scotia are shortly to be filled by the appointment of E. M. Farrell, Speaker of the Provincial Legislature, and Wm. Roche, ex-M.P. for Halifax.

ALBERT IS KING

Belgium Now Has New Ruler—Oath of Office Administered

Special to Review.

Brussels, Dec. 23.—Albert is now King of Belgium. The oath of office was administered in Parliament hall this morning in the presence of the Ministry, the chief officials of Belgium, Albert's wife, Princesses Clementine and Stephanie, daughters of the late King Leopold, and a distinguished gathering that completely filled the inaugurate chamber. Many foreign representatives witnessed the ceremony, including United States Minister Lane.

LITTLE OTTAWA GIRL KILLED

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 23.—Louise Bray, the six-year-old daughter of Charles Bray, Ottawa, was almost instantly killed at Steelton yesterday afternoon. The child was sleighing, and her sleigh became caught in the track. She returned to get it and was struck by a freight car. She had been in the Soo about one month, coming here to act as flower girl at the wedding of her aunt.

NAT GOODWIN QUITS MINING

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 23.—Admitting that he saw more than $1,000,000 slip from his grasp in his Nevada mining ventures, Nat C. Goodwin, when seen yesterday at his seaside home at Santa Monica, said he had washed his hands of mining enterprises in which there is an element of stock speculation.

Wissahicken May Be Released.

Sarnia, Dec. 23.—Capt. Reid of the Reid Wrecking Co., reports that the steel steamer Wissahicken, wrecked on the outer Duck Island, Lake Huron, will be comparatively slightly damaged if the steamer can be got off the rocks before it is pounded by heavy seas.

New Code Is Allowed.

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The Railway Commission yesterday afternoon gave judgment allowing the new telegraph tariff on code messages to become effective July 1. Five letters will then count as a word in all cables instead of ten as at present.

Seventh Child In Eight Years.

Quebec, Dec. 23.—Mrs. Joseph Legare, aged 26 years, has given birth to her seventh child after eight years of married life.

SECTIONMEN ARE ARRESTED

Two Men Held for Murder of Operator Dyson—Story of the Tragedy.

North Bay, Ont., Dec. 23.—Two sectionmen named Morin and Cornish were arrested by Provincial Constables Fred and Jerry Lefebvre Tuesday night, charged with the murder of W. J. Dyson, the T. & N. O. Railway night operator at Redwater. The prisoners were brought to North Bay on a special train early yesterday morning.

Cornish's story of the tragedy is that he had words with Dyson over orders given by the latter to unload a car of coal. The quarrel resulted in a fight, and Dyson threw Cornish on the floor and was pounding him when Morin rushed in with a heavy club and struck Dyson repeatedly over the head until he rolled over unconscious and bleeding on the floor. Cornish and Morin then returned to their shack, where they remained until arrested.

Morin does not deny using the club, and states he was only helping his chum, with no thought of causing death. Morin is 21 years old, and Cornish 25.

The local despatcher relates that about 5.30 Tuesday night a jumble of letters came over the wire, evidently an attempt by Dyson to send a message of notification.

Dyson was a son of Wm. Dyson, market gardener of Guelph. He was formerly an operator at Thorndale and Hespeler.

"LITTLE TIM" SULLIVAN HAS PASSED AWAY

New York, Dec. 23.—Timothy P. Sullivan, the "Little Tim" of the Bowery and a power in metropolitan politics, died at his east side house last night, from Bright's disease and inflammation of the heart. He died in early middle life, worn out, say his friends, by overwork. At the time of his death he was chairman of the finance committee of the board of aldermen. He had at one time and another been a member of the State Legislature and acting mayor of the city. To the poor and friendless of his district he was the "giver of all good things."

John Kirk lay on the edge of the roof, while Oscar Johnson, hung head down, Kirk holding his legs. Johnson grabbed Jarling's wrists and lifted him to the roof.

STEFOFF HANGED

Macedonian Pays Penalty at Toronto—Says "Big Devil Drove Him to Crime."

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Pavale Stefoff, the man who slew his countryman, Vani Simoff, and robbed him of his money, was hanged here this morning. All hope was removed last night when the following telegram was received from Ottawa:

"Governor-General unable to interfere in capital case of Rex. v. Stefoff." (Signed) Thomas Mulvey, Under Secretary of State for Canada.

This telegram, received by Robinette, Godfrey & Phelan yesterday afternoon, removed Stefoff's last lease of life. Only the man's spiritual adviser, those who have charge of the gruesome work and six press representatives were admitted to the jail to witness the last act in this sordid tragedy. Radcliffe, the official hangman, took that task off Sheriff Mowat's hands as usual.

Stefoff was told of the removal of his last hope. He heard the news calmly and seemed resigned. He had been an orderly prisoner, and seemed to have become attached to his guards, and asked that he be allowed to say good-bye to all of them.

Stefoff's death removes the necessity for secrecy regarding the statement made to his confessor, Rev. Geo. M. Atlas, some time ago.

Atlas declared that during his visits to Stefoff in the jail the prisoner had confessed to him that he murdered Vani Simoff. "He told me," said Atlas, "that he was possessed of an evil spirit, a very big devil. He told me that he needed the money, and had waited for Simoff as he came from work and killed him."

Atlas told that Stefoff described the deed committed in the dim light of the cellar of the Eastern avenue house, where they all lived together, and how he had struck Simoff down as he descended the stairs in the darkness.

With the first blow Simoff fell, but as he lay stunned upon the floor he struggled, and this drove his assailant crazy with fear. The "very big devil" possessed him and he struck blindly with the hatchet until his victim lay still. Then he took the money and went out and returned later, when he pretended to discover the body of the dead man.

Atlas asked that the story be kept secret until Stefoff's last hope was gone.

NAVAL BASE STORY HAS NO FOUNDATION

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The statement in a cabled despatch from Birmingham, Eng., to the effect that Canada is ready to provide ten million dollars for the establishment of a big naval base at Vancouver Island is without foundation.

Hon. W. S. Fielding stated in the House of Commons that the Canadian naval policy would be financed from current revenue, and that there would be no special appropriation.

The broad lines of Canada's naval policy are distinctly set forth in the estimates as follows: Naval service including the purchase, construction and maintenance of ships, the maintenance and the upkeep of dockyards at Esquimalt and Halifax, and the establishment and maintenance of training schools, 1909-10, $280,500; 1910-11, $3,000,000.

COMPROMISE IN LIBEL CASE

Vienna, Dec. 23.—The trial of the libel actions brought by deputies of the Croatian Diet, and the Hungarian people against the Austrian historian, Dr. Fried Jung ended yesterday in a compromise. In articles published last March, Dr. Fried Jung, accused the Servian Government of endeavoring to incite a popular rising in Bosnia, Croatia and South Hungary, and also charged the plaintiff deputies with having received Servian bribes to promote such a rising.

Yesterday Fried Jung admitted that the most important documents adduced in support of his assertions were forgeries whereupon the plaintiffs withdrew their suit. The court ordered that the costs be divided.

POLITICAL OUTRAGES IN INDIA, KOREA AND RUSSIA

Arthur M. T. Jackson, Chief Magistrate of Nasik in India, is Killed While at Theatre—Premjer Yi of Korea is Stabbed by Christian.

Bombay, British India, Dec. 23.—Arthur Mason Tippetts Jackson, chief magistrate of Nasik, in the Presidency of Bombay, was assassinated by a native which attending a theatrical performance Tuesday night. The motive is supposed to have been revenge upon the magistrate who had recently sentenced a criminal to life imprisonment. Nasik is a hotbed of sedition. Jackson had been in the British Indian service since 1888.

The outrage cannot fail to increase the ever-present fear of an uprising in India. Attempts have been made in Indian against the lives of Lord Minto, Lord Kitchener, Sir Andrew Fraser, and other British officials.

On July last, Sir Wm. Hutt Curzon Wyllie, who had recently held important Indian appointments, was murdered at the Imperial Institute in London by an Indian student, who was subsequently hanged.

Premier Yi of Korea Stabbed.

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 23.—Premier Yi, the head of the Korean Cabinet, was stabbed and fatally wounded yesterday by a Korean, aged 20, a young Christian, for many years a resident of America. The Premier was riding in his jinricksha, when the assassin come up with a long kitchen knife in his hand. He drove this twice into the abdomen of the Premier, and once into the lung. The assassin then turned on the Premier's servant whom he instantly killed. He was immediately arrested.

Yi was always credited with fostering anti-Japanese sentiment in Korea. He bitterly opposed the faction among the Koreans which favored annexation to Japan, and refused to present a petition for a constitution to the Korean Emperor.

Yi was formerly Minister of Education in the Korean Cabinet and became Prime Minister in May, 1907. His efforts to carry out his policies met with continual opposition and intrigue.

The murderer rushed into the street and was captured. An assistant of Karpoff's was severely injured.

There have been several convictions of bomb-makers recently.

CENTRAL PRISON SITE IS PURCHASED EAST OF GUELPH

Handsome Tract of Land is Decided on and Work Will be Commenced in the Spring—Limestone Quarries Will Supply Stone for Road Improvement.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—After years of patient enquiry and the examination of in the neighborhood of fifty sites, the Ontario Government has at last settled on a location for the new Central Prison.

It is to be about three miles east of Guelph. The properties secured are five in number, of 210, 130, 50, 130 and 83 acres respectively, making a total area of 603 acres.

The Government considers that it was very fortunate in securing a site which combines almost everything which is required. The transportation facilities are unexcelled. The C.P.R. runs through the property and the G.T.R. skirts it. There are six trains a day each way to Toronto.

The situation is almost at the centre of the criminal population of Ontario, which is placed at about 25 miles west of Toronto. This will involve a minimum cost of transportation of prisoners to the prison.

The River Speed flows through the property, giving ample water supply.

The 210 and 130 acre properties contain limestone, which will be useful in the construction of the prison, and will also be utilized for the employment of the prisoners in supplying crushed stone for the improvement of the roads of the province. The 130 acre property contains sand and gravel in abundance, and an admirable building site. The other block is good land for farming, vegetable gardening and dairy purposes.

Since the project of a new Central Prison was decided on at the session of 1908, the special committee of the House, consisting of Hon. W. J. Hanna, J. P. Downey, J. R. Dargavel, G. Pattinson, Finlay McDiarmid and Col. Hugh Clark, accompanied by Col. R. W. Postlethwaite, inspector of asylums and prisons, have visited prisons at Detroit, Jackson, Cleveland, Chicago, Boston, Bridgewater and Elmira, in search of ideas on prisons, and have visited about fifty of the sites offered for the projected provincial place of detention.

Over 100 properties were offered, but about half of these were thrown out of the running by not being supplied with the essential features of limestone, sand and gravel. The core taken in making the final selection is exemplified by the elaborate report which was drawn up on the seven sites, to which the competition was narrowed in the course of elimination. This goes into minute detail on the suitability of the soil for farming and raising vegetables and fruit, in the classification of the available building material under rock, gravel, etc., in the listing of the transportation facilities and water privileges for power and water supply. The site selected bears the annotation, "excellent," under almost every head.

About 12 to 15 acres will be included in the actual prison enclosure, which will be surrounded with a high wall.

A feature, which may strike the ordinary citizen as somewhat novel, is that the prisoners employed will not wear the regulation prison garb. The Provincial Secretary, whose pet project the prison scheme is, believes that fully 40 per cent. of the inhabitants of the Central can be trusted not to run away. "Where would they run to?" he says. "They have homes to which they hope some day to return, and they won't make themselves wanderers upon the face of the earth for the sake of a little brief freedom. Moreover, they will be given to understand that their terms may be considerably shortened by showing that they are worthy of trust."

Such men, when the prison is built, will be employed without the enclosure in farming, quarrying, etc. For the untrustworthy remainder, as has been mentioned before, there will be an inexorably high wall, within which, however, ample provision is made for open-air employment and recreation.

During the festivities at the fire hall yesterday afternoon the firemen took occasion to show their appreciation of Chief Howard's kindness to them and interest in them, and presented him with an address and a handsome gold-headed cane inscribed with his name, the date and from whom it was received. The Daily Review

THURSDAY, DEC. 23, 1909.

A GOOD WORD FOR WHITNEY

The Montreal Witness.

Liquor advocates have eloquently sought to cool the zeal of voters by saying that it was simply "the old Dunkin Act, and the old Scott Act served up again." The fact that these excellent laws did not persist was notoriously due to their non-enforcement. The present local option law has the advantage that enforcement lies with the same government—the Provincial—which has provided the legislation. It has certain other points of superiority. The "Pioneer," for instance, recently pointed out that "The Dunkin Act practically permitted the unlimited sale of liquor in five-gallon quantities. The present local option law prohibits all liquor-selling in municipalities in which it is in force. The penalty for selling under the Dunkin Act was a fine of not less than twenty dollars, nor more than fifty dollars. Under local option the smallest penalty is a fine of a hundred dollars, and for a second offence the penalty is imprisonment for three months at hard labour. The Scott Act penalties were also much lighter than the local option penalties. The greatest difference between the present law and all previous laws lies in the better machinery for enforcement. Officers are provided. Certain facts are considered conclusive evidence of law violation. Petty technicalities that used to be successful are not allowed to prevent the punishment of law-breakers. Enforcing machinery is in every way the best that has been devised. . . ."

The Review thinks the Pioneer mistaken about the sale of liquor being forbidden in wholesale quantities, as we showed the other day the Liquor Act says it may be wholesaled in quantities of five gallons, and one dozen three-half-pint bottles.

"Almost better than the inherent qualities of the legislation itself is the businesslike and evenhanded way in which the government have enforced it. Offenders have usually been brought to book sharply, and when the veto has been in operation it has usually been so in fact as well as in name."

With this well-merited praise by the Witness, all fairminded men will agree.

MR. BORDEN ON THE NAVY

THE CONSERVATIVE LEADER.

Mr. R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, was the next speaker, and was received with round after round of applause, according to the custom of the commercial men. In opening he jocularly replied to some of the persiflage of Sir Frederick Borden, and remarked that nothing had been said of the Canadian House of Lords, the Senate, which, despite its "reforming" during the years since 1896, he considered a very useful legislative body.

Referring then to the question of Empire defence, Mr. Borden said that no man who accepted the responsibility of co-operating in the defence of the Empire need pose as a militarist. "But," he continued, "no nation worthy to be called a nation could remain unprepared to defend itself, and we would be unworthy of the races from which we have sprung unless we were willing and ready to take our part while remaining in the Empire." (Applause.)

"I do not believe," he continued, "that when the hour of emergency comes, no matter when it may come, that the people of Canada, or any race or province in Canada, will be found wanting in their duty in that regard. But when danger is at hand we know not when or how it may come, but we know it will come as a bolt out of the blue. It is not enough to sit down and say we will be ready when the time comes, but we must know that when the time comes we shall be ready to take our fair share in the defence of the Empire, whose flag floats above us, and whose army and navy have always been ready to defend the soil of Canada as their own soil.

"Therefore, whatever aid the people of Canada propose to bring for that purpose that aid ought to be effective and immediate, so that if the time ever does come when we shall be called upon to share in the defence of the Empire, the people of Canada shall be able to take no second place, but be ready to put themselves in the front ranks of all the dominions of this great Empire." (Loud applause.)

"CANADIAN NAVY" AND OTHERS

Montreal Star.

It would be as satisfactory as it is easy for us in Canada to fall back on singing "Britannia Rules the Waves" coupled with "The Maple Leaf Forever," as an effective answer to the menace of Germany's new navy, were it not that occasionally some obstinate and stubborn figures are flashed over the cable. We know, for example, that Germany is spending next year $110,000,000 on her sea forces, and that $54,25,000 of this is to be devoted exclusively to new ships as against $31,250,00 set aside for naval construction by Great Britain. What we do not appear to realize is that by the time these ships are launched, in 1912, the greater part of the battle ships and armored cruisers which have enabled the British Admiralty to boast its adherence to the principle of two keels for every one that any two hostile powers could bring against them, would not be keels but hulks very shortly after they met a squadron of the latest monsters of the deep. Knots slower in speed, thousands of yards shorter in range of guns, tons lighter in weight of projectile, it would be slaughter rather than battle to send them to meet such a fleet as that so feverishly building across the North Sea—and being built with coal bunker capacity only sufficiently to carry it to a battle no further away than the shores of England.

With the three battle-ships which will be launched in 1912 Great Britain is hardly holding her own, let alone out-stripping her avowed foe, for the Pan-German party which has forced recent naval estimates through the Reichstag is scarcely more secretive than Maximilian Harden in specifying its ultimate purpose. To be ready for emergencies England, we are told, must lay down, next year, twelve battle-ships of the latest and most costly design; to pay for them she must raise a loan of fifty million pounds sterling. Then and only then will she be secure from the imminent menace of a war with Germany and all that such a menace implies of financial disturbance and withdrawal of capital to safer fields of investment.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Dr. Cook:—"There are others." (Loud applause.)

American newspapers approve very strongly of Laurier's Anti-British naval policy. It suits them to a T.

It cannot be denied that the Britishers are very much disappointed in Laurier's attitude towards the empire defence navy.

The Christmas Globe is not good this year. The figures are coarse and blurred. There is no comparison whatever between the London News and the Globe. It is a pity that we Canadians can't get above our youthful drawings in art.

Board and lodging and the cost of living generally is very much higher in Great Britain and Europe than in Canada and the United States. This may appear strange to some people, but facts and figures are that while to the well-to-do the cost in America is higher, to the wage-earner it is considerably lower although of late years it has increased especially in Canada.

Where money is more plentiful than food and lodging prices are high; where food and lodging are more plentiful than money it is the reverse.

"The occasion was rendered yet more notable by a careful speech from Mr. Henry Bourassa, in which the Nationalist leader outlines his views as the leader of the young French Canadian movement.

Mr. Bourassa, in the course of a brief speech, outlined the history of the French-Canadian people, and pointed out the way in which they had in the past stood by the Empire, and held Canada under the Union Jack against the Anglo-Saxon rebels across the border. At the same time he demanded that such Canadians as did not agree with the enthusiasm of the moment of the majority should not be branded as disloyal or as rebels, and warned Canadians not to imitate the United States idea of liberty, which was to allow everybody all the liberty they wanted so long as their ideas coincided with those of the majority. He pointed out that the loyalty of the French-Canadian race was not of the blood, but of the head, and that they would therefore, perhaps, be less led away by temporary excitement, and more able to take a thoughtful view of the results of changes in the constitutional relations of the Empire. Therefore they demanded that all these problems of defence must be viewed from the standpoint of Canada as well as the Empire, and that the voices of all the Canadian nations must be listened to before the fate of the Dominion was decided on by any Federal law.

There was a large attendance, over three hundred members of the association crowding the red dining room at the Windsor. Owing to the temporary indisposition of the president, Mr. S. J. Mathewson, the chair was taken by the vice-president, Mr. J. Bevans Giles, who had at his right and left Sir Frederick Borden and Mr. R. L. Borden, while amongst others at the head table were Hon. Frank Oliver, Judge Lafontaine, Mr. F. D. Monk, R. C. Smith, K.C.; Henri Bourassa, J. S. Brierly, Capt. Bernier, George Vaux, William Stitt, Guy Tombs, Thomas Henry, Ald. Carter, Robert Bickerdike, M.P., and John T. McBride.

After the usual loyal toast had been honored with the National Anthem and "Rule Britannia," the chairman called upon Mr. W. J. Egan to propose "The Parliament of Canada," which was first responded to by the Minister of Militia.—Montreal Star.

PETERBOROUGH TELEPHONE CLUB LAUNCHED SEASON'S PROGRAMME

Employees From District Offices in Attendance—Interesting Papers Read by Superintendent of Traffic and Chief Operator of Local Branch.

Mr. F. W. Doan, local manager of the Bell Telephone system, has supplied the following to the current issue of the Telephone Gazette:—

The local club of Peterborough telephone employees launched their programme for the season on Monday evening, 1st December. The interest and enthusiasm of the members is keener than ever before, and practically the whole staff was in attendance. From the ambitious plans in view, the meetings of the club this season should be unusually profitable. The interest in this organisation seems to be spreading, as there were present at this meeting representatives from several exchanges in the surrounding district, all of whom seemed to catch the enthusiasm for the "club plan" of mutual improvement.

The interest of the evening centred upon a talk by Mr. H. E. Scott, Superintendent of Traffic, on "Service." The speaker departed from the usual "lecture" to the operators upon courtesy, voice modulation, patience, etc., and took up practical points in the methods required to secure the best results in operating, and explained the system of comparison employed to determine the efficiency of the various offices. He pointed out the advantage of uniform speed over spasmodic periods, fast and slow. The importance of accuracy in operating was forcibly pointed out, and it was shown how uniformity, by keeping the nerves steady and eliminating confusion, would go far towards securing this, and at the same time make the work of the operator easy and pleasant, and the service a constant satisfaction to subscribers. By means of a diagram he explained very clearly how the different classes of service are graded, so that the proper load for an operator may be determined. Following, an explanation was given of the method of arriving at the number of operators required to handle different positions and equipment under working conditions. Toll operating was also taken up, and valuable information and explanations given, including the method of arriving at the amount of work handled by operators at different exchanges, not only for comparison, but to provide that the load of all operators should be equal and within the limits of efficiency, no matter what the size of the exchange.

It was a very interesting and profitable address on a phase of the business, the importance of which in the past has not been generally recognized, and the organization of which like Topsy, "just growed."

Miss Perry, Chief Operator, read a paper on "Telephone Service from an Operator's Standpoint."

"Telephone Service, what is it and what place does it occupy in the world's work and progress at the present time? If we give the subject any serious thought, we cannot but be convinced that it is one of the most important factors in the general development and progress of today, and that mysterious place called "Central" is responsible for a service that should be in keeping, if not a little in advance of, the wonderful development taking place in every department of life.

The operating staff is not, of course, entirely responsible for the service, although it is probably one of the most important factors. In order to obtain the best results, the entire equipment should be the best obtainable, and the inspectors, linemen and others of the staff should see to it that everything, even to the smallest detail, is kept in perfect working order, to assist the operating staff in producing a service which will be satisfactory to the patrons. The personality of the operating staff is an important factor of satisfactory service, notwithstanding the claims of promoters of the "new fangled" machines with which the staff here has been placed in practical contrast for some years past with a very complete triumph and vindication of the 'girl' as against the "machine." We find considerable satisfaction in the survival of our guild, even though we had the promise extended to us by the other interests that they would provide husbands for each and all of us in case our occupation was taken away.

The telephone of to-day is used by practically every one and all the activities of life, social, religious, professional and commercial, with all the complexities of human nature—meet on this common ground, with the operator at "central" as the connecting link. Such being the case, how very essential it is that great care should be exercised in the choice of operators to perform this important work.

The human voice, with all the wonderful influence it possesses, is something that should be well considered in connection with telephone service. The high-pitched, rasping voice, every sound of which is a note of discord, is a constant irritation to those who come within its range. But the well modulated, lady-like voice, which is always kept well under control, no matter how trying the circumstances, how it disarms those who are prone to be irritable or fault-finding, adding a pleasure to the duties of life both for its possessor and its hearers. It is a well-known fact that it takes two to make trouble, and if we, as operators, would cultivate and maintain a pleasant voice, even when sorely tried by some crusty subscriber, how quickly its effect for good would be felt. The discord, which unfortunately does exist at times, would disappear, and our work would have added pleasure and satisfaction.

Every member of the staff, whether connected with the operating department or not, can assist very materially in creating and maintaining cordiality between subscriber and operator, if they would refrain from criticising or speaking lightly of the staff, when out of the office, especially when dealing with central from a subscriber's station, where an example of courtesy may prove an effective lesson.

The present instructions issued to subscribers says, "If the attention of the operator is wanted in order to make another call, move the hook up and down slowly three or four times." From observation, I think this could be improved to the benefit of the service. If the subscriber would follow the instructions closely and move the hook slowly, making sure that they bring it down far enough to break the contract, it would be quite satisfactory, but almost invariably they move it so quickly that the disconnect signal does not burn at all in many cases, and in others the effect on the lamp is so very slight as to be almost imperceptible. If the subscribers were instructed to place the telephone firmly on the hook for, say, a second or two or any reasonable time deemed advisable by the company, I am quite sure there would be a marked improvement in the service, resulting in the subscriber getting the operator and any number of connections, much more quickly than is done by following present instructions.

I suppose, we will have to admit that telephone operators, while surrounded by a good deal that seems mysterious from the subscriber's point of view, are still composed very much of the same human element as the ordinary being, and the desire to have the last word, and also to throw the blame for every trifling occurrence on some person else, is just as strong with us as with others. There seems to be a growing tendency, especially on the part of Long Distance operators, to give way to these human feelings, thus causing a waste of line time, to say nothing of the wear and tear on the temper—both of inestimable value. How much better we would all feel, and what an improvement would be noticeable in our Long Distance service, if we could entirely eliminate these human failings from our exchanges.

It is, of course, an accepted fact that there are two ways of performing every work, and an operator's duties present no exception to the general rule. There is the careless and indifferent way, which necessitates constant correction from those in charge, something not very pleasant for either party, in contrast to the diligent worker who realises that the work must be done and is determined to do her share in carrying it on to the best of her ability. A merited "well done" from a host of busy telephone users (and they are usually ready to give credit where credit is due) will amply repay us for all the energy and enthusiasm we may put into our work."

Correspondence is now being had with a number of the Company's officials, with a view to securing addresses on practical subjects at regular intervals during the season, announcements of which will be made later.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

MR. LASTER WANTS FAIR HEARING

He Reviews the Address of the Speaker of Wednesday Evening's Meeting

Note.—The communication following, and which appears over the signature of Mr. B. Laster, is offered for publication by him, independent of the wishes and objects of either side in the local option campaign, and without approval or endorsement by either party. The space occupied is paid for by Mr. Laster, and it is on these conditions that the communication appears.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The biggest bluff of the Local Option campaign is over, and at last, everyone can see that the campaign is not worthy of belief and consideration; and again the police have been required for protection, when an answer was demanded to my question.

What have they stated on the public platform and through the press? At first they said it was just to show the people that they were not afraid to discuss the question publicly; and announced that they would bring a speaker who would answer all questions. When I proposed to pay for half the opera house to be allowed to discuss this matter with them, the answer was that they would not let me ask any questions; but that I must put them in writing and hand them in three hours before the meeting started. Then the speaker was not there. The questions were handed in in typewritten form, so they would have no excuse that they could not read them. In answer they stated from the platform and through the press, that the questions would be answered by the next speaker. The next speaker came, and made the excuse that it was Sunday, and they would not discuss such matters on a Holy day. Then I announced that I would demand an answer from the speaker at the next meeting, as that was advertised for a week-day. They therefore made their arrangements beforehand, as they knew they would not be able to answer my questions. I took a seat right at the back, and behind me was stationed a policeman, who had instructions not to allow me to ask any questions. Mr. Turner, sr., was behind me also. When the speaker finished, and did not answer my questions, I just stood up and asked them to answer my first three questions. Then the policeman jumped and asked me to take my coat and leave the meeting. The meeting was over anyway.

Now, does this not break every normal law of hospitality. They first announce that everyone is invited, and then state that every question would be answered; and when they entrap the people to come and discuss the question with them, to have the atrocity, when they cannot answer a simple straightforward question, to have the man whom they have invited expelled by the police. Now, that is about the meanest trick that could be done. I would not have expected such treacherous behaviour from a wild negro, much less from men who pretend to be moral workers. I say, shame on you, who on the platform and by ways of morality try to induce the people to follow you. What have they said through the press? That they wanted a man who was not ashamed and not afraid to come and discuss the matter on its merits. Was I afraid for their long advertised speaker, to go and discuss the matter with him? No. I was there. And I am proud of it, that I was able to show the people that I meant business. Not fooling nor boasting.

Oh you moral reform workers; if I could only just say what I would like to, and express my opinion; but the papers would not take it. So you may understand from this what I think, and what every one of the city thinks of you. You were shown up in your right color, as big bluffers, who are trying to bring the people together, by presenting to them one side of the story, that suits them, and to induce the people to believe them. But you cannot stand any straightforward question, nor discussion. Nor can you, nor any of your professional speakers, answer the questions.

I once stated that I would fight you all single-handed; and I will stand by my word. If they are too cowardly to stand on the open platform, I will fight you through the press; and I am going to prove to you that every one of your stories are misleading. As I have stated before, I am more against drunkenness than the best moral reformers. They only want to close the few hotels and bring indiscriminate crime by actually forcing the poor people to break the law by selling liquor on the side. Because all the speakers acknowledge that law-breaking will come when Local Option is passed. The way I propose is to educate and teach the people, the same as the T. A. S. have done; then the poor people will be spared breaking the law and perjuring themselves; and teaching our children in such a way that not a hundred hotels would affect them. I will leave to the good judgment of every citizen of Peterborough to choose which is the better way. Mine or theirs?

Now, the speaker last night, and also the water-waggon speaker made such a noise about saloons, and told us how many saloons they had succeeded in closing. I say, that every saloon in existence should be closed, and they should never appear in a civilized place. Now, what are saloons? They have not told you that. We have no saloons here, nor in our surroundings. Why should we fight a thing that does not exist? Now, let me tell you where saloons do exist. These are only in the United States, and not in any one place in this province. That is why they are fighting them in the United States more than anywhere else, and through these saloons those moral reformers are taking away from hundreds of men their means of making a living, and actually robbing hundreds of people, directly, of what they possess. A saloon is an open bar, with nothing avaricious in the front, but in the back they have a big dancing hall where hundreds of all kinds of men and women come together, and besides, they have private rooms where couples come and pass their time in private. Also, some rooms where men sit night and day and gamble and drink. And in some of them they even have under-ground rooms where they take opium. These are the places that every honest man should fight to close. But the question is, Have we such saloons? I say a hundred times "No." He then stated that these kind of saloons puts every man, woman and child in this kind of business. This is just the kind of thing that I want to prevent. We have no women and children here behind the bars. They are not tolerated here in the open bar; but when you pass local option you will find lots of married women and girls discriminating themselves against their husbands and fathers by the secret sale of liquor. Do you say, then, pass local option? If so, you are sure to have it.

Then you were told the story of a boy who leaves his country home and comes to town to learn a trade or business, and the first thing he finds is the open bar, first on one corner and then on the other, and he cannot withstand the temptation, and gets drunk, and the next thing he is getting sick of the place where he is employed. The story is very sad, if true. But such a thing could not happen in Peterborough, under the license law. In the first place, there are no boys under age who can get liquor from the open bar; then, if led on and tempted by friends of his own age to crime, it is certainly not caused by the open bar. But they will be able to get anything they like from the blind pigs, under the local option law. Would you have this? And besides, a boy like this, who is strange in town, will learn bad habits and even crime. But where? Not in the bar, where he is not permitted. But in the pool-rooms. There is where he learns all those things. That is where he learns to gamble, and when he cannot get on further, for the want of money, in the legitimate way, that is the time when he begins to steal, and takes the first opportunity that presents itself.

Those are the places where you workers should turn your attention, and you will find the foundation of crime. But if you would adopt the plan of the T.A.S. and have rooms for the young men and boys to pass the evening, when they come strangers to the city, they would be guided by the good advice of good men, and be saved. Then he acknowledged unintentionally, that liquor is more used under the local option than under the license law. He also stated that by looking through the record of the use of liquor, he found that in the last years, there has been more than double the liquor used, than in the same number of years before. Well there is a clear answer to that, and the reason why more liquor is used is because it is only of late years that they have agitated the local option by-law. Where local option is, it diminishes the use of beer, but increases the sale of all kinds of poisonous strong liquors. Now you will surely be convinced by what your own advertised speaker tells you, that under the local option law, drink has been used more than double, than under the ordinary license law. Then he stated that your children are bound to be tempted when the bars are open. I say "No." If you bring up your children as the men who belong to the T.A.S. do, if there is a hundred hotels, they will not be tempted. And that is what we have to prove right here in town; and everyone can convince himself if he wants to.

He cannot answer my three first questions because he has been paid and brought here to preach local option. He unintentionally answered it, by appealing to the audience, and saying that he does not care what way they save the children from drinking, but that he would like to regulate it in any way at all. Well, that is what I am advocating; is to regulate the drinking question the best way we can, and I can honestly see no better way than that the T.A.S. have adopted. Then he stated that we would be criminals if we did not pass local option here. Now let me tell him, that it is himself and the like of him who are ready for the prisons and asylums, and that the people of Peterborough are not here to be made criminals of. I would certainly advise the reformers to advise their speakers to use a little more decent language, when they come to Peterborough, or you will have another occasion to complain of abuse.

Then he must have been supplied with my letters before he came here, so as to be ready. But the only attack he thought fit to make, was when he stated that I said I would not let them take my liberty. Not even the chief of police. He did not finish, and state what my word liberty meant, but stopped at the word liberty. Now let me inform that gentleman that I know the worth of liberty, better than he will ever know; or will ever be able to understand. Because I have suffered for the sake of liberty, where he himself is only a big bluffer. If he knew the meaning of the word liberty, he would not advocate for any man to bend to the will of another, for either right or wrong, and do just as they command. All this you won't get unless you fight for it. But the fact of the matter is, that you are all bluffers; and I hope before the 3rd of January your mask will fall, and I will be able to show the people your colors; and that they will act accordingly. He also stated, that I was a strong man, and could handle the drinking question, myself, only; and for my sake they should not endanger their children, nor make drunkards of them. Let me thank him for the compliment. That is the worst he could say against me. He was wrong, there again. The whole population of the city of Peterborough, with the exception of a few only, are strong men, and can handle themselves; and none of our children are in any danger of becoming drunkards. There is no need to tell all the stories here. They might work among your own class of people, but they are not the proper thing for the people of Peterborough.

He also stated that the weak drunkard needed helping, and should be pitied. I will deal with this question in my next letter. And will show you the ways that our workers are handling these kind of people.

And now wishing you a Merry Xmas I remain, yours truly,

B. LASTAR.

Does Local Option do the Work?

A Toronto Newspaper Says that—

It has closed the hotels in the smaller places, and obliged visitors and travellers to seek accommodation in private houses, and meals at the general store.

It has driven business to the licensed towns.

If a local option town is "looking up," it's because it's on its back."

It has caused liquor to invade the home—in quantity.

It has encouraged the bottle habit and solitary tippling.

It has caused young men to drink who never drank before. Boozing clubs import the stuff from the nearest wet town—every dry town gets its supply from the the nearest wet one—and the police have more disorder to quell, because these drinking bouts develop into two or three day orgies.

It has caused bad, adulterated liquors to be sold, and more "hard stuff" than beer to be drunk.

It has multiplied blind pigs. No license fee is paid the Government, and the liquor is cheap and nasty.

It has produced a contraband trade of large proportions.

VOTE AGAINST LOCAL OPTION, IT WILL NOT SUIT YOU.

Helping the Needy in the City—Generous Response to Appeal

That it is better to give than to receive is the motto of St. Paul's Sunday school. Instead of giving to themselves at Christmas time, the pupils, teachers and officers contribute to the poor of the city in a substantial way. The members of the congregation were asked to hand in the names of persons who would require assistance in order to make their Christmas merry, and names were also secured from Relief Officer Miller. Contributions were then asked for and a large number were received. Necessities were wanted before luxuries, and the donations consisted largely of butter, eggs, potatoes, flour, fruit and other articles of that nature, as well as clothing. There was a generous response to the appeal, and three tables were piled high with donations at the church last night when the annual distribution took place. There was a large attendance and a pleasant evening was spent. Before the boys went forth to distribute the contributions there was a short programme, Mr. Wm Madill, the superintendent of the school, acting as chairman. The programme was as follows:—

Opening hymn.
Prayer—Rev. Mr. Pogue.
Song—Primary and Kindergarten scholars.
Recitation—Gladys Hunter.
Solo—Miss Florence Scott.
Address—Rev. Mr. Pogue.
Quartette—Misses Moore and McCaw and Messrs. Nelson and Gillespie.
Song—Primary and Kindergarten scholars.

After the programme was over the boys and young men of the Sunday school distributed the donations to various homes in the city.

OF INTEREST TO THEATRE DEVOTEES

"Notable Players of the Past and Present"—Special Series in "The Clipper."

The publishers of the New York Clipper announce that they have in preparation a series of articles on "Notable Players of the Past and Present," beginning with Edwin Forrest, and continuing down to the present time. These articles will give the professional career of all the notable stars in the profession, mentioning the important plays in which they have appeared, etc., and when completed will make a record which will be valuable and interesting to all persons interested in theatricals, both in and out of the profession. The first instalment will appear in the issue dated January 1st, 1910.

THE ARRIVAL OF KITTY

At "The Grand" Christmas Day Matinee and Evening

Scintilating farce comedy of the jubilant kind is "The Arrival of Kitty," which will be seen at the Grand theatre. Years of exacting demands upon theatrical offerings of every variety have proved the farce comedy type of play to be ever popular with theatregoers, and a backward glance over the real successes of recent years further shows the comedy foremost in the ranks of theatrical hits. To be amused has always been the unanimous demand of patrons of the theatre. "The Arrival of Kitty" has been constructed for laughing purposes only. The play has a record of a laugh a minute, and contains a landslide of humorous situations and brilliant dialogue.

From the rise of the curtain on Act I, to the final drop at the close of the performance, one may be prepared to be amused to a point of hilarity. The comedy is of the rapid fire order. It is contagious and lasting, mirth and mirth and melody intermingled, for in addition to the farcial excellence the play is replete with musical hits which give the piece added zest and color. The opening scene is humorous beyond description, showing a familiar situation but one which dramatists have never heretofore produced on the stage. To give the story of the comedy would naturally greatly injure the enjoyment of the many unexpected surprises which develop. It is sufficient to say that "The Arrival of Kitty" will be one of the treats of the year, and will be greeted with the same success here as has been accorded the mirth-producing farce in other cities where theatre goers have crowded to see the dashing Kitty, the show girl, who leads a merry life herself and who persuades others to join her in her effervescent frivolities.

"THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST"

One of the special features of "The Volunteer Organist" company, which is booked to appear at the Grand next Monday, Dec. 27th, matinee and evening, is the rendering of those beautiful solos "The Holy City" and "The Palms" by Master Willie Golden, a boy soprano from Trinity church, New York.

This famous youngster is ably assisted by Masters Harry Johnstone, of the Brompton Oratory, London, England and Herbert Howard of St. Paul's church, Boston, Mass.

W. Ellingwood, of Montreal, a despondent lover, fired four bullets into his head.

HORSE LEFT THE DRIVER BEHIND

And Made Things Lively on George Street as It Ran Away

A runaway horse belonging to Mr. Herb. Elliott, of Otonabee, furnished some excitement last evening shortly after seven o'clock, as it tore down George street. It had left its driver stranded in a cutter at the corner of McDonnel and George streets. It appears that the animal, being young and spirited, became frightened on taking a sharp turn at the corner mentioned, and when the cutter struck a post, parts of the light harness broke, and in the position which the driver found himself, he found it impossible for him to control the horse, and it galloped away. It was captured about ten o'clock and taken to Gibbs' livery stable, where its owner reclaimed it this morning.

A SIGNIFICANT PHRASE

In the brochure of Saint-Pierre, "The Future of French Canada," appears a very significant phrase. The duplicity involved in the reference to England is subtle but marked. After asking what the end and aim of his inquiry is to be, he answers it by saying:—"At first, and in order to put all consciences at ease, let us look and see, without failing in the loyalty which we owe to England, if we cannot find WITHOUT HER, (en dehors d'elle) a solution of the unquiet problem of our national destinies."

Then follow the advice and suggestions of Lord Palmerston and Lord John Russell, which Saint-Pierre prefers to take literally when it is well understood that they refer to what may happen only if we wish to break away. England would not interfere in case of a desire to separate, on the part of Canada, and it is this well-understood, "if regretful," permission, that French Canada is construing to her own satisfaction. He is blind who cannot see to what French aspirations are rapidly tending.

BOY SCOUTS

The Review has ventured to call public attention, on several occasions, to the very great desirability of establishing in Peterborough a branch of the Baden-Powell Scouts. The boy-scout movement in Great Britain has been a marvel of success. It has done an immense deal for the boys. Above all things, chivalry and self-reliance are taught. The movement has made some progress in Canada and is likely to advance at a rapid rate. Why should Peterborough lag behind!

PUTTING IT PLAINLY

Another extract from the recent sensational brochure of M. Saint Pierre of Montreal which the French-Canadian journals so cordially and "discreetly" approve of reads as follows; "In order to re-act against these multiplied causes which each day separate us from her (England) more and more, in order to retain us under her sceptre, England has only one thing to offer us, Imperial Federation. And Imperial Federation which will demand not merely on the part of colonies but on the part of the Mother Country as well, sacrifices of diverse and important interests, IMPOSSIBLE TO RECONCILE, is a dream which luckily, amongst its other faults, has that of being unrealizable. SEPARATION IS THEN INEVITABLE * * * * but the day of its accomplishment * * * will depend upon our survival or disappearance as a people."

This is the author who is creating such a sensation in French-Canada at the very moment when Great Britain seeks to strengthen the bonds of union.

ANOTHER FAMOUS PARIS TRIAL RECALLED BY STEINHEIL CASE

When Mme. Lacoste Was on Trial—Provoked Prosecution After All Suspicion Had Been Diverted From Her.

There are probably few of those following the Steinheil trial from day to day who remember another famous case—not 'un proces Parisien,' but the trial of a woman which took place in the provinces sixty-five years ago, and caused a great deal of stir in its day. At that period Parisian reporters did not consider it a part of their duties to torture a helpless woman, beside herself with terror and apprehension, into making statements which she could not substantiate, and then counsel her to flee for her life because of the sensational "copy' they had printed. President Donnoderie, who directed the proceedings of the Assize Court of A——, before which the case I have alluded to was tried, complained indeed of the indiscreet intrusion of the press,' but had he lived in these days when French press tries and condemns the accusers before its own tribunals, he would have had even more justification for the criticism of the newspapers.

The central figure of the cause celebre which attracted so much attention in 1844 was Mme. Lacoste, described as "petite bourgeoise" of twenty-three, rich, stylish, and passably good-looking. On the day of the trial Mme. Lacoste arrived before the tribunal accompanied by all the dramatic prestige which surrounds the "tragic widow" of the Steinheil affair. Like her, she by her own action revived a case which was about to be abandoned by the judicial authorities. Six months after Mme. Lacoste lost her husband public rumor began to accuse her of having poisoned him. She had promptly consoled herself for her loss, and, as her husband had left her a large fortune, she profited by it to lead a life of luxury and gaiety. The suspicious reports in circulation regarding the part alleged to have been played by Mme. Lacoste in hastening the demise of her husband eventually reached the ears of the authorities. A preliminary investigation was ordered, but nothing could be proved against M. Lacoste's widow. Mme. Lacoste was not the first widow whose grief had been of short duration. Besides, the deceased appears to have been no great loss to any one. He was old, had a bad cough, and was frequently ill. Although very wealthy, he was exceedingly avaricious and made everybody work very hard for the money he paid them. When he died no one greatly regrettedd him. But the extravagant habits of his widow were sufficient to set scandalmongers talking. The "affaire' was about to be dismissed when Mme Lacoste—like Mme. Steinheil—revived it by an indiscreet letter to the Public Prosecutor, whom she implored not to leave her under the opprobium of outrageous public suspicion. She besought him to order a searching inquiry into the causes of her husband's death, with the object of proving whether it was a crime or not. Should the hypothesis of a crime be established, then it would be his duty to discover and punish the criminal. The reason for this action on the part of the widow was—and here we have another parallel with the Steinheil case—the desire of the lady to clear herself in the eyes of a young man whom she had met at Tarbes, and who had inspired in her a profound passion, whom, in a word, she desired to marry. It seemed to Mme. Lacoste that the young man's affections showed signs of cooling as the public's accusations against her grew in volume.

The widow's letter created an enormous sensation, and the writer at once became 'une personnalite interessante.' What was the motive of the letter? Was it an audacious challenge to public opinion? A strange imprudence? The exhumation of the body of M Lacoste was finally ordered and a medical examination revealed a large quantity of arsenic. Then the tongues which had called a truce of silence for a moment wagged with more energy than ever. Witnesses sprang up on every side, and the previous existence of Mme. Lacoste was subjected to a searching inquiry. One of the most damaging accusations against her was that, having learned that her husband intended to modify his will in favor of a relative, she had hastened his end by giving him arsenic, and so prevented him from carrying out his testamentary decisions. An ancient schoolmaster and village notary was discovered, and when questioned he admitted having received money from Mme. Lacoste for certain mysterious services. It was after having drunk a bottle of wine with this man that M. Lacoste expired. Servants testified that the first preoccupation of Mme. Lacoste after the death of her husband, was to possess herself of the old man's will. During the last moments she would not allow any one to approach him, and she had sent all the domestics away. The charges assumed such a serious character that her arrest was decided upon. Then came the 'coup de theatre,' so dearly loved by the French; Mme. Lacoste disappeared, leaving behind her a letter in which she stated that she would return the day before the trial, and take her place in the dock. No one believed her, but she kept her promise, and appeared with her hair closely cropped. It was suspected that in order to avoid indentificatjons during her flight she had adopted a male disguise. The trial attracted enormous curiosity. During the whole of the case the prisoner's maid sat beside her with smelling salts ready to assist her if she showed any signs of faintness. But she did not need them. She was on the contrary, very much mistress of herself, and the presiding judge soon saw that he had no ordinary woman to deal with. Her attitude was much the same as that of Mme. Steinheil. Sometimes calm, sometimes showing signs of uncontrollable impatience, for which she afterwards expressed regret, one moment eloquent, and the next depressed. She denied every accusation brought against her. At times it was she who took charge of proceedings in court, and her presence of mind and ability to answer every question put to her never left her for a moment. Witnesses and experts only served to establish the innocence of Mme. Lacoste, who was eventually acquitted by a unanimous verdict. During the trial she made a tremendous impression on every one who saw her in court, and on the day when it came to an end her lawyer announced that his fair client had received no fewer than sixty-eight offers of marriage.—Paris Correspondence London Globe.

SOCIETY WOMEN'S HAIR

A Simple Treatment That Will Make it Truly Fascinating—Wm. Madill Guarantees It

Nowadays every up-to-date woman has radiant hair.

What a foolish creature a woman would be if she lost the opportunity to add to her attractions.

Yet in Canada to-day there are hundreds of thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair who do not make any attempt to improve it.

In Paris most women have beautiful hair, and in Canada all women who use Parisian Sage have lustrous and luxuriant hair.

And any woman reader of the Review can have attractive and lustrous hair in a few days' time by using this great hair rejuvenator, Parisian Sage.

Wm. Madill sells a large bottle for 50 cents and he guarantees it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is an ideal hair tonic, not sticky or greasy.

SPORTING

CITY H. LEAGUE

Manager Oldham, of the West Ends, pulled off a neat piece of work last night, when he secured the signature of Ken Crane, captain of last season's Chieftains, and one of the most popular and best all-round junior players in the city. Crane will probably perform in centre ice, and although this will be his first year in senior company, there is every reason to believe that he will make good.

There is a little story behind the signing of this player. The Strathcona manager has also had the paper and ink ready, but his not unfriendly rival played a trump card and won out.

Leo Derochie, of last year's intermediate O.H.A. team, and the T.A.S. City League seven, has signed a Strathcona certificate.

BASKET BALL AT THE Y.M.C.A.

CAN. GEN. ELECTRIC CO. 24—Y. M. C. A. 14.

The game last night was fast and exciting. The Y M C A team came on the floor for the first time this year to be defeated by the C. G. E. team. The team has not practiced together this season, and last night proved it. The Y. M. C. A. team expected to clean the floor, so that one might think that the C. G. E. never had a team that could play basketball, but last night things looked pretty blue for the Y. M. C.A., but when they get together a couple of times it will be good-night for the C. G. E.

The game was a good one and close all the way; toward the last part of the game the Y. M. C. A, showed lack of endurance, and they had not had any practice, and so lost the game.

Cannif was the boy with the good eye, scoring 12 of the points for his team. The first half ended 11—8 in favor of the C. G. E.

The second half the Y. M. C. A, tied the score and the C. G. E. became excited and worried and the Y. M. C. A. became careless and they didn't cover the way they should and so the C. G. E. walked away and left the score 24—14.

Staunton and Loomis starred and S. Hall played a fine defence game. Wallis was not in condition and he therefore was all in at the end of the first half.

The C. G. E. men were all but in. If it had not been for Canniff it would have been a different story for the C. G. E.

LOCAL PLAYERS HELD PRACTICE

The Brock street rink was thrown open last night to allow the local puck chasers to have a workout. The ice was in good condition, and for a couple of hours the players indulged in a light practice. The men on the ice were Derocher Dennison, Wallace, Dusty, Crane, Weatherston, McMillan, Ray and Giroux.

CURLING

Practice games have started at the curling rink. There is no programme being arranged for Christmas.

HOCKEY

Port Hope's application to play intermediate hockey in the Whitby-Cobourg-Oshawa group was turned down at a meeting of those clubs. The Port Hopers were rather late in organizing, but expected to be allowed to enter that group. Oshawa, Cobourg and Whitby notified Secretary Hewitt of the O.H.A. that they would not stand for it, however, so Port Hope will have to be content with junior hockey.

BASEBALL

Dick Rudolph, Christy Mathewson, Hal Chase and other celebrities are touring with an indoor baseball team, and may play in Toronto in the near future.

TICKETS AT THE T. A. S. ROOMS

For Anniversary Concert of St. Peter's T.A.S.-Musical Programme Arranged.

The members of St. Peter's T.A.S. are reminded of the fact that tickets for the anniversary concert of the society at the Opera House on January 10th are at the T.A.S. rooms and may be obtained there for the balance of the week.

The committee has practically completed all the arrangements for the programme and the members of the society will doubtless co-operate to make the entertainment an outstanding success.

HERE'S PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY

The Helping Hand Bible Class of the Park street Baptist church, is a practical institution. Every Sunday the question is asked if any member is out of work. If anyone is out of employment the others members look him up a position. A short time ago a member stated that he was out of work and the class got him a job and purchased a pair of rubber boots for him. A man does not have to be a member of the church in order to belong to the class, the members of which believe in practical Christianity.

PUBLIC IN PARTNERSHIP WITH THE LICENSED SALOON

Powerful Appeal by Hon. Seaborn Wright, of Georgia, for the Elimination of the Open Bar—The Argument on Personal Liberty Answered—A Challenge for Mr. Lastar.

Those who failed to hear Hon. Seaborn Wright at the Grand Opera last night missed an opportunity that does not present itself very often. Aside from the fact that he spoke on a question that is before the citizens of this and other cities to-day, the wonderful power of speech which he displayed was in itself a decided treat. Those who were present to hear his address from a standpoint of sympathy of his work, could not fail, but be further convinced that the open bar is an evil that should be eliminated.

While touching on "personal liberty," which he declared did not exist in any civilized country, his message especially dwelt upon the fact that while the traffic is licensed as it is, every citizen is a partner in the business, and derives a revenue from that which destroys the best of citizenship.

The chairman of the evening was Dr. Morgan, who after several hymns had been sung and prayer by Rev. H. J. Keioth, introduced the speaker, the audience having arisen during the rendering of the Star Spangled Banner as the distinguished visitor entered the Opera House and took the platform.

HON. SEABORN WRIGHT.

Hon. Seaborn Wright, of Georgia, for many years a representative for Georgia and a state senator, is a typical southerner, his hair tinged with grey, with a quiet, but convincing voice, slow in speech, but his hesitancy advanced the arguments he proposed. He was accorded a splendid attention, and the audience at the close expressed their pleasure at his profitable address.

GOVERNMENTS INTERESTED.

His one regret, said the speaker, in speaking on such a subject, was that he was called upon to answer many stock arguments, which had been exploded years ago, and generally abandoned by the traffic. The first thing is to disabuse your minds that this is a logical movement. There is not a government to-day but what is considering it in some form. There is not a government which is not dealing with it. In Great Britain the issue is at stake in the on-coming elections. In his own country, said the speaker, 22,000 saloons had been abolished last year; France and even Germany are considering it. It is a world-wide movement. Hundreds of cities larger than yours have tried it, and have stood by it from tests. Often we imagine that we are trying an experiment unwise, and possibly dangerous. Get this out of your minds. If you carry this you will drive the traffic into the larger cities, and then out altogether. It is not a movement against the man who drinks, nor against the man who runs a saloon. It's against the system—the system which puts our governments into the business. Your governments, Dominion, provincial and municipal, take half the profit, calling it "tax" and "license," clothing it in respectable clothing. In our country to the south it is the same. Your government and mine are in business with the brewer and the distiller.

ASKED HIM IN.

Often we see the white-aproned publican across the street, and you pass by, and thank God that you are not a publican. But you are in the business all the same. We are not trying to put the hotelmen out of business, but to get out ourselves. Under the present system there's no man who is not in business with the tavern-keeper. Years ago, you threw down the bars and said to the tavern-keeper, "Come in," and you made only one condition, that the tavern-keeper should share up the revenue with you. Then why should we deny him? It's our business, the outcome of our law, our system. If its an evil to manhood, womanhood and childhood we're in it.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

If it's a legitimate business, it is regulated by the law of supply and demand. You can invest millions in a dry goods establishment, but there must be a demand. The liquor business is the same thing. Unless the liquor business can create a demand, then it must go down. The basic business of the trade is that it must create a demand for liquor. Unless the men behind this can create an enormous demand for their liquor the millions they have invested will become a rotten mass on their hands. They have millions behind it—millions that will be absolutely lost to them, unless they win. The government of your country received $14,000,000 last year for liquor revenue, which was obtained by creating these appetites. Your governments are receiving $35,000,000 each year, every dollar of which comes out of men whose appetites have been fired, men who have been debauched by this system. We are capitalizing sin. We are making merchandise out of virtues. They are not only doing this, but are capitalizing all sin.

A CONTINUED DEMAND

If you could limit the traffic to this generation, limit it to adults, I'd be back in my home in the South, said the speaker, and there would be no call for temperance in Canada. But to preserve the invested capital, there must be a future supply, taking even the babies in the nurseries now. The life of the adult drinking man is less than 20 years. If your children and mine were not concerned, the traffic would die in twenty years with them. But it doesn't. Men who twenty years ago were in the trade are now dead, but the traffic has increased. It isn't your liberty that is involved, but the safety of the child of the men who drink, whom I am concerned for—the child who has a hereditary taint.

LEAD US NOT INTO TEMPTATION

Just think, there isn't a mother who can send her son down town, without there being the wide-open, inviting, sanctioned bars. What benefit to tell the child to avoid it. He knows that it is upheld by the government, and that possibly his father voted for it. The profoundest philosophy of the ages was uttered by the Man of Galilee, "Lead us not into temptation." And you have twenty bars with their inviting arms in your beautiful little city. A country boy comes to your town, and lonely and depressed, he is confronted with the invitation "Come in and drink." If he avoids one, there's another on the other side of the street. Then the merchant by whom he is employed notices his red face and he is discharged. Who is responsible? The saloon-keeper? You brought him here. When any city violates the law "Lead us not into temptation" it will go down, down and down, sure as there is a just God. We make a commercial article of manhood for the sake of money. We're money-mad—commercialism for the list of money. This is the only business that lives on the virtues of men, and that because you get money.

DOESN'T HURT TRADE

You may "Would you confiscate without any compensation? If it comes to the inevitable question, I'd confiscate every dollar in the world. How many men have they confiscated without compensation? It's a business red as blood with the crimes of the ages. There is $75,000,000 spent in liquor in your Dominion. You business men, doesn't the frightful waste of this throw you into horror. It ought to outrage the sense of every business man who looks me in the face.

According to your Dominion statistics if your men drink no more than the average citizen of Canada, you spend $500,000 in your city for liquor, every year, and you get less than $5,000 return. When your people spend this money, where does it go? Seventy-five per cent. goes to outside centres of manufacture, and never comes within sight of your eyes again, but goes outside the limits of your town, where produced. If it helps trade, why not institute gambling dens, and import women of shame? The speaker defied anyone to show where a town lost a dollar in trade or in increased taxes through doing away with the trade.

NO PERSONAL LIBERTY.

The speaker denied that, in any civilized country, that there was such a thing as "personal liberty." It is "the public good" instead, individuals surrendering it for the whole. He ridiculed the idea that the law couldn't be enforced. If any interest in Canada is strong enough to cause you to say this, you had better look out for the law. Things have come to a pretty mess, when any interest can look a free man in the face and say, "Pass your law, and we'll nullify it." In conclusion, the speaker said that if the liquor business concerned only the men in it and those who drank it, he would have nothing to say. But it touches with its poisonous fangs every citizen, every man, women and child.

They will tell you that if you let it alone, it will leave you alone, but illustrations were given by the speaker which showed how absurd this statement was. He cited cases where the mother and child had been sacrificed, only on account of the husband's brutality, while under the influence of drink.

At the conclusion of the address there was a movement on the part of Mr. B. Lastar, but the Rev. J. R. Webb took the opportunity to say a few words. He stated that he understood there was a gentleman present who had remarked that he would pay half the expenses of hiring the Opera House if allowed to take part in the discussion. This was not the wish of those in charge and he did not think it was favorable to the audience, but what he wished to suggest was that the gentleman see the proprietor of the Opera House and arrange with him for the use of it, he was sure that half of the expense incurred would be gladly contributed by the City Temperance League.

THE FIREMEN'S CHRISTMAS TREE A GREAT SUCCESS

Happy Gathering and Excellent Entertainment at the Fire Hall—Distribution of Gifts—A Bounteous Supper and Bright After Dinner Speeches.

The second annual "Christmas tree" at the fire hall was an unqualified success in every way. Last year saw the inception at the fire hall of this function of entertainment, and gift-giving, but this year the distribution and the occasion in general was much more pretentious than the former one. The enthusiasm of the men and the cordial support of the citizens argues well for the increasing success of the yearly Christmas tree.

The entertainment began at four o'clock in the afternoon with Chief Howard in the chair. The programme was an excellent one. Halpany's orchestra provided splendid music. Mr. John King, Deputy Chief Grange and Fireman Menzier contributed well received vocal solos, and Chief Howard gave a splendid recitation. Addresses were delivered by Rev. W. C. Reddiford, Dr. Greer, R. G. Kingan and Judge Huycke. After the programme had been given the distribution of prizes took place, and occasioned very evident happiness and merriment among the little ones, and it gave much pleasure to the parents also to see the little ones enjoying themselves so thoroughly. And this does not apply to the wives and children of the firemen alone, as some "outsiders," in a technical sense, also found the favor of the fire hall Santa Claus.

The Christmas tree, which was laden to capacity, occupied a prominent position in the spacious dormitory, which was also the scene of the entertainment. It was profusely and tastefully decorated for the occasion. The interior of the entire building, in fact, was in festive garb, and outside a big Christmas bell swung merrily in front of the building.

At the conclusion of the gift distribution, the gathering of seventy-five partook of an elaborate spread, after which bright speeches were made by Ald. Butler, Judge Huycke, Ald. Phelan, R. G. Kingan and Mr. Miller, of the Quaker Oats Company.

The pleasant affair was brought to a conclusion about 10.30 o'clock.

MR. LASTAR ENTERS AN ACTION AGAINST OPERA HOUSE MANAGEMENT

Mr. B. Laster informed the Review to-day that he had instructed O'Connell & Gordon to issue a writ for $5,000 against J. J. Turner & Sons, proprietors of the Grand Opera House, for damages in connection with being ejected from the theatre last night at the meeting at which Hon. Seaborn Wright gave an address. Mr. Laster claims that the proprietors of the Opera House had no right to order him out, as the theatre was rented for the night to the local option committee.

The progress of the suit will be watched with interest.

IS DEAD AT WILLARD N.Y.

Sudden Death of Miss Margaret Soucie, Daughter of Mrs. John Soucie of This City

Word was received last night by Mrs. John Soucie of the sudden death of her second daughter Margaret, at Willard, N.Y., where she had been engaged in teaching at the High school of that town. No further particulars have been received as to the cause of death. The family had a letter from her a few days ago, and she was then in the best of health, and intended coming home to spend the Christmas holiday with her mother.

The body will arrive this evening by the 10 p.m. G.T.R. train and will be taken to her home a 230 Perry street. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, and will be given later.

The deceased was of a very bright and lovable disposition and she will be sadly missed in the family circle and among her host of friends.

Besides her mother she is survived by five brothers and four sisters. The brothers are John of St. Ignace Mich., Edward, of Revelstoke, B.C., and Frank and Andrew, of Vancouver. The sisters are Mrs. J. F. Ryan, of Okmulger, Oklahoma; Josie, of Willard, and Caroline and Kathlene at home.

The following catchy song numbers are introduced in "The Arrival of Kitty" at the "Grand" Christmas Day matinee and evening:

"Don't go near the Water Daughter"

"My Cousin Caruso."

"Experience."

"I'm going to do as I please."

"Carrie-Marry-Harry," and others.

WEARS A No. 17 BOOT

New York.—Geo. Dolling, seven feet and a quarter inch tall, arrived here today from England. He was met at the pier by his brother-in-law, Benj. Corday, who is a mere stripling of 6 feet, 8½ inches.

Dolling wears a number 17 boot, about six inches wide and sixteen inches long—eats enough for three ordinary men—and enjoys every mouthful.

It is a great thing when one goes to the table with a hearty appetite and sound digestion. Many things tend to make us eat less than the body requires.

Constipation, Biliousness, Torpid Liver, Weak Stomach, Impure Blood, Sick Kidneys—all these troubles affect Digestion and the desire for food.

"Fruit-a-tives", made from fruit juices and tonics, is the best appetizer, because "Fruit-a-tives" makes the stomach strong—the liver active—the bowels and kidneys regular—the blood pure and the skin clean. If you want to be well and feel well, take "Fruit-a-tives".

OVER TWO HUNDRED NAMES ADDED TO VOTERS' LIST

It was after ten o'clock last night before the court for dealing with appeals against the voters' list adjourned. Over two hundred names were added to the list, the bulk of them by the Local Option Committee, and by those opposed to the introduction of the by-law. The Local Option Committee submitted a list of 155 names, which they asked to have added to the voters' list. Of these 125 were allowed. and were added by Judge Huycke. The "antis" put in a list containing 193 names and 75 of them were allowed.

When the court was over last night Judge Huycke thanked the counsel for both sides for the fairness that had characterized their attitude in presenting the appeals to the court. Both sides had been most fair in every way, and he was very pleased that it had been this way. Mr. E. L. Goodwill, who acted for the Local Option committee, and Mr. A. B. Cunningham, of that committee, referred to the fairness of the counsel for the "antis." Mr. Gordon and Mr. Summerhayes, and the latter gentleman made similar reference to the way the other side had conducted their cases.

NINE HUNDRED WERE SLAIN IN BATTLE AT RAMA, NICARAGU

Two Thousand Starving Prisoners Taken From Zelaya's Army by the Revolutionists Are Taken to Bluefields—Red Cross Funds Sent From U.S.

Washington, Dec. 24.—Following a peremptory warning to President Madriz, that the United States will hold him personally responsible for the safety of Americans in the western part of Nicaragua, the State Department last night extended more than moral encouragement to the revolutionists.

Under orders from Secretary Knox, American Red Cross funds are to be expended in caring for the sick and wounded troops of both the Estrada and Zelayan armies, more than 2,000 of whom are incapacitated in Bluefields.

According to the latest reports the medical corps of the various war vessels now at Bluefields has installed hospitals ashore, where scores are being cared for. The procession of sick and wounded men through the town is said to be pitiful.

With a view to relieving the situation, Secretary Knox last night consulted with the American Red Cross and immediately afterwards sent a despatch to Thomas H. Moffatt, U. S. consul at Bluefields, saying that the Red Cross to-day would telegraph $5,000 and would send another $5,000 if needed. The cablegram said, also, that the Navy Department had instructed Capt. Shipley to land supplies from American ships now at Bluefields, and that orders would be given the Prairie, now at Colon, to transport immediately to Bluefields, from the stores intended for the marines, or from the Panama Canal commissary department, such supplies as might be requested, to the limit of $5,000, which will be recouped from the Red Cross funds.

PRESIDENT ZELAYA.

The despatch of this telegram, followed close on the receipt of a graphic report from Consul Moffatt, depicting the state of affairs in Bluefields. He reported that more than 900 men on [illegible] both sides were killed in the recent battle at Rama. The despatch follows:

"Two thousand starved, emaciated prisoners have been brought here from Zelaya's surrendered army. The sight of the sick and weary, tottering through the streets, is horrible; half are mere boys. The emergency hospital established by the Des Moines and Tacoma contains 90 wounded, the city hosiptal 60. Few of the surrendered army had shoes or blankets. Scores were almost naked. All are in a pitiable condition. Estrada is furnishing them with blankets, clothing, shoes and food as best he can. Flour, beans, rice, sugar, coffee and condensed milk are needed instantly to feed the starving Zelaya soldiers. Disease and death threatens unless they are properly given best of food and care.

"The great and sudden demand for proper clothing and food for the suffering is a problem for the provisional Government, whose resources are exhausted. Their own men, numbering 3,000, are well fed and clothed, but they cannot find means whereby to care for their increased burden."

"I have discussed the seriousness of the situation fully with Captain Shipley of the Des Moines, and believe, and suggest that a ship should be sent to Colon immediately to bring here sufficient quantities of the provisions enumerated to feed 2,000 men for thirty days. Present situation threatens starvation and disease. It is estimated now that over 900 were killed on both sides."

Orders were issued last night to the Prairie to be in readiness to sail at once from Colon with supplies.

Zelaya Needs Escort.

Managua, Nicaragua, Dec. 24.—Ex-President Zelaya will leave here today and probably will go aboard the Mexican gunboat Gen. Guerrero immediately. The gunboat is now lying in the harbor of Corinto. The Mexican Minister left here yesterday for Corinto.

Owing to the hostile demonstrations which have been going on here for the past few days against the old administration, it is likely that Zelaya will proceed to Corinto escorted by a strong guard.

News of the defeat of the Zelayan arms at Rama has been carefully guarded from the public. Various rumors have been current, but alleged officials despatches from Gen. Gonzalez claimed victory for the Government troops. These have been spread broadcast, but the truth has at last begun to filter through various sources that the revolutionists have won the battle around Rama and soon are to turn their guns in the direction of the capital.

The present Government is in no condition to oppose the advance of Gen. Estrada's army. President Madriz has behind him a strong political force, but few fighting men and no preparations have been made to repel an attack.

DIDN'T FIND MAN-EATER

Nogales, Aris., Dec. 24.—The mystery and glamor surrounding Tiburon Island, Gulf of California, has been dissipated effectually through the return of seven American explorers who visited the island. They had supposed it to be inhabited by man-eating Seri Indians, and to contain hidden treasure and rich mineral deposits.

It contains no human beings, but there are hundreds of deer and myriads of wild pigeons.

DID CONSTABLE RISPIN STEAL?

Hagersville, Dec. 24.—Constable Rispin was yesterday committed for trial by Magistrates Howard and Crositer on charges of theft from Almas and Hewitt's seed store.

Almas testified that he and his partner lay in wait Wednesday night, Dec. 18, and that Rispin entered by a window. Almas let fly with a load of birdshot, but accused got out and escaped in a wagon. Witnesses from Hamilton failed to identify Rispin as having sold them seed.

The prisoner has been a constable for two years, with a good record.

THE TRAGEDIES IN ONE WOMAN'S LIFE

New York, Dec. 24.—Mrs. Louis Labett, finds little to be merry about this Christmas time. Her husband was murdered eighteen months ago, her two eldest children have died within the year, her father, mother, and five other relatives were lost in the Messina earthquake, and yesterday she herself pleaded guilty to the killing of Dominick Versaisi, who she believed was the slayer of her husband. She shot and killed Versaisi, in alleged self-defence. She was sentenced to the Bedford Reformatory for women.

WAS TWICE A BIGAMIST

Woodstock, Dec. 24.—George Thornton, a young man whose home is in Ingersoll, was charged at the Police Court yesterday with bigamy. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Thornton was tried on the same charge here four years ago, but was let go on the condition that he would look after his second wife. He went to Flint, Mich., after deserting two little ones, and married a third wife.

On a warrant sworn out by his second wife he was arrested Wednesday. His only plea was that women had led him astray.

LONG LIVE KING ALBERT

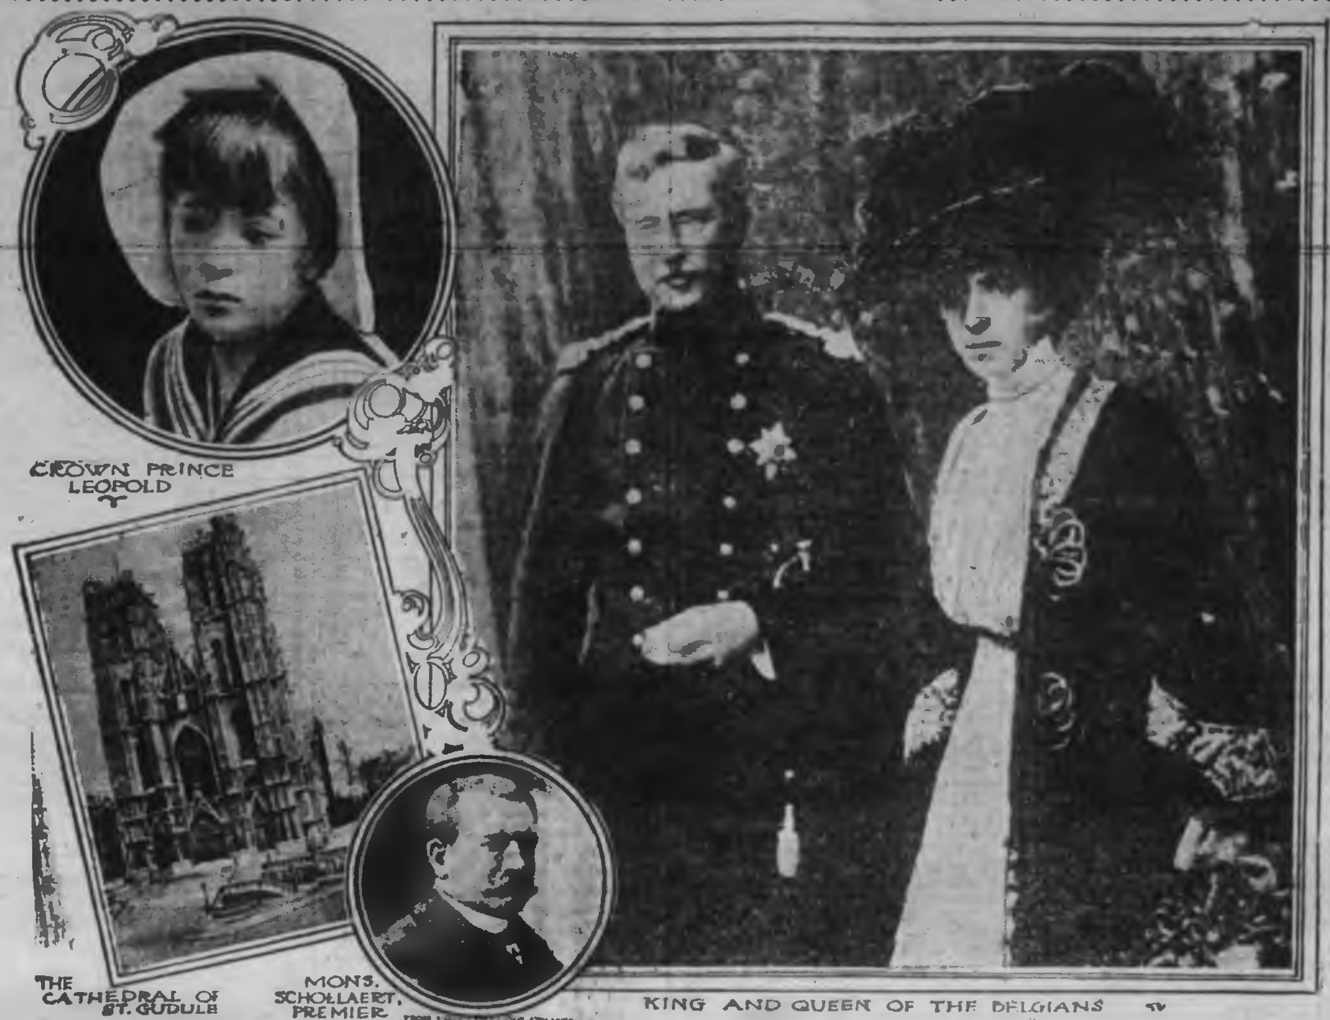
Brussels, Dec. 24.—Albert I., King of the Belgians, with his Queen Elizabeth, made a state entry into the capital from Lacken yesterday morning. Cannon boomed a royal salute, church bells rang out merrily and thousands of adoring subjects lined the route of the regal march, crying "Long live Albert" and "Long live Elizabeth."

A feeble attempt of the Socialists to make a demonstration failed miserably.

"In the Congo the nation wishes a policy of humanity and progress enforced," he said. "The mission of colonisation cannot be other than a mission of high civilization."

SAYS BRITAIN STANDS ALONE

London, Dec. 24.—A Berlin despatch says Prof. Theodore Schiemann, writing to The Kreuz Zeitung, says that in the British colonies very little attention is paid to antagonism between Great Britain and Germany. Never had the fact been more clearly demonstrated that Great Britain is a country standing by herself, and that the colonies had grown into separate nations, with their own separate interests.



CROWN PRINCE LEOPOLD

THE CATHEDRAL OF ST. GUDULE

MONS. SCHOLLAERT, PREMIER

KING AND QUEEN OF THE BELGIANS

GREEK CRISIS WAS AVERTED

Minister of War Resigns and the Premier Takes Over the Portfolio.

Athens Dec. 24—Col. Lapthiotis, Minister of War, resigned last evening, thus temporarily averting the crisis which the military league threatened to bring about. Earlier in the day the league announced its intention of overthrowing the Ministry and replacing it with the one chosen on a business basis.

This would mean a military dictatorship.

Col. Zorbas, president of the military league, had a prolonged interview with the King, as a result of which the league consented to a compromise under which Col. Lapathiotis would retire from the War Ministery for the remainder of the Parliamentary session, the Premier taking that portfolio ad interim.

It is understood that ex-Premier Theotokis has agreed to the compromise, but the announcement was made that the War Minister had resigned for all time, owing to the league disavowing some promotions he had made in the army.

The military league, whose members were the authors of the recent revolutionary movement in Greece, had announced its intention to overthrow the Ministry of its own choosing.

In a manifesto issued yesterday, the league declares that it is responsible to the country and recognizing that the representatives of the nation do not conform to the will of the people, it is obliged immediately to confide the nation's interests "in strong hands which will not fail as long as life animates them."

The Cabinet will likely resign, and be replaced by an extra Parliamentary Ministry which, it is expected, will have the support of the chamber.

CANADA BUYS A SHIP; H.M.S. RAINBOW FIRST VESSEL OF NEW NAVY

Second Class Twin-Screw Cruiser Will be Sent to the Pacific Coast Station—Was Built in 1891, and is Obsolete—Will be Used as Training Ship.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—H.M.S. Rainbow has been purchased by the Canadian Government. It is the first vessel of the new Canadian navy and will be stationed on the Pacific coast.

The Rainbow is a second-class twin screw cruiser of the Apollo type, and is to be used as a training ship, while also engaged in the fisheries protectionservice. She is now undergoing repairs in England and will be sent to Canada in the spring via the Suez Canal.

This vessel was built in 1891, and is therefore obsolete. Her original cost was $920,000, but the price which Canada will pay is not announced. The details of her construction are: Tonnage, 3,400; indicated horsepower, 7,000; forced draught, 9,000; length, 300 feet; beam, 43 feet; draft, 16 feet 6 inches; armor in the gun division, 4 1-2 inches; speed 20 knots; coal supply, 4,000 tons. The armament of the Rainbow is: two six-inch guns, six 4.7 guns, eight six-pounders, one three-pounder and four torpedo boats.

The Government is at present negotiating for the purchase of a second and a larger vessel, which will be stationed on the Atlantic coast.

The purchase of the Rainbow has occasioned considerable surprise. Critics of the Government cannot understand why the Government has entered into an elaborate scheme regarding a navy before the naval bill has been introduced in the House.

While the Government can do practically what it likes in the matter, there is this criticism made, that it is contrary to the usual policy of conducting national business. The country through its representatives has not been given an opportunity of passing upon the question.

It is stated here, and evidently with some show of reason, that when the Government's naval defence bill is brought down in the Commons next month it will contain nothing in the nature of a definite policy regarding armament, but will merely provide for the creation of a Canadian admiralty, on the same lines as the act creating the Canadian militia.

MUST PROTECT PASSENGERS

Winnipeg, Dec. 24.—Justice Metcalfe yesterday awarded Miss Ann Isbister, a nurse, $4,000 damages against the Dominion Fish Co., in a suit arising out of the burning of the steamer Premier on Lake Winnipeg last year. It was a test case and will probably result in several other suits.

The judge ruled that common carriers of passengers are bound to use all due, proper and reasonable care to carry passengers safely. Either there was no watchman on duty, or if on duty he must certainly have been very negligent, otherwise the crew and passengers would have been aroused in time to have insured their safety.

LOTTERY AGENTS WERE ARRESTED

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Two men, alleged to be foreign lottery agents, were arrested here yesterday by postal inspectors, acting under orders from U. S. District Attorney Sims. The men arrested are Samuel Freudenberg, said to be an agent of the Roya Saxony Lottery and the Hamburg City Lottery, and Herman Kompel, alleged to be an agent of the Royal Saxony Lottery.

$50,000 Montreal Fire.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—Fire last night did $50,000 damage to the premises and stock of the Globe Hat Works and the Canadian Iron & Foundry Co. The loss on the hat works is placed at $30,000, with $12,000 insurance, and on the foundry at about $20,000, fully covered.

Four firemen were injured by falling walls, but none seriously.

QUARTETTE ARRESTED FOR THEFT

Chatham, Dec. 24.—Theo Gonyou (white), and Harvey Wilson, Ida Wilson and George Scott (colored) are now in jail awaiting trial for the robbery of Albert Toulouse and Noah Sampire, two Frenchmen from Big Point, who put up Wednesday night at Wilson's place on Queen street, south. Toulouse was touched for $33, and Sampire for $10, as well as about half their clothes. When a policeman went to make the arrests, the four occupants of the shack set upon him, and he was forced to use his revolver.

BLACK HAND AT SANDWICH

Windsor, Dec. 24.—Sandwich has a real black hand scare. Threatening letters have been received by three men within two days. Dieudonne Merit received the first missive decorated with a black hand, skull and cross-bones, and containing a threat of hanging, couched in French. Jules Robinet and E. Bisceigneal received similar letters.

Double Murder; Three Arrests.

Chillicothe, Ohio, Dec. 24.—Mrs. Jennie Jackson, colored, and her two-year-old granddaughter, were murdered Wednesday night and the house fired by their slayers. Firemen found the bodies still warm. John Haughmer, William Swan and Dilly McKinley, mother of the murdered child, have been arrested.

TRY A REVIEW WANT AD.

THIS MUSIC FIRM HAD PLENTY TO DO

The Peterborough Music Company report a strenuous Christmas season, and the proprietor, Mr. J. P. Cunningham, thinks the general public's interest in music and all that pertains to it, has been given great impetus during the year 1909. The demand for high-class pianos has been greater than ever before in the history of the firm, and the sale of sheet music and small musical instruments has been remarkable. This is a gratifying sign, apart from a business standpoint, and is not only a proof of advanced education, but of a decided improvement in the times.

ACCIDENT AT CHAPLEAU ONT.

Special to the Review.

North Bay, Ont., Dec. 24.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Winnipeg to Toronto express, No. 94, was ditched near Chapleau at one o'clock this morning. No fatalities are reported, but seventeen passengers are said to be injured. The train consisted of twelve coaches, each crowded with passengers on their way east for the Christmas holidays.

NO CHALLENGE TO MR. LASTER

Mr. B. Lastar requested the Review to state to-day that there was no challenge to him made at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night. On the contrary he states that his challenges have not been accepted.

TURNBULL'S HAVE HAD BUSY TIME

The J. C. Turnbull Company's staff will welcome a day or two's rest after a strenuous two week's rush handling the Christmas trade. They have had their hands more than full and the firm are naturally delighted with the holiday trade. They are giving special inducements in ladies' ready-to-wear garments, especially suits and coats. Another line that is being made special is the fur goods still on hand. The firm are closing out all their furs and fur-lined coats, and making prices especially attractive in order to do this in a short time.

ROUTLEY'S MADE A NEW RECORD THIS YEAR

Routley's big fancy goods, China, wall paper and toy store, has become recognized as an ideal spot for the Christmas buyer, because the variety is so great and the selection so choice. This year has been a record one in all lines, and the Christmas trade considerably in advance of any former year. The week between Christmas and New Years is to witness a big clear out in all left over gift lines, and an exceptional opportunity will be given all who have any afterthoughts or overlooked friends to provide for, at very greatly reduced prices. All these lines will be sacrificed in order to clear them out.

CHAMBERLAIN IS BUSY WRITING TELLING LETTERS ON POLITICAL AFFAIRS

He Says Tariff Reform Should Not Make Food Dearer in Great Britain—Lloyd-George is on the Trail of the Lords With Fierce Arraignment.

London, Dec. 24.—The pre-Christmas campaign has not clarified the situation, but has rather complicated the issues before the British electors. The "silent" 20 per cent. vote, who are supposed to sway the election, will be glad of the holidays to rest their eardrums and analyze the programs.

At present there are not wanting signs that the Ministerialists, from the Premier and Chancellor of the Exchequer downwards, are quite satisfied with the progress made. But of course a vigorous New Year campaign, by the Conservatives, with Balfour leading, may change their confident demeanor.

It is officially stated that writs will now be issued from the crown office Jan. 10, thus corresponding with 1906, and giving the Radicals what they claim to be the advantage of a Saturday poll in the earlier constituencies.

Joseph Chamberlain is making up for his forced silence by a series of telling letters. In one he says: "I do not find any difficulty in answering those who profess to believe that tariff reform will make food dearer. In Germany it has not raised the cost of living. I do not see why it should do so in this country. On the other hand, we may arrange matters so that goods imported free are raw material and not finished manufactures."

At Newport, Lord Tennyson read a letter from Mr. Chamberlain, stating that he hoped this election would be the end of the system which had made possible all we complain of, especially unemployment.

Lord Milner, speaking at Cardiff, said the present duty of the people was to consider the relative position of both parties and disentangle it from irrelevant matters, which had been raised to prejudice one party. The people was to consider the financial proposals of the Government against what was really the true interests of the country.

John Burns, at Nine Elms, complained that the placards and cartoons of the Unionists were scandalous. They were issued in the interests of the food-taxer and trusts, which would get a footing through the tariff to bring about the moral degradation of the people, as well as political corruption. It was monstrous that London should be subjected to such grotesque exaggerations, which hid the facts from the people.

Mr. MacNamara declared that the Tory party had landed itself in for a record defeat. So far as he could see, they knew it, and they knew they could not face the constitutional issue raised by Lansdownes' motion, so they therefore rushed frantically from one expedient to another. It was not interesting to record the result of the plebiscite taken at Gateshead in order to prevent a three-cornered contest. If postcards sent out, 7,101 were returned, the result being: Elverston, Liberal, 3,617; Johnson, Labor, 2,326; Doyle, Unionist, 1,060.

In his Welsh campaign Lloyd-George is turning down the dukes, whom he believes he has utterly smashed to what have been called "prancing proconsuls of Unionism." The following is an incident of his Llangelly speech yesterday: "We have four noble lords traveling the country. Milner, you know him, evidently we are still paying his debts. (Laughter.) Until they are all paid it would be better for him if he stayed at home. Then there is Cawdor, who has a special claim to speak his mind to the people, having been rejected twice by constituencies that knew him best. (Cheers and laughter.)

"Two other noble lords, Middleton and Curson, have both been saying rather rude things about me. (Laughter.) I do not mind it really, but I will show them my appreciation of rudeness by telling the truth about them. Who is Lord Middleton? The hereditary system has at least one advantage, it enables a man, who used to be called Broderick, to call himself Middleton, when he wants the people to forget that he was ever a Broderick. (Laughter and cheers.) As Broderick, he has one claim to distinction. He wanted more public money than any living man except Milner. (Laughter and cheers.) He made such a mess of the War Office that even the Tory Government, and I suppose that was about the worst this country has ever seen, could stand him no longer, so they sent him to the Indian Office to help Lord Curson meddle the affairs of the Indian Empire. (Cheers.) If you asked Lord Middleton whether I have been too hard on Curson, he would say that I rather understated the case. If you asked Curson whether he thinks I am too hard on Middleton, he would say I was rather mild. (Laughter.) They do love each other. (More laughter.) These are the saviours, these be the gods, oh protectionist Israel! (Laughter and cheers.) It is a pretty quartette, Cawdor, Milnor, Middleton and Curson, singing these Christmas carols about the country." (Loud laughter.)

THE PLANS OF QUEBEC BRIDGE

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The chief bridge builders of the United States, Great Britain, Canada and other countries have been invited to send representatives to the office of the Quebec bridge engineer in Montreal after Jan. 3, and examine the plans of the proposed new structure which will replace the bridge which met with disaster about two years ago, and lost the lives of sixty workmen.

Three months will be allowed for a study of the plans and then tenders will be asked for.

Work on the superstructure is expected to begin late next summer, and the bridge will probably occupy four years in building.

FARM VALUES IN U.S.

The growth of the U. S. has not been in industrials alone. The farm assets of the U. S. are 35 thousand millions of dollars. The annual farm products amount to over nine thousand millions. The number of farms is 6,741,000.

The U. S. farmer's assets are double those of ten years ago. Farm values have increased by 75 per cent. in ten years. No industrial system has grown at a greater rate. The protected home-market has grown to an enormous size in the U. S. It would grow in the same way in Canada if not ruined by governmental extravagance and favouritism.

"One of the greatest assets a town or city can have is a good supply of cheap electric power, both for lighting and power purposes. The town of New Liskeard, ten miles north of Cobalt on the T. & N. O. Railway, is especially favored in this respect. From the power plant on the Wabi River, a distance of about 12 miles from the town, New Liskeard gets its power for manufacturing purposes at the low rate of $18 per horsepower per year. This feature should be an attraction to manufacturers. But this is not the only thing that the Northern Ontario town has in its favor, as a manufacturing centre. It is a good distributing point. It is one of the principal stations on the T. & N. O., and the government is now building a large dock on Lake Temiskaming, to which a spur line from the railway is being built. This will make New Liskeard a centre of distribution for all points on the lake, including many places in the Province of Quebec."—Toronto World.

In the Saskatchewan Legislature the Liberals, led by Premier Scott, have voted down a resolution which says:—"That this House affirms its belief in the integral relationship, of Canada to the British Empire, and that while participating in the great and numerous benefits resulting from such relationship, Canada should for the defense of the Empire assume her rightful responsibility, and the House is of the opinion that the Dominion Parliament should, without delay, offer to the Imperial Government at least one Dreadnought." The Western Liberals apparently prefer a local navy built by Messrs. Brodeur and graft, which the Royal navy will have to defend if trouble comes. They agree neither to a Canadian unit of the Royal navy nor to a gift of a Dreadnought. A huge expenditure upon a service that will be of no use to the Empire is their ideal.—Mail and Empire.

MR. FIELDING'S FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Farmer's Sun.

A summary of the chief points in Hon. Mr. Fielding's budget speech will be found in the report of proceedings in Parliament given on page ten of this issue.

Mr. Fielding claims credit for the fact that the Government added less than sixty-five and one-half million dollars to the net debt of the country during the first twelve and three-quarter years of its period in office. The Finance Minister forgets to state that during that twelve and three-quarter years his Government received a revenue of something like twenty-four million dollars per annum in excess of the revenue of the Tupper Government in the last twelve months that Government was in power. Mr. Fielding has, therefore, received some three hundred and six million dollars during the twelve and three-quarter years ending with March 31st last more than he would have handled had the national revenue remained at the same level as when he took office. He could, instead of increasing the debt by sixty-five millions, have reduced it by that amount, and still have had one hundred and seventy-six millions more to spend on the public services than would have been available had the phenomenal increase in income not occurred. When the case is viewed from this stand-point there does not seem to be much to boast of in the record made.

ANOTHER PERIOD OF INCREASE.

The situation is not improved when we turn to the estimates which Mr. Fielding is asking Parliament to vote for the fiscal year that will begin with April 1st next, and learn that these call for an increase of $16,000,000 over and above those voted for the year now current. When the supplementaries are brought down the addition will be found to be a good deal more. It looks as if the period of extravagance, which received a temporary check during the depression of 1907-8, is about to be renewed and aggravated.

THE TRANSCONTINENTAL.

In the Transcontinental undertaking is found one of the chief causes for the fact that our debt has increased during a period in which it should have been reduced. And the facts in regard to that undertaking form one of the least satisfactory chapters in the Government's record. In 1903 the Government estimated the cost of the Eastern Division, which is being built by the Government, with public money, at $51,300,000. Up to the end of the financial year of 1909 no less than $58,391,000 had been spent; $20,000,000 more is being expended in the present year; $27,000,000 is being asked for next year. Here is a total of over $105,000,000; and the end is not yet. Mr. Borden some months since estimated that the cost of this Eastern Division, counting interest for which the country will certainly be liable, and excluding $11,000,000 of interest for which there is a contingent liability, at $150,000,000; and the facts seem to justify the estimate. The length of this division is 1803 miles. A total of $150,000,000 figures out at nearly $85,000 a mile—just about double what it cost the Canadian Pacific to build its short line to Canadian Pacific to build its short line to Sudbury.

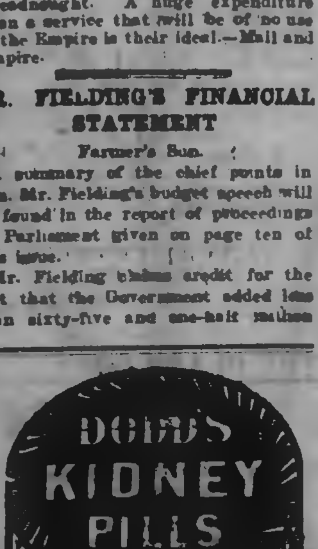
MR. FIELDING ON BOUNTIES.

In his attitude towards bounties to favored industries Mr. Fielding is still hopelessly in error. He says that during the last ten years the customs revenue at points at which iron and steel industries are in operation have been increased by over $9,000,000, and gives this as a justification for the payment of $13,377,000 in bounties to these industries in the same time. The increase in public revenue at these points was, the Finance Minister thinks, mainly owing to the stimulus given by the bounties granted. Leaving aside the fact that it is hardly good business to pay out over $13,000,000 for a return of $9,000,000 Mr. Fielding's position is wholly untenable. The payment of these bounties put favored corporations in a position to outbid farmers in the labor market, and by this means to attract labor to Sydney, the Sault and other points that would otherwise have been available for the purpose of relieving the famine on the farm. This bounty policy has thus worked a double injury to agriculture; farmers have been taxed to provide the money with which to pay the bounties and the receipt of the bounties by the steel barons has enabled the latter to attract labor from the farm and to compel the payment of increased wages for such labor as remained on the farm.

CONTROL OF COMBINES.

What Mr. Fielding proposes in regard to amendment of the law touching the control of combines can be more intelligently dealt with when the legislation promised is laid before the House. Meantime, however, this much may be said—that the present law gives the Government all the power that is necessary, if the Government is really desirous of using the power at hand. The law as it stands authorizes the Government to enquire, through a judge, into any combination that is alleged to exist; it authorizes the Government, if the judge reports a combine in existence to reduce or abolish the duty that is used as a cover for combination. The statute which covers all this is broad enough to justify the Government in employing counsel as may be ordered. What is needed is not so much more law as a will to use the law already at hand.

Mr. Laster says he challenged the challengers on the occasion of his recent challenge. Of this there may be doubt in the minds of some, but, no doubt, there is no doubt in the minds of others.



BETHEL, EMILY

Special to the Review.

Bethel, Dec. 22.—The school concert held in the school house on Monday evening, Dec. 20th, was well attended. The programme consisted of choruses, recitations, readings, dialogues, etc., by the members of the school, and a few instrumental and vocal numbers by the young people of the vicinity. The selections were well given, and at the close of the programme Mr. Reed, the new teacher, kindly treated those present to candies and nuts, etc. Mr. Reed's term expires at the holidays. He has been the teacher for the past three years, and during that time has won for himself many friends. Miss Johnston, of Lindsay, will be his successor for the coming year.

Miss Watson is the guest of her friend, Mrs. Giggins.

Mr. and Mrs. Purdy, of East Emily, have gone to spend Christmas with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Drain, of Clarina.

The members of the L.O.L. No. 294, will hold a basket social here in the Orange Hall on January 19th. Watch for further announcements.

The concert held here on Tuesday evening, December 21st, was a decided success. Rev. G. W. Henderson, of Peterborough, gave his popular address on "Plodders, Loafers and Croakers," which was very interesting and helpful to those present. The vocal and literary numbers rendered by the members of the Wilford Male Quartette were excellent and we can safely say that those who were not in attendance missed a treat. Mr. G. Balfour, of Ennismore, was chairman for the evening.

LAKEHURST

Special to the Review.

Lakehurst, Dec. 20.—Mrs. A. Hunt entertained a number of Lakehurst young ladies at a quilting last Tuesday. An enjoyable afternoon is reported.

Miss Edna Shearer has returned from a brief visit to friends in Otonabee and Havelock.

Mr. Albert Guthrie was renewing old acquaintances here last week.

The young people of the Methodist church are busy preparing a concert for Friday evening, December 24th. The programme promises to be good.

The Young Women's Mission Band, of Lakehurst Presbyterian church, held their annual meeting on Thursday afternoon, December 16th, when officers were elected for the coming year and other important business transacted.

Messrs. Archibald and David Wilson attended the fair at Guelph recently and were much pleased with their trip.

Miss May Smith, of Peterborough, Normal School, is spending her holidays with her parents.

Everyone is busy preparing for Christmas and looking forward with eager anticipation to the festive season.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

FROM THE LAKES TO THE PACIFIC

A circular signed by Mr. E. J. Chamberlin, Vice-President and General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, has just been issued appointing Captain C. H. Nicholson, Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship Lines on the Pacific Coast, with headquarters at Vancouver, B. C. He will have supervision of all matters pertaining to marine and steamship business for the Company and the Pacific Coast, the operation and maintenance of steamers, docks, etc., with such other duties as may be assigned to him from time to time.

Captain C. H. Nicholson was born at Belleville, Ont. He entered the steamboat business in 1881 as cabin boy on the old steamer "Magnet," of the Richelieu & Ontario Line. In 1882 he secured the position of purser on the steamer "Hero," operated by the late Mr. C. F. Gildersleeve, on the Bay of Quinte, and river St. Lawrence, which position he occupied for three years, when he was promoted to the Captaincy of that steamer and served as captain of the steamers 'Hero,' 'Hastings,' 'Norseman,' and 'North King' on Lake Ontario and River St. Lawrence, covering a period from 1885 to 1893. During this period he undertook a college course during the winters, taking one year at Queen's University, Kingston, and completing his course at the University of Maryland, Baltimore, Md.

When Mr. C. F. Gildersleeve organized the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Steamboat Company, Captain Nicholson was appointed General Passenger and Freight Agent, and later was appointed as representative of that Company in the United States, with headquarters at Rochester, up to the year 1902, which service was terminated to accept the position of General Manager of Transportation of the Muskoka Lakes Navigation Company in the spring of the year 1903. This position he resigned in 1901 to accept the position of Traffic Manager of the Northern Navigation Company, of Ontario, Limited, having charge of traffic and operation of the Lake Superior Division, with headquarters at Sarnia.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth goes to his old home at Newburgh, Ont., for Christmas, and Hon. Mackenzie King goes to Berlin.

HER DEATH WAS HOURLY EXPECTED

Enterprise, Ont., Oct. 1st, 1908.
"For seven years I suffered with what physicians called a "Water Tumor." I could neither sit, stand, nor lie down. Hypodermics of morphia had to be given me to ease the pain.

MRS. JAMES FENWICK

My cure seemed hopeless, and my friends hourly expected my death. I was so bad that I wanted to die, and it was during one of these very bad spells that a family friend brought a box of "Fruit-a-tives" to the house. After much persuation I commenced to take them, but I was so bad that it was only when I had taken nearly two boxes that I commenced to experience relief. I kept up the treatment, however, and after taking five boxes I was cured, and when I appeared on the street my friends said. 'The dead has come to life,' and this seemed literally true, because I certainly was at death's door."

(Signed) MRS. JAMES FENWICK.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box—6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c, or sent post-paid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited. Ottawa.

BUSY DAY FOR THE EXPRESS COMPANIES

The manager of one of the express agencies here stated to the Review yesterday that business was excellent this Christmas. "It is ahead of last year," he said, "and away in advance of 1907, but that was a poor year. We have all the business we can handle."

Three men were suffocated in a fire in E. B. Jordan & Co.'s Brooklyn factory.

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT IN THE CITY

The Matter Appearing in This Department is Furnished by the Peterboroug Temperance and Moral Reform League Which Has Arranged for its Publication.

WHERE LOCAL OPTION FAILS

With the above heading, a small pamphlet was distributed in Peterborough during the present week by those who are opposed to the Local Option movement. It would seem that the Town of Owen Sound is referred to, for a good deal of attention is given to it, and though there are now 333 other places in Ontario without licenses, only one is mentioned that in 334 municipalities there is only one in which a failure is claimed, one would almost consider the thing a success; 333 out of 334 is a pretty good record.

But no one who knows the facts believes that local option has been a failure at Owen Sound. Business has improved, the population has increased, rowdyism has almost disappeared, drunkenness has greatly decreased, and illegal selling of liquor has diminished. Such is the testimony of the best business and professional men of that town.

A FEW SAMPLES

Just to show the kind of stuff this pamphlet contains, a few quotations are made: "Alcohol is a good creative," "Total abstinence not a virtue," "An outstanding characteristic of the reformers is their supreme selfishness"; "Temperance is a virtue—total abstinence a vice"; "Read Timothy's advice, 'a little wine for the stomach's sake.'"

Those will show fairly well the reckless character of the whole thing. Perhaps the Brewers' Association, under whose auspices, if any, the pamphlet seems to be published, could point to some of the "supremely selfish" people here who are now spending their time and energy for the cause of sobriety and right. What are they getting for it? When did alcohol get to be a good creative? All recent investigation goes to show that it never has anything but an injurious effect when taken in the human system. Would some "learned" brewer please quote the passage in which Timothy gives the above advice.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

The question in regard to Owen Sound is not now so much whether or not local option is a benefit, but can the law be enforced? The lawless element boast of their ability to defy the officers of the law. We are told here in Peterborough that if we pass local option, it will be impossible to enforce it. In other words, the liquor interests openly announce their intention to defy the law when it comes into force. It is creditable to our country, or complimentary to our civilisation that any one class should be able to defy our laws? Have we got to that stage in a British colony when an interested class can say with impunity. "You go ahead and make your law and we will do as we choose about observing it!" If such is the case it is time for us to call a halt and consider whether we are drifting. But is it true? We do not believe it, but rather believe that the law-abiding citizenship of this country has heard enough of this sort of thing, and will one of these days arise and effectually put an end to it.

HON. SEABORN WRIGHT

At the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night Hon. Seaborn Wright made some striking statements, among others the following:

"The war is not with men, but with a system."

"The system has been created by the laws of the land, and therefore the people are responsible."

"The trouble is with the law that has created a system that is entirely wrong."

"Every man, woman and child in Peterborough is in the liquor business so long as the present system exists, and so long as you take $5,000 a year out of the profits of the bar in license fees which help to pay your taxes."

"I want to get out of the awful business myself. I have by my partnership in it, helped to ruin millions and I have not helped to advance a living soul. Let me get out of it."

"We are fighting to help men against a horrible system, which you people who have votes and your ancestors have created."

"If the traffic harmed no one but the present generation of drinkers, I would die at my home in Georgia tonight, for the whole business would be gone in twenty years."

"Compensation for loss of business, but no compensation for those who have lost their boys."

"Take the saloon keepers' business away! How many businesses has the saloon keeper taken away?"

"I have always understood that this country was remarkable for the vigor and success with which you enforced your laws, but I have heard more whining about inability to enforce laws since I came to Canada than in my whole life before."

"Has it come to this pass, that a British community is not able to enforce its own laws."

"If you once admit the proposition that law cannot be enforced, you take away every safeguard of society. Where is it going to land you?"

"In the days of slavery people were put on the block and their bodies sold to the highest bidder; you take your boys, flesh of your flesh, blood of your blood, bone of your bone, and sell the lot to the combined liquor interest, and you get $5,000."

"Your greatest asset is not your banks, stores, transportation lines or power privileges, but your citizens. What destroys the citizenship of your city strikes you in your most vital point."

CAMPAIGN NOTES

A Peterborough citizen has been inserting letters in the local papers in opposition to the adoption of local option in Peterborough and challenging the officers of the City Temperance League to meet him on the public platform, and discuss the issues involved. No attention has been paid to these letters and challenges. Some people have wondered why. In order that there may be no mis-conception in the minds of the public an explanation of the position of the City Temperance League seems advisable.

The party referred to claims that he only represents himself. The liquor interests state that he does not represent them. This being the case the officers of the City Temperance League have not felt that they were called upon to enter into a controversy with any private individual. They are prepared and anxious to debate the question with the recognised champions of the liquor interests, but do not care to waste time helping to draw public attention to any private individual, no matter who he may be, who may want advertising before the civic elections. Besides, all the points that have been made by the party referred to have been answered repeatedly and fully during the past few months, not only in these columns, but on the public platform during the series of meetings that have been held in Peterborough during the past few months.

The Ontario Brewers' Association is paying for the publication of the large advertisements in the Peterborough papers in an effort to prove that local option would be a bad thing for the city. We should be very grateful to them for the interest they are taking in our city affairs. What motive do you suppose can animate them? Can it be that they are afraid that if local option carries they will be able to sell as much liquor in Peterborough as they do now? Surely not, seeing that they and their friends are constantly asserting that local option increases the consumption of liquor. They can be thinking only of the material, moral and spiritual well being of our citizens.

In this column, last Saturday, it was stated that it seemed strange that the liquor interests did not give the post office address of Rev. Mr. Wasson, the author of an article opposed to local option that has been distributed in pamphlet form in Peterborough during the past couple of weeks. During the past week a certain party wrote to the city papers stating that the author's post office was given on page 24 of the pamphlet. This is not the case. Any person who has one of these pamphlets can verify this by consulting the page in question. The address of a Mr. Wasson is given on that page, but it is not the Mr. Wasson who wrote the article.

INDOOR CIRCUS AT THE Y.M.C.A. FOR TWO NIGHTS

On Friday, Dec. 31, and Saturday, Jan 1, something new in the way of entertainment will be put on in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Association. It is nothing less than an indoor circus, in which the different gym classes will take part. For the past two months, the physical director has been training those who will take part and he has had considerable experience in this line of work at his home town, where an indoor circus was an annual affair at the Y.M.C.A., the performers may be depended upon to fulfil their respective roles with credit to themselves and their instructor. Each performance will commence at 8.15 p.m. The floor of the gymnasium will be converted into a ring, and the whole interior will resemble that of the travelling circus. A glance over the following programme will show that this excellent attraction will be well worth attending.

Harvey Staunton—Ringmaster.

Overture by the famous Premier Instrumentalists.

Grand Parade and Entree—Introducing our great array of talent.

Parallel Bars—A series of bewildering gyroscopic and gymnastic cleverness by the dual bar artists, Loomis, Sisson, McCarrell, Martin, Hall.

Dumbell Drill—Exhibition of body building.

Comical Gyrations—The Whirlwind Twins on the horizontal bar. They are not real—they are only stuffed and they are wonders.

Roller Skating—The best in town, Harvey Staunton, Jack Miller.

First Aid to the Injured—Clown — Several side-splitting acts by these inimitable manufacturers of hilarity.

Exhibition of horse work—Employed Boys' Class.

Clowns—Discoverers of the North Pole—Peary-Cook.

Wand Drill Exhibition— Junior Class.

Clowns—A barrel of nonsense, fast, fascinating frolic of nonsense, by the world-famed artists.

Corncracker Dance—By that inimitable trio, the Barnyard Triplets, Isyou, Wasyou, Aintyou.

Guess!—Something funny.

Grand Finale—The celebrated Hook-the-Loops. Entire company of clowns, acrobats and gymnasts.

BESIDE THE PROMPTER

"Maria," writing on the Woman's page of the Globe;—

The stage was almost set for the opening scene, the wings were rapidly filling with pretty chorus girls, and through the atmosphere charged with the excitement of a first night, the music of the orchestra surged on great onslaughts of sound or narrowed down to the ribbony voice of the violin.

Resplendent and nerve taunt, the mimic world behind the drop curtain vibrates with intensity of purpose and concerted movement under crisp discipline.

Great lights spluttered and shone with dazzling brilliancy, stage hands moved with automatic precision, and from the dressing rooms of the principals came snatches of songs. Call-boys scurried importantly through the passages, the prompter took up his position, the signal sounded, and the curtain rolled up. From the shadowy depths of the house came a burst of applause, and the action had started in "The King of Cadonia," the play at the Royal Alexandra this week, in which dainty little Marguerite Clark is the bright particular star, although the luminary of the cast is studded with many shining lights. The mignon morsel of femininity has never, so far in her career, been associated with a failure, and as she stood by my side, between her appearances, we laughed over the theatricals of convent days and the wild excitement of being dressed up. She cooed to the doves which fluttered to her arms, and bursting into song she was once more on the stage, forming a picture of winsome attractiveness to which even the stage-lover succumbed.

The vista of rose-colored romance does not open exclusively from the footlights, side views accentuate genius and personality with just as potential results, and as for make-up a few vice-regal drawing-rooms will familiarize one with brilliant effects in complexion.

The prompter was a very polite young man, and excused himself every time he threw a missing word past me, but when it came to highly-explosive ones he side-stepped into the wing.

After changes of costumes had been effected, the big chorus sumptuously gowned, laughed and chatted, and to an onlooker like myself it might have been a ball and the pause between dances, only that every girl was exceedingly pretty and the men equally handsome, that is beneath all the paint and make-up. White shoulders were shrugged, sparkling eyes veiled beneath long lashes, and just when everything was going along nicely, like a clarion call the first note would sound, and dropping the trains of their gowns the gorgeous creatures would next be curtesying in the throne-room of the second scene. I was enjoying the actions of the funny man so much that when he gasped between recalls and wanted to know the time as his face was tired, I nearly offered sympathy before I realized that was just one of his asides to the company, who were highly enjoying the fun. In the coronation scene the mounting is superb, and supplies a gorgeous finale to a modern version of a kindly romance. The playwright knows the world these days, so he does not give us an impossible beggar maid, but ladles out romance in a lavish and well-assorted menu.

A MAP OF CANADA IN STAINED GLASS

An excellent specimen of the stained glassworkers' handicraft is afforded by a novel map that has been prepared for the west-end office of the Grand Trunk Railway System on Cockspur street, London, S.W. On a solid sheet of glass, 1 1-4 inches thick, measuring 12 feet in length and 6 feet broad, a faithful reproduction of the map of the Dominion of Canada has been executed. The names of places in great numbers, the rivers, the lakes, and the mountains are clearly shown, while the distinctive colors for the various provinces comprising the Dominion and adjacent territories of the United States have been burned in to ensure fixity. Stretching across the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific may be easily followed the route of Canada's all-red route, the Grand Trunk Pacific, by means of which millions of square miles of new grain-producing territory are being opened up to the settler. The work not only affords a graphic idea of the vastness of the great Dominion, but also gives an impressive idea of this 3,600 miles of new road. The preparation of the map was a delicate task, since it is the largest piece of ceramic work that has ever been attempted. It required the combined services of eight expert operators continuously for five months, and it is one of the most costly reproductions of a map that has ever been undertaken. In its manufacture the great difficulty was to obtain a result which would be quite legible in daylight, and which would yet be sufficiently transparent to allow of illumination by means of twenty-four 25-candle power lamps by night. The delicate blending of the various tints, the definition of the finest hair-like lines, and the distinctness of the names renders it a work of artistic and educational value. Owing to its fragile character and large size, combined with its great weight of one ton three hundredweights, its transport from Birmingham, where it was manufactured, to London, had to be carried out by special means.—"Canada," London, Dec. 4, 1909.

The Nova Scotia coal strike decreased the output by a million tons.

HONORABLY ACQUITTED

At County Police Court yesterday afternoon, Nichola Renzetti was honorably acquitted by County Magistrate Edmison.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for Renzetti. He was charged with having attempted to use a knife on Nichola Lamorgia.

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

As a help to general participation in the spirit of Christmas-tide the following from an address delivered in St. John's last Sunday, may be appropriate;— "Christmas shopping is not the only thing to be got over. We must also get over and put away the anxiety and strain which go with it. In our very keenness to carry out the spirit of the Season we have laden ourselves down with self-imposed duties which bring care and anxiety The quantity and quality of gifts are both beyond what the Season really calls for. From a Christian standpoint our obligations lie only with the children and the poor.

We all like to give pleasure also to our friends and relatives, but let us not come to look upon wide giving as a thing expected or a social duty or else we shall weigh ourselves down with a load unnecessarily large and take from the Festival much of its joy and brightness. Having done what we feel able to do let us cast off anxiety about the opinions of recipients or non-recipients. We do not ourselves wish to be the objects and means of other people's trouble and anxiety. Why not give them credit for the same feelings? Having done what we could let us now look above the bustle and rush, rising into a calmer atmosphere and coming into contact with Him who, after all, is the Central Figure of Christmas-tide. In giving worship to the new-born Saviour, in showing His spirit and enjoying His peace let us in a Christian way spend the great Christian Festival.

WHAT MANY OF US DID NOT KNOW

Saint-Pierre has a remarkable chapter on the rights of the French to the use of their language. Most of us knew that the treaty of Paris guaranteed to the French of Canada the right to the official use of their language in Parliamentary debates and in public official records. But probably few were prepared to believe that the same privilege ever extended to some of the provinces.

In addition to the right of separate schools the right of A SEPARATE LANGUAGE was permissible in Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, etc. This right was abolished. It is now sought to restore it everywhere throughout Canada. This would be impossible on a closer union of the empire.

Annexation to the U. S., Saint-Pierre says, is no better. It is necessary therefore he contends, for the French to preserve themselves.

He concludes his pamphlet with these remarkable and highly-praised sentiments. "If it is true, as I have tried to show, that the indefinite continuation of the status quo is impossible, that the federation of empire is a mere figment of the imagination and that our union with the English majority of this country or entry into the American union will lead infallibly to the disappearance of our race, IT IS OUR IMPERATIVE DUTY TO PREPARE THE WAY FOR THE COMPLETE AND DEFINITE INDEPENDENCE OF FRENCH CANADA FOR THEREIN AND THEREIN ALONE IS SAFETY."

TO BE A CONTEST

There is to be a contest for the mayor's chair. The candidates, at least those who have so far announced themselves are Mr. E. F. Mason of Mason & Co., grocers, and Mr. W. G. Morrow, manager of the Toronto Savings & Loan Company, and Hon. Geo. A. Cox's local representative. Both gentlemen are highly thought of and both are excellent business men. Peterborough is to be congratulated on the capabilities of its prospective mayor. The city is in need of a broad and progressive policy, especially in regard to power. If our natural opportunities get tied up we shall be unable to offer those facilities which attract factories and will enable us to defy competition on the part of other municipalities. The electors will no doubt take a lively interest in the campaign. Mr. Morrow has been in the field for some time but Mr. Mason, who has been considering the earnest solicitation of a large number of citizens for some time, finally announces himself to-day. Both are men of large municipal experience. Mr. Morrow was a member of the council during 1909, while Mr. Mason has been in the council at different times for several years and was chairman of finance. He has served the city in various capacities and always most satisfactorily.

GOVERNOR GLENN WILL SPEAK

Governor Glenn, of South Carolina, who will deliver addresses in George street church to-morrow night, and in the Grand Opera House on Sunday afternoon, is the convenor of the Board of Missions of the American Presbyterian church, and will receive a hearty welcome from the Christian people of Peterborough.

No Paper To-morrow

To-morrow, Christmas day, there will be no issue of the Review.

FOUND IN THE CELLAR

Blacklister Got Wise to a Bottle and it Cost Him $10.00 Another Indian Paid $15.49

Edward Heron, was fined $15.49 at the police court this morning for having secured liquor at the Head House, while being on the black list. The fine was paid.

The information was laid by License Inspector Stewart. Last November Heron called at the hotel and gave his name as Murphy and said he lived in Douro. He asked for liquor and after being served went away, but returned and asked for a number of bottles of lager. The bartender had his suspicions and called up the License Inspector, but Heron disappeared and was unable to be found till yesterday, when Constable Nicholls, of Bridgenorth, arrested him. The accused lives some distance from Bridgenorth.

A NEW ONE.

A local blacklister was assessed $10 for the same offence, but he secured his wet goods in an entirely different way. His wife bought a quantity of brandy to use in her Christmas puddings. What was left over was hidden away by her in the cellar, but it was ferreted out by the husband, who dispatched it for safe keeping.

COULDN'T REMEMBER.

Allan McDonald was a passenger on the early morning C.P.R. train this morning and he stopped off to renew old acquaintances. He brought with him a Christmas jag and at six o'clock found himself in a cell at the police station. When he appeared before the Magistrate to answer to the charge of being found drunk, he stood up and mumbled something that sounded like "I can't remember." As the city will be overcrowded with visitors to-morrow it was thought advisable to have Allan put on the 5.30 train this evening and sent on his way rejoicing.

One of the most Christman-like stores in the grand procession of Peterborough's gay stored, is that of Harry Adams, George street. "THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST"

"The Volunteer Organist," which is booked for the Grand next Monday, December 27th, with special matinee, is a play of the pastoral order and is an idyll in its way.

The story of the drama is simple, and is blended with genuine comedy and exceptional pathos. There is not a dull moment throughout the play, and the plot is never permitted to drag. It might be likened to several other well-known plays of the pastoral sort in the quaintness of the characters presented and in the realism of its reproduction of phases of rural life, but it differs from the usual run in some ways. It is without such time-worn, melodramatic elements as a deep-dyed villain, a persecuted heroine, an old mill murder; and, furthermore, it is constructed out of a popular song. The story it tells is of every-day people in a New England hill town, with the common touches of sentiment and humor, and the sermon it preaches is the good old sermon of temperance in physical indulgence and liberality in religion.

The danger of alcoholic intoxicants, the wickedness of hypocrisy and the saving grace of sincere religious professions and strictly moral conduct are all properly shown.

A PEACH OF A CAKE

With large cheerfulness the Review staff hastens to acknowledge a manifestation of the Christmas season and spirit that is gratifying and commendable. An esteemed reader of the Review, a lady, sent in for the delectation of the force a Cake It was cut and passed around and enjoyed. That cake was so good it deserves a eulogy and the builder a benediction. It was round, as all aristocratic cakes should be, say 75 picas thick and 40 picas wide, with a halo of nice crisp white icing, trimmed with festoons of nuts, foreign and domestic, a colored cornice of moulded candy and the top crissy-crossed with strings of delectable sweetness. Gee, it was a poem done up in brown! Inside was a layer of fig paste—the real thing. A large, capacious cake. Sure thing. None of your hollow affairs or baked wind like those empty affairs known as cream puffs, but your money's worth every time. The handiwork of an artist, not only eminent on solid culinary affairs, but in the higher flights of ornamental cookery as well. In view of past accomplishments and the promise of future excellencies, the Review respectfully nominates the cake constructor to a professorship at the Guelph College for Maidens-in-Training at the cheerful pastime of domestic science.

WIRE CHIEF REMEMBERED

Mr. Ernest Bruce, wire chief of the local exchange of the Bell Telephone Company, and who takes up his new duties in connection with his recent appointment of the company's branch in Collingwood, at the beginning of the year, was honored by his friends at the local exchange last evening, when he was presented with a handsome clock, accompanied by an address. The presentation took place just before six o'clock, and was made by Miss Perry, the chief operator.

Mr. Harry Soanes, who has been Mr. Bruce's assistant, and who succeeds him in the position he is vacating, read the address.

Mr. Bruce replied in appropriate and grateful terms.

Fire Chief Howard and Mr. F. W. Dean, the local manager, spoke appreciatively of Mr. Bruce's work in his official position with the local exchange.

"HAY" MILLER MARRIED NOW

Ottawa Citizen: — Lester Patrick, who was in town yesterday, says that there is not a chance of Tom Phillips playing with any of the Eastern teams this winter.

"We had him signed and sealed," said the Renfrew star to the Citizen, "for the Nelson club and then for Edmonton, but when the trips of those two clubs fell through, 'Nibs' declared that he wouldn't come East for any money. We tried hard to get him for the Renfrew club, but it was no go. Tom will never play hockey again unless it is with a Western team."

Patrick is a great admirer of the famous Phillips as a hockey player. "He is the best in the game; that's what I think of him," said Patrick. "Let me tell you that Tom Phillips is very very far from all in." Lester says that Griffiths would also come down with the Nelson club had their challenge been forwarded and accepted.

Patrick also disclosed the secret of the mystery which has been woven about "Hay" Miller, the great right wing player of the Edmonton team. The Ottawa club sent scores of letters and telegrams West to the Edmonton man, but nary a reply was received. They also sent letters to Edmonton friends of the Ottawa club with request that they be delivered to Miller personally, fearing that the officers of the Alberta champions were receiving the wires and intercepting them. Such, however, was not the case.

INTERESTING PAPER READ BY MR. WM. McILROY AT BUFFALO

The Canadian Ticket Agents' Association met this year at Buffalo, N. Y., in October, and the following paper was read at the annual meeting of the association there by Mr. McIlroy, local ticket and telegraph agent for the C.P.R.:—

A "trip around the world," looked upon as a wonderful trip not many years ago, has now become an easy undertaking, through the great advance in civilization, and the splendidly improved facilities for transporting around the world, passengers on the railroads and ocean-going steamships. Such a tour, therefore, is a most interesting study for the ticket agent, and with your kind attention I shall outline, as briefly as possible, one route.

Starting from the city of Peterborough, the tourist boards the Canadian Pacific Railway, which I have the honor to represent as ticket agent, having decided to travel westward, is transported to Toronto, thence over the new line to Sudbury, on to Winnipeg, through the immense wheat-producing fields of the great Canadian North-west, and on through the Rocky Mountains, comprising some five hundred miles of the wildest and most picturesque scenery on the continent that has been described as fifty or sixty Switzerlands rolled into one, and whose scenic magnificence has been pronounced matchless, time and time again by the Royalty of Great Britain and Europe, and prominent American travellers.

The mountain scenery passed, the tourist reaches Vancouver, the San Francisco of the north Pacific Coast, and if the steamer is not ready to sail, splendid accommodation is offered at the Hotel Vancouver, owned and operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway, noted as one of the best in America, for those qualities which go to make up the sum of a traveller's comfort.

From Vancouver the routes across the Pacific Ocean diverge, that of the Canadian Pacific Empress Steamship Line to Japan and China being nearly west, while that of the Canadian-Australian Line, operated by the C.P.R., lies southwest to Honolulu, Suva, Fiji, Brisbane and thence to Sydney. Around-the-world passengers, by these two routes, would meet again at Colombo, Ceylon.

The tourist, having selected the Canadian Pacific Empress route, boards the Empress of China, a splendid twin-screw type of ocean-going vessel, which has given a new charm to the voyage across the Pacific. They take a specified northern route by about three hundred miles, and which also usually enjoys the most pleasant weather. On such an ocean, therefore, and such a trip, it is impossible not to enjoy the trip from Vancouver to Japan, and there is much of novelty, the ways of the Pacific lines not being those of the Atlantic. There is an eastern air in the former which will be new to many. The servants are not called stewards, but "boys," they are not black-jacketed Europeans, but white-frocked celestials. There is no luncheon on board, but there is a luxurious "Tiffin" and many Oriental dishes, if the passenger is an European, and so on.

In about ten days after leaving the shores of British Columbia, the steamship is in Japanese waters, the first port reached being Yokohama, in the land of the chrysanthemum. Unless in a very great hurry—indeed, the tourist will there leave the ship and take a little time to see Japan, that rapidly increasing Oriental world power. There is much to be seen. For detailed information secure copy of Murray's Guide to Japan. The tourist can then regulate his daily programme with the greatest economy of time, and the maximum amount of sight seeing.

A run of 400 miles brings the tourist to the Woosung river, on which the great mercantile centre of Northern China is situated, the city of Shanghai, a transfer is made at Woosung to a small steamer for Shanghai, which is twelve miles up the river.

Southwest, the tourist continues his journey, and next anchors at Hong Kong, a mountainous island of 29 square miles, lying off the province of Kwang Tung, of which Canton is the capital. It is a British colony, the capital, and indeed the only city of which is Victoria, though generally spoken of as Hong Kong all over the world. It has a fine harbor which is continually crowded with warships of Britain and other nations, numerous junks, sampans (native boats) and merchant vessels of all kinds. Hong Kong with its magnificent naval dock is the base for the British Chinese squadron.

From Hong Kong the tourist continues his globe trotting trip in one of the Peninsular and Oriental, or North German Lloyd steamers through the Chinese Sea to Singapore, a very busy and important place, and a rendezvous and coaling station of the British East India Squadron, a large trade being done with the Malay Peninsula. It is famous for its flowers and fruits.

The route to Europe is continued through the Straits of Malacca, via Penang, to Colombo, where travellers from the Canadian Australian route, join the main route. Colombo is one of the most interesting points on the route. There are some good hotels there and it is noted for its beautiful drives. It is a great place for jewellery of all descriptions, unseen in shops at home, imitation ones, and other curios. Some of the finest jewels seen in the shops of London, Paris and New York are purchased in Colombo.

From Colombo, the tourist selects the Mediterranean route as far as Naples, passing through, on the way, the Gulf of Aden, the Red Sea, the Suez Canal and crosses the rippling blue waters of the Mediterranean Sea, to Naples. From there he decides to take the mail route to Genoa, thence to Lausanne, Paris and Antwerp, where he takes the steamer for the Capital City of England, "Dear Old London," where he feels that at last he is nearing "home," and can speak freely in his native language once more. You all know what a great place the city of London is, and it needs no further comment. Historic places are visited there and throughout the British Empire, not forgetting, of course, "Bonnie Scotland, and the "Emerald Isle," where those great men, O'Brien, Casey, Kelly, Charles and Cleaver were born.

The tourist having selected "The Empress of Britain" of the Canadian Pacific Atlantic Steamship Line, feels right at home when he steps upon the deck of this splendid Canadian-owned and operated vessel, and feels proud of his native land, when he thinks of having travelled more than half the way around the world on the Canadian-owned railways and steamships. He has experienced the pleasure derived from the strange and beautiful sights which he has seen, and insight gained in the trade, and economy of the eastern and western people, whose easy intercommunication is rapidly influencing the trade and political relations of the world.

The broad Atlantic is soon crossed in the palatial "Empress" steamer, and considerable discussion here take place, about a side trip to the North Pole, before landing in Canada, but this could not be arranged, as "Cook's Tours" to that ice-bound burg are still in doubt.

With mingled feelings of pleasure and patriotism the traveller sights the shores of his native land, "Canada," and he is glad to be "Still nearer home". The "Empress" lands at Quebec, that picturesque and historic city, on the noble St. Lawrence river, with its magnificently located Canadian Pacific Hotel, "The Chateau Frontenac," where he boards the special train awaiting arrival of steamship, passes through the French section of Canada to Montreal, the largest mercantile centre in the Dominion, with a tremendous shipping trade, and finally lands at his starting point, the Electric City of Peterborough, with its cheap power, charming inland waters, the biggest canoe factories, the largest lift-lock and the biggest ticket agent in the world.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Peterboro People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is constant day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache and urinary disorders.

Peterborough evidence proves this statement.

Mrs. Geo. Hawes, of 857 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says:

"I suffered for some time with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble, and although I had tried many remedies and doctors, found little or no relief. My back was weak and a dull, bearing down pain had settled across the small of it and extended into my shoulders and around my sides. I was weak and languid, and the least exertion would tire me out. Dizzy spells were frequent and often I would awake with a severe headache. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid & Jury's pharmacy and soon found them to benefit me. I continued their use, and in a comparatively short time I was as well and strong as ever, and without a symptom of the painful and longstanding disease."

DECORATIONS AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Work of Ladies' Auxiliary and Boys' Department Very Much in Evidence

The interior of the Young Men's Christian Association presents a very pleasing appearance as a result of the artistic work of the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary and Boys' Department. The decorations of evergreens, flags and bunting make a pretty effect. A new stained glass effect has been added to the upper portion of the east window of the parlor. Drapings have also been placed on the windows and similar improvements will be made to the main reading room by the ladies.

Y.M.C.A. BOYS' CAMPAIGN

Will be Industriously Engaged in the Raising of $250.00 on Tuesday and Wednesday

The boys of the Y.M.C.A. are evidently in earnest regarding their campaign to raise $250 on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, as they are not contributing towards the $25 which was decided to be paid by the members themselves.

Enthusiasm is constantly rising, and they do not anticipate any refusals when canvassing for the balance on the 28th and 29th inst.

BUSY PLACE AT SCHNEIDER'S

Never in all the history of Peterborough did the jewellery stores of the city come in for so large a share of the Christmas shopping as they have done this year.

One has only to follow the crowd into Schneider's jewellery store to realize how much the people still adhere to jewellery for their Christmas gifts. Never is a happier, jollier crowd to mix in with. This store is radiant with the very latest productions of the jeweller's art and other handicrafts. It must be put to the credit of Schneider's store that it is showing itself in an exceedingly enterprising way this year and it will hold its own with any of the great stores of larger cities for extensiveness and variety. Nobody need go out of the city to procure their Christmas tokens, because suitable presents and suitable prices can be found in endless variety at Schneider's.

"Blind Pig" or Decent Bar?

Under license, men drink moderately, and are restricted to good behavior. No Ontario licensed bartender dare sell to a drunken man, nor to a minor —his very living depends upon the decency of his bar.

Under local option, men drink by stealth and to excess—because there is no restraint. Local option substitutes the "blind pig" for the decent bar, and the seller welcomes minors.

Local option hurts the community that tries it. Owen Sound proves that.

In every community where local option has been tried, drunkenness has increased. In one Ontario town arrests for drunkenness have increased 80 per cent under local option.

Naturally. For when men drink by stealth, hidden from the eyes of their community, they drink far more than they would (or would be allowed to) under license. Their self-respect, and the law, keeps them straight. Local option hides and increases intemperance—never checks it.

TIMES MUTATION

Only in dreams the dear ones come,
The lov'd and best of yore;
Oh, changeful earth! Is this the sum
Of what we here adore!

How strange and drear all things appear,
Since faithful consort died!
Then mother slept and grasses crept
While stars and ripples vied,
To cheer the eventide.

But father stayed, and partly made
The home that was before;
Through storm and shine, for summers nine,
But oh, he comes no more!

The fair, sweet boy that manly grew
As drags'd slow years—and then,
Erstwhile I dreamed, (afar it seemed)
My brothers would be men.

But parted here, for many a year
In senses more than one,
Fond mem'ry sure, the visions lure
That fade with rising sun.

The thoughts o'erwhelm; 'tis but the realm,
Of dream-land's equipoise!
Time, slow and gray, once stole away
My pride those bonnie boys!

Two idol-sisters came at length,
Brimming the joy-cup o'er;
To me, the blandishment, the strength
Methought, to farther shore.

In silence, resting till the morn,
One poet-child lies still;
Another lives to bless, adorn,
Fulfilling His sweet will.

The one who lov'd by deed not word,
Remote, almost unknown,
Akin to pinion'd prison'd bird,
Sings low a minor tone.

THE CONSTRUCTION WORK COMPLETED

On the New Waterworks Dam and Pump House —Contract Finished in Remarkably Short Time---Review of the Work

The old wooden waterworks dam, which has served the growing needs of the city of Peterborough for the past twenty years, is now practically rendered a time-honored prisoner by the satisfactory completion of the construction work of the new dam and power house which spans the Otonabee river a short distance below the old structures. The new dam is as striking an example of enduring solidity as the old one was of temporary usefulness.

The new dam and pump house embody the highest development of engineering skill in the application of concrete to structural purposes where strength and enduring qualities are demanded. They will remain as a monument to all concerned in their construction—the water commissioners who foresaw the advisability of them, the engineer who designed them, and the contractors who "well and truly" did the work.

The city is to be congratulated upon the successful completion of a work which provides the essential medium for one of the most complete waterworks systems in the country.

A matter worthy of note, and one which reflects great credit on those in charge of the work, is the fact that the contract is completed in six months, when the contract allowed a year and a half in which to complete the construction.

Operations in connection with the construction commenced on the 28th of June of the present year, and on an average the number of men employed on the work has been 150 a day up to about the 10th of this month, when the number was reduced to 100, at which figure it was kept up to the 16th of this month, when about 60 were retained to finish the work the contract called for, which was done last evening at the close of the day's work. This means that the construction of the dam and power house is completed. The operations will be resumed on the first Monday in January, however, in order that some finishing touches may be put on the construction work.

It is expected that the installation will be completed and all the work done by the month of March, and the pump house and dam will be in a finished state in every detail.

The installation commenced about a week ago, the first work being the getting of the wheels in the power house. The 30 h.p. boiler for heating purposes has been installed and bricked in, and is now ready for the steam to be turned on.

The William Hamilton Company have the contract from the Water Commissioners for the installation of the machinery, and after the wheels have been placed in the pumps will be installed. There will be four wheels and pumps in the pump house, two new ones and two from the pump house at the old dam. When this is done, all that will be required will be to lay the pipes from the power house to connect with the main in the city.

The up-to-date plant of the Bishop Construction Company provided every advantage for hte quick construction of the work, and besides every facility has been afforded both the contracting engineer and superintendent of construction by their respective departments.

An eight-ton crane spanning the full width of the building, and which may be worked the full length of it, is being used for the installation of the wheels and pumps. It will be employed in the power house after the installation of the plant has been completed, and it will be used for any purpose that may suggest itself, such as the handling of heavy machinery in case repairs are necessary.

On the work at the dam Mr. A. W. Elson Fawkes, C.E., is the resident engineer for Mr. William Kennedy, Jr., of Montreal, the Water Commissioners' consulting engineer. He has been most thorough and satisfactory in his work, which has met with the unqualified approval of the commissioners. As is generally known, the contract for the dam is in the capable hands of the Bishop Construction Co., of Montreal, and their superintendent on the construction is Mr. A. G. Morrison, of Montreal. Mr. Morrison has had a big task before him, and great responsibility. He has superintended the operations, however, in a most workmanlike and skilful way, and the construction has not only proceeded in remarkably fast time, but has been performed in a very thorough manner, for which Mr. Morrison must be given unstinted credit. It is a fact that speaks for itself, that the dam has been the most quickly constructed of any concrete dam on the Trent waterway that nearly approaches it in size.

The dam and power house, or pumping station, spans the width of the river at the place of construction—339 feet. In the construction 100 tons of steel has been used, 7000 cubic yards of concrete, 8146 cubic yards of excavations have been taken out. With the four pumps in operation in the pump house the daily pumping capacity will be ten and a half million gallons of water a day, as against

THE PUMP HOUSE.

The upper portion of the power house is of brick and concrete. The foundation is concrete. The walls of the pump house below the water level are four feet thick, and above this are three feet in thickness.

The roof is of concrete with an air air space of one inch between the roof, and the sheeting of one-inch lumber, which is covered with Carey's felt roofing. The roof is from 9 to 7 inches in thickness—9 on the outer edges and 7 in the middle—and slopes four ways, the gradual lessening of the thickness toward the middle providing a gentle slope to allow the water to run to the middle, where pipes drain it off into the wheel pits below.

It is 56 feet from the bottom of the river, where the excavation commenced to the top of the building. There is a concrete floor in the basement of the pump house, and above this about 9 feet is the concrete floor of the upper section of the pump house proper. From this floor to the ceiling it is a distance of 28 feet. There is a double door entrance to the pump house from the front and rear with a single door also in the front. In the front of the building which faces west on the Lakefield road, there will be a graded concrete approach, and the grounds in front will be levelled and sodded. When all is completed the appearance presented will be neat and attractive.

As before mentioned, there are four wheels in the power house, and consequently four openings to the wheel pits, where the water will come down from above to operate the wheels, which may be individually controlled. In connection with these there is the suction chamber.

CONCRETE EXTENSION.

A concrete extension of about 40 feet has been constructed on the east side of the pump house, and here provision is made for two more wheels, which might be used either for the development of electrical power or to operate additional pumps for the city water supply service. This addition, with the present equipment of the pump house, gives ample provision for present requirements and any that are likely to arise in the future.

SLUICES IN DAM.

On the main dam all the sluices are divided by four foot piers. There are on the main dam, five 20 foot sluices, one six foot log sluice, and in the addition east of the power house there are two 20 foot openings for further development, if such is necessary.

At the pump house there are the four openings referred to to supply the water for the wheel pits, and on extreme west a four foot garbage sluice to carry away the floating chips, etc., that are caught in the racks and raked up on the top of the concrete to the north of the power house and conveyed on a truck to the garbage sluice.

In front of the suction chamber is a double screen of very fine mesh, which guards against any floating material, that the racks have been unable to exclude.

The dam is of solid concrete and extends of course, from the 28 foot emergency extension to the east of the power house, to the east bank of the river. It is supported by concrete piers, which, as before mentioned, divide the sluiceways.

760 FOOT CORE WALL.

Running along the west bank of the river is a 760 foot concrete core wall 18 inches in thickness at the bottom, 1 foot thick at the top and of a height sufficient to make it three feet above the permanent normal water level. It is embanked on either side with 6 feet of earth, and is 12 feet across the top level. The purpose of the wall is to prevent the water, when it is at a high level, from flooding the roadway, and it runs, naturally, parallel with the road.

BEAR CREEK DIVERSION.

At a large expense it was found necessary in order to take every precaution that the water for the city's use, pure, to divert the course of a stream known as Bear Creek, which used to run into the river about 125 feet below the old pumping station. The creek drains a large section of country and runs from the east to the river. Since its diversion it passes into an intake, on the opposite side of the road from the river, into a concrete pipe three feet in diameter and empties into the river immediately below the new pump house. The diversion is 600 feet in length, and considerable difficulty was experienced in carrying on the excavation, seven feet of solid rock being encountered in places.

The above is neither an expert nor critical review of the work written of, but is simply intended to convey a general idea to the lay reader of the splendid results that have been accomplished in the construction of the new dam and pumping station, and to give some conception of the work from the standpoints of most general interest.

HAD LEG CUT OFF BY TRAIN

An unfortunate accident befel Cyril Rathbone, the ten-year-old son of Mr. F. A. Rathbone, 660 Downie street, this afternoon about three o'clock, when he had a leg cut off by the wheels of one of the cars of a Grand Trunk freight train.

The young lad, with two other companions, Berrill Moore and Roderick Cameron, had been coasting on the hills during the afternoon and finally decided to try the long hill on Aylmer street, north. They had crossed the track which crosses the street above Dublin street, and as the train was passing, Rathbone ran along beside it and he slipped under the wheels.

The Dan Spence Ambulance was called and the victim of the accident was taken to the Nicholls Hospital.

FURNITURE WAS IN MUCH DEMAND

E. B. Clegg Has Had Big Xmas Trade This Year

Furniture is a class of goods, by the sale of which the prosperity of a community can very easily be judged. In conversation with Mr. E. B. Clegg, the extensive dealer in this line on George street, he told a Review representative that the year's business had shown a marked improvement over that fo the last few years previous. The demand has been largely for the higher class furniture, and the present designs in this quality of goods have appeared to be especially pleasing and satisfactory. A feature he mentioned was that the same design is being carried out in the cheaper grades of furniture as in the higher grade, a fact that seems to be appreciated. This house has taken exclusive control of the Macey sectional book cases and office fyling cases, which are becoming a standard line, and the demand is growing rapidly. They also handle a lot of fine oak mantels and tile grates, another line that is coming into very general use.

PRESENTATION MADE BY PUPILS TO THEIR TEACHER

A pleasant event took place last Monday night, during a concert given by the pupils at May's school, when they presented their teacher, Miss S. Hamilton, with a suit case, and an address. During her duties at the school, Miss Hamilton has endeared herself to her pupils by her unselfish efforts on their behalf, and her departure is sincerely regretted. The address was as follows:

Miss S. Hamilton.

Dear Teacher,—We, your pupils, have learned with sincere regret of your departure from our school. During the years of faithful service among us, your efforts to advance us in our studies have been untiring and invaluable, while at the same time you have shown yourself our truest friend and adviser.

We wish to acknowledge the debt we owe you on account of your fidelity to our best interests, and are sure that your influence has been a greater factor in moulding our lives than you yourself suspect.

We will ever remember with pleasure and gratitude the days we have spent under your wise and efficient training, and as a slight expression of our appreciation and esteem we wish to offer you this token, and our hope and prayer is that during the year of well-earned rest which you anticipate, you will enjoy health and happiness, and we do sincerely hope that you may be able to remember with feelings of pleasure, your stay among us in S.S. No. 2, North Monaghan.

Signed on behalf of the school:

HUNDREDS DRIVEN FROM HOMES BY PHENOMENAL OCEAN WAVES

Highest Water Since 1851 Creeps Over Atlantic Seaboard Around Boston and Four Persons Are Known to be Drowned—Chelsea Suffers.

Toronto, Dec. 27.—A heavy fall of snow everywhere piled high by a strong northeast wind, covers New England, most of the middle Atlantic States and a fringe of the middle west and south. Trains are late and many places stalled. Throughout the east wire communication is seriously crippled and cities and country highways are impassable.

Some loss of life is reported. At Boston a great tidal wave crept into a house, drowned a man and his wife in bed, and then crept away. Two men were drowned near Seymour, Conn., when a trolley car plunged into the river. The crew of the steamer Thurman, ashore on the Jersey coast, was taken off by life-savers.

At Chelsea, so recently devastated by fire, 2,500 persons have been driven from their homes by high water.

Three deaths in the city were charged yesterday to the severity of the storm. The victims were men who had spent the night vainly seeking shelter and food, finally succumbing to exposure. Joseph Hart, 65 years old, died in a pew at a Catholic Church yesterday, probably of exhaustion after wandering in the cold.

Plate glass windows were smashed and frail structures overturned in many parts of the city. Hundreds of automobiles were stalled in snowdrifts and many were still in the same plight last night.

On Nantasket Beach, in Hull, near Boston, all the bulkheads from Pemberton to the Atlantic House were either washed away or badly damaged, while every summer residence between Point Allerton and the Nantasket House lost its piazza, and many of the structures were undermined. It is estimated that the damage to property in that town alone will reach $100,000.

Sixteen Inches at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 27.—A snowfall of 16 inches, which drifted in places to a height of ten feet or more, completely tied up for hours yesterday all steam and trolley traffic in this vicinity.

Train Blockade Around Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 27.—All long distance trains on the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, and Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroads, both east and westbound, have practically abandoned schedules in and out of Pittsburg. It may be days before normal running conditions again prevail.

Two Feet of Snow.

Kingston, N.Y., Dec. 27.—The blizzard which raged all Saturday afternoon and night left Ulster County under a thick blanket of snow. Two feet on the level was the average fall, but in places huge drifts were piled by heavy wind. Country roads are impassable.

Early yesterday, and while the storm as at its height, fire broke out in the heart of the business section of Kingston and totally destroyed the three-storey building occupied by the Mohican Co.; loss $50,000.

AN EX-M. P. P. DROPS DEAD

Charles Lamarche Dies Very Suddenly at North Bay.

North Bay, Dec. 27.—Charles Lamarche, ex-M.P.P., dropped dead at Sudbury Saturday evening, shortly after entering the home of his daughter, Mrs. Foster Shields. He had not complained of feeling ill, and there was no warning of death's approach. He left North Bay about 5 o'clock for Sudbury, and a few minutes after entering the house he sank to the floor, death resulting almost immediately.

Mr. Lamarche was fifty-nine years of age, and was elected to the Legislature for East Nipissing in 1902, resigning about a year later in favor of Hon. Frank Cochrane. For several years he had occupied the position of local master of titles and registrar for Nipissing, being also stipendiary magistrate. His genial, warm and upright character won him hosts of friends. He was a member of the C.M.B.A., C.O.F. and St. Joseph's Society.

Born in Ottawa, Mr. Lamarche went to Mattawa when sixteen, and lived there thirty-five years, removing to North Bay to assume the office of local master. A widow and five children survive. The funeral will be held at Mattawa on Tuesday.

SAFE-BLOWERS SCARED AWAY

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 27.—Burglars blew up two safes in this city on Saturday morning, and, although in both cases they found money, none was taken, the cracksmen evidently being frightened away by passersby before they could get possession.

One of the safes was that in the office of the Chew Lumber Co., in Fairview. Here the burglars blew up the strong box with nitro-glycerine and disturbed a lot of valuable papers. The approach of the watchman, who had heard the shot, sent them off in a hurry.

The second case was that of the safe of the Cascade Wood Yard, which was blown up about the same time.

CHICAGO IS SHORT OF COAL

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Chicago is facing a coal famine. That a scarcity of fuel already exists was admitted last night by railroad men, mine owners and coal dealers, who are striving to avert a more serious condition, which depends entirely upon the weather.

Every man interested in the situation blames the weather for the present stringency. Railroad men say the cold weather and the storms have impeded transportation so that they have been unable to bring the coal here. Coal men say the weather has caused extra demands to be made on their limited supplies.

ANOTHER WONDER OF THE WIRELESS

Highland Light, Mass., Dec. 27.—Cuba and Central America came into touch with New England Saturday night and early yesterday by means of the wireless telegraph, according to Electrician Eason of the navy wireless station here.

Eason says he picked up a message which was being flashed from Key West to Cuba, and that he caught two messages being sent from Colon to the cruiser Des Moines in Nicaraguan waters.

HALF MILLON TO HIS EMPLOYES

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Half a million dollars distributed by the International Harvester Co.; approximately $400,000 by the R. T. Crane Co.—those instances tell only in part the story of the shower of Danae that has fallen in Chicago this Christmas tide.

The International Harvester Co.'s gift to employes, which reaches to far away Siberia, Africa and Australia, was announced by Cyrus H. McCormick, president of the mammoth concern. It will be distributed among 5,000 men and women in almost every section of the globe.

The Santa Claus remembrance represents the fourth annual profit-sharing distribution among the particularly worthy employes of the corporation and its affiliated companies.

GEORGE SHELDON EX-INSURANCE PRESIDENT DEAD

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 27.—George Preston Sheldon, the deposed president of the Phoenix (Fire) Insurance Co. of Brooklyn, under indictment for grand larceny in connection with financial irregularities in the company recently exposed by the state insurance department of New York, died at his home here Saturday, aged 62, ignorant of the fact that detectives were waiting with extradition papers ready to take him to New York for trial in the event of his recovery. At the time the affairs of the company were arranged in a statement by the New York insurance department recently, Sheldon lay critically ill of ptomaine poisoning, and in view of his condition, details of his indictment was withheld from him. He never rallied.

Sheldon had been president of the Phoenix Insurance Co. of Brooklyn for twenty-one years.

AN APOLOGY TO STUDENT SCOTT

Dresden, Dec. 27.—The Neueste Nachrichten publishes an apology for misrepresenting the facts in the Scott case and prints a letter from a member of the Freiberg Anglo-American Club telling the true story of the case. In its comments the same newspaper says:

"If the facts are as stated, Mr. Scott's expulsion must appear as a police measure of exaggerated severity."

WOMAN AIDED SAFE-CRACKERS

New York, Dec. 27.—Burglars, with the aid of nitro-glycerine and a woman, blew open the safe of Wasserman Brothers, clothing dealers, in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn early Saturday, obtained nearly $1,000 in cash and valuable jewelry and made a clean get-away. Suits of clothes were piled upon the safe to deaden the noise of the explosion, while a well-dressed woman accomplice paced up and down the sidewalk outside to warn the robbers of approaching pedestrians.

Can it be that the information from Copenhagen indicated that making observations backward from the pole does not satisfy the carping scientists?

EX-PRESIDENT ZELAYA AND HIS PROBABLE SUCCESSOR

DR. JOSÉ MADRIZ

GENERAL JOSÉ SANTOS ZELAYA

San Juan Del Sur.—Jose Santos Zelaya filed with Congress his resignation as President of Nicaragua. The document was accompanied by a message in which Zelaya said:—

"The painful circumstances in which the country is plunged call for acts of abnegation and patriotism on the part of good citizens, who are witnesses of the oppression of the republic by the heavy hand of fate.

"The country is staggering under a shameless revolution which threatens the nation's sovereignty, and a foreign nation unjustly intervenes in our affairs, publicly providing the rebels with arms, which has only resulted in their being defeated everywhere through the heroism of our troops.

A commission of five Deputies was appointed to draft a bill looking to the acceptance of Zelaya's resignation which is now considered a mere formality.

Zelay's action has not served to abate the public opposition to Dr. Mardiz, now generally looked upon as certain to be selected as his successor.

NATURAL GAS EXPLOSION WRECKS GALT HOME AND TWO PEOPLE ARE HURT

Charles Fleur, Aged 40, and His Brother-in-law, Thomas Bilton, Aged 35, Are Fearfully Burned in Explosion Which Ruins Home of the Former.

Galt, Dec. 27.—The one-time comfortable, well-appointed home of Chas. Fleur, aged 40, on Beverley street, is to-day a sad ruin, while Fleur and a brother-in-law, Thomas Bilton, aged 35, are in the hospital, charred and blackened beyond recognition, and with little chance of surviving terrible injuries sustained at 11 o'clock Saturday night, when there was an explosion of natural gas.

Fleur wanted to replenish the dining-room fire. The two men descended to the cellar, when a gust of wind blew out the lamp they carried, as they reached the cellar floor. Fleur struck a match and immediately a terrific explosion followed, startling the entire neighborhood.

The house was literally blown up, one-half being reduced to fragments.

The two men in the cellar received the full shock of the outburst, together with the subsequent fire.

When taken out they were most pitiable objects. They were hurried to the hospital in the ambulance and Dr. Charlton says they may die.

Other inmates of the house, numbering three, escaped comparatively uninjured in a miraculous way. There were Mrs. Fleur, her daughter, aged 7, and her son, aged 10. They were in the sitting-room, the floor of which was covered with linoleum. The explosion raised this covering and threw it over the two children, thus protecting them from the sheet of flame that shot up from the cellar, and found vent through the shattered south side of the house. Mrs. Fleur, however, suffered burns on the head.

The fire brigade saved the building from destruction by fire.

Investigation so far does not disclose the source of the gas which caused the accident, but the leakage must have been of sudden occurrence, for earlier in the night Mrs. Fleur had been in the cellar with lighted matches.

The gas company turned off the service and will have a rigid enquiry. The house was of plaster, two storeys high, and comparatively new and worth $2,500. It was insured.

Mr. Bilton is from Grand Valley and was paying a brief visit to his sister.

APRON CAUGHT FIRE, WAS FATALLY BURNED

Port Hope, Dec. 27.—In attempting to remove a lid from the range in the Royal Hotel kitchen Saturday morning, Mrs. George Henderson, the cook, was almost fatally burned. That she was not burned to death is due only to the presence of mind of Charles Perry, the proprietor, who wrapped the woman in his coat, carried her out and rolled her in the snow.

Mrs. Henderson's apron had ignited and she ran about the kitchen in her frenzy. Mr. Perry is in bed as a result of his efforts, his face and hands being severely burned. Mrs. Henderson may recover, Dr W. [illegible]Kinley sending her to Toronto in fair condition.

Six weeks ago Mrs. Henderson joined the hotel staff, coming from Toronto.

Boy Shoots Chum.

Chatham, Dec. 27.—John Miller aged 12, was accidentally shot and killed by a companion named Norton, while hunting rabits in Harton, while hunting rabbits in Harwich, Christmas morning.

Young Norton tried to stop the flow of blood and then ran swiftly for help, but on his return Miller was dead.

SHOT WIFE IN HIS SLEEP

Peru, Ind., Dec. 27.—Policemen that answered a call Saturday from Ora Galloway, found his wife dead on the kitchen floor of their home, and Galloway with an empty revolver in his hand. Overturned furniture showed there had been a struggle. Galloway declared he had no consciousness of what had taken place. He is in jail.

In his examination by the police, Galloway said he had been ill and that Friday night his wife gave him some headache medicine before he went to bed. He knew no more, he said, until he found himself standing over her body. He did not know whether or not he had fired the shots that had killed her. He dressed and telephoned the police.

Galloway added that his wife wished to go on the stage and he had not encouraged her.

She was 30 years of age, and he is 28. They have two children.

PROBABILITIES.

PEERAGE FOR GLADSTONE

Son of Grand Old Man May Upset a Family Tradition.

London, Dec. 27.—It is understood in official circles here that, before leaving England for South Africa in April, Herbert Gladstone, the newly-appointed Governor-General, will receive a peerage. In the high position to which the third son of the great founder of the family has been called he regards a title as indispensable, and it is authoritatively stated that he will not refuse it.

This is contrary to the traditions of the Gladstone family. Twice Queen Victoria pressed an earldom upon the acceptance of Gladstone, and twice he begged to be excused acceptance of the honor. But, with the new Governor-General of South Africa, the peerage has the prized accessory of placing on a permanent footing his connection with Parliamentary affairs.

If he finds the House of Lords still to the fore when his term of governorship lapses, he will be able to resume his Parliamentary connections without the disturbing incidents occasionally attendant upon the poll.

CAR CREW WERE DROWNED

Seymour, Conn., Dec. 27.—A trolley car jumped a switch on the route alongside the Naugautic River, a mile above this place, during yesterday's storm, and plunging down the bank, crashed through the ice.

Motorman Fred Beard and Conductor Marcus Donovan, who were in the enclosed forward vestibule, were drowned. The five passengers crawled out of the rear door, which protruded above the water, and escaped with only slight injuries.

LOCAL OPTION IN BRANTFORD

Brantford, Dec. 27.—The local option campaign in this city has got to the boiling point.

Yesterday mass meetings were held by both parties. Dr. Lappe of Flint, Mich., addressed a large gathering at Victoria Hall for the temeprance interests, while an overflow meeting was in progress at the Grand Opera House, addressed by J. Earle Brown, attorney, of St. Johns, Mich., against local option.

The organization of both parties is recognized as the most thorough of any campaign in the history of the city. The anti-optionists will not concede a majority in favor of the bylaw on an even vote.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The national defence committee of the Russian Douma has rejected, by a large majority, the credit for new battleship.

Sir Robert Perks leaves England for Canada early in the New Year to devote his undivided attention to the Georgian Bay Canal. He estimates the cost at twenty or thirty millions.

At 11 o'clock Saturday evening, fire broke out in the business section of Granville street, Halifax, and the big fur store of Lane & Co., and the music store of Gates Bros. were completely gutted.

Mme. Lascelels, a roomer at a Mrs. Redmond's, Farm street, Point St. Charles, Montreal, was found dead on the sidewalk late Saturday evening, her death no doubt being brought about through a drunken quarrel.

Following the killing at Hurley, Va., on Christmas eve of Samuel Baker and the serious wounding of his wife and two children by the former's enemy, Harry Pennington, a mob of one hundred citizens last on Saturday night took Pennington from jail and hanged him to a steam pipe.

Mrs. Francis Bridriault of Montreal was burned to death at her home on Saturday morning. A lighted lamp was placed on the stove, she rushed to remove it, dropped it, and the oil was spattered all over her clothing. It caught fire, and the woman ran to the backyard, when she extinguished the flames by rolling in the snow.

ZELAYA HAS FLED TO MEXICO

Managua, Dec. 27.—Jose Santos Zelaya, the ex-President of Nicaragua, has taken himself out of the country and is now aboard the Mexican gunboat General Guerrero, bound for Salina Cruz.

Under the cover of darkness on Thursday morning Zelaya, accompanied by a heavily-armed guard, proceeded to Corinto, in which port the Mexican warship had been lying for several days, close beside the U. S. protected cruiser Albany. Other American warships swung at anchor in the harbor, with marines aboard, awaiting instructions. Zelaya's coming was unheralded, but a guard from the Guerrero received him and soon he was safe under the protection of the Mexican flag.

UNIONISTS GETTING LITTLE ENCOURAGEMENT AT MEETINGS

Campaign Fight Begins Again To-morrow and on Jan. 8 Peers Have to Withdraw From the Struggle—Protectionists Land Germany and the U.S. as Examples of Prosperity.

London, Dec. 27.—The Christmas lull in the political campaign is welcome to everybody. Battle will be rejoined Tuesday. The peers must leave the arena on January 8, after which they are not allowed by the immemorial custom of Great Britain to participate in electioneering work so far as addressing meetings is concerned, but between Tuesday and that date the peers are booked for hard work, thirty-five of them addressing 113 public meetings in all parts of the country within that period.

This unprecedented flood of lordly eloquence does not seem thus far to have had any great effect. Lords Curson and Milner have probably done their cause good service, but in reviewing the first weeks of the campaign a Unionist paper is obliged to confess that "with the best cause in the world the Unionists are lamentably lacking in men to appeal to the imagination and more especially the sensational interest of the electorate." It says voters require to be interested as well as instructed, and it is afraid that they for the most part are more deeply impressed by the purple patches of Mr. Lloyd-George and the daring inexactitudes of Winston Churchill than by the cultivated thoughtful arguments of Lord Curson and Walter Long.

This is undoubtedly true and the Unionists are now relying chiefly on that mysterious factor well known as the silent voter. Certainly the noisy ones who attend their meetings give them little encouragement.

Apart from the budget and the House of Lords, New York and Berlin have perhaps been the most prominent features in the political fight during the last ten days. One wonders what kind of idea the unsophisticated, untraveled Britisher has of Christmas conditions in these two great cities. One set of newspapers refer pityingly to New Yorks bread lines and the enormous cost of every kind of provision there. Then turning to Berlin these papers draw a harrowing picture of German workmen living on sour black bread, horse sausages and dogs' flesh, while unemployment is rife throughout the fatherland.

The other papers declare that America celebrates Christmas joyfully. Prices are high, but money is abundant. Unemployment is rare, while Berlin is described as a paradise for workingmen, for whom tradesmen have had to stock their shops with goods at twice and thrice the cost that humbler customers could afford.

It is needless to say that the artistic writers whose descriptions of New York and Berlin would make those cities appear to have a good claim on the charity of this happy free trade country in the form, say, of a gigantic Mansion House fund are pointing out the deadly results of a tariff, while those who would persuade the English that the inhabitants of New York and Berlin are reveling in an excess of prosperity attribute this universal wealth to the blessings of protection.

It is crude, childish stuff and gives some excuse to The National Zeitung of Berlin for concluding that "when one reads what is written in England about Germany one must assume that the English electors are credited with suffering from temporary mental derangement before and during elections."

AN ATTEMPT AT MURDER

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 27.—Eugene Cullity is in jail here charged with attempting to murder Raymond Miller in the Manitoba Hotel early Saturday morning.

The story is that Miller with two other men, Frank Gates and W. A. Pole, were in a room in the hotel when Cullity entered and attacked Miller with a knife. He was arrested later in the act of washing blood off his person. Miller is in the hospital in a serious condition. The other two eyewitnesses have been held as material witnesses.

COOK TOYS DIDN'T SELL

New York, Dec. 27.—The puncture of Dr. Cook's North Pole claims has proved a sad blow to some of the toy dealers who during the last few weeks have been laying in a host of Christmas toys named after him. Dozens of mechanical toys now on sale in the department stores and in the toy stores bear the name of Dr. Cook.

Dolls dressed in white furs and bearing some resemblance to the Bushwick avenue explorer had, within a few days proved ready sellers.

Sledges drawn by miniature Eskimo dogs and bearing a fur-clad figure labeled "Cook on his dash for the Pole," had also been popular, and thousands of parents who were among the early shoppers laid in stocks of these "Dr. Cook" toys for their youngsters, expecting to surprise them on Christmas morning.

CAR FERRIES STUCK IN ICE

Detroit, Dec. 27.—Six coaches of Christmas travelers on the Canadian Pacific's Chicago-Toronto train were stalled in the Detroit River for several hours Saturday, when the company's car ferry Michigan was caught in the ice. The ferry was stalled at 9.30 a.m., and tugs worked until after noon to free it.

Farther down the river the Grand Trunk Ferry Huron and a Pere Marquette ferry, both with freight trains aboard, were also caught in the ice.

Ice conditions were worse yesterday than for several years.

SEARCHLIGHT AS CALL TO CHURCH

New York, Dec. 27.—To do away with the old time bell-ringing as a summons for church-goers at night, a Brooklyn pastor has conceived the novel idea of flashing a powerful searchlight from the belfry tower. The searchlight will be placed 200 feet from the ground on the spire of the first reformed church in Brooklyn. It will throw its rays at a fixed time before the religious services begin, and the flashing will continue during the church hours to attract the tardy and the backsliders.

Rev. James Ferrar is opposed to bell-ringing, because it awakens the ill and annoys the aged and infirm in the neighborhood.

POPE MAKES CONCESSION

Rome, Dec. 27.—Bishop Bonomelli of Cremona, who is on intimate terms of friendship with the royal family, founded some time ago an institution for aiding the spiritual welfare of emigrants which the royal family and the Government assisted.

The Pope has now, on his own initiative, contributed $2,000 to the institution. This is the first instance of active, open co-operation between the Vatican and an institution founded under the auspices of the royal family and the Government.

$30,000 WILL SAVE SHIP

Detroit, Dec. 27.—The underwriters have awarded the contract for releasing the wrecked steamer Wissahickon ashore at Outer Luck Island, Lake Huron, to the Great Lakes Towing Co., which has agreed to deliver the boat and cargo at Detroit or Milwaukee for $30,000.

The tugs General and Thompson and the lighter Reliance have been ordered to the stranded steamer from the Soo.

The vessel and cargo is valued at $1,250,000.

FRED. REMINGTON, THE ARTIST, DEAD

Ridgefield, Conn., Dec. 27.—Frederick Remington, the artist, died at his home here yesterday from heart failure and shock, superinduced by an operation for appendicitis performed on Thursday. Mr. Remington had been in good health until last Sunday, when he remarked he seemed slightly indisposed. It was not until Wednesday that he suffered pain to any extent, and physicians were called.

He was in his 48th year, and was a native of Canton, N.Y.

He was especially noted for his realistic pictures of Indian and western frontier life.

ATTEMPT TO SHOOT EDITOR

Cairo, Ills., Dec. 27.—What is believed to have been an attempt to assassinate E. W. Thielecke, editor of The Bulletin, was made Friday night, when a shot was fired through the window of The Bulletin office. The bullet barely missed the editor's head.

The Bulletin has been aggressive in charging "graft" against the city police department. The Bulletin company offers a reward of $500 for the conviction of the person who fired at the editor.

Dreadnoughts For Italy.

Rome, Dec. 27.—The Minister of Marine has determined that four Dreadnoughts will be launched in 1911. He has also decided to build two others at private dockyards, thus rendering it possible to complete three scout vessels at the same time in Government yards.

The essential cost of the vessels is $50,000,000, which is likely to be augmented by the hustle of building them in the time indicated.

IMPERIAL WASTE & METAL CO.
6-13 QUEEN ST., MONTREAL

The Daily Review

MONDAY, DEC. 27, 1909.

GROWING HOTTER

French-Canadian journals are now, without exception, espousing the cause of their "race" with the utmost ardor. The danger to them of a closer union of empire has aroused them as perhaps never before. As it is necessary for them to speak plainly to their own people and without reserve, owing to the fact that the crisis in regard to imperial defence has arrived sooner than they expected, it is possible for us to see clearly how great and aggressive are their aspirations and demands. It is all without distinction of party. Or rather French-Canadians have thrown aside party at the call of "race."

Strangely enough, the scene of journalistic conflict has changed from Canada to London. Mr. Willison, editor of the Toronto News, is also Times correspondent, and the Times, seeing the vital importance of the Canadian naval situation, has asked him to discuss it in its columns. It is now or never.

Much as we regret to part with that accomplished gentleman, Mr. Monk, Conservatives will renounce him, rather than sacrifice British imperial interests. Why should we be asked to sacrifice ourselves to the rapacity of the French? Our Gallic compatriots are mistaken. If we have to fight this question out once more on the field of battle it will be fought out there. Grit or Tory, it makes no difference. Canada is British, and part of the British Empire, and any attempt to set these facts at naught will result in trouble.

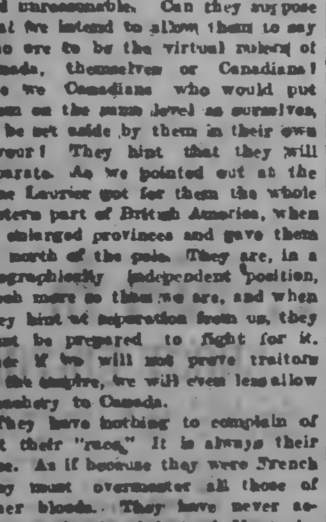
In a few years, or perhaps months, the astute Gaul will have swayed the whole affair his way, if the subtle brain of the diplomat can manage it. But by that time the imperialists here in Canada, as in Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, and as everywhere, no matter how small or isolated, that the little bit of bunting floats to the breeze, will have triumphed, and our French-Canadian friends will have joined the rest of us, not as French but as true Canadians.

Their present attitude is illogical and unreasonable. Can they suppose that we intend to allow them to say who are to be the virtual rulers of Canada, themselves or Canadians? Are we Canadians who would put them on the same level as ourselves, to be set aside by them in their own favour? They hint that they will separate. As we pointed out at the time Laurier got for them the whole eastern part of British America, when he enlarged provinces and gave them all north of the pole. They are, in a geographically independent position, much more so than we are, and when they hint at separation from us, they must be prepared to fight for it. Since we will not prove traitors to the empire, we will even less allow treachery to Canada.

They have nothing to complain of but their "race." It is always their race. As if because they were French they must overmaster all those of other bloods. They have never acquiesced in the defeat of Montcalm and have tried to redeem it ever since. Much as we love them, we love Canada and the Empire more. The present crisis is a serious one. Certain English-speaking Liberal politicians, relying upon the support of Quebec, are prepared to sacrifice everything to it. They, too, will have to reckon with those loyal to the Crown and Empire.

It is, perhaps, not generally known that French Canada is ready to defend herself. She has more well-trained cadets than all the rest of Canada put together. She has been steadily preparing for this crisis, and does not mean to shirk the issue. The dream of French dominion on the banks of the St. Lawrence is no idle one. Extending from the boundary to the Arctic Sea, it would be larger than Europe and the key to the west. Ready and willing as the French are to fight for it, it will require prompt action upon our part if we would prevent and forestall the break-up, not only of federation, but of confederation as well.

The west is true, but if we in the east are "no good" they will rightly feel disposed to cast us off. A responsibility rests upon us here that we must realize. The question is by far the most momentous that confronts us.



EDITORIAL NOTES

The C. P. R.'s annual receipts are considerably larger than the revenue of the Dominion of Canada. The expense of management is much less.

La Patrie says that statistics are not possibly all they seem. Returns for 1908 show that in all Canada there were convicted of perjury in the proportion of

7 Anglicans
4 Methodists
3 Catholics
1 Presbyterian,

while for attempted suicide the proportion was

5 Catholics,
4 Anglicans,
3 Methodists,
2 Presbyterians

WARNING

Since its introduction into Canada the sales of Parisian Sage have been phenomenal. This success has led to many imitations similar in name. Look out for them; they are not the genuine. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. You can always get the genuine at Wm. Madill's, the druggist, Peterborough.

Parisian Sage is the quickest acting and most efficient hair tonic in the world.

It is made to conform to Dr. Sangerbond's, of Paris, proven theory that dandruff, falling hair, baldness and scalp itch are caused by germs.

Parisian Sage kills these dandruff germs and removes all trace of dandruff in two weeks, or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp and prevents baldness.

And remember that baldness is caused by dandruff germs, these little hard working, persistent devils that day and night do nothing but dig into the roots of the hair and destroy its vitality.

Parisian Sage is a daintily perfumed hair dressing, not sticky or greasy, and any woman who desires luxuriant and bewitching hair can get it in two weeks by using it. 50 cents a large bottle.

TWO CASES OF LOCAL INTEREST

In the Port Hope Division Court —Judgment in Case, Reserved in Other.

The Port Hope Times says;—The monthly session of the Division Court was held Wednesday afternoon. His Honor Judge Roger presided.

The first case on the docket was Dickson H. Nicholls vs. Douglas Wark for $50. At the last court judgment was given for the amount and costs, but Wark applied for a new trial, which was granted.

Nicholls claimed $50 damages because Wark had used the Opera House on two consecutive nights, and which the plaintiff claimed was contrary to the agreement.

Wark stated that according to the lease he could put in a show every night if so desired. He was not allowed to have a repertoire company, but he could have one night stands every night in the week if he wished.

Mr. D. H. Chisholm, who drew the lease, corroborated the statements of Mr. Wark, and His Honor reserved judgment. H. A. Ward for plaintiff; S. S. Smith for defendant.

J. J. Turner, of Peterborough vs. W. C. Brown for $20. According to Mr. Turner's evidence Brown leased the old Turner Hotel on Mill street for one year at $20 per month, payably monthly in advance. Mr. Turner produced a copy of the lease bearing Mr. Brown's signature. Mr. Brown remained in the house about five months, and now Mr. Turner was suing for the last month's rent, which was due.

According to Mr. Brown, he found the house unfit to live in. The cellar was damp and the house was cold. He had two stoves, but they did not make sufficient heat. The house, he said, was not as Mr. Turner represented.

His Honor gave judgment for the plaintiff for the $20 and costs, but Mr. Brown is relieved from paying any further rent. H. A. Ward for plaintiff; S. S. Smith for defendant.

Gave Interesting Address

Governor Glenn of North Carolina delivered an interesting local option address at the George street Methodist church on Christmas night.

Even if we all became vegetarians, cattle would still be wanted to provide locks for her classic brow.

HIS TALE TOLD IN A MOMENT.

But It Is Not Hard to Imagine That the Delay Was Fatal to the Flower Beds.

One morning not long ago there burst into the office of a physician in Tacony, Pa., an excited individual, who, as he perceived the doctor just disappearing into his consulting room with a patient, exclaimed:

"Doctor! Doctor! Just one moment!"

"I'll see you shortly," was the curt professional response.

"Only a second, doctor! Only a second is what I want!" protested the perturbed one.

"I'll see you shortly," reiterated the physician, with increasing impatience.

Whereupon, with a sigh, the man took a seat in the general reception hall, says Harper's Weekly. His excitement soon subsided, for he read the morning paper through, glanced through a number of magazines, and played awhile with the doctor's cat. Then, after a period of half an hour, the doctor reappeared, and, in an air of great condescension, said to the erstwhile excited person:

"Now, sir, I am at your service. Your turn has come. What can I do for you?"

"Oh, nothing special," was the reply. "I only dropped in to tell you that your neighbor's cows have escaped from the yard and are now having a fine time among your flower beds."

THE MAD RACE FOR WEALTH.

Stock Gamblers Misapply Funds That Are Theirs Only in Trust.

We once knew a professional gambler who habitually lost in front of other men's tables what he made behind his own. How do you account for that? He would sit behind his own tables night after night, claiming his sure percentage from the gamblers on the other side, and when he had thus accumulated $20,000 or $30,000, he would go and lose it all in one sitting on the wrong side of another man's table.

Most of the scandals affecting stock exchange members in Wall street come of their having got on the wrong side of the table. A house does not set out deliberately, in the first instance, to make away wrongfully with the customers' funds. The head of the house or one of its members becomes extravagant, lives beyond his resources, and needs money quickly. He turns to the stock market. He begins as a speculator, takes greater and greater risks, becomes a gambler, and ends by breaking his house and cheating his clients. Haven't you wondered why in these cases the men who misuse your funds in their private stock-market gambling always lose them? That is because they have been trying to do what you have been trying to do—make 500 or 1,000 per cent. on a given amount of capital—and it simply can't be done.—Everybody's.

Wise Idea of Matron.

The spirit of independence is driving men and women into apartments, where they can live as they please and be under obligations to nobody. Favors are returned, and so are slights, and a degree of harmony prevails. Such people are welcome guests in many places, for they have the good sense to limit visits. "Live with my son?" repeated a handsome matron the other day to a friend who wondered why she was not an inmate of the pretty home she visited frequently. "Not I," with emphasis. "There is the deepest affection between us, which I take precious care to preserve by this sensible arrangement. I am an important personage now, but if I was located in the best chamber of that house I would become a nuisance. I have seen something of the world, and I want to end my days in peace and comfort."

Flodden Field.

Scotland and England have agreed to forget all old unkindness and erect a monument of Flodden field commemorative of the courage of their ancestors of 1513. Both sides are right, for the Scotch lost the battle quite as much by King James' high-strung chivalry preventing him from using his strategic advantages as by the superiority of the English archery. Flodden was among the last of the great battles in which firearms counted for little or nothing. Probably the last appearance of the bow in war was in Russia a century ago. The Russians at Eylau, 1807, had a body of Bashkirs in chain armor who opposed arrows to French bullets, and during the retreat from Moscow in 1812 occasionally French soldiers found themselves targets for the same wild archers.

First Aid to Memory.

The Coming Poet was being entertained at an afternoon tea given in his honor by the leading society ladies of his native town. It was the Poet's annual home-coming. And leave it to him if he wasn't playing up his transcendental mysticism, or mystic transcendentalism (take your choice) to the awe-inspiring point. Just a few. But, as usual, he was misunderstood. For instance, when he sprang his favorite bromide, "An indefinable something within me often whispers that I have a message to deliver," a dense dame shattered the solemn silence with: "What a labor-saving gift that must be! Why, when I want my husband to deliver a message I always have to tie a string to his finger to remind him of it!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Some of them have to wear large hats to keep their locks from blowing away.

TOOK REVOLVERS TO STOP CHAUFF

Policemen Hurled Their Clubs at Driver Who Was Speeding on Broadway

New York, Dec. 25.—Geo. Smith, chauffer, employed in the Frawley Transportation Company, of No. 45 West Thirty-fourth street, raced a taxicab down Broadway at a thirty mile pace this morning, and was only held up after a dozen policemen ran to the street, hurled their clubs at the driver, and, pointing their revolvers, threatened to shoot if he continued on his course.

Smith, who lives at No. 565 East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street, got a fare who later said he was Henry A. Heiser, a broker, of No. 27 William street, who lives in Brooklyn, somewhere on upper Broadway and started in the direction of the bridge.

At Broadway and Fourteenth street Smith was driving his car at a terrific pace. Policemen who tried to stop him had to make quick leaps for their lives. At Canal street Policeman Walsh threw his nightstick into the cab, smashing the window. Smith only laughed and kept on his way.

At White street half a dozen policemen were gathered, and Smith was persuaded it was safer for him to halt. He was locked up at Leonard street station. He admitted he had no license to drive an automobile, and that he had gone thirty miles an hour. He regarded his arrest as a joke. Heiser was permitted to go home.

BEWDLEY WHARF IS SEVEN DAYS' WONDER

The Bewdley wharf at the charming village of Bewdley is fast becoming a seven days' wonder. Of course it is a Grit affair, and none but good Grits are suffered to work at the job, but many are wondering when this great public work will be completed. Much stone is being drawn for work this winter.

Already, it is said, over $1,000 has been paid on the work, and, as yet no startling results have been noticed all summer. When a boat would call at the wharf two boards would be necessary to get the people and goods off the vessel, these being laid from the craft to the gravel road.—Port Hope Times.

Don't Sleep in Church

As a warning to church sleepers, and to others, the following paragraph from the Wingham Advocate is reproduced; "Miss Jessie Wilson went to sleep in the English church at Walkerton and was locked in. When she woke up everybody was gone and people were going to bed. She raised a window to jump out, but while getting out the window fell on her dress and held her in midair, neither in the church nor on the ground. Her screams brought a neighbor and the town constable, and they rescued her from her unpleasant position.

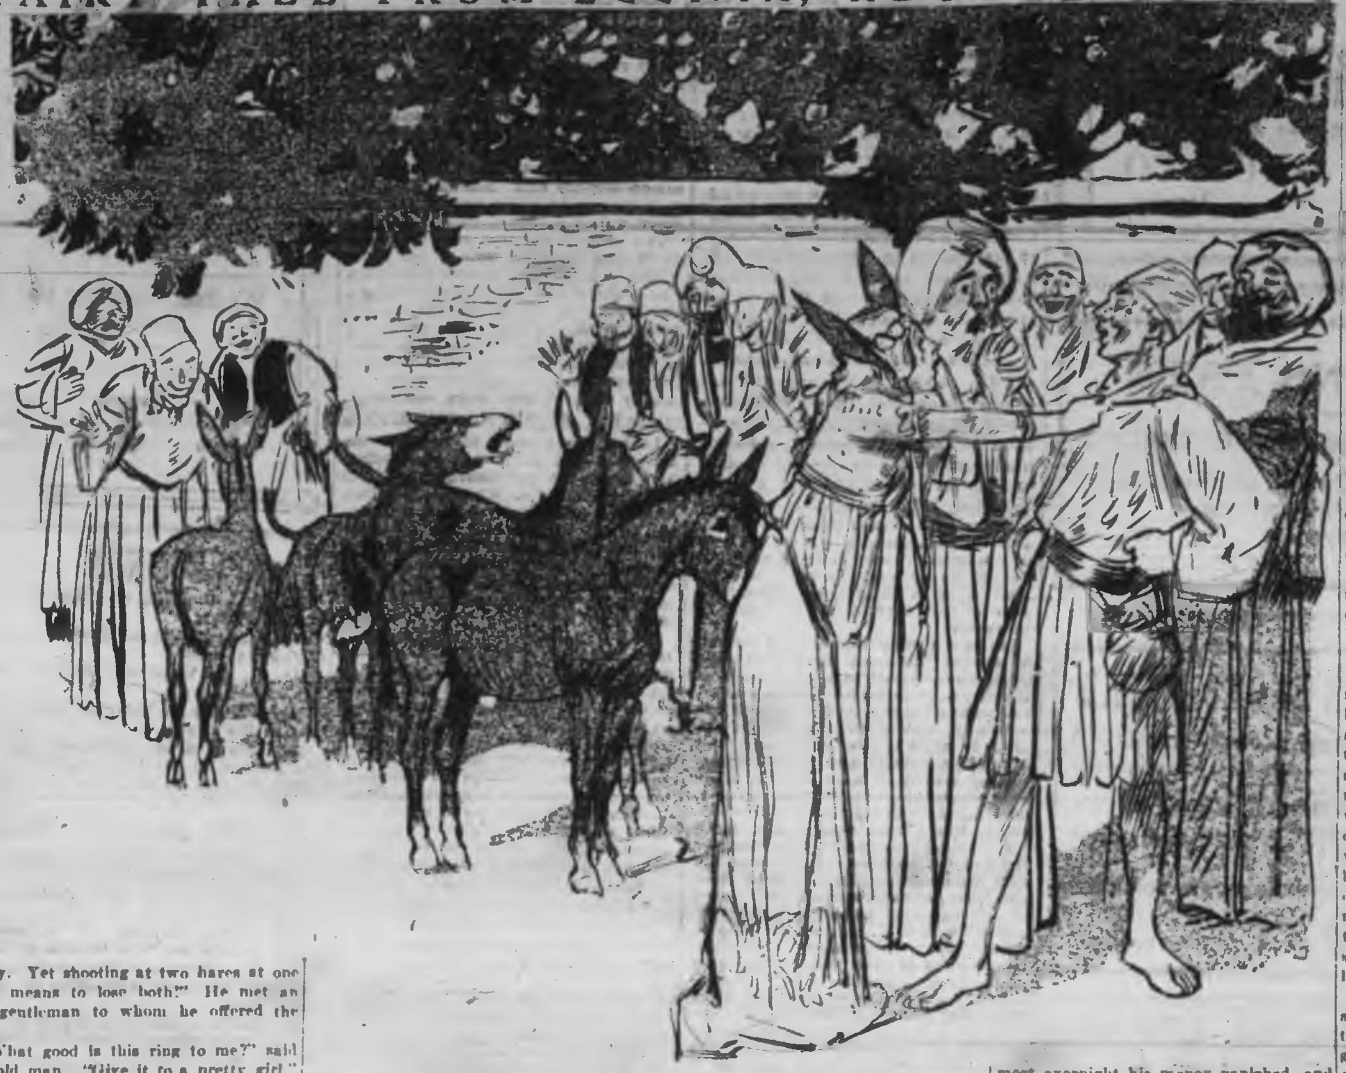
OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE SNAKE-EMPEROR'S GIFTS

A FAIRY TALE FROM BOSNIA, RETOLD BY LOUISE SOUVAN



Yet, no matter how sweetly and beautifully she talked, he heard nothing for laughter to see ears waggle back and forth.

THERE was once a poor lad who went into the forest to get wood on his back. Suddenly he noticed two fighting snakes—a little white adder trying to defend itself against a big black viper. He killed the big viper with his axe, but the little one he put into his belt so it should recover. After a while he heard it say:—"Thank you, O hero! I am Sharmana, the Snake Emperor's daughter; please do take me where I tell you. We will soon be at my father's house, and as a reward you ask of him the ring from his right hand, the rug upon which he is sitting and the whip which is lying beside him."

In a short time they really came to a cave. The lad had to crawl into it. The cave was pitch dark, and he hardly had made half a step when hissing vipers rushed at him from all sides and corners. At this moment the little snake turned into a beautiful girl, with golden hair and golden clothes. As soon as the vipers saw her they flew back and politely bowed to the lad. Now, such politeness he had never seen in his life, and he thought it very nice indeed.

In a corner of the cave the Snake Emperor was sitting drinking black coffee and smoking a water pipe. For a long time he looked wonderingly at the lad, and finally he said:—"Whom have you brought here, my daughter?" Sharamana replied:—"This man is my brother of choice! (Brotherhood of choice, friendship in its highest meaning, is a frequent occurrence with the peasants of the Balkans and is considered like kindred.)

"He has saved me from the claws of my enemy, and killed him, whereas all of my kind who had been near fled." Upon that he Snake Emperor said:—"Open yonder chamber and let him take as many gold pieces as he wants." But the lad replied:—"Dear Emperor, I want no money; give me the ring from your right hand, the rug upon which you are sitting and the whip which is lying near by. Either these or nothing."

"You ask much," said the Emperor, "yet since you saved my dearest take what seems to you your reward so men won't say they are better and more generous than snakes."

Sharamana accompanied the lad a short way back and said in parting:—"Now, you have luck in your hands. I am sorry, though, I cannot give you the necessary common sense for it. With men always the wicked are clever. It is better to have it in one's head than in one's purse. And now goodby and luck be with you."

In returning home he found his mother weak and exhausted from hunger. He took out the ring and thought to himself:—"What is this ring to me? I will sell it and buy bread with it."

So he ran out. On the way he came to a fine house where a beautiful girl was living of whom he had been fond for a long while. But what help was that to him? To-day was Sunday and the house beleagured by young men, who all were looking up at the trellised windows of beautiful Aisha. He, too, tarried a little while, just a tiny moment—perhaps by chance he could yet catch a glance. Suddenly the window was flung open, and—splash!—he had a bucket of water on his head and neck. Angry beyond saying, he shook the water from him and cried:—"You will yet beg me to marry you!" Then he took to his heels, the young men's laughter and scorn following him.

As it grew dark he saw that the ring on his finger illumined the whole street. "This one would save me candles," he thought. "What a pity I have to give it away. Yet shooting at two hares at one time means to lose both!" He met an old gentleman to whom he offered the ring.

"What good is this ring to me?" said the old man. "Give it to a pretty girl." He gave the lad some money to buy bread. Arrived at the baker's, the lad got ready to give him some small change when he noticed to his utmost amazement that he was holding in his hand a gold piece. Immediately he ordered a whole sackful of bread and had the baker change the gold piece. At home he saw that the small change had again turned into gold. Now for the first time he understood the ring's value. He therefore never took it off his finger, and so it was no difficult task to become rich in short order. He soon bought houses and shops and was the richest merchant in town.

Beautiful Aisha hardly trusted her eyes seeing the poor lad stalking about in such fine clothes. No matter how often she showed herself at the window he never would look up. Now, about that she almost burst of anger. At last she said to her father, whose only, spoiled child she was, "Get me that lad, for I must know where his wealth comes from or I'll die." The frightened father fetched the lad. So he came, thinking that now surely she would ask him to marry her.

Amiably she received him and chatted about this and that. Her words were as sweet as pure honey, and, mind you, before he knew it he let the cat out of the bag and told the secret of his ring. Of course he had to show the ring, had to take it off his finger, and, shwoop! she was out of the room with it. He waited and waited and waited. At last he understood.

Then he sneaked out of the house. Almost overnight his money vanished, and one morning he was just as poor as when he had found the Snake Princess. Ashamed to stay in that town as a poor man, he took the little old rug of the Snake Emperor, the only thing that stayed with him, as it was so shabby that nobody wanted it. He had also the whip, which he took to chase away the dogs. So with his mother he wandered away.

Again he was the poor woodcutter as before. He didn't like it at all. But he worked diligently day after day. But since the best ox cannot plough always, he one day sat down on his little old rug to rest awhile. Mosquitoes bothered him, so he pulled out his whip and whipped them away, so that its cracking was heard for a mile.

All of a sudden he felt lifted up by the rug, as though it were flying away with him. This sensation he liked greatly. Immediately he started for a trial ride. With one hand he held himself to the rug and with the other he snapped the whip as hard as he could, wishing himself in a strange country. When he arrived where he wished to be he felt rather disappointed. Everything looked different; the trees, the flowers, and the cows were so big that he was almost afraid of them. He therefore remained sitting upon his rug and considered if it wasn't wiser to drive back to beautiful Aisha and see if he couldn't get the ring back. Hardly had he thought it out and snapped the whip before there he was, right in Aisha's room. She was sound asleep upon a costly Persian rug and never woke up for a moment. "If I have the girl I can't miss the ring either," thought the lad, so he shoved a piece of the magic rug underneath the sleeper, snapped the whip and wished himself into a far away lonely country. Instantly the rug began flying with them out of the window into a desolate wilderness. The girl woke up and, of course, could not understand what the matter was, how on earth she came into this forsaken country, with the lad beside her. But, being a woman, she quickly grasped the situation.

Again she started to talk. She chatted and chatted. Indeed, she spoke so beautifully that the foolish lad once more forgot that it is much better to repent words not spoken than those said. Well, he babbled out every single thing there was to be said about the rug and the whip. After that she was satisfied, pretended to be tired and went to sleep. For a long while the lad kept watching her and then went to sleep, too. As soon as she saw that he was really sound asleep she carefully pulled out the rug from under him, seated herself commodiously upon it, snapped the whip, wishing herself in her father's house—and there she was!

The lad slept like a sack until morning. When he woke up he looked and looked. But no matter how much and how long he looked there was no girl, no rug, no whip! And he didn't even know where he was. Nothing but thick wood all around and no way out. He truly was angry beyond saying. Soon hunger commenced to bother him, so he forgot everything else but how and where he could get something to eat. Near by there was nothing whatsoever to be found, therefore he ventured deeper into the dark forest. After much hunting he at last found a path and beside it a pear tree, upon which were hanging most beautiful pears. He ate one, but hardly had he eaten it when he turned into a donkey. "Now, that serves me right," he said to himself. Carefully he walked on, as donkeys will do, rubbing himself at the stems of the trees, and ate whatever he found on the ground. After a while he came to a sloe tree and nibbled from the sloes. And look! Instantly he turned into his former figure. He liked that game greatly. Immediately he ran back for more pears, and also filled his pockets with sloes.

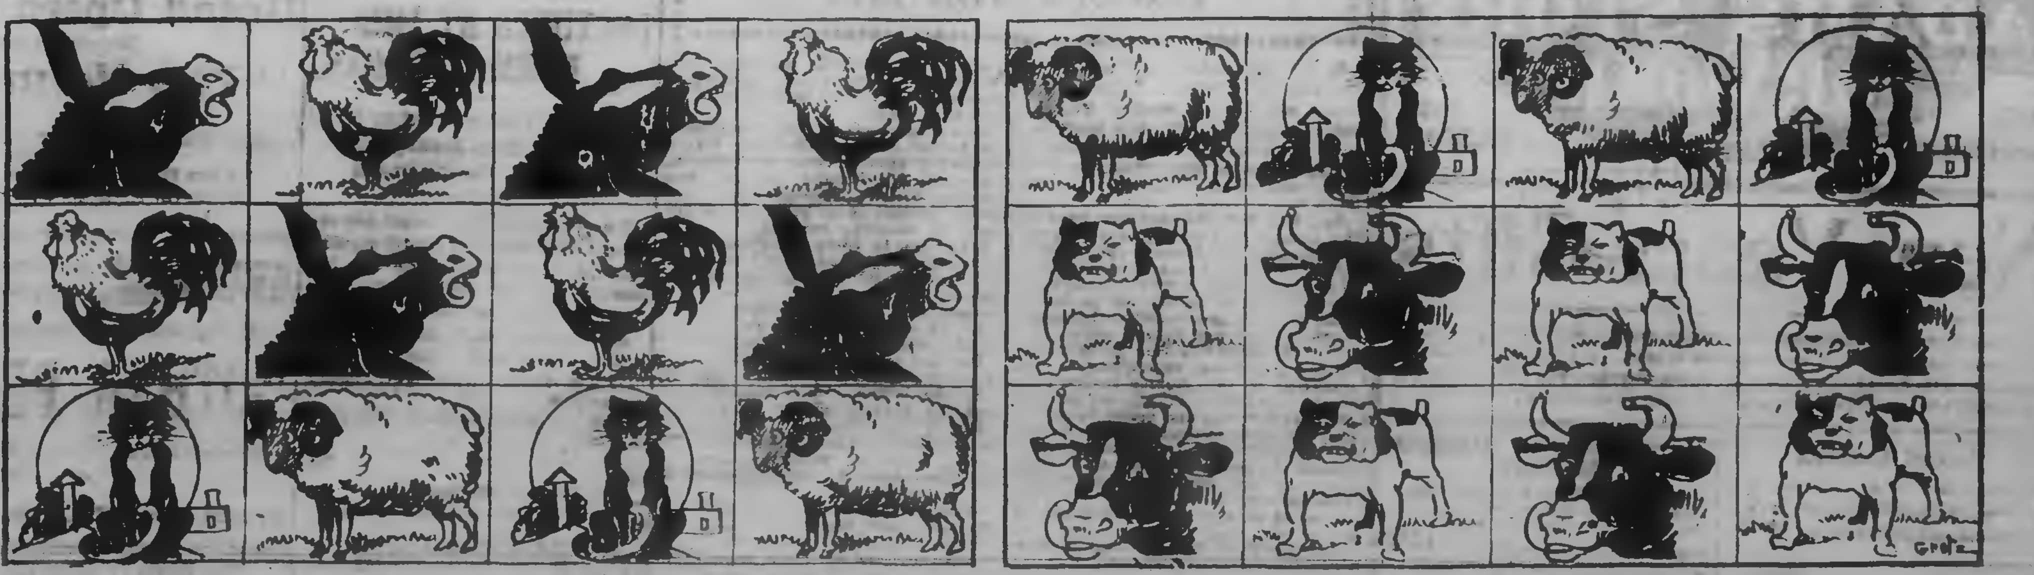
THE BARNYARD GAME A Card Game by Patten Beard



How to Make the Barnyard Game.

THIS little game is a card game and the illustrations that you see are to be cut out and mounted upon little cards. There are twenty-four pictures which you must cut out carefully along the black line which divides one from the other.

As there are twenty-four pictures you will need twenty-four little cards. The best kind you can use for this is the size of a lady's calling card, and if you have the required number all of similar size you may use them. If you have not you can easily make the cards yourself, using a ruler and cutting them from a sheet of thin cardboard. Better still, if you want to have a very very nice pack of cards buy the kind that are kept at the stationer's. These are simply plain calling cards without any printing on them.

Mount your little pictures with any good paste you happen to have, but be neat in your workmanship and use a cotton cloth to wipe off any paste which happens to come over the edge of the picture. Mount the pictures over the name if you use calling cards.

As each card is finished allow it to dry under a weight of some kind.

When all are done you will have a pack of little cards that make a jolly game.

Four players may play this little game or as few as two or three. The object of the game is to win as many cards as possible, and the player who wins all the cards from the other players beats the game.

Shuffle the pack of cards well. Then deal them out, one by one, face down.

How to Play the Barnyard Game

When each player has his pack and all the pack is dealt out, one player counts "One, two, three." On "three" each player at the same moment turns over the top card on his pile and places it face up in a place in front of his other pack.

If any cards correspond the first player to see the correspondence calls out the noise made by the animal in the picture. The one who first does this wins the cards in the other player's face up pile. In case three or more cards correspond the same rule holds good, but if there is any doubt as to which player spoke first all forfeit the cards and play continues till new combinations arise and there is no discussion. Players must be strictly fair and remember that if there is any question a vote from all players is a reliable kind of umpire to settle the big interrogation mark.

The cards which are won are placed upon the winner's face down pile.

When players come to the end of their face down piles they take their face up pile and turn them over and begin as they started after shuffling the cards.

Play as rapidly as possible, and play at the same time so far as possible. This adds fun to the game, and as one by one the players lose their cards and drop out the game grows more and more exciting till the last two players are left to "have it out." Then the others act as umpire.

For the benefit of those who do not know barnyards it may be well to say that the various sounds made in the game are the sounds made by the animals, as follows:—

The donkey—Hee-haw!
The cat—Meow!
The dog—Bow-wow!
The sheep—Ba-a!
The cow—Moo!
The cock—Cock-a-doodle-doo!

It is well to agree upon these sounds before starting out, so that the chorus will be easily interpreted. In the excitement players often call the wrong noise and may be made to pay a forfeit.

GOVERNOR GLENN'S DRAMATIC STORY

Of the Sweeping Success of Prohibition in North Carolina —A Crushing Refutation of Arguments Against This Measure—An Imposing and Gifted Speaker.

*Like every impressive and success*ful speaker, Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, gives utterance to what he has to say with the expression that convinces one that he is absolutely sincere in everything he states, and he also puts every particle of his remarkable physical force and magnetism into an address. He is not in the least sensational, but he arouses the enthusiasm of his hearers by his ardor, and convincing zeal, and even the dissenter from his opinion would be very reluctant to contradict him without being well armed for the combat, for if he were not his defeat would be speedy and ignominious—and one would judge that this reluctance would be especially marked when it came to crossing swords with Governor Glenn on the question of temperance in its various phases. For the Governor not only speaks with the conviction of strong personal opinion and the unalterable opinion that he is working on the right side but backs up what he says with a wall of solid facts that would appear as impregnable as the rock of Gibraltar.

He is a strong man this Governor of one of the most important and prosperous states in the whole of Uncle Sam's domains of increasing millions, a strong man physically and mentally, and it does not take one long to come to the conclusion that he is also a strong man morally and has telling truths to state in the interests of the great temperance movement that is sweeping over the continent like a huge unrestricted wave.

His three addresses in Peterborough for the furtherance of the local option movement in this city have been the most powerful appeals yet given in the cause of the local campaign, and this is said without wishing to detract from the eloquent and effective efforts of the other interesting and gifted speakers. But Governor Glenn is the executive head of a state that was one of the most drink depraved states in the union before the passing of the prohibition law, and now stands in the front rank as a manufacturing and industrial state, and one in which the criminal statistics are low, and the undeniable evidences of morality and prosperity are most encouraging and gratifying to citizens of the state, and to the republic at large. With its wide agencies for good, prohibition—prohibition which prohibited by means of the strict and thorough enforcement of the law—has, according to Governor Glenn, been the means of bringing about this splendid state of affairs. The Governor should be in a position to know, and it is hard to believe that a man of his superior stamp could have any object in stating what was not absolutely accurate and stated what had been proved by an actual and thoroughly satisfying trial.

On Christmas night Governor Glenn spoke at the George street Methodist church and at the opera house yesterday afternoon and evening. At all three addresses he was heard by large audiences, and last night at the opera house there was an especially big attendance. All the seating room was taken up and many had to stand in the aisles and passages. At the opera house those in attendance did not display any hesitancy in enthusiastically applauding the speaker's remarks at frequent stages of his addresses.

WHISKEY HELPS BUSINESS?

"If whiskey helps business, why don't you get a drunken barber to shave you?" was a question asked by Governor Glenn at the opera house in the afternoon in his treatment of the contention by the liquor interests that whiskey helped business. He emphatically showed the absurdity of such a claim by dwelling upon the stand prominent employers of men in different lines of commercial and industrial activity took in connection with the matter. Railroads would not employ men who took a single drink. Why was it merchants, business men of different kinds, private citizens, saloon-keepers and wholesale liquor men insisted on sober men to perform their work?

*In a graphic word picture the speak*er showed the difference of the home which had not been provided for with the husband who spent his money over the bar on pay night and on the other hand the one who took his wages home or bought necessities and in some cases little luxuries to make his home brighter and his wife and family happier and more contented.

GREATLY IMPROVED CONDITIONS

In his home town of Salem, the Governor had made inquiries before leaving on his northward trip of all the representative citizens and men of affairs and they were all unanimous in the verdict that the prohibition law had a much better effect in every way for the promotion of trade and better morals than did the license law, under which the saloons did business.

J. J. Hill, one of the greatest railroad magnates in the world, had decreed that a man who even touched liquor could not be employed on his railroads and had frankly stated that he would appoint spies to watch the employees and have them reported in case there was any infraction of the regulation with regard to intoxicating drink. Andrew Carnegie had said that he would allow no drinking man to be employed in his mines as one drunken miner might be responsible for the destruction of the lives of five hundred or a thousand men.

NORTH CAROLINA'S PROGRESS

In the speaker's own state of North Carolina the saloons had been swept out of the state one by one, and it was the law that liquor could not be manufactured or sold there. This was a big accomplishment and an immense step upward when it was true of North Carolina in 1870 that it was the greatest whiskey drinking section in the United States and the most impoverished state in the union. Last year it stood second of all the states in the republic in the manufacture of cotton goods and furniture and second also in tobacco manufacture.

The Governor referred to the condition in the much maligned state of Maine and said the real conditions there were excellent, as he knew by personal experience, and that the liquor did not flow, like the anti-prohibitionists would have the people believe it did. In fact Maine had fewer paupers, criminals and poor houses than any state in the republic and there was only one reason; that was because prohibition had been in force there so long and had so greatly bettered conditions.

Governor Folk of Missouri said in Kansas City that he honestly believed that the greatly increased prosperity in Missouri was due to the prohibition measure, and the speaker gave many other instances of the uplifting influences of prohibition and also emphasized the way it should be enforced. In North Carolina the "blind pigs" had to root on the public highway in the making of good roads when they were caught and no fines were accepted. Local Option could be enforced just as well in any part of Canada if such punishment were meted out to offenders and if the officers of the law did their duty.

Governor Glenn is witty and original and his address was illuminated by many sallies and anecdotes of a decidedly original and amusing character.

CROSSED THE BAR

As the old market clock was striking ten on Christmas night, there passed away in the western part of our city one whose life and work deserve more than a passing reference, in the person of Mrs. Phoebe C. Kilgour, wife of the late Rev. Joseph Kilgour.

The late Mrs. Kilgour was born in the County of Prince Edward, being the daughter of Richard and Abigail Youmans. In her early life a teacher of music, she was married to the Rev. Mr. Kilgour, to whom for so many years she was undoubtedly a helpmate in the truest and fullest sense.

She was identified very prominently in the promotion, organization and operation of the various institutions of the Methodist church during the whole of her long and active Christian life, and after the death of her beloved husband, about six years ago, she seemed to redouble her efforts to carry on the work of the church. Though very frail in body, she possessed an energy that enabled her to outdo very many in sowing seed, and doing works of kindness and charity in and about the sphere of her activities.

In the Women's Missionary Society she was very active, occupying the position of president for some years. To her many friends she has left a heritage of good deeds, well done, and an example of what may be accomplished by one who is truly devoted to Christian work.

Her illness was of brief duration, she having attended Charlotte Street Methodist church twice on Sabbath, 19th inst. On Monday last she was stricken with pneumonia, and her gentle, patient spirit passed to its reward on Saturday evening.

Were she to leave a parting word to her sisters in the church it might be expressed in the language of the poet:—

Go and sow beside all waters,
In the morning of thy youth,
In the evening scatter broadcast
Precious seeds of living truth.
What tho' much may sink and perish
In the barren, rocky mould,
And the harvest of thy labors
May be less than thirty-fold;
Let thy hand be not withholden,
Still beside all waters sow,
For thou know'st not which shall prosper,
Whether this or that shall grow,
Therefore, sow beside all waters,
Hoping, trusting, toiling on
When the fields are white for harvest
God will send his angels down.

The funeral was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock and was very largely attended.

SEPARATE SCHOOLS IN MANITOBA

(The Montreal Gazette.)

Winnipeg, Dec. 24.—On the boundary question the Roblin Government has felt the pulse of Manitoba, and Liberals as well as Conservatives are incensed at the course of the Ottawa Government. Extension of our boundaries is delayed because Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government desires to provide for separate schools in the added territory. No provincial government could live in Manitoba for a week that would consent to a separate school policy in the new territory. Manitobans are not like the people of Saskatchewan and Alberta. Our province is older, the population larger, more concentrated, and the people would simply defy Sir Wilfrid Laurier or any other Ottawa premier to impose conditions inimical to building up a real English province in the West."

RESIGNATION WAS ACCEPTED

PRESENTED WITH PURSE OF GOLD

Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) Marsh Honored by Ladies of Springville Methodist Church

An interesting event in connection with the Springville Methodist church took place Christmas when Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) Marsh was presented with a well filled purse of gold by the ladies with whom she is held in high esteem. The services at the church on Sunday were attended by large congregations, there being special music both morning and evening. A limelight service was held in the evening, the sermon being illustrated.

The past year has been a prosperous one for this church. Larger contributions have been given to missions and only one week ago ten members were received into the church. This makes ninety new members during the three years Rev. Dr. Marsh has been in charge.

THINK THESE POINTS OVER

If it is a curse, why is it implanted in every vegetable substance in nature? You cannot crush a fruit, a flower, a seed, under your heel but you have alcohol.

The truth is that alcohol was given to make glad, not sad, the heart of man. Use it well and it is a blessing. Abuse it and it becomes a curse.

Used with judgment, it is a power for preventing disease, prolonging life, enhancing joy, alleviating grief, promoting happiness, provoking thought, energizing the brain, quickening the creative faculty.

Alcohol is a force. There is danger in it as there is in all forces, misapplied. A force demands that it shall be directed wisely.

Curse alcohol for killing people! As well curse Lake Ontario for the people it has drowned. As well curse steam for the boiler explosions it has caused. As well curse the railway for the ghastly accidents that occur from time to time.

Alcohol, we repeat, is a force. In using it we must exercise the same care, self-control, vigilance, and manliness, that we exercise in using all other forces. The way to strengthen character is by resisting temptation.

THEN VOTE AGAINST LOCAL OPTION.

MY MOST IMPORTANT FIGHT

BY JACK JOHNSON.

Naturally the fight which I consider the most important in my career was with Tommy Burns at Rushcutters' Bay, N.S.W., Dec. 26, 1908, when I realised my ambition and became the world's heavyweight champion.

I don't think anyone will contradict me when I say I outfought, outboxed and outgeneraled Burns. He put up a wonderfully game fight, but I being so much more clever and stronger, he did not have a chance to win. And the same was true of Stanley Ketchel, as game a boy as ever climbed through the ropes.

I beat Burns in 14 rounds. I had chased him half around the world and took the short end of the purse, $5,000—whereas he received $30,000 at least—because I wanted the title. I knew I could win and I won as I pleased.

It has been said that I wait for my opponents, but the story of my fight with Burns proves the contrary. I was the aggressor all the way, and really won the fight in the first round, when I landed a right uppercut on Burns' chin at close range. Had I ever been doubtful of the result, I was positive I had Burns beaten after that punch.

Throughout the fight Burns rushed, gamely trying to land a blow that would hurt. He threw the vilest sort of talk imaginable at me, to get me rattled, but I had followed him too long to lose my head when the game was in my hands. Really, I scarcely felt his punches, and the pictures show I was joking with men near the ring when Burns was hitting me the hardest.

After the battle I was fresh, but Burns was badly cut up, especially about the face. His eyes were closed and his mouth swollen. But although he took a hard beating he was game and indomitable to the very last, and I admire him for it. They think I can't hit, but Tommy Burns and Stanley Ketchel will testify to my ability in this direction, I believe.

I planned before the fight to beat Burns with my right hand. I knew he was a rusher, and was confident I'd get him. I did not anticipate landing the punch which really won the fight as early as the first round, however, but when he took the count of eight and my next punch drove him half way across the ring, I was satisfied.

In this same round Burns swung with all his strength to my chin. Had he been able to get me at all, that blow would have done the business. But it was not to be and I knew it. He was a good little man, and the old saying about a good little man and a good big man held true.

HOCKEY

About fifteen players of the West End Athletic Club turned out to practice at the rink on Saturday morning between nine and ten o'clock, and the large number of railbirds received somewhat of a surprise at the fine showing made. Manager Oldham will have a big contract on his hands when it comes to picking his team, as he has gathered together a large number of the fastest hockeyists in the city. Among those out were Halpin, C. Dobson, Wallace, J. Dobson, Seymour, C. Giroux, Munroe.

From word received by President D'Arcy McGee, of the Ottawa Hockey Club, this morning, Edmonton is coming down to play for the Stanley Cup with the same team that finished the season last year. That, of course, does not mean the team that played Wanderers for the cup early in January.

Miller and Deeton, together with Jack Winchester and Whitcroft will be on the line-up, and that quartette comprise a team in themselves.

Alf. Kent, manager of the Edmonton team, wired this morning asking that dates be given the club between the 16th and 24th of January, but as President McGee wired yesterday stating that the 18th and 20th had been set aside for Edmonton, it is likely those dates will be acceptable. —Ottawa Free Press.
